DUNDEE. — Palace Theatre.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Licensee and Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—The Three Royal Dreadnoughts, expert rifle shots, give an exhibition of sharp shooting which is simply marvellous; Pat Rafferty's Irish humour is irresistible; Luis Hardt, the Boy Samson, performs some wonderful feats of strength; the Belmores are exceedingly popular with their sweet singing and graceful dancing; the operatic selections rendered by the St. Johns, musical comedians, are delightful; George French and Bob Stephenson are both entertaining comedians, and are warmly received; the Decars, burlesque artists, contribute a very laughable turn. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope completes an excellent bill.

Gaiety Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—In place of the usual variety programme the patrons of this house are regaled this week with dramatic fare, the piece presented being The Hero of the Flag, which receives a capital representation at the hands of Mr. Edward McLean's company. The part of the hero, Jack Lawrence, is in the safe hands of Mr. Edward McLean, who gives it a very powerful rendering; Miss Gladys Vernon, who undertakes the title-rôle, submits a really charming interpretation; the part of the villainous Paul Mansfield is dramatically played by Mr. Ernest Wingfield; enjoyable comedy is supplied by Mr. Johnny McElroy and Miss Amy Randolph as Johnny Gruckle and Jenny Stubbs respectively.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—A capital programme is presented here this week. Will Candlish, the coloured gentleman, evokes roars of laughter; Henrietta and Selina present a unique musical entertainment; Dan Noble, eccentric comedian, is a very comical "cuss"; the charming contributions of pretty Rosie Yorke are warmly received; Vallance fairly mystifies all with his magical illusions; Ara, Zebra, and Vora are successful in their novel turn entitled Indian Pastimes; Kitty Marion proves herself to be a charming vocalist; and Philip Sefton, baritone vocalist, enhances his already high reputation as a singer of good songs. The Empire Bioscope, with several new films, completes the programme.

EASTBOURNE.—Devonshire Park Theatre.—Proprietors, the Devonshire Park and Baths Co.; Managers, Messrs. Murray, King, and Clark.—Messrs. Cartwright, Lawrence, and Tapping's excellently-cast company is appearing here in David Copperfield, David Garrick, and The Coping Stone. The last-named is a new play, written by Mr. Gerald Lawrence, and was billed for production on Friday evening of this week. David Copperfield was splendidly staged on Monday evening, and the very fine work of Mr. Charles Cartwright as the old salt Dan'l Peggotty moved the audience to tears of sympathy; Mr. Charles Collette, in his own delightful, breezy manner, submitted an irresistible study of Micawber and highly pleased everyone; Mr. Lionel Belmore gave quite a little masterpiece of pathetic acting as Ham, and he is to be highly congratulated; Mr. Gerald Lawrence lost no point as Steerforth; Mr. A. B. Tapping realised many of the possibilities of the part of Uriah Heep; and Mr. Stanley Harrison was a very good David Copperfield. Miss Lorna Lawrence as Little Emily played with fine feeling and judgment; Miss Gordon Walker was a pleasing and interesting Agnes; Miss Helen Vicary displayed just the necessary amount of vigour and smartness as Betsy Trotwood; Miss Ethel Sarjient and Miss Beatrice Grósvenor shared honours for their excellent work as Mrs. Grummidge and Mrs. Barkis; Miss Clarissa gave a strong and pointed account of the part of Rosa Dartle; and Miss Lillie Cavenagh did able and delicate work as Martha.

Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. E. St. Alban's company is appearing here with great success in the ever-delightful opera Les Cloches de Corneville. Mr. E. St. Alban works hard and well, and his study and make-up as Gaspard deserve the warmest praise; Mr. William Everard possesses a fine, rich voice, and he is heard to great advantage in his songs as the Marquis; Mr. Charles Ross uses a sweet voice with splendid effect as Grenicheaux; Mr. Fred Dark revels in the part of the Bailie and loses no opportunities, and he has a mirth-provoking partner in Mr. Richard Martin as Gobo; Miss Marion Ayling is a dainty Germaine, and her beautiful and artistic singing is warmly applauded; Miss Madge Roberts is a delightfully vivacious and pretty Serpolette, singing with delightful charm and result. A very fine chorus is under the direction of Chevalier Legrand, who deserves hearty commendation.

The Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. H. Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Smith.—A varied and interesting bill is offered here this week. At the head is Mahatma, whose exhibition of second-sight is wonderfully smart and startling in its correctness; Hyde, Cody, and a charming lady contribute a turn which is a clever mixture of funny comedy work and extremely smart tumbling and balancing; Miss Kathrena is interesting in her song and dances in The Carnival of Toys; Miss Nellie Lewis sings excellent songs in capital style; Mr. and Mrs. G. Leonard deserve high praise for their work in the sketch Coming Home; Mr. Alfred Davis is a successful descriptive vocalist; and Mr. C. Harvey does well. The pictures complete the bill.

ECCLES.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. C. Hamilton Baines; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—The attraction here this week is the musical comedy, entitled Cissy. Mr. Harry Vernon as Victor Carleton acts and sings pleasingly; as Gilbert Temple Mr. Basil Mitchell plays the part of an adventurer capably; Dossy Bowers, an outcast, is well impersonated by Mr. Sydney Humphreys; Mr. Fletcher Sansome as Titus Thomas creates great fun; Miss Hetty Lind, in the rôle of Cissy Vere, is deserving of praise; the Olive Temple of Miss Dorah E. Eastlake is well acted; Miss Gladys Silvester as Mary Mopps is the cause of much laughter; Miss Daisy Towers, Miss Trissie Mills, and Miss Kitty Vernum, in the respective parts of Polly Truelove, Daisy Meadows, and Sally Springs, acquit themselves creditably.

EDINBURGH.—Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—The return visit of The Earl and the Girl, played by Mr. William Greet's principal company, has drawn full houses. Chief honours fall to Mr. Wm. Stephens for his exceedingly funny rendering of the part of Jim Cheese. Mr. Arthur Harrold as Dick Wargrave acts and sings with much point and effect; and Mr. Percy E. Wright is quite happy in his delineation of the humours of the Hon. Crewe Boodle; while as Downham, Talk, and Hazell, Messrs. W. Norman, Green Taylor, and Fred W. Patrick are well fitted with their respective rôles. Among the ladies, Miss Frances Earle's singing and acting in the leading part of Elphin Haye are wholly delightful; Miss Jennie Richards develops the broader comedy of Liza Shoddam most successfully; and other characters are well sustained by Miss Beatrice Anderson, Miss Gertrude Melville, Miss Joan Clifford, and Miss Hilda Gray. The "entente cordiale" dance is very prettily executed by a bevy of charming dansenses, and the whole production does credit to the stage direction of Mr. George A. Highland.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—One of the principal attractions of this week's bill is the clever performer Galatea (Miss Maud Odell), whose beautiful poses of famous masterpieces of sculpture are very graceful; Miss Violet Ray, a charming vocalist and finished player on the violoncello, receives enthusiastic applause; Mr. Leslie Holland and Miss Vera Vere are entertaining in a smart duologue, A Side-slip; Miss Florence Deighton charms all hearts by her vocal contributions, and Miss Maud Courtney is highly successful both in song and story; Mr. James Fawn is fresh and original as ever in his sketches, and the Mysterious Mr. C. makes a hit in his clever turn; Mr. Johnny Fuller displays remarkable agility in his acrobatic sketch; the Four Hearnes are droll and nimble performers; Musical Silvo extracts music from some strange instruments; and a pleasing example of animal training is given by Mr. Alfredo Trentanoir with his mules and baboon.

King's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—A large audience filled the King's Theatre on Monday evening, when Mr. H. Armitage and Mr. Arthur Leigh's company began a six nights' engagement in Leah Kleschna. The play owes much of its success to the quiet, forcible acting of Mr. William F. Grant as Paul Sylvaine, a performance of undoubted merit, and the charming, pathetic impersonation of Miss Bessie Rignold as Leah. Mr. Paul Belmore plays with much power as Kleschna; Mr. Hamilton Deane strikes the right note in his Admirable portrayal of Raoul Bertin, and Mr. Roland Daniel displays great skill in his representation of the small part of Valentin Favre. Mr. Campbell Goldsmid acts with marked ability the difficult part of Schram; General Berton is capitally played by Mr. Roland Daniel, and Miss Ethel Russell, Miss Helene Belgrave, and Miss Violet Thorold are excellent in their respective parts. The drama is well staged.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The Egbert Brothers easily take first place this week with their Happy Dustmen turn, and Mr. Herbert Darnley's company of comedians appear with much acceptance in a lively military pantomime entitled The Skirmishers. The comedienne and comedian element is represented by Miss Lizzie Daniels, Mr. Robb Gilmore, and Mr. Geo. Brooks, all of whom contribute in their several styles to the amusement of the audience; and the Cambrian Trio of lady vocalists also receive their due meed of applause. An excellent exhibiton of versatility as a quick-change artist is given by Mr. C. Randolph King; Ryan and Hall are good comedy acrobats; the bar act of Mezetti and Mora includes some clever novelty; and a bright sketch styled The Cuckoo, smartly played by Mr. Charles Kitts, Miss Rhoda Windrum, and others, is very diverting.

Alhambra Theatre of Varieties. — General-Manager, Mr. Ventom Swift.—A dramatic sketch, The Red Letter, is effectively acted by Miss Lily Pearl and Mr. H. Leslie Bell. Mr. Arthur Elvy, sporting comedian, finds favour with a large section of the audience; Mr. A. J. Gamble, Scotch comedian, shows ability in his characterisation; the Brothers Obo, laughing comedians, are very amusing, and the Three Moxons are droll and capable acrobats; Vowles and Bryan provide an interesting sketch, and Mr. Archie Cameron proves himself to be an entertaining comedian.

EXETER. — Theatre Royal.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. T. Arthur Jones's company is here this week in the melodrama Life's Sweetest Sins, and is drawing large houses. Miss Marie Daventry as the heroine enlists the sympathies of the audience and together with Mr. T. Arthur Jones as Captain Harold Marston, the hero, appears in some very effective scenes; Mr. Oswald Douglas as Dr. Colbrooke, the scheming villain, is distinctly good; Miss Marion Armitage and Mr. Edgar Morgan, as maid and manservant respectively, introduce some humorous scenes.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Charles Carey, in conjunction with Mr. Harold Wantage, presented the new musical comedy, The Pick of the Bunch, here on Monday. Mr. Charles Carey, who works untiringly as Halliwell Menit, is very successful; Mr. H. Buckstone Clair is a quaint Colonel Menit, Mr. Algernon W. Lee a good Martin, his singing being much appreciated, Mr. Harold Wantage an amusing Dick Seymour, Miss M. Sadie a clever and spirited Nancy, Miss Eva Ellis a fascinating Ruth Gay, Miss Nellie James a particularly smart Wilhelmina, and Miss Madge Christopher as Nellie Mather sings tastefully. A clever dance is introduced in Act II. by Miss Madge Lacey. The piece is well dressed and mounted.

GATESHEAD. — King's Theatre. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—The eccentricities of Sam Elton, who heads the bill here this week, have caused the greatest hilarity; Corman's Juveniles sing and dance with good effect; Albert Wyndham's company, in the Shakespearean episode, Prince Arthur, pays a return visit, and makes the hit of the week; the Nettas submit two excellent vocal items, for which they receive abundant praise; Les Valdos, in a comedy gymnastic act, are seen to advantage; Bernard and Weston, a pair of clever cross-talkers, achieve success; Carrie Joy, ballad vocalist, and pictures by Vernon's Imperial Bioscope, are also in the bill.

Metropole Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France. — Messrs. Polini and Maitland's company, in the excellent drama, The Coal King, has drawn huge audiences to this house. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland could hardly be improved upon for the part of Tom Roberts; Mr. Chas. Whitlock makes a capital Sir Reginald; Mr. Escott Robson in the part of Walter Hartford shows much ability; the rôle of Dick Shirley is successfully taken by Mr. Frank Dalton; Mr. Alfred Terriss as Jim Williams looks after the comedy element to everyone's satisfaction; a sweet and womanly Grace Shirley is presented by Miss Gertrude Valentine; Miss Sinna St. Clair is a powerful Mad Ann; Miss Enid Ross makes much out of the humorous part of Araminta Green.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Smith. — The romantic play, The Throne of Terror, is the fare at this establishment. Mr. W. J. Miller is seen to advantage as Robespierre; Mr. Walter Bentley as D'Almonte, lends valuable assistance; Miss Katherine Maude Davies supplies a skilful Marguerite.

GLASGOW. — Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—This week Lucky Durham is visiting Glasgow for the second time, the play being again presented with exceptional care and finish by Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company. Mr. Edmund Kennedy sustains the rôle of John Durham, and gives a strong and convincing depiction of the character; for the part of Lord Mountfallon Mr. Robert Forsyth is particularly well suited; Mr. Arthur Leigh appears as the Hon. Reginald Steighton, and his rendering of the part is distinctly amusing; the Vallerton of Mr. A. C. Walker is a refined conception; a gentlemanly Walcombe is submitted by Mr. W. Kingsford Pearse; and clever character-work is seen in the Verstein of Mr. W. F Clitherow, the Tasker of Mr. John Hartt, and the Mintborough of Mr. Sydney Bancroft. The Helen Vallerton of Miss Alice Esther Belmore is quite a captivating heroine; Miss Frances Wolviston plays the haughty Lady Mountfallon very well; as Margaret Steighton Miss Florence Dulhunty acts gracefully; the Mrs. Durham of Miss Louisa Gourlay is a particularly good performance; and the parts of Miss Premore and the Typist are ably filled by Misses Elsie Mayne and Gwynne Hanley.

Royalty, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—The Perfect Lover, produced for the first time in Glasgow on Monday evening by Mr. Harold V. Neilson and company, met with a very good reception from a large audience. Mr. Harold V. Neilson, in the part of Joseph Tremblett, plays with much strength and conviction; the unscrupulous money-maker, William Tremblett, had a good representative in Mr. W. L. Warde; Lord Cardew, a slender part, was played very creditably by Mr. Bernard Limpus; and John Collis, the uncle, had a capable exponent in Mr. John Dettin. Lillian Tremblett, the rich man's luckless and heart-broken wife, was sympathetically played by Miss Amy Sangster; and a word of praise is due to Miss Lucy Dibly, who as the Hon. Susan Lesson gave a delightful study of the elderly maiden aunt.

King's, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—A gratifying reception was accorded Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton when they opened here on Monday in The Virgin Goddess, and the new tragedy was followed with rapt attention. As Haephestion Mr. Asche has a part that affords him unlimited scope, and his acting throughout undoubtedly marks an advance on anything he has yet given here. Miss Lily Brayton as the ill-fated Althea is also specially well suited, and from first to last the tragic aspects of the part were finely indicated. Mr. Alfred Brydone as the craven-hearted Cresphontes ably shared the honours of the evening, and added another to his long list of successes. Miss Elsie Chester as Cleito also deserves the highest commendation; and other parts were well played by Miss Leila Norris, Miss Agnes Brayton, and Messrs. H. R. Hignett, G. Kay Souper, and Reginald Ian Penny. On Tuesday Mr. Oscar Asche gave a striking performance as Othello to the Desdemona of Miss Lily Brayton, Mr. Alfred Brydone being excellent as the wily Iago. The Taming of the Shrew was given later in the week.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—The Female Swindler is the attraction here this week, and is drawing good houses. Miss Grace E. Leslie makes a most successful appearance as La Valroy, the clever criminal; Mr. Joseph Millane enacts John Coulson, the acute detective; the male rascality is well depicted by Mr. J. Knox-Orde as Geoffrey Warden and Mr. John Belton as Abraham Mikestein. Mr. Guy P. Ellis gives a good account of himself as the heroic Harold Travers; while Miss Florrie Kelsey as May Andrews makes an attractive heroine. Mr. A. Kenyon Gray as a retired merchant acts the part with suitable dignity; Mr. Henry Wright makes up amusingly in four different characters, the principal being Billy Binks, a boy in buttons, who, with Miss Mary Dawson as a servant girl, adds greatly to the fun. Detective Dixon by Mr. E. Winstow, Larkin by Mr. A. Wilson, and Mrs. Poppin by Miss Edith Gray are notable embodiments.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is doing capital business here with A Broken Heart. Mr. Harry Wolston plays John Barnard with marked success; and Miss Lillian Herries gives a clever reading of Mary Barnard. Stephen Raylton is played with distinction by Mr. Harry Earlesmere; Mr. Will Lindsay scores as Tony Tibbets. In the dual rôle of Grace Fanshawe and Mrs. Kellett Mrs. Harry Foxwell does remarkably well; and Mr. George Addiston as Skrimp and Miss Nancy Mitchell as Sally Tanner appear with much acceptance. The Gash Gills of Mr. Charles Vivian gives satisfaction.

Lyceum.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Lilian Clare Cassidy's thrilling Russian drama, In Holy (?) Russia, which formed such an attraction last week in the Princess's Theatre, is this week reproduced by Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company in the Lyceum. In the Hibernian part of Micky Nolan Mr. Cassidy is excellent; while as Renee Rubinoff Mrs. Cassidy evokes the enthusiasm of her audience from the commencement. The acting of Messrs. Stratton, Copeland, Sands, Rovinelli, and Loyd is all that one can desire; and Miss Florence Creagh makes an admirable Catska Lavotski.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—A successful programme is submitted this week. Mme. De Vry's "Three Golden Graces" give a most artistic exhibition of living bronze statuary; Mabel Green, the well-known musical comedy artist, sings her songs well, and is a great favourite; the Kirbys, comedy artists, are a funny couple; George Westland gives a most successful turn as a Scotch comedian; Barton and Franklyn are clever instrumentalists; D'Arc's Marionettes give wonderful impersonations of well-known music-hall artists; David Stewart sings well, and his songs are illustrated by some very artistic pictures. Other good items are presented by Sinclair and Whiteford in their sketch Getting Even, and the Kroney Bros, as The Lazy Coalmen.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Caicedo, the King of the Wire, is here, and his wonderful performance is heartily enjoyed; Mabel Bardine and company are producing the clever sketch Nell of the Halls, which is cleverly written and well acted; Chas. Coborn receives the welcome of an old favourite, and as a coster or a Dutchman seems equally at home, finishing up with a well-known Gaelic song; Ted Curtis and his piccaninnies give an enjoyable turn; Edie King is a smart dancer; Ruby and Laws contribute a smart vocal comedy-scena; and the Vailescu Troupe display wonderful ability on the triple bars. The cornet playing of the Howards is particularly good; and a smart patter turn is that of Tray and Rich. The Bioscope concludes a first-rate programme.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—Edwin Boyde, after a lengthy absence, receives a hearty welcome here, and in his own inimitable manner keeps the audience in roars of laughter right through his turn. Irma Lorraine gives a series of tableaux vivants which are much appreciated. Clarice Mayne is retained this week, and her impersonations and original songs are equally enjoyed; Valazzi is a clever juggler with a number of new and ingenious tricks; the illusion "Quo Vadis" is a most mystifying affair, and is cleverly carried out; Lloyd Morgan does well as a light comedian; Janet Howard Reynolds possesses a sweet soprano voice; and the coon songs and dances of Maude Vera are well received. Les 2 Cabiacs contribute an acrobatic display of much originality.

Coliseum.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—A capital programme is provided here this week. Bella and Bijou, comedy entertainers, are the outstanding feature, and earn rounds of applause; Clarence C. Corris's company, in an amusing sketch, Office Hours, are responsible for much amusement. Other notable turns include the Soho Trio, singing and dancing specialists; Bert Harrow, comedian; Arabella Allen, in her clever Dickens sketches; Will Cornish, musical expert; Tom Lally, bass vocalist; Leo Tell, musical mimic; Jack Mills, comedian; and the Bioscope with a capital series of pictures.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Rich Walden; General-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Harry Tate's company in Motoring provides genuine amusement; and a very fine and artistic act by Effie White, kaleidoscopic dancer, is one of the hits of the programme. A good singer and smart dancer is Cherrie Lass; and quite charming in voice and style is Lottie De Abbey, who uses her fine soprano to advantage. Dale and O'Malley worthily top the bill as patter comedians and singers; and the pedestal dancing by the Lannons is excellent. The respective performances of Bob Baxter and Josh Dixon are greatly enjoyed; in sentiment and song Alma Obrey makes a big success. The Bioscope pictures close a pleasant entertainment.

Gaiety, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Hess and Lisbon top the bill here, their skating act being very amusing. Lil Hartley sings favourite songs; and Chorley and Connor are clever comedians; while the efforts of the Three Royal Temples have met with success. Other smart turns include Joe Wesley, comedian; Luie Gilbert, serio; George Ra, comedian; Marie Raymond, comedienne, and the Gaiety Bioscope.

Britannia.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—This favourite little hall, under its new management, is proving most successful. In addition to the many permanent attractions, this week's programme includes Staley and Ashton, the soapy tramps; James Toner, the newsboy mimic; Gwen Ashdown, child vocalist; and the latest Chronophone and Bioscope novelties.

GLOSSOP. — Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—This week Mr. T. Eduard Ward's company in Man and Wife is scoring a huge success. Mr. John F. Traynor as Paul Revere acts in a skilful manner; Mr. Wilson Coleman plays with judgment the part of Captain D'Esparre; Mr. Edward Lealie is seen to advantage as Father Coupe; whilst Mr. Edward van Biene as Colonel Latour and Mr. Ambrose Horton as Sergeant Jaques give good readings. Miss Kate Hallam gains unstinted applause for her portrayal of Marcella; Miss Violet Temple is sympathetic and effective as Ruth Revere; and Miss Ethel F. Green stands out prominently as Jean. Mr. Sidney Bryant (Bimbo) and Mr. Val Gully (Bambo), along with Miss Polly Denville (Rosette), are responsible for the comedy parts.

GLOUCESTER.—Palace.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Topping the bill are the Craggs, in their acrobatic pantomimic sketch Billy, the New Steward. A refined musical entertainment is given by the Ellimans; Frank Cumminger dances in his usual smart way, and is well received; the Prince and Milner Trio are good in a miscellaneous programme; and Minnie D'Aubyn pleases all with her songs. Variety is added to by Cavalli, a smart ventriloquist; Leo Lester's company in the comedy burlesque Monkeyland; and Gus Hindell, who does extremely well in his scena, entitled "Boys will be boys," in addition to which his mimicry is really amusing. The bioscope concludes an enjoyable evening.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—Mr. Will White's company opened here on Monday for three nights in the romantic drama, The New World. Miss Beatrice Moore as Jenny Williams acts throughout delightfully, and is responsible for a good deal of amusement; Mr. Victor Rae gives a manly and vigorous portrayal of Jack Hawley; Mr. W. S. Stephenson carefully depicts the callous nature of the villain, Jim Rawlins; as Joe Williams Mr. A. H. Clarke is responsible for a clever character-study; some welcome touches of humour are contributed by Mr. Willie Hicks as Pete; Mr. W. Base as Brutus Brown, and Mr. Fred Guinness as Sam Smart; Mr. Donald Gilbert is a breezy Colonel Clayton; Miss Evelyn Robson is seen to advantage as May Walton; and Miss Maude Leslie is a capital Tamantha. Mr. Albert Carlton is worthy of special mention for his clever portrayal of Jose Alvarez. Songs and dances are introduced with great success by Miss Beatrice Moore, Mr. W. Hicks, and Messrs. Bass and Guinness.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — Royal Aquarium. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—The new romantic Servian drama, A Destroyer of Men, is being played here this week by Mr. James Hare's company. Count Starevitch is admirably impersonated by Mr. C. T. Wentworth; Paul is effectively handled by Mr. Hill Cremer; Olga finds an able representative in Miss Irene Clifford; and Vidal Ravel is sympathetically portrayed by Miss Jessie Yatman.

GREENOCK.—Alexandra Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Popple (of Ippleton) is presented here this week by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. In the title-rôle Mr. Arthur Longley's quaint humour provokes the audience to genuine unrestrained laughter. Miss Millie Hylton is an attractive and vivacious exponent of La Bolero, her vocal numbers being pleasingly rendered. Mr. Robert Coray plays Norman Popple in manly style; Mr. Tom May is amusing as Platt; and Mr. Robert MacLachlan acts and sings well as Jacques Kenyon. Violet is admirably portrayed by Miss Cora Lingard, and the Louise of Miss Nellie Hodson is another outstanding feature of the performance. Miss Stella St. Audrie as Mrs. Hennay, Miss Alice Rene as Mrs. Doring, Mr. Sydney Courtenay as George Hennay, and Mr. James Stevenson as Henry Doring, all enact their respective parts with satisfactory results. The chorus is good, and the musical arrangements under the direction of Mr. Julian Rutt are all that could be desired.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—This week's attractions include Ross and Lewis, who appear in a smart sketch, entitled Fits and Misfits, in which they introduce some exceptionally clever dancing; Zaro and Arno, in a capital comedy bar act, the Sisters Kilner, a capable trio of vocalists and dancers, Bert Williams, ventriloquist, Luigi Salvino, instrumentalist, and Will Driscoll, comedian and dancer, are also on the bill, and their performances are appreciated.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—Mlle. Sara's Marblesque Trio appear in a series of beautiful poses, in which there is much to command the admiration of lovers of the artistic; Driscoll Beattie and company, in McPhee, M.P., cause uproarious laughter; and other good turns are Keith and Kent, comedy artists, the Crown Trio, speciality vocalists, the Three Eltons, acrobats, Annie Nelson, Australian vocalist, and the Paviscope pictures.

An admirable Food of the

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—The Irish drama, The Wearing o' the Green, has established itself a prime favourite on its first visit here. The life of the piece is Mr. Chalmers Mackey, who portrays the genial Barney O'Hea in a manner that is distinctly diverting; Mr. Herbert Summers sustains the part of Shamus M'Dermott with becoming dignity; and Mr. St. John Stuart is equally successful as Gerald Courtney. Miss Nana Flensberg is a captivating colleen as Biddy M'Ginn; whilst Mrs. Chalmers Mackey as Norah M'Grath and Miss Adele Liddon as Mrs. M'Dermott win complete approval in their respective parts. Mr. John S. Chamberlain admirably realises the scheming disposition of Michael Kenny; and other prominent members of the company are Mr. H. Sainsbury as Sir George Courtney and Mr. David M'Farlane as Connor Martin.

CURRY'S TIVOLI.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—The Courtiers, a party of nine ladies and gentlemen, are scoring honours, their vocal act being alike notable for its artistic merit and refined character; George Formby's exposition of Lancashire humour is a popular feature; Bromley and Fontein's musical burlesque is an entertaining item; the Maitland Trio present an amusing absurdity; Toney Iveson, as the ragman at the piano, gives evidence of pleasing versatility; Leo is a ventriloquist with original business; and Mlle. Onra is a graceful wire performer.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. C. Shread; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—The Pom-Poms, who appear under the joint-direction of Messrs. Leonard Thiel and Fred Fowler, are a smart troupe of pierrots; Pick, Tholl, and Taylor create an abundance of laughter with their sketch, The Dancing Master; the Four Jumels contribute a musical speciality which is as novel as it is clever; the Elgars present an excellent Irish song-scena; Burns and Bentley prove expert step-dancers; Bertha Norwood is a charming vocalist and dancer; Walter Wallis is a comedian with good business; and Marlo combines jugglery with equilibristic work.

GUERNSEY.—ST. JULIAN'S HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris.—The Duchess of Dantzic, played by Mr. Edward Marris's own company, was staged here on the 12th inst. Mr. George Blunt was an admirable Napoleon; Mr. Mansell Fane's François was a pronounced success, both musically and dramatically; Mr. Tom Payne caused merriment as Papillon; Mr. Brunston Williams as Vicomte de Bethune was excellently placed; Miss Ethel Ward proved charmingly acceptable as Renee; and Lizette was engagingly played by Miss Norah Melton; premier honours were taken by Miss Blanche Lynd, whose delineation of Sans Gêne was a decided triumph. The play was repeated on Saturday.

HALIFAX. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The White Chrysanthemum is enjoying a successful run here this week. Mr. St. John Hamund makes a typical Admiral Horatio; Reginald is capably presented by Mr. H. Langdon Bruce; Mr. Richard Telford keeps the fun going at a good pace as Sin-Chong; excellent assistance is rendered by Mr. H. E. Garden as the imperturbable Lieutenant; Miss Muriel George is delightfully natural as the White Chrysanthemum; Miss Dorothy Sephton makes the most of her opportunities as the discriminating widow; Miss Wilmot Karkeek and Mr. Jamie Dallas are also noteworthy contributors to the success.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Sam Winks.—Notwithstanding that the present is the third visit of the farce, Miss Lancashire, Ltd., crowded houses are congregating to see it presented twice nightly. Miss Florence Baines is mistress of the dramatic situation from the rise of the curtain, giving a realistic portrait of the uncultured but honest-hearted and shrewd Lancastrian, Mary Ellen Thompson. Her laughing song is especially well received; a good representation of an American Jew is submitted by Mr. Burt Burton; and Mr. David Donaldson advantageously retains the rôle of Jno. Higgins.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Ed. Harrison.—A gigantic bill is being presented here. A leading attraction is W. Selkirk's juvenile spectacle, All Scotch, in which 100 local kiddies distinguish themselves; Johnny Dwyer is very quaint indeed; Adey Spencer, the girl from the hat shop, soon dances herself into favour; Clown Barker's animal act is accorded a hearty welcome; Gold and Stirling, in a refined speciality scena, The Welsh Girl and the Artist, meet with an ovation; and a very neat duologue entitled "The Man in the Procession" is given by Blake and Granby; Arthur Croxon and Kisbey also score.

HANLEY. — ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson are paying a welcome return visit in a round of Shakespearean plays. On Monday The Merchant of Venice was presented. As Shylock, Mr. Benson was admirable, his portrayal being scholarly and convincing; Mrs. Benson as Portia contributed a most effective impersonation; Mr. Edward A. Warburton scored as the Prince of Morocco; Mr. George R. Weir, as usual, gave an admirable performance as Launcelot Gobbo; as the Merchant, Mr. Clarence Derment was well placed; and the Bassanio of Mr. George Buchanan was a highly commendable impersonation. Lorenzo had a worthy representative in Mr. G. F. Hannam; and Mr. H. O. Nicholson's Gratiano was a performance to be remembered. Miss Gwladys Wynne contributed a charming portrayal as Jessica; as Nerissa, Miss Helen Haye was most successful. As You Like It, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Julius Cæsar, Hamlet, Taming of the Shrew, and Macbeth are in the week's programme.

GRAND, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynes. — Miss Hilda Jacobsen heads the bill this week; she has a nice voice, which is heard to advantage in her selections. Howard and Harris provide a very funny turn; Herbert Clifton as a mimic provides a clever and interesting turn; Fred Cary scores with capital songs; Miss Mayme Cannon is an extraordinary pianist; Geo. D'Albert is well received; the Sisters Lytton sing well; the Four Aces, in their acrobatic turn, are capital.

HARROGATE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Smith.—On the first three nights of this week The Honyemoon was presented by Mr. Gilbert Payne and company. Mr. Alvin Sawyer was an amusing Colonel Vandyke Brown; Mr. Leslie Erle was well placed as Jack Armstrong, and proved himself a clever banjoist; Mr. Gilbert Payne earned many laughs for his performance as Nathaniel Noodle. He had able support from Miss Lillian Ramsdale as Emeretta, Miss Nellie Dyson as Stella sang well; and Mr. Fred Fulton was acceptable as Archie Mashington. The Four Sisters Godfrey are clever dancers.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—The Countess Romanow, who is appearing here this week in a series of beautifully graceful and artistic poses, is applauded to the very echo; Dolly Denver excels in as fine a display of buck dancing that could be wished for; the Prinellas are certainly up to date in their farmyard scena, A Country Flirtation; Gerhardi Mohr's somersaulting fully entitles him to his claim to be considered the Somersault King; the turn by Sandy and Carl, who are on a return visit, is amusing; the laughable skit, The Would-be Actors, Percy Curry, Tyneside comedian, and the Bioscope are agreeable additions to the programme.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—The excellent company organised by Mr. Eugene C. Stafford is here this week in The Private Secretary. Mr. Donald Price-Evans as the Rev. Robert Spalding is intensely funny, and with his antithesis, the self-assertive Mr. Cattermole, so ably played by Mr. W. Hargreaves, causes roars of merriment. Another well-acted rôle is that of Mr. Sidney Gibson, admirably presented by Mr. Vivian Gilbert; and Miss Cecily Wade is a genuinely good Mrs. Stead. Mr. Randolfe Reade as Douglas Cattermole, the pseudo-secretary, does well, and is ably seconded by Mr. James Hussey as Harry Marsland, Miss Dora Gray as Edith Marsland, and Miss Beth Elliott as Eva Webster, who are pleasing in their respective rôles; and the mystified Miss Ashford has a good exponent in Mrs. Alfred Davis. Mr. W. T. Elworthy is a hearty Mr. Marsland. My American Admirer precedes, and is brightly played by Messrs. W. T. Elworthy and James Hussey, and the Misses Cecily Wade and Beth Elliott.

PIER PAVILION.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. J. D. Hunter's company appears here in the farcical comedy entitled In the Soup. Mr. Hunter's rich humour serves him well in the part of Horace Gillibrand; Uncle Ruppershaw is effectively represented by Mr. E. Maule Cole; Miss Blanche Bayley is admirable as Judith Gillibrand; Mr. Charles Hawker is capital as Meekings; very successful also is Miss Helen Anderson as Mme. Poppett; Miss Violet Graham very naturally assumes the part of Delphine, while Mrs. Bates is in the capable hands of Miss Violet Agnew.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—The attractive burlesque artist, Miss Josie Hammersley, is at the head of a good programme here; Mr. Fred Dorman sings some excellent songs; the Sisters Belmont exhibit graceful dancing; the Bioscope displays a special exhibition film, "Hippopotamus Hunting"; A Model Wife is the title of a pleasing comedy duologue in which Mr. Edward Cranston and Mrs. Bennett are associated; Miss Joan Deering is a clever violinist and vocalist; the Four Golden Ayeshas excel in their artistic posing as living bronze statuary; Mr. George Bee is much appreciated as a singer; Phil Bransby scores as a coster comedian; the pot-pourri performance of the Paul Hesse Trio is smart.

ST. LEONARDS PAVILION THEATRE.—Pier-Master and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—By kind permission of Mr. Arthur Collins the juvenile company of artists from Drury Lane Theatre are performing in an amusing pantomime, The Forte Thieves. They are introduced to the public by Mr. J. M. Glover, who is at the piano and acts as musical conductor. The piece is cleverly written, the dances are full of prettiness and vitality, and the scenic effects are charming. A brilliant transformation scene entitled "The Coming of Spring" adds much to its attractiveness.

HORWICH. — PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Lewis.—This week there is a strong combination, including Alf Berg in a novel lifting act; Miss Molly Moore, in a polyglot scena, playing five different characters; the Parzones Troupe, in Trainer and Tramps, or Troubles of an Elephant; Miss Elsie Kenward, comedienne and dancer; Mr. J. Hulme, comedian; the Martinettes in The Mad Music Master; a Swiss belt wrestling competition; and several excellent pictures by the Bioscope.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. Wm. Greet's company is paying a return visit with The Earl and the Girl. The cast is largely identical with the one engaged on the former occasion, and includes Mr. Alfred Donohoe, a very entertaining Jim Cheese, Miss Lina Hicks as Liza being an able colleague; Miss Gertrude Simpson is a charming Elphin Haye, whose merry lover is well played by Mr. Thomas Kennard; Mr. Leslie Owen is smart as Crewe Boodle, and well varied sketches are contributed by Miss Kathleen Gerrard as Mrs. Black, Mr. Greville Hayes as Bliss, Mr. E. A. Plumpton as Downham, and Mr. Sam Lysons as Talk. The chorus is alert, and the piece goes smoothly under the direction of Mr. W. Stephenson.

HIPPODROME, LTD. — Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Carl Hertz, the illusionist, is a big attraction as principal turn supported by Miss D. Alton and company. Other items in the bill are provided by James Shields, a nimble one-legged dancer; Valvo, ventriloquist; three San Remo Girls, comediennes and dancers; Bert Woodward, a clever coon cyclist; Miss Isabel Dillon, in a dainty song scena, "Pansy"; Bob Pueblo and Miss Katie Cropp, duettists and dancers; Miss Nada Moret, vocalist and raconteuse; the Bennetts, duettists and dancers; Frank Harwood, descriptive vocalist, in his scena, "My Pipe"; and pictures on the Biograph.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—After a far too long absence, the Kendals have returned to Hull, the scene of many former triumphs. A very warm place is retained in the hearts of Hull playgoers for Madge Robertson, for it was in this city she practically made her début. The present visit opened with The Housekeeper. The play is presented with that finish which is such a distinguishing feature of all of the Kendal productions. As the supposed Housekeeper, Mrs. Kendal has a rôle which she fills to perfection; whilst as the fire-eating Colonel, Mr. Kendal is equally well suited. As the designing widow, Miss Dora Fellowes is well suited; many pleasant little touches distinguished Miss Marie Lohr's picture of the fiancée; and also the sporting young lady, cleverly limned by Miss Jessica Thorne. The Elder Miss Blossom, The Ironmaster, and The Melcombe Marriage form part of the répertoire.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The version of Robin Hood, by Henry Hamilton and William Devereux, is the attraction this week, Mr. Robert Minster taking the leading rôle with more than average ability. That talented actress, Miss Marie Polini, gives a pleasing representation of Maid Marion; Mr. Bellenden Clarke's Prince John has sufficient fire in it to make it a capital companion picture to the one of King Richard, intelligently depicted by Mr. Stockhall Ward. The incidental music and vocal efforts contribute towards the success achieved.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The ever-popular play, The Fatal Wedding, is drawing well this week. The company includes such clever people as Miss Catherine Clark, who fills the rôle of the wronged wife with skill; as the hero, Mr. Ernest Owtrim is well received; while the darker hues of villainy afford scope to Mr. H. Wilson and Mr. Guy Hastings. Far above the usual average is Miss Marie Wilson in the child part.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Large and enthusiastic houses are being attracted here this week by Mr. C. Watson Mill's company, in A Warning to Women. Mr. C. W. Mill gives a fine, manly rendering of Shaun; Mr. Richard Vane submits an excellent study of Dr. Marcus Dread; Mr. Norman B. Cannon gives a sound and natural embodiment of Fergus McNaughton; Mr. N. Carter Slaughter is very amusing as the inane dude, Lord Eversleigh; Mr. Henry Rutland is a capital Squire Kennion; and Mr. George Harvey as the Rev. Emmanuel Wallace makes the most of the part. Miss Rosalind Tate easily surmounts the difficulties associated with the rôle of Moira Kennion; Miss Elinor Glover depicts very truthfully the depraved character of Hilda; Miss Grace Barton acts with grace and charm as Sheila Kennion; Miss Edith Rutland plays very intelligently as Miles O'Moore; and Miss Ellen Beverley is suitably placed as Molly O'Moore. The comedy element is well looked after by Mr. Patrick P. Kenny as Mike McQuade; Mr. W. Palliser Acock as Ferdinand de Jules; Mr. Stanley Wood as John Forgie; and Mr. George Avery as P.C. Marlin.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—The daring equestrian feats of the Misses Lily and Ada and Mr. Claude Ohmy continue to delight large audiences, and the latter artist has also given another instance of his remarkable versatility by contributing a clever trapeze act; Mons. Friskey is an expert juggler, and introduces some funny business; the Cameo Troupe of acrobats provide a most enjoyable turn; the Woodwards give a sensational balancing performance; Anderson's two donkeys are well trained; and Ohmy's living pictures are as popular as ever. August and September appear in a series of new and laughable sketches; and Pete Simple is also responsible for some capital clowning.

ILKESTON.—QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. T. Knightall.—Mozzetto presents a good juggling act; Nellie Dagmar is successful in patter and song; Fred Maurice scores as a comedian and actor vocalist; Ada Bramwell, balladist; Harry Raley, boy vocalist; and Fred Dice, comedian, also entertain.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Miss Violet Osmond's company in the musical comedy, The New Barmaid, is here. The rôle of Ethel Joy could not be entrusted to better hands than those of Miss Maisie Gay, whose charming voice and manner soon secure a host of admirers; Miss Grafton takes the part of Brenda in good style, and Lady Moulton is well portrayed by Miss Mabel Harrison; Miss Phyllis King finds a very suitable place as Dora Heather; Mr. James Hawkes is seen and heard to advantage as Captain Lovebury, whilst Mr. Harry Collier as Colonel Claymore has a fair share of honours; Mr. James Grant's William White is one of the humorous features of the piece, and Mr. Charles Adeson gives a very smart show as Mons. Bonser, his antics and patter causing much merriment; Mr. Alexander Loftus as Bertie White is exceedingly droll, and is quite the hit of the evening.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—Mr. Lewis Waller's Brigadier Gerard company has occupied the boards here this week, Mr. G. Poulton making a striking impression in the chief character. As Gerard Mr. Langhorne Burton renders due justice to the rôle of the brave Gascon; Miss Muriel Godfrey Turner gives a graceful embodiment of the part of the Countess, and Mr. George Mallett's Talleyrand is in every respect satisfactory. The other chief parts are capably represented by Mr. Cecil Wynne, Miss Mary Chard, and Mr. James Crowe.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—A varied and sensational programme at this popular place of entertainment included Mr. Tom Davies' Trio in their startling performance entitled "Whirling the Whirl." Other turns include the Four Spanish Goldinis, whose juggling and dancing are of a novel character; Annie Casey, a pleasing comedienne; Charles Card, with a good song "A Count of no account"; the Vetter Bros. in a speciality act entitled The Page's Recreation; Amos Howard, a clever dancer; Sterling with his clever dog; and Big Ben Brown and Little George Le Clerq, black-faced comedians.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr Jerold E. Reed.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here this week with the drama entitled The Little Breadwinner. Little Emmie Thomas as Meg proves herself an excellent artist, while Mr. Eugene Santley is quite at home as Lord William Dorrington; Mr. Matt Boulton is well placed as Richard Lowerance, and Mr. Alfred Maurice plays with force and skill the part of Joseph Prior; Mr. Stanley Leedham does full justice to the character of Charles Prior; Miss Emil Leslie is charming as Margaret Daventry, while Bridget O'Flanagan could not be in better hands than those of Miss Jenny Bostock; Miss Nellie Thorne Hallam is equal to the part of Kate Cherry.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Ernest Adrim.—The company here includes the Brothers Harrison, Irish comedians and dancers; Globella in a clever act on the globe; Sheila McNeil, Scotch comedienne; Bob Campbell, one-legged dancer and comedian; Eva Searle, vocalist; Comical Walker and his nippers; the Hippodrome Bioscope with some new pictures; Max Merlin in his wonderful animal impersonation; and Moneta and Ford in a capital comedy acrobatic turn.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Edward Marris.—A real treat is provided this week in a visit of The Cingalee. Miss Norah Melton is a bright and pleasing Noyoya; Miss Poppy Dale looks charming as Lady Patricia; and Miss Millie Gordon as Angy Loftus is cordially applauded for her graceful dancing; Mr. Brunston Williams is good as Harry Vereker; Mr. Mansell Fane is excellent as Bombhamba; Mr. Walter Nugent is a satisfactory Bobby Warren; and Mr. George Blunt is an effective Sir Peter Loftus; but the honours of the performance undoubtedly fall to Mr. Tom Payne, who, as Chambhuddy Ram, keeps the audience in roars of laughter. He is ably supported by fascinating Miss Ethel Ward.

KETTERING.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—Mr. Herbert Barrs and company are here this week in the musical drama, Life. Mr. Barrs gives a masterly rendering of the hero, Jack Lockhart; and Mr. Ronald Graham is a competent Sir Horace Lester. Mr. Will Sherlock presents an excellent character-study of Zac Krabbe; and Mr. A. B. Lyons is good as Joe Pippett. Miss Dorothy Oswald is a success as Beatrice Ferrars; and Miss Maud Vincent scores with some excellent acting and singing as Jess.

KIDDERMINSTER. — NEW OPERA HOUSE. — Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. James P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—Baron H. Harriss' company in the musical comedy The Prince of Pilsen has been here for the first three nights of the week. The piece is admirably staged and mounted. Mr. Harry Kilburn in the rôle of Hans Wagner is a host in himself, and Miss Sophie Harriss makes an ideal Mrs. Crocker from New York. The principals are ably supported by a strong all-round company.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—A programme of extraordinary merit has been presented here this week. The Zerbinis troupe give a highly meritorious display; Ben Jackson, the banjo magician, is well applauded; the Cosmans are responsible for a comedy turn that is intensely funny; and smart Eva Rosslyn proves a charming comedienne. Wisper is popular in his unique concoction of comedy juggling; Beattie Bloom is received well; and Jury's pictures are good.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—The farcical absurdity, Lucky Liza, is the attraction this week, and is well presented by Mr. Dickie Clare and company. Mr. Clare is quite at home in his triple rôle; and Miss Madge Brownie as Eliza Bird is most successful.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Porter and Fergusson.—A really good show is presented here. At the top of the bill are the Leslie Bros. in a musical act. Bob Hamilton, Scotch comedian, fairly brings down the house; as also does Effie Stuart, comedienne; the D'Ostas with their Zancig business, baffle the audience; and Clark's Nippers give a smart performance. Sisters Brooke, duettists; Marie Beresford, vocalist; and Du Gros Trio, in a gymnastic act, complete the bill. The "Sunday-school Treat" on the Hippograph causes roars of laughter.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—The management of the local theatre is to be congratulated upon securing a visit from such a versatile and resourceful character-actor as Mr. Albert Chevalier for the last three nights of this week. He is appearing in three plays, supported by a specially-selected company.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman. — Mr. Martin Harvey and his excellent company are here this week. A crowded house witnessed on Monday Mr. Harvey's revival of the historic drama, The Corsican Brothers, when his masterly and artistic interpretation of the dual part was followed with rapt attention, and rewarded by rounds of applause; Miss Coleridge plays the rôle of Emilie de Lesparre with grace and charm; and Mme. Dei Franchi is a portrayal of considrable merit by Miss Mary Rorke. Mr. Vincent Sternroyd makes a strong and effective villain; Mr. Albert E. Raynor evinces considerable ability in the rôle of Baron de Montgiron; and Mr. George Cooke does sterling work in the part of Baron Martelli. Mr. Alfred Mansfield, Mr. Fred Wright, sen., and Mr. Philip Hewland, are excellent in leading parts. A Cigarette Maker's Romance and The Only Way are each allotted one evening, and Hamlet is announced for Saturday's matinée.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—The powerful drama, In Sight of St. Paul's, is being played here to good houses by Mr. Arthur Carlton's clever company. Miss Cissie Bellamy makes a most acceptable heroine; the hero, Tom Chichester, is a capable and satisfying effort by Mr. Ernest R. Allen; a very creditable performance is that of Mr. Herbert Cecil as the villain, Gridston; whilst the Harry Chichester of Mr. W. H. Domoney is also a capital effort. Miss Gussie Everitt scores in the rôle of the adventuress, Cynthia Bell; and some welcome comedy is infused into the piece by Mr. Herbert Colley and Miss Sybil Hammersley in their respective parts of Cabman and Maid.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley. — The famous actor-musician, Van Biene, is the big attraction in this week's programme, his accomplished 'cello playing being a much-admired feature of a well-played pathetic sketch, in the presentation of which he is assisted by Miss Lena Burnleigh and Miss Rose Summers; Tom Costello, the popular comedian, is again having a very successful time; the Aurora Troupe present a sensational trick cycling act, which evokes much enthusiasm; and some well-played xylophone selections by the Three Tauberts are appreciated. Billy McClain introduces a troupe of clever coloured artists; the Jonghmanns, a female vocal trio, are well liked; that clever and vivacious comedienne, Lily Langtry, is again a prominent success; and Lily Tiso is also popular in a similar line. Alexander and company present a diverting sketch; and Spry and Monti, the clever comedy duo, with a merry novelty, complete a good programme.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—Another famous poseuse, Clito, is a leading line in the week's bill, and her representations of various classic figures are artistic and interesting; the Deer Family, are seen in a series of tableaux, depicting episodes of Indian life; the popular comedy duo, Athas and Collins, contribute an entertaining act; Barney Armstrong is a favourite comedian; a clever turn at the piano is contributed by Ethel Walker; Lester Brothers do smart things in the way of song and dance; and Lena Brunton, comedienne and mimic; Edna Seaton, a study in Dutch; and Blanche Vincent, burlesque artist, also appear.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—Coram, the clever novelty ventriloquist, occupies a premier place in this week's bill, and his entertainment is much enjoyed; the Martelloni Troupe are lady acrobats of much ability; Lily Soutter, comedienne, has a big local reputation; the Brothers Ashley are once more doing their diverting sketch, Next Please, with huge success; Fields and Lewis contribute an amusing burlesque speciality in their own inimitable style; of eccentric comedians, Harry Conlin, Stan Aubrey, and Arthur Royce are clever examples in different styles; the vocal efforts of Sylvia du Barry are much appreciated; and the Crystals are excellent in song and dance.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—That popular comedian, Dan Crawley, is the leading attraction here; a pleasing musical comedy sketch is done by Zeta Grey and company; and the Melroses are successful as an up-to-date comedy duo; Florence Yaymen is vastly popular in coon burlesque; Cleland, novelty juggler, is expert in his own peculiar style; Gribb and Cribb are a pair of smart eccentrics; Bert Lytton adds to his reputation as a clever comedian; and the contributions of Lilian Bishop, comedienne, and Ada Gatley, in an up-to-date speciality, are favourably received.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—This week we have Mr. Mouillot's company in The Geisha and A Greek Slave. In The Geisha, Miss Louie Collier gives a delightfully refreshing and clever delineation of O Mimosa San; Miss Florrie Sanders makes a conspicuous success as Molly Seymour; Miss Violet Kenyon as O Juliette Diamante is deserving of much praise; Mr. Cyril Thompson gives an admirable performance as Reginald Fairfax; Mr. Edward Carlton is exceedingly funny and clever as Wun Hi; Mr. Lionel Brahm as the Marquis Imari is very good; and both Mr. J. Mansell Stringer as Captain Katana and Mr. A. J. Nicholls as Takemine render able assistance.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—This week Miss Emma Litchfield's company, under the personal direction of Mr. Stuart Cleveland, present A Clever Imposter. Miss Emma Litchfield makes a conspicuous success in the rôles of Nora Grosvenor, Sarah Ellen, Old Rebecca, and Molly O'Flynn; and Mr. Stuart Cleveland as Manuel Teixeira, the clever imposter, is seen to considerable advantage. Mr. Arthur Mervyn is well placed as Captain Desmond; Mr. Harry Cullenford is good as Bob Darnforth; and Mr. Edwin Swinton is capital as Jim Brightside. Others deserving commendation are Miss Florence Gomer as Annie Pleasant, Miss Maude Steeple as Margaret Grosvenor, and Miss Isabel Singleton as Maisie Grosvenor.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—Horace Goldin goes through his illusion performance in a manner that leaves the audience completely mystified. The Hadj Abdullah Arabs are really wonderful pyramid artists and whirlwind acrobats; Charles Norton's mimicry of "Pros. at the Races" is extremely clever; Henry Carlton and company appear in The Window Cleaner, which causes roars of laughter. Fred Elton, in his speciality scena (at the piano), On Board an Ocean Liner, gives a thoroughly enjoyable turn; Harry Bedford, comedian, is, as usual, very popular; Bertram Jenkins is heard to advantage in his illustrated song, "Asthore"; Jeannie Mackay, vocalist, also entertains; the Bioscope is showing "The Coiner's Daughter" and "The Billiard Fever."

PAVILION THEATRE. — Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—Mr. Edward Ranier and company are here in A Son's Devotion, the various parts being admirably delineated by Miss Alice Maude, Miss Lilla Wilde, Mr. Edward Rainer, Mr. Edward Muir Palmer, Mr. Harrison Dalley, and Mrs. Maynard. Bert Danson, comedian, is making a most successful first appearance; Frank Zaro proves exceedingly amusing; the others are Edie Endon, burlesque actress and dancer; Steve Knota, contortionist; Katie Eplett, comedienne and dancer; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—A welcome return visit is being paid here this week by Messrs. Garside and Knowles' company in the interesting drama, The London Fireman. Mr. J. Forbes Knowles gives skilful interpretation of the title-rôle; Miss Nellie Shirley submits a careful study of Ida Curtis; Mr. Edward L. Garside does full justice to the part of Hal Curtis; Miss Beatrice Sinclair is a very creditable Grace Curtis; Mr. S. Herbert Humber is a capital Viscount Fleming; and Mr. Philip Renouf is a humorous Nixey Stringer.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—A Fight for Millions is here this week. Mr. William Macready portrays the hero, Tom Manley, with needful vigour; Mr. J. Schofield gives a noteworthy impersonation of Hudson Rivers; Mr. Alec C. Grant is conspicuously successful as the villainous Richard Dudley; Mr. Harold Turner imparts much humour to the rôle of Solomon Moses; and Mr. Nicholas Conway as Harold Hobbs contributes his share of fun. Mr. Karl H. Edwards is responsible for the direction of the company, and for much of the success of the performance, by his clever interpretation of the part of Willie Neverwork; and Mr. Tom Jones lends good support as Clara Ap Morgan. Helen Dudley and Pearl Rivers find very sympathetic representatives in Miss Elma C. Turner and Miss Winifred Symons; Miss Edith Hook and Miss Dorothy Wilkinson are commendable as Mrs. Rivers and Little Madge; and Miss Rosie Kearns is lively in the dual rôles of Betty and Mag Brady. Minor parts are all carefully played.

LIMERICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Robert Fogerty.—The Milton Ray's No. 1 company opened a week's engagement on Monday with The Cruise of the Calabar, before a very large and appreciative audience. Mr. Arthur Milton sustained the rôle of Cherible Chickington with marked ability, and as Captain Fairweather Mr. Fred Russell was very clever. Mr. Charles Drew was good as Peter Panley, and as Bo'sun Bill Mr. Thomas Hill proved himself a clever artist. The rôles of Watson, Lowes, and Brown were capitally played by Messrs. Frank Dudley, Charles Higgins, and Frank Bond, and Maud Chickington had a capable exponent in Miss Edie Dawson. Miss Alice May was an artistic Gerty Lovell, and Polly Panley was delightfully acted by Miss Lily Ward. The rôle of Mrs. Chickington was capitally worked up by that prepossessing comedienne, Mrs. Arthur Milton, and as Lucy Falconer Miss Gertie Grey was agreably vivacious. The Misses Annie Hanes, Edie Valroy, Lucy Valroy, Annie Young, Belle Taylor, and Lolue Russell all acted with animation. The full ballet and chorus were applauded. Mr. Forshaw Kershaw was clever in his musical and mimetic act. The musical comedy was preceded by a comedy drama entitled A Rough Diamond, in which Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Milton sustained the principal characters.

LINCOLN.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank King.—Nothing better of its kind has been seen here than The Walls of Jericho, which is admirably played. Mr. A. E. Anson appears as Jack Frobisher, which he makes a powerful representation; and he is excellently supported by Miss Florence Jackson as Lady Alethea. Mr. G. A. Bradram is a huge success as Bannister; as Lord Steventon, Mr. Cyril Baleine is very effective; and the rôles of Drayton, Dallas, and Hanneford could not be in better hands than those of Messrs. A. Cesay, A. W. Tyrer, and G. Percy. Lady Lucy is charmingly played by Miss Nona Wynne; the rôle of Lady Westerby finds a clever artist in Miss Marguerite Cellier; and the Lady Porchester of Miss Evelyn Maxwell and the Miss Hampton of Miss E. Cuthbert are respectively excellent pieces of character work.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—The Irish-Indian Maids, presented by Mr. Bert Coote, are a smart troupe, whose songs and dances create a furore. Rich and Rich, patter comedians, are immensely popular; La Belle Mai gives a graceful wire act; Elsie Roby's Slavey's At Home is very amusing as well as clever; and C. Jaques, Ted Waite, Raymond's Bio-tableaux, the Bros. Herne, Benn and Belle, and Wright's orchestra add to the strength of the bill.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—A very satisfying presentation of the bright and lively comedy opera, The Lady Dandies, has been given here during the week, and the general acceptation of the work was exceedingly cordial. Mr. George Edwardes sent an able company, the members of which displayed vocal abilities of a very high order. Foremost was Miss Deborah Volar, who, as Illyrine, rendered several songs with delightful effect; the rich soprano voice of Miss Anna Hickisch was heard to great advantage in the rôle of Lodoiska, her acting being also pleasing; Mr. Eric Thorne's efforts as St. Armour caused endless merriment; Mr. Lennox Pawle (Malicorne) and Mr. Jack Cannot (Tournesol) helping vastly with the lighter side of things. Mr. W. Talleur Andrews sang with taste in the character of Dorlis; Mr. Robert Hale's Lagorille was a perfect picture of the Dandy; and Miss Vivien Talleur earned applause for her exquisite dancing.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The Great Awakening has proved a strong attraction here this week. Miss Maud Hildyard repeated her telling assumption of the adventuress, Lola Selby; Mr. A. C. Hardy gave every satisfaction as James Selby; Mr. Bertrand Copping distinguished himself in the dual rôle of Sir Henry Merton and Jack Merton; a creditable Captain Lambert came from Mr. Gordon McLeod; Miss Doris Digby was charming as Molly Merton;

Willie Scott and Miss Lilla Norton did justice to the comedy; Mr. Stephen Langton skilfully portrayed Guy Rogan; and Mr. George Child in the part of Richard Wilson displayed high histrionic ability.

Shakespeare Theatre, Ltd.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—The Last of His Race, an original Indian romance, by Donald McLaren, has this week been brought to Liverpool, and critical audiences have expressed their approval in a marked manner, the "curtains," to which the principal artists had to respond, being frequent. Mr. H. Reeves Smith as Lonawonda gives a brilliant representation of the dignified old Indian chief, the outbursts of indignation on discovering his daughter to be a companion of the murdered man's son being a fine piece of declamation. Miss May Chevalier has an abundance of hard work in the rôle of Adulola, but was never found wanting; and in the latter part of the play she rises to a height of histrionic skill, which elicited warm acknowledgment. Sheanagua, one of the finest characters in the whole work, is perfectly portrayed by Mr. Arthur Poole; every credit is due to Mr. Philip Cuningham, who, in the rôle of Niatawa, plays with the discretion and force which stamp him as a master of acting. Mr. Algernon Syms' duties in the part of the unfortunate Matawagnon are accomplished with true artistic spirit. Miss Margaret Murch has a somewhat thankless part in that of Lashota, but plays it in a fashion that give evidence of much ability. Miss Edith Matt is well placed with the minor rôle of the old Squaw; Miss Winifred Ingham throws a deal of gaiety and sprightliness into her Fawn; the Indian maids, Hara and Tanoi, are capably undertaken by Miss Hodson and Miss Manton; and Messrs. Ashton-Jarry, Beecher, and Norton as the warriors lend strength to the production. The close of the story, where Adulola expires and joins her dead lover, Niatawa, in the happy hunting-grounds is marked by several beautiful tableaux.

Lyric Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles. — A wonderfully clever and interesting turn is that of the Four Juggling Geraldos, who head this week's bill; Regan and Ryan are an amusing pair, roars of laughter greting their witticisms; knockabouts are always a good draw, and Elton and Elma are certainly all that could be desired in that line; Harry Levaine is funny and original; Mabel La Blanche is pleasing; and the Two Cecilias are heartily applauded for their musical turn. Patty Yole and Flo Wood are good comediennes.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—This popular resort has been visited this week with Honour Thy Father, Mr. T. Morton Powell's company presenting it. Miss Mabel Coleman, who has played the rôle of Lillian Garth over one thousand times, made as great an impression as ever; Miss Winnie Donovan acquitted herself well as Mercy Merry; a bright Poppy Cornleigh was submitted by Miss Ada Salmon; Mr. W. M. Cameron handled the character of Gabriel Garth with care; Mr. Howell Travis was excellent as Sir Duncan Bly; Mr. Robert Gilbert proved a manly Jack Halyard; and worthy support came from Mr. Claude Merton (Job Merry and George Bloggs); Miss Kate Newton (Gertrude Garth), and Mr. Fred L. Connynghame (Mike Copplestone).

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A capital programme here this week has drawn large audiences. At the top were Frederick Maxwell and company with the dramatic sketch, Lord Harkaway, which was particularly pleasing to the popular parts of the house; Wyndham and Waters provoked endless laughter with their The Professor and the Pupil; a miniature musical comedy, A Night in Japan, served for the introduction of some pleasing numbers; W. J. Churchill was as quaint as ever; Fred Herbert had some taking songs; as juvenile singers and dancers Field and Robson afforded satisfaction; the Tossing Austins introduced some funny juggling; George Antill, "the evening shadow," aroused great laughter; the duets by Belrose and De Velin earned for those able artists loud applause; and also in the list were Queenie May, juvenile comedienne; and Lucy Coventry, dancer and comedienne.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. —The "Royal" stock company here is this week giving an excellent rendering of The Wicked City. Mr. Percy Boucher was exceedingly funny as McClery; Mr. Harry Treaham did excellently in the heroic part of Harold Stanton; Mr. Sydney Grant proved effective as Robert Marsden; and good support came from Messrs. Robert Wilton, Cecil Ravenswood, and the Misses Beryl Ravenswood, Miss Florence Cameron, and Nellie Bonsor.

Park Palace, Ltd.—General-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece.—The Ticket-of-Leave Man is being given here this week. Mr. Albert Sember presents a capital Brierly; Mr. Albert Guyon makes a villainous James Dalton; Mr. Will Percy affords satisfaction as Melter Moss; Mr. Walter Foster does well as Gibson; Miss Nelson-Ramsay enacts the rôle of Mrs. Willoughby with discretion; and praise is also due to Miss Violet Barley Clarke (Sam Willoughby) and Miss Lilian Burns (May Edwards).

Paddington Palace.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery. —In the Midst of Sin is the dramatic sketch being played here this week by the stock company, the principals of which are Messrs. Frank S. Strickland (John Holmes), H. Hesslegrave (Neil Brentford), H. G. Brandon (Dick Skinner), Wallace Campbell (Gilbert Weston); Misses Sara Blumenthal (Aunt Matilda), Florence Barnes (Maisie), Lina Nazeby (Johanna), and Gladys H. Walton (Laura Weston).

Haymarket.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Harry Calden and company still remain here, the title of their present sketch being Sunset, or a Traitor's Reward; Signor E. Bertini has a remarkable performance on unsupported ladders; Bessie Bell renders several popular songs; and as eccentric acrobats, Baroux and Bion create much laughter.

Westminster.—Lessee, Mr. Fred B. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The Britannia Comedy Trio head the list here this week, pleasing everybody with their fine vocalism; Barney Stuart has a number of taking Irish songs; Molly Doon shows herself a dainty comedienne; Con and Davis arouse much laughter with their item, The Page and the Chauffeur; De Lil has some clever conjuring tricks; a deal of laughter follows the work of Newco and Sullo, comedians; and Hulbert, ventriloquist, also appears.

Olympia, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer.—An attraction here this week is the celebrated Tom Reece, who gives an exhibition of billiard strokes, including the much-talked-of "anchor"; Clive Darril, the Australian giant, walks among the audience to show his immense size; Seeley and West, musical comedians, provide a capital sketch; Barton and Ashley delight every one with their Canal Boat Sal; some remarkable imitations of Irving's principal characters are given by Victor Newman; some smart head and hand balancing comes from the Rhoda Bros.; as black and white comedy artists Cline and Clarke prove delightful; Gus Garrick carries his audience with him in his music-hall tit-bits; and others who appear are Clito Clifford, coon singer; and the Bohemians (Will and Madge), comedy artists and instrumentalists.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.—The Elliott Savonas top the bill here this week, and afford every pleasure with their fine musical entertainment; the Harmony Four with their comic business arouse great laughter; Cussac-Talma, assisted by Mlle. Yvonne de Forge, performs some startling illusions; Edward Arthur and company render pleasing selections from The Lily of Killarney opera; the Three Cape Girls are sprightly comediennes and long boot dancers; some graceful work on the trapeze is performed by the Geretti Sisters; Alice May and company have an amusing sketch, Tranquillity; and also in the list are Florence, a clever lady mimic; and Frank Lynne, humorist.

Tivoli, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. James Marks.—The big line at this popular house this week is Arthur Rigby and company with the delightful sketch, The Isle of Ooma, which has proved eminently pleasing; the Herald Comedy Four have a capital scena, into which they introduce some excellent harmony, comedy, and singing; some remarkable feats as equilibrists are executed by the Max Milan trio; the Westwoods prove a most pleasing turn as comedy and expert cyclists; Mlle. Renee is a wonderful instrumentalist; and others who appear include Venie Clements, vocalist, with a musical scena, A Trial Trip; the Bartholomew Girls, smart duettists and dancers; and Flo Cecil, comedienne and dancer.

LLANELLY.—Royalty Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—The local Dramatic Society, assisted by Miss Rocheforte (who as Catherine is most successful) and Mr. F. Cremlin, are performing The Bells here this week in aid of the Llanelly Cricket Club. Mr. B. Percy Rees makes a capital Mathias; Mr. Jack Aukland as Christian is very good; Miss Marion Lewis as Annette and Miss Maggie Williams as Lozel are both clever. Mr. Cremlin gives a capitally-performed monologue, Domestic Mutual Improvements, as a part of the programme.

LONDONDERRY.—Opera House.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne-Seddon.—Mr. J. H. Savile's company is presenting Goody Two Shoes. In the title-rôle Miss Maggie Bowman is very good; as principal boy, Miss Ethel Campbell is a decided success, and Miss Lena Wylie an excellent Fairy; Mr. Peter Bermingham sustains the comic element with great spirit; and the Baron is capably impersonated by Mr. H. A. Gribben; Mr. Jack Foley is a capital Dame.

LOUGHBOROUGH. — New Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—In Old Madrid is presented here this week by Mr. Fred J. Kirke's company. Mr. Leslie Austin, in the dual rôle of Frank Lyndhurst and Count Corregillo, gives a masterly performance; Mr. George Whillis makes an excellent Toreador; and Mr. Roland A. Bridge brings out with force all the malevolence of the unscrupulous Tenando Cassilus. The comedy element is ably sustained by Mr. Walter Hybert as Horatio J. Rogers; and Mr. Charles Burns makes a good Marmaduke R. FitzSimmons; Miss Francesca Strickland deserves special mention for her fine portrayal of Violet Lyndhurst; Miss Louie Fountaine's rendering of Lola Stittagano was very pleasing; and Miss Lily Seymour is particularly well-suited as Martha Jane Montmorency; Miss Edith Claris as Madeleine Ellesmere is also good.

LOWESTOFT. — Marina. — Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—The 10.30 Down Express is paying a return visit, and lovers of the sensational are well provided for. Mr. Andrew Money is well placed as Jack O'Malley, and Mr. Chas. Burdon gives a powerful representation of James Inderwick. Mr. Horace Stanley is a host in himself as Sam Wagstaffe, and is ably supported by Miss Kate Kilpack (Peggy Potts).

Hippodrome. — Manager, Mr. F. Freeland.—Crowded houses are the rule here. The bill includes Zazma, society gymnast; Florence Carlow, comedienne and dancer; and Bes Blancs, comedy triple-bar performers.

MACCLESFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—The chief attration this week is Chas. W. Poole's New Imperial Myriorama, illustrating scenes in all lands, &c., which has aroused great enthusiasm here. There are also many good variety turns, including the Avondale Four, comedy vocalists; the Three Almos, comedy triple horizontal barristers; the Swift Trio, cyclists; Geo. Menra, humorist; Little Edie, child vocalist; Le Brun and Irene in a unique speciality; and C. F. Couper, vocalist.

MANCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—Always popular and no less entertaining, in spite of its many visits, The Belle of New York attracted and delighted a good audience here on Monday night. Miss Empsie Bowman follows worthily in the footsteps of her predecessors in the title-rôle, and is entirely pleasing in her vocal efforts and general demeanour. Mr. Frank Lawton repeats his impersonation of Blinky Bill in his well-known style. Mr. Paddy Dupres—a clever comedian—is now in the part of Bronson, sen., the junior rôle being in the safe hands of Mr. John Doran, who acts it with a nice sentiment. Miss Lily Maxwell is capital as Fifi; and among others who do much to keep things lively Mr. R. Tate presents a clever impersonation of Karl von Pimperniell, the lunatic. The orchestra, chorus, and staging contribute much to the brilliant effect.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—A first visit of Peter's Mother to Manchester was signalised by a good house here on Monday, and a distinctly good reception testified to the effect produced on the audience by the acting of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. Mr. Charles Harley in the first act—his only opportunity—made an excellent impression by the powerful, yet restrained, way in which he presented the character of Sir Timothy Crewys. As Lady Mary, Miss Ruth Mackay was delightfully sympathetic, strong, and appealing in the emotional passages and charming in the lighter ones; while as the selfish, but ultimately enlightened, son Peter Mr. Percy Hutchison contributed a really fine exposition of the character. The two elderly sisters of Sir Timothy were cleverly and amusingly rendered by Miss Mary Griffiths and Mrs. Mallalieu; Mr. William Mallalieu was light and distinctive as Canon Birch; Mr. Drew Mackintosh played satisfactorily as the Doctor; while Miss Hilda Honiss gave a very nice rendering of Sarah and Mr. Stanley Pringle played John Crewys in the right suggestive style. A return visit of this effective play will be welcomed. It was preceded by Eille Norwood's farce, Chalk and Cheese, played well by Mr. Drew Mackintosh, Miss Ethel Royale, and Miss Hilda Honiss.

Gaiety Theatre. — Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Mr. Richard A. Greene's drama, The Angel of Unrest, tells something of the story of Napoleon's disastrous Russian campaign in acceptably effective style. It is being played here this week by Messrs. Alec Flood and Aubrey Fitzmaurice's company, among whom, it must be said, Mr. Henry Belding stands remarkably foremost in a fine interpretation of Papa Bompasse, a private in the Guards. Other parts, however, are well played—that of Paul Brandt by Mr. Creagh Henry, Julie by Miss Florence Tressilian, and the Napoleon of Mr. Alec Flood. Others deserving of praise in a wholly adequate cast are Mr. Alexander Bradley as Lemesnil, Mr. Laurence Vining as Lepine, Mr. James Chippendale as Hugie, and Miss Nita Imeson as Lisette. The staging is very good.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Messrs. Little and Darcy's company in The Shadow of a Crime are here this week, after a successful week at the Grand Junction Theatre.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn.—Harry Daniels and company in Rent are the principal attraction here this week. The bounding Pattersons give a good turn; the Sisters Petram provide an excellent entertainment with their marvellous fantoches; and pleasing items are added by Billy Richardson, stump orator; Jack Hylton, eccentric comedian; Mack Ollive, mimic and whistler; Itoyne, the German athlete and equilibrist; Zanfretta and Napio, musical eccentrics; and Leo Trainer, vocal comedian.

St. James's Theatre—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Manager, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—Miss Bonwin Carlton's company are here again in the sensational comedy-drama, The Plucky Nipper. Miss Bonwin Carlton plays the title-part in spirited style, and in addition to a strong performance by Mr. William Heilbronn as Vanbrugh, a prominent success is made by Mr. Edward Surrey (author of the play) in the rôle of Bill Burgess, a ne'er-do-well. Others worthy of praise are Miss Esther Lamont, Mr. H. J. Butler, and Mr. Claude Kingston.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—An excellent interpretation of Frank Adair's drama, Held Apart, is given here this week by Mr. A. Clifton Anderson's company. Mr. H. K. Ayliff rises to his opportunities as the villainous Douglas in convincing fashion; and Miss Ethyle Murray contributes cleverly to the same side of the story. On the side of virtue, Mr. Leonard Lawrence as John Douglas and Miss Ruby Loncraine as Sybil Grey fulfil every requirement; and excellent impersonations are added by Mr. F. G. Batley as Hugh Trevor, Miss P. Ford as Mrs. Briggs, the housekeeper, and Mr. A. W. Norman as Captain Ford. The play is full of sensational interest, and capitally staged.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—A fine programme here this week is headed by the Boissetts in their well-known laughter-maker, The Wild West. Prominent also is a new musical piece, A King for a Day, which is noticed in another column. Russell Wallet, "the lady in black," adds his popular song-sketch; Millie Howell sings well; Otto and Olga are excellent in their eccentric musical-comedy interlude; the Sisters Grovini give a graceful tumbling and acrobatic act; and Eadie and Ramsden are highly successful in their comic business, entitled Charlie's Visit; while Harry Simms (vocal comedian), and Hurley and Cole (in their scene Let Bygones be Bygones) were also deservedly well received. The Bioscope depicts moral and interesting pictures of life.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—The Treasure Ship in Fairy Seas is still the pièce de résistance at this popular hall, and delights large audiences. Helene and Emilon go through an extremely graceful and clever gymnastic act; a remarkable turn is that of the Piccolinis, two lilliputians, who dance, cycle, shoot, and head and hand balance in a really surprising manner; and the dancing of Mount and Corelli is something to marvel at. Henry A. Coutt and company are seen to advantage in a quick-change production, entitled Outflanked; Florence Summers, the Sunshade Girl, sings pleasingly; Alice Blandford, vocalist, sings well; a good turn is Die Vier Provinzen, Dutch lady singers and dancers, and two vocal items by the choir and "The Sunday School Treat" on the Bioscope complete the programme.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—G. H. Chirgwin, the well known White-eyed Musical Kaffir, tops the bill here this week, and amuses with up-to-date talk. Whit Cunliffe scores all along the line; the Romsakoff Troupe consist of eight charming girls, whose military musical drill and wall-scaling act is gracefully done; Terry and Lambert, American comedy duo, are excellent; Zerthe's dogs are smartly trained; the Four Madcaps are wonderfully clever dancers; and other entertaining items are contributed by Lottie Collard, comedienne and dancer; the Three Sisters Silcott, vocalists and dancers; Mark Leslie, coon comedian and dancer; and Maud Esmond, vocal comedian.

King's, Longsight.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—An excellent production of Oliver Twist is to be recorded here this week, by Mr. Ernest Noble's company. Mr. Henry L. Osmond as Bill Sikes is altogether excellent; Miss Winifred Chalmers is particularly good as Nancy; Miss Lizzie Powers plays well as Oliver; and Mr. John C. Carlyle makes an effective Fagan. Mr. Ernest Noble's portrayal of Monks is satisfactory; and others who do good work are Messrs Harry Cooke (Artful Dodger), E. Elbone (Charlie Bates), T. Williams (Toby Crackitt), and Miss Kate Somerville as Rose. The remaining parts are in safe hands, and the whole production is above the average. Bullseye, Sikes's dog, is well trained.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—W. L. Murray, Britain's ideal of physical culture, tops the bill here this week in poses and clever feats of strength; Fanny Robina, comedienne, is as dashing as ever, and sings well; and the Jollions are high-class harmonising vocalists. Max Duffek gives a marvellous musical contortionist act; Florry Cooper sings sweetly; and Nellie Voltaire is a quaint dancer and singer. The Orchids are good in a vocal act; Little Dando, the 42in. comedian, is very funny; Billy Bint scores with his new song "He's quite content to stay at home"; Gilroy and Gross are good sand dancers; and Walter Wade, comedian, provides a successful extra turn. "Playing Truant" is shown on the Bioscope. A really fine programme.

Tivoli. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Billie Barlow, the ever-popular comedian, is to the front here this week, and is well received. Highly successful also is merry May Moore Duprez, whose quaint style, funny stories, and delightful dancing are vastly entertaining. Alec Kennedy, actor-vocalist, makes a big hit, and is deservedly applauded; the Three Rubys are seen to advantage in a neat gymnastic bending act; and Beatrice May, operatic vocalist, sings exceedingly well. Other excellent turns are those of the Forsyths, in sketch; Kittie Rayburn, comedienne; J. B. Selph, in song-scena The Veteran's Dream; and the Raymond Trio of instrumentalists and dancers. The pictures are good, as usual.

Hippodrome (Hulme).—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—The chief item here this week is undoubtedly Henriette de Serris's artistic bas-reliefs, tableaux vivants, and statuary, reproduced from famous works of art by a company of twenty professional models. Henry Hallam and Josephine Stanton are good in their musical sketch, A Broken Journey; T. E. Gilbey, on the unsupported rocking ladder, provides a sensational turn; H. Nelson, comedian, has some quaint patter; Harry Russon is a capital comedian; and Snowball and Miss Dolis, American comedy artists, are good. Other enjoyable items are those of Lily Arthur, toy comedienne; J. H. Dundas, actor-vocalist; and George and Edwards, comedians and dancers. On the occasion of our visit MacDonald and Huntington did not appear.

MANSFIELD.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Cecil Clayton.—The Leopold company occupy the boards here this week, and two short plays are given each evening, The Houseboat and The New Frivolity. The Leopolds are responsible for much clever work, and cause great amusement. In the cast of New Frivolity, Miss Cathleen Cavanagh as Mme. Cobweb is well placed; as Lucy Buckwheat, Miss Amy Hall is successful, as is also Miss Zillah Fair as Maud; Miss Queenie Bronte is capable as Manenette; and Miss Violet Keand scores as Nita Gorden.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Director, Mr. Tom Jennings; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton's company has occupied the boards here this week in the play Under Two Flags. Mr. Robert Ayrton is very successful in the rôle of Hon. Bertie Cecil; as Cigarette, Miss Adria Hill submits an artistic interpretation. Mr. A. Sanders gives an effective rendition of the rôle of Ezra Brown; Mr. G. Vinning is well placed as Rake; and Mr. Sidney Fiennes scores as Colonel Chateauray. Miss Maggie Hobart is excellent as Lady Venetia, as is also Miss Harriett Loyall as Biddy Flanagan. On Thursday and Friday evenings East Lynne was produced, with Miss Adria Hill as Lady Isabel.

MARGATE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Edward Michael; Stage and Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh.—The stock company has been producing this week, with great success, the three-act comedy, The Case of Rebellious Susan. Mr. A. Austin-Leigh is excellent as Sir Richard Kato, Q.C., and Miss Mabel Archdall is a pronounced success as Lady Susan Harabin; Mr. Wallis Clark does well as Admiral Sir Joseph Darby, and Mr. H. G. Mason is good as James Harabin; Mr. Robert Grey is effective as Ferguson Pybus; Mr. Archie Selwyn puts in good work as Lucien Edensor; and Miss Emmie O'Reilly gives a fine impersonation of Mrs. Inez Quesnel. Minor parts are capably sustained by Miss May Saker (Elaine Shrimpton), Miss Belle Travers (Lady Darby), and Messrs. H. W. Wells (Jacomb), Richard Trieve (Mr. Kirby), and E. J. Latchford and W. Dane Scott.

Hippodrome.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree. —The Continental stilt-walkers, a family of ten, are very amusing; the Sisters Allen, duettists, are particularly good as vocalists and dancers; Saxo gives a novel instrumental performance; Dolly Denton, comedienne, gives a pleasing turn; Harry Taft, whistling comedian, is much appreciated; the Pender Troupe, in a highly-amusing pantomime sketch, keep the audience in a roar of laughter; and the Pictures, as usual, are an interesting Bioscope feature of the diversified programme.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal. — Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Harry Champion tops the bill here, and nightly has a flattering reception. Other attractive turns are provided by the Two Bees; the Four Watsons, musical experts; Correlli, an amusing conjurer; Harry Cooke, comedian; Edgar Forrest's Comedy Combination, in the farcical sketch, My Friend the Enemy; and the theatre pictures.

Temperance Hall.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Chas. Vandyke's company of pantomimists head the bill in a humorous sketch, Nicodemus; Kavados is a clever juggler; Flo Melville greatly pleases with her vocal selections; the Three Berlin Belles are smart dancers; the Days give a clever exhibition of mental telepathy; and Biograph pictures complete a capital programme.

MEXBOROUGH.—Prince of Wales' Theatre. —Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton. — Mr. Leonard Dalrymple's company occupies the boards here this week with the drama As Midnight Chimes. Mr. Leonard Dalrymple submits a thoughtful and earnest interpretation of Dave Stannard; Mr. Herbert Belmore gives a vigorous rendering of the unscrupulous Luke Dezzard; the part of Ezra Gamble is creditably filled by Mr. Herbert Fearce; Mr. H. B. Peppin is a capable Nat Wilson; Mr. James Salter scores with a humorous study of Tat Spavvin; Miss Maud Hastings displays emotional power and high dramatic skill as the heroine, Mary Stannard; Miss Alma Henson cleverly portrays the character of Zamora; while Miss Madge Beresford is a vivacious and pleasing Suzette.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Mr. Arthur Hardy's company in the comedy, Beauty and the Barge, is paying a successful return visit here this week. The whimsical character of Captain James Booby is admirably impersonated by Mr. Blake Adams. The rôle of Ethel Smedley is gracefully undertaken by Miss Dido Drake; and Mr. Edward Coventry is very amusing as Lieut. Boyne. In the parts of Mrs. Porter and Mrs. Baldwin, Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite and Miss Ruby Wyndham are exceedingly good; and the character of Herbert Manners is in the capable hands of Mr. Aubrey Mallilieu. Mr. Edward Drake is comical as George Porter, and Miss Mary Pemberton pleasing as Lucy Dallas; Mr. Walter Pemberton makes an excellent Major Smedley, and Miss Mona Robin is a charming Mrs. Smedley. A clever representative of the part of John Debbs is seen in Mr. Charles E. White, and Mr. Fred Knight is good as Tom Codd. Mr. Forester Harvey (Augustus), Mr. W. R. Hammersmith (Joe), Mr. Arthur Flinders (Ted), Mr. R. Wilson (Bill), Mr. A. Thorncroft (Alf), and Mr. H. Richford (Jack) also do full justice to their respective rôles.

Opera House, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto. —The visit of Mr. H. B. Irving to Middlesbrough has been looked forward to with much interest, and on Monday night a good audience greeted him warmly when he made his first appearance here in The Lyons Mail. Following the example of his distinguished father, he appeared in the dual rôle of Joseph Lesurques, the Parisian merchant, and Dubosc, and showed himself to be a worthy successor to the great tragedian. Miss Dorothea Baird gave an admirable portrayal of the character of Jannette. The audience were deeply impressed, and showed their appreciation of the two talented artists by repeated calls. Mr. Frank Tyars gave a fine impersonation of Jerome Lesurques; while Mr. E. Harcourt Williams acted with great distinction as Courriol, and Mr. Charles Dodsworth as Choppard sustained his part well. Miss Sybil Mable was very effective in the rôle of Julie; and Mr. Tom Reynolds was exceedingly good as Fouinard. Miss Ada Mellon, Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn, and Mr. Eric Maxon did full pustice to their respective parts. The Lyons Mail was preceded by a pretty one-act play, King Rene's Daughter, in which Miss Dorothea Baird took the pathetic part of Iolanthe, her acting being delightful. During the week The Bells and Charles I. were played with great success.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles Rembges.—The Alexandroffs, a troupe of Russian dancers, provide the star turn here this week, and give a wonderful eccentric dancing performance. Wild, Willie, and West create roars of laughter in their acrobatic turn; and Daisy James scores a great success; Stylo is a clever hoop juggler; and Hugh Cedar and Edward Elgar are pleasing in a comedy act, Ye Dayes of Old. Blanche and Powell provide a most pleasing vocal and musical entertainment; and Carney and Armstrong please. Other turns are also provided by Arthur Boyne, comedian; and Beatrice Bonnie, comedienne and dancer.

Oxford.—Proprietor, Mr. Alf. Graham; Manager, Mr. R. L. Griffiths.—A capital programme is presented here this week. The Four Burnels score a great success in their musical and comedy act, On the Links. Wee Mona Vivian, dancer and vocalist, has had a great reception; and the Pelhams provide a clever acrobatic turn. Dave O'Toole, the popular Irish comedian, causes much laughter; the Three Zednas, serios and buck-dancers, please; and other enjoyable items are given by Mlle. Lizette, vocalist; and Little Eileen, vocalist and dancer.

MIDDLETON. — Pardoe's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pardoe and Turner.—An excellent performance is being given this week of the drama The Sledge Hammer, by George Henry's company. Mr. Frank Litchfield and Miss Jessie Hope play lead most effectively; they are well supported by Messrs. C. Appleby, A. Barrows, and B. Howard.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Langham.—The Compton Comedy Company pay their annual visit to this theatre this week, their répertoire of plays being Davy Garrick, The Rivals, The School for Scandal, and She Stoops to Conquer. On Monday evening, Davy Garrick, with which Mr. Edward Compton's name, of course, is most familiarly associated, was staged, and the well-known actor's 1,362nd impersonation of the title-rôle was received with many signs of real appreciation, his admirable acting in the drunken scene being rewarded with recall upon recall. Miss Mackenzie gave a pleasing study of Violet; Mr. Henry Crocker was excellent as Alderman Gresham; and a very good character-study was the Mrs. Rumblow of Miss Marie Hassell. Others in a well-balanced company were Mr. Dennis Cleugh, Mr. Montague Lane, Mr. Charles Rogers, Mr. Philip Gordon, Mr. G. W. Johnston, Mr. Vernon O. Crabtree, and Miss Barbara Pigot.

Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—In fulfilment of a pledge given to Novocastrian audiences on the occasion of a previous and first successful visit to the Tyne Theatre, Mr. Seymour Hicks, accompanied by Miss Ellaline Terriss and an excellent company, is again here, this time appearing in The Beauty of Bath. Needless to say, the piece met with a rare reception. In the part of Dick Alington, Mr. Hicks displays all his restless loquacity and overflowing good-humour; Miss Ellaline Terriss, quiet and refined, is an ideal Betty Silverthorne, her songs, especially "Cheyenne" and "Hyacinth," being charmingly rendered. Capital support is given by Miss Florence Lloyd as the kindly Mrs. Alington; Miss Sydney Fairbrother, with a skit on the "Gibson Girl"; Mr. Stanley Brett as Mr. Hicks's double; Miss Maudie Darrell, with a capital interpretation of "The Zuyder Zee"; Mr. Laurence Caird, with a clever character-sketch as Lord Quorn; and Master Valchera, a young Cockney comedian, who often convulses the house.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Messrs. Dottridge and Langden's company is appearing here this week in The Midnight Mail. Mr. Fred E. Evison ably fills the rôle of Billy Brewer; and the part of Harry Steyne is well played by Mr. George Harvard; while Miss Mildred Carr is seen to great advantage as Nancy Brewer.

Empire Theatre.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton.—Occupying the place at the top of the bill are the Ten Loonies, who appear in a very funny musical sketch, entitled Dotty; a most humorous act also is The Coastguards, as given by Drew and Alders, whose fantastic dancing takes immensely; Daisy Mayer, in coon songs, is extremely good; and in a boxing act and as knockabout comedians, the Brothers Lang prove very popular. Others in the bill are the Wartenberg Brothers, novel double-footed experts; Billy Farrell, an encyclopædia of coonology; Belloni's Cockatoos; Herbert Shelley, in Dan the Outlaw; and Tom Owen, Welsh comedian.

Pavilion Theatre.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—John Tiller's company, in the musical farce, High Jinks, occupies a prominent place in the Pavilion bill this week. With a popular comedian in Bob Selvidge at its head, the company is a strong one, and the singing and dancing introduced into a well-staged and highly-amusing extravaganza, are really first-class. The other turns include Gladys Witton, a juvenile contralto; the Elvio Comedy Trio, in Those Troublesome Slaveys; Gregson and Goodfellow, vaudeville artists; Woolmer Young, actor-vocalist; and Verno and Voyce, comedians.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Roland Yorke's company is appearing here in The Triumph of Truth. Mr Louis Hector as Capt. Jack Eversleigh, V.C., makes a dashing hero, and Mr. Leonard Maxwell plays Inspector Danvers in a spirited style. The part of the villain, Count Raoul d'Orville, is capitally filled by Mr. Henry Lonsdale, and he is well supported by Miss Gertrude Hunt as Blanche le Croix, whose acting is very realistic. Miss Gertrude Bonser as Violet Anstruther makes a winsome heroine; Miss Nellie Hughes as Little Lena does exceedingly well; and Miss Sybil Hare as Coraline makes a vivacious artist's model. The comedy element is entrusted to Mr. Fred de Vere as Tommy Woodhead, the strongest man on earth, and Miss Gertie Rosalind as Kate Bright, both of whom make the best of their parts. Mr. Roland Yorke as Vitteo Moscagni, the avenger, showed himself to be an actor of much power.

Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Major Gallagher; Assistant, Mr. Page.—Chung-Ling-Soo, who heads the bill here, performs conjuring tricks of a mystifying nature; Madge Grey achieves success; Roma and Romani are talented musicians; and an amusing sketch, The Order of the Bath, is presented by Miss Lillieth Leyton, supported by Mr. J. Spurling. George Newburn wins applause in his imitations of well-known artists; Ethel Leslie scores a success with her excellent voice and charming appearance; and songs by Herbert Rule, a quaint comedian, are well received. The Bioscope, showing instructive pictures, completes the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—Mr. J. W. Turner's English Opera Company is paying a long-looked-for return visit this week, commencing on Monday with Il Trovatore, the principals being Miss Jessie Dennis, Miss Christine Gomez, Miss Kitty Brownless, Mr. F. J. Hargrave, Mr. Tom Griffiths, and Mr. G. Ridding, who gave a brilliant performance of Verdi's masterpiece. On Tuesday Mr. J. W. Turner appeared as Miles-na-Coppaleen in The Lily of Killarney, and received a great ovation. Miss Christine Gomez's delightful rendering of Eily was also highly applauded. Miss Jessie Dennis, Mr. F. J. Hargrave, Mr. Tom Griffiths, Mr. Sydney Clifford, and Mr. George Ridding all rendered valuable assistance. The chorous is very good, and the orchestra, with special additions, under the able conductor, Mr. T. Lawton, greatly contributed to the success attained. The Daughter of the Regiment, Maritana, Faust, and The Bohemian Girl follow in succession.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thos A. Evans.—James Stewart, "the original tramp on the piano," is highly appreciated for his artistic fun; Brayne and Lloyd appear with great success in a screaming absurdity, The Tree of Truth, with special scenery and effects; Dorothy L. Clark is a very pleasing comedienne; Lambert and Glover make a hit in their farcical duologue, My Birthday; Henri Bekker pleases with his conjuring; Mme. Gray is successful as an operatic vocalist; George Grogie, the "character countryman"; and the Three Sisters Lee, able vocalists and acrobatic dancers, also appear. C. Vincent gives a clear and realistic picture of "The Grand National" and some vivid scenes in Canada.

NORTH SHIELDS. — Theatre Royal.—

dienne and dancer; Miss Lillian Sivado, trapeze artist; Messrs. Lytton and Bland, comedy artists; Mr. Harry Plowden, comedian; and Turner's animated pictures all meet with favour.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Les Montaldos gives a clever equilibristic act, and introduces his performing parrots and cockatoos; the Three Coopers, comedy vocalists, are popular; and Mr. J. C. Scatter, Tyneside comedian, pleases immensely. Mr. Teddie Rogers, tramp juggler, is smart; Messrs. Tallard and Ivy, comedians; and Little Rose Pink, song and dance artist; Mr. Leonard Bean, baritone vocalist; and the Bio-Photoscope complete.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is here this week in The Midnight Wedding. Miss Annie Saker as Princess Astrea plays with much earnestness and power; Mr. Alfred Paumier is equally good as Paul Valmar; Mr. F. W. Freeman is successful as Crown Prince Leopold; Mr. Edward Fletcher acts with ability as Eugene; whilst Mr. Ernest E. Imeson as Captain Rudolph makes the most of a thankless part. Miss Ada Champion is very good as Kathie, and the same compliment is due to Mr. Algie Spalding as Bobs, Mr. James E. Page as Sergt. Max and Mr. Vernon Vane as Otto are very amusing. Mr. W. S. Hardy as Father Gerrard deserves mention.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Heading the bill this week, and received with much appreciation, is Joe Elvin, with his popular entertainment, The Cockney Cabdriver, in which he creates much laughter. The Smythsons, in their laughing hit, "Love Germs," excite fun; the Hartley Wonders are always appreciated here; Marba and Verity are good knockabouts; Maggie Walsh is a pleasing vocalist with a powerful voice; Mabel Osborn and Gordon Brooks are a capital turn; while Amy Anderson as the "Banana Queen" pleases; and the Sisters Terry, comediennes and dancers, have a good reception. The Hippo-Bio is always attractive.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Morals of Marcus attracted a large house on Monday, when Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company gave a fine representation of this charming play. Mr. H. Nye Chart as Sir Marcus Ordeyne developed the many interesting features of the part in an able and artistic manner, which the audience recognised in no uncertain way; Miss Hilda Antony made a thoroughly delightful exponent of Carlotta; Mr. David Domville proved a clever delineator of the knavish Sebastian Pasquale; and Mrs. H. Nye Chart played spiritedly as Judith Mainwaring. Miss Gladys Purnell impersonated Dora Ordeyne with marked success; and Miss Eleanor Gilbart won favour by her smart work as Antoinette. Mr. A. H. Leveaux was sufficiently determined as Hamdi Effendi, and Miss Mary Weigall capitally depicted the precise Mrs. Ordeyne. Other parts were carefully rendered by Misses Conyers Radcliffe, Mary O'Neill, Evelyn Summers, and Messrs. Cecil Brooking and W. Swinburne.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—Napoleon the Great presents a good opportunity for the display of Mr. Hugh Montgomery's histrionic abilities, his embodiment being both artistic and commanding; Mr. Oliver Birrell gives full sinister effect to the part of the scheming Colonel Lavarennes; Mr. Phil Harper plays the hero, Colonel Mervion, and his acting throughout is earnest and convincing; Miss Maud Russell calls forth instant sympathy by her winsome and pathetic rendering of Leonie Marbouef; Miss Leslie Warner supplies a spirited portrayal of Marie Walewska; Mr. Bartlett Garth makes the most of the pitiful Paul Laczinska; and Mr. F. M. Thorne works with excellent effect as Pierre Pomponnet; Miss Marie Harcourt (Marcelle), Miss Florence Thorne (Mère Dumont), and Mr. Albert Sinclair (Choupin) also deserve a word of praise.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—Mr. Fred Storey occupies the top of the bill this week, and his production of Rip Van Winkle forms an exceedingly interesting and clever item. The marvellous skill of the Kremo Family in their Risley act holds the audience interested from start to finish, and the deafening applause accorded them is well-earned. The Four Royal Welshmen obtain a gratifying reception for their melodious singing; and the McConnel Trio add to the harmony in a sketch, entitled Mrs. Skinner's Lodgers. The quaint drollery of Ernie Mayne is well exemplified in a humorous parody on the song "Zuyder Zee." Hall and Earle are responsible for several merry moments in an acrobatic turn; and Percy Honri submits smart imitations of various instruments on a concertina. An illustrated song by Daisy Pollock and the dancing of Eily Adair are duly rewarded; and the Bioscope shows some fine films.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. Ian Maclaren is paying a first visit here this week. On the opening night Hamlet was presented to an appreciative audience. In the title-rôle, Mr. Maclaren gives a carefully-studied and clever assumption. Miss Katherine Harrington makes a pleasing Ophelia; her mad scene wins well-merited applause. Miss Edith Coleman is an excellent Queen; Mr. W. S. Hartford is well placed as Claudius; Mr. Arthur Fayne as Polonius and Mr. Frank Royden as Laertes are both good; Mr. F. S. Dawson plays with effect as the Ghost; Mr. J. V. Bryant is an efficient Horatio; and Mr. George Powell scores as the Gravedigger. Othello was given on Tuesday night, She Stoops to Conquer on Thursday, and David Garrick on Friday.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. B. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Hardie and Von Leer's Two Little Vagabonds company is paying a return visit this week, and has a hearty reception. In the name-parts, Misses Edie Martin and Josie Beltram as Dick and Wally respectively act in an excellent manner. Mr. Arthur E. Melbourne portrays the rôle of George Thornton in well-finished style; and Miss Grace Heywood as Marion and Miss Rosslyn Vayne as Barbara are well to the fore. Mr. Sidney Vautier is excellent as Captain Darville, and the same may be said of Mr. Dustan Haye as John Scarth; Mr. Lionel Ellis is humorous as Bill Mullins, and is ably assisted by Mr. Frank Gordon as Dido Bunce and Mr. Dick Winslow as the Cough-Drop. Miss Evelyn Shaw is capital as Biddy Mullins, and Lena Vernon is good as Sister Randall; Mr. Thomas Blakeman as Dr. Lynn, Mr. Harry F. Wright as Leeson, and Miss Hilda Leslie as the maid-servant are of much assistance, and the remaining parts are well filled.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—£1000 Reward is much enjoyed here, as played by Messrs. Frank J. Pitt and Charles Halling's company. Mr. Fred Wilberforce is forcible in the part of Gilbert Lisle; Mr. J. Newton Cowling as Fred Ingleford, and Mr. Frank J. Pitt as his son are also very good. Mr. Charles Halling as Vincent Rainsworth is capital, and Mr. Frank Dallas causes much amusement as Inspector Gilbert, his rival in the force. Miss Daisy Halling is clever as Madam Sanson, Mrs. Sydney Halling is very good as Mrs. McCarty, and Miss Cissy Francess as Kitty is capital; Miss Lynn Darlington possesses an admirable contralto voice, which she uses with good effect in the part of Meg. Mr. George Scully is good as Dick Springthorpe, and the remaining characters are adequately played.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. B. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Kreamer and Braun, in a sensational novelty, Horse v. Cycle, head the bill, and Francinio Oljam in a "Soirée Musicale" provides good music. My Fancy is billed as the Queen of sand dancers, and well merits the title; Sammy Shields, the football spectator, keeps the house in excellent humour, as does also Walter Curtis; the merriment merchants, Harris and Worth, sporting comedians, keep the ball rolling with their cross-talk; Marlow and Manton (Harry and May) are good in an interesting sketch; and the Mezzettis have a capital comedy gymnastic act, which gains much applause. "Curfew shall not ring to-night" is depicted on the Dottoscope.

HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Fred Karno and company appear in a funny sketch, Dinner Time, and cause much laughter; Anilee brings the house down with whistling solos; Sally's Dilemna is acted in a capital manner by Bensley Evans company, in which Miss Olive Lanty appears with great success; Miss Ena Compton is a dainty comedienne, and she sings some pretty songs very nicely; Reilly and Taylor are a pair of good duettists; J. S. James again appears with success as a humorist and bone expert; and George Penn, comedian, and some interesting Pictures conclude the programme.

OXFORD. — EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, Miss Winifred Stuart and C. Watson Mill; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company is here with Driven from Home. Mr. Fred A. Marston acts with great spirit and vigour as Anthony Raybrook; Mr. Howard Tracey is consistent as George Clissold; and Mr. Francis Everard is well suited as Walter Hatherleigh. Mr. G. M. Montanini plays Geoffrey Waring with due restraint; Mr. Percy Dawsone is worthy of high praise for his clever portrayal of Willie; and Mr. Harry Cornwall shares honours as Jabez Thomas. Mr. Fred C. Imbert is highly amusing as John Anderson; Mr. Edward Finlay is especially good as Dick Sanders; and Mr. Henry Helling makes an admirable Adam Marley. Mr. Arnold Winters causes fun as Tom Mortlake; Miss Amy Corelli is bright as Margaret Bailey; and Miss Bella Power does well as Barbara Ashdown. Miss Jessia Yatman is refined as Walter Hatherleigh, the younger; while Miss Rose Ralph shows ability as Laura Raybrook. The scenery is very effective.

TOWN HALL.—Poole's Myriorama is here again this week, and continues to attract delightful houses.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty's company is here this week in An Unwedded Wife. A very capable rendering of Marion is submitted by Miss Van Praagh; while the Elsie Langham of Miss Elsie Watton is worthy of high commendation. Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes as Philip Blakstone acts in a powerful manner; Mr. Logan Darra essays with considerable success the part of John Hawthorne; as David Drummond Mr. J. A. Grove plays commendably; Mr. Valentine Henry makes an admirable Frank Armstrong; a capital embodiment of Christopher Lennox is submitted by Mr. Wilton Bedford; and Little Doris as a child actress shows cleverness and ability in her assumption of Reggie. Very humorous are the interpretations given by Miss Jessie Gillette as Caraway Crumpet, Mr. Will Casey as Napoleon B. Boomer, and Mr. J. Edward Whitty as Perkinson Pimple O'Runyin. Mr. Fred Allen as Inspector Grabem, and Mr. James Finny as Constable Bolt, are both good.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Douglas F. Bostock.—Marie Loftus gives a selection of her latest songs, which are all rapturously applauded; an excellent number is Addie Dorina, protean artist, who, in a clever sketch, Dr. Spot's Patients, impersonates seven characters with marvellous rapidity; the Lavelle Brothers are a couple of extremely quaint comedy acrobats; Ruby Bijou contributes an artistic and entertaining terpsichorean turn; Georgina Leonard is a chic comedienne; Carl Howard scores in his expert conjuring exhibition; as a comedian Fred Lincoln makes a decided hit; the Society Quartette appear to great advantage as singers and dancers; and the Bioscope completes a good programme.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company is engaged for the week in the successful musical comedy, Florodora. Mr. Alf. E. Passmore is highly amusing in the responsible rôle of Anthony Tweedlepunch; Mr. Stanley White's Cyrus W. Gilfain is a huge success; Mr. H. V. Cropton and Mr. Harold Perry are advantageously seen in Frank Abercoed and Captain Arthur Donegal respectively; Mr. Edwin Oxlee makes an admirable Leandro; Miss Daisy Lake as Dolores and Miss Lilly Gullick as Angela Gilfain are heartily received; as also is Miss Kate Leicester as Lady Holyrood, while Miss Dora McLasky is an ideal typewriter, Miss Eleanor Barnwell making a suitable Valleda, and Mr. H. Green an admirable footman. Special dances are given with much acceptance by Miss Eleanor Barnwell, Dora McLasky, Daisy Cayley, and Emmie Oxlee.

PETERBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—Raffles is the attraction here this week. Mr. Reginald Dance impersonates the title-rôle with great ability and power; and Mr. Edward Irwin scores a big success as Mr. Curtis Bedford. Mr. Brisco Owen lends able support as Harry Manders; Crawshay is capitally represented by Mr. C. Rivers Bertram; and Mr. Percy Foster is successful as Lord Amersteth. Miss Katie Yates acts the part of Gwendoline Conran most charmingly; and Mrs. May Brooke as Mrs. Vidal, and Miss Rita Ward as Marie, both deserve praise.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. Mouillot's well-balanced company is this week appearing in The Girl Behind the Counter for the first time locally. Mr. Ellis Holland is very amusing as General Sir Wilkie Willoughby; Mr. Arthur Cartwright is admirably suited to the part of the colonial, Charles Chetwynd; Mr. Howard Cridland—a former local amateur—does excellently well as the society dude, Viscount Gushington; Miss Nora Brocklebank has a particularly fascinating stage presence and manner as Winnie Willoughby; and Mons. Jules Charmettes furnishes some of Lauder's tit-bits in the French tongue in most amusing fashion. Susie is well portrayed by Miss Rose Helene; Mr. Frederick Park is quaint and humorous as Dudds the office boy; and Mr. A. M. Moore is a typical waiter.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—The attractive drama, A Little Vagrant, is being played here by Mr. Harry Roxbury's company. A noticeable performance is that of Miss Vashti Wynne as Poll; Miss Alice Bowes makes an admirable vagrant, and quickly elicits the sympathies of the audience; Mr. Richard Bosco is aristocratic and dignified as befits the rôle of an English gentleman; Mr. C. A. Collins is very natural as James Harris; and Mr. J. W. Gallagher as Slideaway Bates, and Miss Bella Moody as Hannah Smithers furnish the lighter vein in commendable fashion.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Dene and Dawson, the first turn on the programme, have some attractive patter; the Musical Schaffers are genuinely funny; Harry Weldon obliges with a couple of ditties in his customary quaint manner; Rezone and Robini have retained their popularity established by many preceding visits; and Grais' Baboon Prodigies furnish the star turn, one of the cleverest animal turns ever witnessed at the Palace. Vernon's pictures present an attractive film depicting the Grand National.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones.—A Woman's Past is the attraction this week. Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves is excellent as David Heath; Frank Dillannoy is ably portrayed by Mr. Charles T. Sandford; Clement Harper is in the capable hands of Mr. A. Hamilton Warden; Mr. G. Moreton Williams scores as Uriah Craven; Miss Maisie Harbury deserves the highest praise as Bessie; Miss Eva Bertram acts well as Clara Darrel; Dorothy Heath is ably represented by Miss May Dallas.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—The chief attraction here is the sketch Nancy Sikes, based on Charles Dickens's "Oliver Twist." It is admirably presented by Miss Georgette Thierry's company, with Miss Georgette Thierry in the title-rôle, Miss Florrie Sorsby as Oliver, Mr. Bernard Liell as Fagin, Mr. Willie Black as Bill Sikes, and Mr. Harry Deane as Mr. Brownlow, and appeals strongly to the audience. Mr. Harry Lee receives rounds of applause for his songs; Joe Cawley, pocket comedian, is also accorded a very favourable reception; Mr. Cyril Carle, actor-vocalist, gives a good rendering of the late Charles Godfrey's song, "Dreams"; Haley's company appear in a pretty scena called The Garden of Girls; a clever "disappearing lady" illusion is introduced by Simbri; the Czar's Russian troupe of dancers score with their clever dances; an exhibition of comedy boxing and an acrobatic display by Fortune and Fame; a song by Miss Gladys Williams, comedienne; and Bioscope pictures complete an excellent entertainment.

RADCLIFFE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—Mr. A. Campbell Kelly and company are here with The Trail of the Serpent. Mr. Frank Lyndon is excellent as Ralph Hammond, and the dual part of Gerald Kingston and Old Jack receives ample attention from Mr. A. Campbell Kelly. Mr. John Culleen as Gipsy Jake deserves a word of praise; Miss Phyllis Elton makes a charming and attractive Ethel Maynard, and Miss Nana Cameron scores as Rachel, a gipsy. The comedy-part is made attractive by Miss Jennie Risley.

RAMSGATE. — AMPHITHEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Mr. Gerald Hunt's Empire Biograph has been exhibited here during the week. New up-to-date films depicting scenes and events of considerable interest and humour are displayed, and the programme is made up by the inclusion of several particularly good variety turns. The Bros. Mills, in their lofty trapeze act, are extremely popular, and the singing of Taylor and Bridge, the singing Lancashire millhands, is loudly applauded.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—Messrs. Hallatt and Howard's principal company is here in the powerful military drama, Her Love Against the World. As Eric, Earl of Strathmere, Mr. Walter Howard has exceptional opportunities of displaying his fine histrionic abilities, his portrayal being very clever indeed. Miss Ellen Snow as Princess Iris gives a delightful interpretation; Miss Rossie St. John as Neilo is also exceptionally good. As Ulric of Ravensburg Mr. Mayor-Cooke gives a clever and forceful impersonation of the cruel and cowardly ruler; whilst as Prince Othmar Mr. W. H. Hollatt is equally good. Messrs. Henry B. Lewis and Richard Webb as Hemrick and Fritz are exceedingly comical, and along with Miss Lizzie Lellon and Miss Hettie Ferguson as Katinka and Gretchen are responsible for many amusing situations. Miss Blanche Steele is a thoroughly capable Shulah, and Mr. Sam Arthur an excellent Prince Maurice.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Business-Manager, Mr. E. J. Macdermott.—Mr. George Dance's variety season has "caught on." This week a leading item in the programme is the naval sketch, The Little Stowaway, played by an excellent company, with Miss Eva Lumley in the title-rôle. Kimberley's No. 1 Company is proving an attraction here this week with the powerful domestic drama Two Little Drummer Boys. General Kingsley receives a good interpretation from Mr. Edwin Bikker; Captain Frank Carsdale is powerfully rendered by Mr. Fred Emery; the villain, Captain George Darrel, is capitally handled by Mr. Edward Warden; Lieut. Allen Kingsley and Major Kilkerren are well played by Mr. Charles Gallier and Mr. Philip Redgrave respectively; the clever comedy acting of Mr. J. Magraph as Corporal Quinery O'Quirke and Mr. Harry Lyndon as Timothy Trimmer is responsible for much merriment; Mr. Frank Hoyd does justice to the rôle of Jim Barker, and Mr. Harry Greenburn gives satisfaction as the Rev. John Rivers. The boys of the 6th Royal Warwicks are capitally played by Messrs. James Fitton, Thomas Crew, Will Jackson, and Geoffrey Allen. Eric Carsdale and Jack Smith, the two little drummer boys, are smartly acted by Miss Maggie English and Miss Douglas; Miss Violet Langley gives a pleasing rendering of Alma Kingsley and Margaret Rivers is cleverly played by Miss Mildred Eversleigh; Miss Edith Macklin submits a vivacious delineation of Molly Meadows.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Under the Russian Flag, as presented by Mr. Jack Haddon's company, is proving a strong attraction here this week. Ivan is admirably portrayed by Mr. Charles Stafford; the villainy of Michael is effectively shown by Mr. Jack Haddon; Mr. Edward Avinal plays Wolf Marischla with much power; as Captain Demetrius Mr. Sydney Arnold is very successful; Mr. Geo. Cecil Murray is a realistic General Romanoff; Mr. Templer Ellis is an amusing Alexis; and as Peter Mr. Hal Forde prove himself a popular comedian. Miss Marie Rayner acquits herself with great success as Luka Marischla; Vera is delightfully acted by Miss Violet Lytton; and as Ogarita Miss Molly Hackett is distinctly good.

SHEERNESS.—THE PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond.—Miss H. Gordon proves herself a gifted ballad vocalist; Mr. Will Thornhill is a clever musical comedian and instrumentalist; the Sisters Finlay are an attractive pair of duettists and dancers, who are loudly applauded. Mr. Phil Reymond still continues a big favourite; the Byrons, celebrated musical entertainers, create a furore with their act, "The Power of Music"; Miss Topsy Levane gains much applause for her excellent character songs and dances; and the Crown Sketch Company conclude with a screaming comedy, Peace and Quietness.

THE HIPPODROME.—General Manager, Mr. F. Leighton.—The Royal Tokio troupe of Japanese gymnasts gain tremendous applause for their remarkably clever balancing feats; Patelle, lightning cartoonist, wins approbation; Bert Rayner and Cissie Reece, in an amusing scene, Early Closing Day, are much appreciated; and Lizzie Warland, character comedian, pleases immensely. Other successful contributors include Ryder Davis, actor vocalist; Miss Amy Elvira, burlesque artist; and Eva Ward, comedienne. The usual display of pictures concludes the programme.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr. Charles Frohman's company, including Miss Zena Dare, opened on Monday for two weeks in J. M. Barrie's delightful fantasy, Peter Pan; or, The Boy Who Wouldn't Grow Up.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr. Fred Karno's popular company is here this week in the funny farcical absurdity, His Majesty's Guests. Mr. George Hester as Sergeant Lightning is brimful of quaint humour, and keeps the house in roars of laughter; Miss Isolora Castelle makes a graceful and vivacious Lady Maud Easem; Mr. Frank Morton as Lord Easem sings effectively; Mr. Charles Usher is good as Mr. Mivens; and all the other characters are well played. The "Burglar's Chorus" and the other songs are as popular as ever with the Royal patrons, and the piece is mounted in Mr. Karno's usual elaborate manner.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The Manxman was acted to a large audience on Monday by a good company, headed by that clever actor, Mr. Alfred B. Cross, who again kept the attention of the house by his emotional ability and sustained dramatic power in the part of Pete; Miss Winnie Watersford made a pathetic and interesting Kate Cregeen; and other carefully-acted characters were the Cregeen of Mr. Frank Etheredge, the Philip of Mr. S. C. Kearns, and the Nancy of Miss Nelly Freeland. The drama was staged effectively.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—Mr. Sydney Bacon's company delighted a crowded house on Monday in the lively musical farce, The Duchess of Tooting, which proved entirely to the taste of the Sheffield public; Miss Lil Hawthorne, a great Empire favourite, sang three pretty songs with her wonted charm and refinement, and she was enthusiastically applauded; Barnard's Marionettes was an entertaining item of the programme; and other pleasing turns were Froebel and Ruge, agile aerial comedians; Edward R. Ford, the man with the "indiarubber face"; Sylvestre, a skilful magician; Miss Hettie Chatteli, the favourite burlesque actress; Miss Amy Russell, vocalist; the Celtic Comedy Trio; and the American Bioscope, with new and amusing pictures.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. David Warwick.—Miss Carlotta de Yonsen, Mr. C. A. Carlile, and company are appearing this week in The Blue River; and others engaged are the clever Alskarno Trio of acrobats, &c.; Mr. E. W. Selman, vocal comedian; Miss Ivy Gallard; Miss Lily Foy; Kenneth and Kane, in a novel act; Stuart and Evans, a smart duo; and Pallister, with his popular animated pictures.

SHREWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—The stirring drama, The Streets of London, is here this week, admirably played by Mr. Eade Montefiore's company. Mr. William Rokeby is the life and soul of the piece as the irrepressible Badger; Mr. Riddel Robinson makes a capable villain as Gideon Bloodgood; Mr. Frank Bradley acts creditably as Mark Livingstone; Mr. Clifford Armitage merits praise as Captain Fairweather; Mr.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, April 15,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE BELLE OF MAYFAIR."

This popular musical play is excellently acted by Mr. Milton Bode's energetic company. The Earl of Mount Highgate is smartly represented by Mr. Haddon Cave; and the Hon. Raymond Finchley is very satisfactorily played by Mr. Edward Hugonnet. Extremely comical is Sir John Chaldicot, Bart., M.P., as represented by Mr. Harry Parker, a comedian of much resource; Hugh Meredith, a modern Mercutio, is dashingly rendered by Mr. Gwyn Alwyn, who rattles bravely through the part and sings very pleasantly; Mr. Laurie Lisle is good as the Comte de Perrier; and Mr. George McCloskie makes an excellent Dr. Marmaduke Lawrence. Captain Theobald is capably interpreted by Mr. Fred Brandon; Julia Chaldicot introduces a very talented young lady in the person of Miss Queenie Finnis, who acts brightly and winningly, and possesses a pleasing though not powerful voice. A fascinating Pincott, the maid, is Miss Veronica Brady, who soon makes herself a popular favourite; Miss Brady's dances evoke great enthusiasm. H.S.H. Princess Carl of Ehrenbreitstein is impersonated by Miss Agnes Tandy with genuine ability and tact; Miss Emily Stevens is an amusing Lady Chaldicot; and Lady Violet Gussop is tellingly undertaken by Miss May Harris; while Miss Leslie St. John acts prettily as the Countess of Mount Highgate. Miss Aurelie de Loriere is successful as Lady Rosaline Rockesey, and subsequently as the Gibson Girl obtains a perfect ovation for her capital song, "Why do they call me a Gibson Girl?" The chorus is both animated and good-looking, and the orchestra is well directed by Mr. T. M. Tunbridge. Costumes, scenery, and appointments are alike an effective display of colouring.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, April 15, the Drama, entitled
"THE SILVER KING."

The enterprising management of Holloway's popular playhouse have this week provided their patrons with a strong attraction in The Silver King, under the direction of Mr. G. M. Polini. The reputation of this delightful play is, of course, world-wide, and although most playgoers must have seen it, the Marlborough has been well filled throughout the week, and the verdict of the audiences has been unmistakably in its favour. The story has been followed with genuine interest, and the principal artists have been recalled at the close of each act. Mr. Austin Melford as Wilfred Denver depicts the various shades of character with a force and precision that merit emphatic eulogy; Mr. L. St. John Lowther is the cool and calculating Captain Skinner, "the Spider," to the life, and he has a distinct and incisive delivery. In Miss Daisy Scudamore, who appears as Nellie Denver, we have an artist who undoubtedly possesses considerable histrionic ability; her acting is characterised by an easy natural grace and an earnestness that favourably impress an audience, and she richly deserves the plaudits with which her efforts are received. Mr. E. J. George plays the part of Jaikes, and succeeds in investing it with a sympathetic interest that wins friends in all parts of the house; Mr. George Belmore ably impersonates the part of Henry Corkett; and Mr. A. H. Rooke lends valuable assistance in the carrying out of the plot as Geoffrey Ware. Praiseworthy efforts are made by Mr. Byron Pedley as Baxter, the detective, Mr. Leslie Parker as Landlord of the Wheatsheaf, Mr. Warris Linden as Cripps, and Mr. P. Redmayne as Frank Selwyn. Mr. Arthur Wright plays the rôle of the unscrupulous Elizah Coombe very cleverly, and achieves a well-deserved success. Mr. Wright is also responsible for the stage-management of the play. Mr. Henry Watts (Mr. Parkyn), Messrs. S. Bingham and S. Hatchway (Binks and Bronson), Mr. John Pollard (Gaffer Pollard), Mr. Walter Anderson (Tipsy Passenger), Mr. Chas. Grant (Railway Inspector), Miss Louie Hale (Tabitha Durden), Miss Bessie Wright (Susie), and Miss Mary Simpson (Mrs. Gamage), bring the welcome element of humour into their impersonations, and all materially contribute to the success of the play. Miss Viola Holland suggested tenderness and shrinking timidity in her rendering of "the Spider's" wife; and Miss Flossie Hale Davis cleverly depicts the part of the child Cissy Denver. Subordinate parts in an exceptionally long cast all receive most careful treatment, and the play is mounted with excellent taste. Mr. C. Elcock ably conducts the fine orchestra; and Mr. J. Murray Herriott still fulfils his duties in the front of the house with a pleasant courtesy.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, April 15, the Drama, entitled
"THE SPAN OF LIFE."

Mr. Robert Arthur is providing drama of the most exciting order for his patrons at the Camden this week, where Mr. Arthur Carlton's company is appearing in Sutton Vane's well-known play, The Span of Life, which is a never-failing attraction. The great scene is that in which the heroine and her child are saved by a human bridge thrown across a chasm, over which they escape. The human bridge is made by the Stebbing Brothers, very clever acrobats, and it is a very smart piece of work, which is loudly applauded. The characters in the play, too, are capably filled, notably that of Dunstan Leach, the villain, who is powerfully and cleverly handled by Mr. Sanderson Moffat. A vigorous and manly portrayal of the much-wronged Richard Blunt is provided by Mr. R. S. Trelawney, who undoubtedly makes a success in the rôle. Miss Guinevere Shelton gives a sympathetic rendering of Kate Heathcote; Miss Phyllis Hamilton is seen to advantage as Mrs. Jelf; and Miss Phyylis Graham, a clever young actress, displays her talents in the rôle of Cecil Jelf, and afterwards as Cecil Blunt. In the comic scenes Mr. Walter Dale causes much hilarity as Nutty Brown; and receives able support from Miss Kitty Russell, a smart Shrove Tuesday. Miss Russell sings a very pretty coon song, which is well received; and Mr. Dale scores heavily with a parody on songs of the "Good-bye" type. Mr. James Jarrett is responsible for the stage-management, and he also appears as Josua Garnet. During the evening the Stebbing Brothers give a display of their acrobatic feats, which are very heartily applauded.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, April 15,
"LA FILLE DE MME. ANGOT."

M. René Debrenne's French opera-bouffe company opened the second week of its fortnight's tenancy of the Coronet Theatre with Lecocq's melodious opera, La Fille de Mme. Angot. The lilting melodies and catchy tunes are familiar as household words to the average playgoer, though apparently it is more difficult to give them a name, for Mons. Debrenne styles the pretty and popular air in the first act, sung by mère Angot (Amaranthe), as "couplets de la mére Angot," and Clairette's pretty song as "couplets politiques," and so on and so forth. Mlle. Henriette Delormes again proves herself a bright, engaging, and irrepressible comedienne as Clairette Angot, though personally we prefer her as a boy. Her various songs and duets are rendered with great spirit and charm, and she hits off the sans gêne manner to the life. Mlle. Göet undertakes the rôle of Mlle. Lange, and sings "Les couplets d'Augereau" exceedingly well, and in the taking duo "De maman papa," and in the quarrelling duet with Clariette, she is quite at her best. She enters thoroughly into the spirit of the part, and is full of animation. Mlle. Degoyon is very well suited in the part of the peasant woman Amaranthe, and sings her song in the first act with great éclat. Mons. Duncan is delightful in the rôle of the much-loved Ange Pitou, and although having a cold did full justice to the pretty vocal morceaux allotted him. MM. Ranté and Dumontier are very funny as the elderly beau, Larivaudiere and the amorous perruquier Pomponnet respectively, and their duo, "Du farinier and du charbonnier," in the last act creates much laughter. Mons. Merlin cuts a droll figure as the police agent, Louchard; and other small parts are capably rendered. M. Bonafons again conducts the orchestra, and Mr. Leachman assists Mr. Edward Lytton in the front of the house.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, April 15, the drama, entitled
"THE WORK GIRL."

Mr. J. M .East is providing a great attraction this week for Elephant and Castle theatre-goers when presenting the clever stock company in The Work Girl. An exceptionally strong cast, including Mr. George Conquest in his original part as Loo Genesis, score a complete success in this sensational drama. Miss Kathleen Russell must indeed be congratulated on an excellent portrayal of two rather trying parts. Firstly as the wife of Frank Belton and afterwards as his daughter Claire, Miss Russell, by her pathetic rendering, completely secures the sympathies of the audience. Mr. Albert Ward gives an earnest and convincing performance in the rôle of the gambler Frank Belton. Mr. W. H. Hatchman as the villainous Silas Sephton has no difficulty in securing the cordial hatred of all present. Mr. George Conquest as the shrewd old Hebrew, Loo Genesis, keeps the audience in roars of laughter whenever he is on the stage. A really clever character is supplied by Mr. Wm. Felton as Keeley Rendale. He obtains rounds of applause for his rendering of the much broken-down bookmaker. The callous Evelyn Sephton is convincingly played by Miss Lindsay Fincham. Mr. Fred Morgan, as the Hon. Edgar Drayton, and Mr. Harry Royce, as Tom Courtney, fill their respective parts with much credit. Much excellent work is done by Mr. W. P. Sheen in the rôle of the coster. He is ably assisted by Miss Eva Reed as Jenny Wibbles. Mr. Frank Harrison is effective at Watty Wibbles. Mr. Henry St. George causes much merriment as Bloggs, a servant. Miss Annie Travers does good work as the hypocritical Mme. La Marshe. Other characters are most capably handled. The staging of the piece is on a very elaborate scale, the greatest attention to detail being evident throughout. A picturesque and very realistic scene is that of the "Red Lion" at Tooting, where bookmakers, costers, and other folk are seen returning from the Derby in donkey chaises, dog-carts, and other conveyanges. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Albert A. Forshaw, does good work throughout the evening, both with the incidental music and during the intervals.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, April 15, the comedy entitled
"THE LITTLE STRANGER."

"One of the most laughable comedies of the day," was the verdict of the large audience which assembled at the Kennington Theatre on Monday to welcome the appearance of The Little Stranger. The central figure of the piece is, of course, Mr. Edward Garrett, the famous boy actor, who takes the dual part of the Baby and Tom Pennyman. Every action, speech, and mannerism of this pocket edition comedian sends the house into roars of merriment, and the contrast between his baby face and knowing manner is in itself a study in humour. He may well be described as the infant prodigy. A great deal of fun is caused by Mr. Stanley Lathbury, as General Allenby, and Mr. Hubert Druce as Sir George Peacock, the controversy between the two grandfathers appealing especially to the risible faculties of the onlookers. Miss Mary Stuart, as Mrs. Allenby, and Miss Alice Clayton Greene, as Lady Peacock, enact their respective parts with considerable skill. Mr. Charles Steuart makes an affectionate father as Captain Dick Allenby, being endowed with marked histrionic abilities. The character of the unfortunate convert to spiritualism, Mrs. Dick Allenby, is admirably presented by Miss Dora Hole. Mr. Charles Hanbury as Alec Howard, who figures so prominently in Mr. Morton's story, sustains the interest of the audience throughout. Paul Vronsky, the Russian President of the Soul Hunters' Association, is impersonated with great dramatic force by Mr. Charles A. Doran, who casts quite a glamour of mysticism over the scene. Mr. Fred Epitaux gives a noteworthy representation of Eames, looking the respectable butler to the life. The difficult part of the nurse was ably supported by Miss Louie Tinsley, while Miss Christine Rayner was a charming and attractive Effie Peacock. The setting of the piece is fully up to the Kennington standard. Mr. Charles Steuart, who is responsible for the production of The Little Stranger, having brought with him the entire scenery and effects from the Criterion Theatre, where it was first presented. The orchestral music was both pretty and light, and Herman Finck's symphony between acts one and two, "In Toyland," was brightly rendered. As a curtain raiser there is a one act play of an amusing description, in which Miss Christine Rayner and Mr. Hubert Druce participate with great success.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, April 15, the Play, by Wilson Barrett, entitled
"THE SIGN OF THE CROSS."

Mr. William Greet's principal company, appearing this week at the Dalston Theatre in The Sign of the Cross, provide local theatre-goers with an opportunity of seeing a really fine production. As the two most prominent personages in the piece, Mr. Frank E. Petley as Marcus Superbus, Prefect of Rome, and Miss Marie Leonard as the gentle Mercia, naturally come in for a large share of attention. Mr. Petley provides a most dramatic sketch of the handsome young Prefect, while the very atmosphere of resignation, inspired by consistent faith, which pervades the character of Mercia renders the part most interesting. Mr. C. Yorke's Nero serves to provide a sufficiently telling portrait of the suspicious and cruel tyrant. Mr. Charles Aldred as Tigellinus (counsellor to Nero), Mr. J. Wetherall as Licinius, Mr. Frank Wood, Mr. Harry Jones, and Miss Gertrude Price and Miss Cissie Carlton as patricians, Mr. Walter Fleet as Favius, Mr. Clifton Yates as Titus, Mr. R. Chapman as Melos, and Miss Dulcie Greatwich as Stephanus help to sustain the general interest. Miss Mary Newcombe as Poppœa, Empress of Rome, does not miss opportunities for the exercise of the dignity duly befitting the part. As the two spies, Servillus and Strabo, Mr. H. Thurston-Harris and Mr. Tom Lloyd succeed in making themselves just sufficiently objectionable, and the first-named also undertakes the responsible duties of stage-management. The cast also includes Mr. Tom Cook, Mr. J. Newman, Mr. H. Roose, the Misses Lily Ward, Pauline Emeric, Nellie Burn, Beatrice Felstead, Adelaide Clifton, Ethel Warde, Edith Drayson, Gladys Gordon, and Freda St. Clair.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, April 15, the Drama, entitled
"HER FATAL PAST."

A decided attraction is found here in Her Fatal Past, and good houses have been the rule during this week. The play is one of an intensely exciting nature, and is of absorbing interest throughout. The members of the capable company employed in the representation do full justice to their respective rôles. A manly and forcible delineation of Mark Desmond is supplied in Mr. Ronald Adair, whose elocutionary efforts are of a high order, and whose acting generally is deserving of high praise. Mr. E. Howard Templeton contributes a pleasing performance as Leonard Fernside, and does all that is possible to insure the success of his interpretation. Mr J. C. Aubrey powerfully portrays Gilbert Fernside, and plays throughout with much vigour and skill. The lighter portions of the drama receive suitable treatment at the hands of Mr. E. Harvey White, who supplies a characteristic impersonation of Jonathan Buckstone Nobbs, and Mr. Jack Denton, who ably portrays Dicky Bird. Little Miss Elsie Jessard, a clever child actress, is very successful as Little Leonard, and thoroughly establishes herself a favourite. Mr. H. H. Barrington does well as Reuben Treadaway; and Mr. Jack Anderson is all that could be desired as Constable Smithers. Miss Lena Delphine is a bright and captivating Kitty Sprigwell; Miss Maggie Lindsay ably delineates Martha Sprigwell; and the part of Sal Jenkins is well taken by Miss Laura Coombs. Miss Nell Oliver plays with considerable ability as Ruth Fernside; and Miss Grace Lester creates a powerful impression as Bella de Lara, a "woman of pleasure." Every praise is due to Miss Maude Stewart Drewry, who is earnest and impressive in the highest degree, for her touching portrayal of Honor Symes. Some really pretty scenery is employed in this production, the most effective set being the old mill and Brackenhurst Weir, with realistic sunset and storm effects. Mr. H. A. Chappell, the acting-manager here, has been away for some time owing to illness, but we hope soon to see him back at his post completely restored to health and strength.

THE BRIXTON.

On Monday, April 15, the play entitled
"DAVID GARRICK."

The promise of prosperity given at the opening of Mr. R. W. Allum's administration of this comfortable and well-appointed theatre was well borne out when on Monday a large and appreciative audience assembled. A powerful attraction for this week is provided in David Garrick, one of Sir Charles Wyndham's Criterion successes. An excellent company, headed by Mr. Walter Maclean, was completely successful, notwithstanding that on Monday night Mr. George de Lara was unable to appear owing to indisposition. His part, that of Squire Chevy, was taken at short notice by Mr. Alfred J. May, who throughout very ably sustained the character. A fine conception of David Garrick is presented by Mr. Walter Maclean. He fully realises the part of the great actor, who, in obedience to the call of honour, fulfils his promise, even though, when too late, he discovers the sacrifice he has to make. Miss Eveleen Mills as Ada Ingot, the daughter of the doting old city merchant, captivates the audience at first by the pretty arch way in which she coaxes her old father, whilst later, in the more serious scenes with her hero actor, she completely claims the sympathies of all. One of the most finished performances of the evening is that of Mr. T. J. Forde's Simon Ingot. He very cleverly portrays the prejudices of the old City merchant against the stage. His struggle against pride and prejudice is indeed cleverly depicted. Mr. Sydney Burt, as the hysterical young man, Mr. Smith, is quite effective. Mr. Browne is carefully played by Mr. A. Brown; whilst as Mr. Jones, Mr. C. L. Brocknor is well placed. Miss May Conrade as Mrs. Smith and Miss Lilly Edwards as Miss Araminta Browne make the most of their parts. Included in the cast are Mr. W. Bishop as Thomas, a servant, and Mr. G. James as Garrick's servant. My Friend Jarlet, a romantic play in one act, precedes the piece of the evening. In this Mr. Walter Maclean and Miss Eveleen Mills are seen to advantage. Mr. Gerald James is business manager and Mr. W. Bishop stage manager for Mr. Walter Maclean .

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, April 15, the Play, entitled
"HIS HOUSE IN ORDER."

Last week's attraction at the Fulham is worthily succeeded by Mr. Pinero's very fine play, His House in Order. The company has been selected and rehearsed by Mr. George Alexander, so that we have an almost exact facsimile of the London representation. The part of Hilary Jesson created by Mr. Alexander finds an excellent representative in Mr. Frank Fenton. He gave a finished study of the sympathetic, kind-hearted man of the world, whose detached position enables him to take an unprejudiced view of the situation, and whose tact enables him in reality to set the much-troubled house in order. Although there is a good deal of "preaching" in the part, Mr. Fenton is such a good elocutionist, and his manner is so sympathetic, that one could listen to very much more. He plays very finely indeed in the famous scene concerning the compromising letters. Mr. Cyril Harcourt was successful in showing the amiable but weak-minded Filmer Jesson, dominated by his appalling relatives, and the child Derek was excellently played by Miss Maisie Richardson. Mr. George Fitzgerald as Sir Daniel Ridgeley and Mr. George Silver as Pryce Ridgeley made one realise to an extent which was almost painful the narrow-mindedness and bigotry of these good people. Nor were Mrs. Kemmis as Lady Ridgeley and Miss Audrey Campbell as Geraldine in any way inferior to their male associates in the manner in which they portrayed those terrible females. Mr. Lloyd Lowndes was good as Major Maurewarde, and showed to advantage, especially in the powerful situation at his departure. Mr. A. E. Benedict gave a vigorous sketch of the fussy Mayor, Dr. Dilnott, and make the most of the part. Mr. Reg. Besant and Mr. Cyril Cattley filled the parts of Harding and Forshaw respectively with satisfaction. Miss Lilli Kehr was amusing and interesting as the French Governess, Mlle. Thomé. On the slight shoulders of Miss Auriol Lee hangs the burden of a part as heavy as any in the play. In all the varying moods required she acquitted herself superbly, and showed great dramatic power, well deserving the enthusiastic applause she obtained. The play is, of course, admirably mounted and stage-managed, and the whole performance is one of unusual merit.

THE BROADWAY.

On Monday, April 15, the Comic Opera, entitled
"AMASIS."

This gorgeous production is doing great business at the handsome house on Deptford Broadway, and one of the greatest points of interest is the appearance of the popular lessee, Mr. Louis Calvert, who is seen here for the first time in a comedy part, though his memorable appearances as Othello and Shylock made a great and lasting impression on the frequenters of this theatre. Mr. Calvert has shown his versatility by his capital rendering of such a different part as that of Pharaoh, which he acted with all the lightness and humour inseparable from successful comic opera. It was a thoroughly artistic and enjoyable performance, and in keeping with the entire production. Chief among Mr. Calvert's clever company is Miss Constance Drever, whose delightful impersonation of Princess Amasis charms everyone, and her singing of the various pretty numbers allotted to the part is all that could be desired. Miss Madge Vincent is a dainty and vivacious Natis; Miss Winifred Hart Dyke contributes a graceful and cleverly-executed dance in the second act, which is warmly applauded; Miss Emmie Santer is good as Anna; the same remark applies to Miss Muriel Seymour Hodges as Oeresa, and Miss Winnie O'Connor as Kassa. Other ladies appearing are Mesdames Dorothy Aylmer and Daisy Stafford (fanbearers to Pharaoh), Avice Scholtz (Atossa), Daisy Nunn (Ladice), Ethel Graham (Klies), Nellie Moore (Tachot), Winifred Macey (Rhodopis), Paula St. Clair (Nitetis), and Mildred Fincham (Aries), who are successful in their various parts. Mr. Roland Cunningham is a warm favourite with the audience, his fine appearance and manly bearing being exactly suited to the character of brave Prince Anhotep, and his singing is excellent; Mr. Whitworth Mitton as Cheiro does all that is possible with the part, and his rendering of "I prayed for life" is very good; Mr. Norman Salmond is a grimly humorous High Priest, Webenchari; Mr. Reginald White's rendering of Ptolemy is a remarkable piece of character acting, which is thoroughly appreciated by the audience; Mr. Lauri de Freece is most amusing as Sebak; Mr. Frank Perfitt's striking personality and excellent acting as Psamtik are of great value to the performance; Mr. George F. Mackarness is good as Zopyrus; Mr. Walter Brodie is amusing as the Town Crier; and Mr. Alfred Swinhoe as the Second Priest plays well. The scenery is picturesque and appropriate, and the dresses costly and beautiful. The chorus is satisfactory, and the large and admirably directed orchestra does full justice to the charming music of the opera.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, April 15, the Comedy-Drama entitled
"HEARTS ADRIFT."

Good audiences have been attracted to the Crown during the present week to welcome the return visit of the above interesting and moving American piece. Mr. Frank Bertram's principal company give a most acceptable rendering of the play. That favourite actor, Mr. Henry Bedford, has an important rôle as the old mariner, Captain Teddy, a man with a past, and the sincerity and force of his acting arouse the house to much enthusiasm. Miss Irene Ross, who acted cleverly as a waif in the Peckham pantomime, is very pathetic as the crippled newsboy, Little Tim; and Miss Nellie Clyde makes a winsome and touching heroine as the flower girl, Rosie. Miss Gertrude Harrison acts with dramatic force as Julia Lane; Mr. Cecil Klein is a sincere and gallant young lover as Robert Darney; Mr. Fred Terriss scores well as the rascally company promoter, Edmund Gerue; and Mr. William Holles, with a very clever make-up, contributes a most able character-sketch as Pidgeon. Mr. R. Gwyn-Richardson does all that is possible as the broker, John Lane; and Mr. Brian Daly causes much amusement as the stuttering simpleton, Simeon Green. Miss Beatrix A. Bell is very humorous as the pugilistic Bowery girl, Energy Muggs; and Miss Marion Walker is appropriately repulsive as the old hag, Mother Haggslow. The scenery and effects are first-class, and special mention should be made of the excellently-contrived flight of the airship in the third act.

THE PRINCE'S, POPLAR.

On Monday, April 15, the Play, in Fourt Acts, by Thomas Raceward, entitled
"SUNDAY."

A welcome addition to modern drama is Thomas Raceward's Sunday, which this week is paying a most opportune visit here under the direction of Mr. Louis Calvert. It is a play well calculated to please the patrons of the handsome Prince's, Poplar, containing, as it does, much homely humour and sentiment, and it receives admirable treatment at the hands of a hard-working company, which on Monday night had a most hearty reception from an audience that filled the theatre. As the impetuous, lovable Sunday, Miss Emélie Polini scored a conspicuous success, being refreshingly natural throughout, and making the most of a part that offered many opportunities. She is responsible for pretty touches of pathos combined with moments of power. A calm and deliberate Colonel Brinthorpe was found in Mr. Leonard Pagden, whose efforts met with well-deserved recognition; Mr. Pagden carried through the Colonel's declaration of love for Sunday with remarkably good effect; Mr. Ernest A. Douglas acted with ability and conviction as the genial Tom Oxley; Mr. Max Montesole was responsible for a satisfactory impersonation of the dishonourable and callous Arthur Brinthorpe; and very commendable was the forcible delineation of Towzer by Mr. William Lockhart. A particularly interesting character-sketch of Lively was presented by Mr. Cecil Yapp; Mr. Sidney Rennef was really excellent as Davy; and Jacky found a capable and manly exponent in Mr. Arthur Vezin. Miss Rosalind Ross displayed earnestness in her work as Mrs. Naresby; and Miss Muriel Pope invested the part of the Nun with considerable charm, Mr. Ernest Harrison being a careful Abbot.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, April 15, the Musical Comedy entitled
"THE GAY PARISIENNE."

Mr. Chas. Macdona's company has played to full houses here this week, and scored a complete success with this amusing musical comedy, and although it has been before the public for many seasons, it went as well as ever, and was skilfully brought up to date by the introduction of new songs and business. Mr. William Harman as Ebenezer Honeycombe, the peccant spouse, was most amusing, and caused much merriment. The gallant volunteer, Major Fossdyke, fitted Mr. Squire May to a nicety, and his two songs were well rendered. Miss Holford Beringer gave an incisive rendering of Mrs. Honeycombe, her only solo song being heartily encored. Norah, the heroine, was played by Miss Nance O'Neill in a rather subdued key; her vocalisation is excellent. The broad humours of Ruth, the diminutive domestic, were fully brought out by Miss Madge Soutter, the song of the piece, "Sister Mary Jane's top-note," going as well as ever. Miss Lilian Talbot made a great hit as Julie Bon Bon, being full of vivacity and movement, and she obtained full recognition for her really clever impersonation. Gustave Pompier, Julie's companion in duplicity, gave Mr. Clifford Seyler just the opportunity required for the display of his talents and experience. Mr. Philip Moore as Tom Everleigh, the suitor for the hand of Norah, acted well, and his songs secured a good reception; Mr. Leslie Waller's Algernon P. Dulcie was commendable; and Mr. J. Fitz-James as Hans, the German hotel-keeper, used his fine voice to advantage in some glees, with Mr. Ted Dennis (Fritz), Mr. Richard Rose (a gendarme), and Mr. Philip Moore. The four charming daughters of Major Fossdyke were played by Mesdames E. McHardy, Kathkeen O'Malley, Gertrude Davies, and Lucie Donati, who looked well in their cycling and mountaineering costumes. Mr. Cecil Lawrence introduced a clever whistling medley in the second act, showing that it is possible to be conversational and intelligible without words. Mr. Seyler sang a new song, by Frederic Norton, entitled "Gertie on the go, go," with a full chorus, and established it as a welcome addition to the piece.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, April 15, the Play entitled
"A GIRL'S CROSS ROADS."

The attraction here this week is Mr. Walter Melville's popular drama, A Girl's Cross Roads, which has already been several years on tour, and has thus given evidence of its enduring popularity. Mr. Melville's company gives a capital rendering of the piece, which it is calculated has already been witnessed by over a million persons. That accomplished actress, Miss Hilda Beverley, gives a superb rendering of the rôle of the unhappy dipsomaniacal Barbara Wade, and her conception of the character is almost terrible in its grim reality; Mr. Charles Franmore gains great applause as the breezy, hearty old Yorkshire farmer, Jack Meadows, and his impersonation is in all respects a very fine one. Mr. Wilson Gunning plays with sincerity as Jack Livingstone, the unfortunate husband; and Mr. Fred Ingram is amusing as Toby Turvey. Mr. Cyril Vernon gives a life-like impersonation of the good-hearted Doctor Weston; and Miss Florence Zillwood shows to much advantage as the heartless, frivolous Nellie Meadows. Miss Mabel Scudmore acts with much tenderness and feeling as the young schoolmistress, Constance Cornell. Miss Fay Garnet Vayne is bright and amusing as Tilly Vane; Mr. Gerald Jordan plays with much cleverness as the villain, Cuthbert Lumley; and Luke Ramsden is effectively enacted by Mr. Fred Withers. The scenery is well up to the usual high standard at this popular South London theatre.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, April 15, the Drama, entitled
"THE FACE AT THE WINDOW."

For the current week's attraction at this theatre Messrs. W. and F. Melville have selected Mr. F. Brooke Warren's well-known drama, and very good audiences are evincing an interest in the production. The company entrusted with the performance is headed by Mr. Ashley Page and Miss Marion Denvil, whose admirers in the neighbourhood are legion. Mr. Page as Paul Gouffet is responsible for a good and effective rendering, his acting being characterised by ease and conviction. Mr. Weldon Atherstone as Delgado portrays that sinister individual in the approved manner, and is very successful. Mr. Frank Woodville submits a sound performance in a small part. Mr. Edward Thane, whom we have not seen here for a long time, is clever as Cortier, his portrayal of the unfortunate bank clerk being distinctly good. Mr. Johnny Chippendale as Portlebury contributes some very welcome comedy relief, in which he has the support of Miss Mattie Everett, their joint efforts being much appreciated. Mr. Tom Taylor as Le Blanc, the mad doctor, presents a clever character-sketch of great merit, and Mr. John Sargent is to be commended as Barbelos. Miss East Robertson as La Pinau gives a capital performance, acting with power; and Miss Marion Denvil as Marie is altogether admirable. The mounting is on a lavish scale, the last scene of the drama being exceptionally well done.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, April 15, the drama entitled,
"AT DUTY'S CALL."

Dramas of a military type are always sure of a hearty welcome in Marylebone, so consequently Mr. John Gerant and his company have been received with much favour at Mr. William Bailey's comfortable theatre. As the designing Anglo-Egyptian plotter, Harold Allison, Mr. John Gerant infused plenty of vigour and determination into his work, and scored accordingly. Mr. Harry Scott was clear and decisive as Captain George Allison, his methods being admirable; Mr. Ernest St. John cut a lonely, pathetic figure as the ever alert and watchful hero of Khartoum, General Gordon; Mr. Frank G. Kent worked with wondrous agility and vim as Jack Spencer; and Mr. Harry Ugar was no less successful as the Hibernian humorist, Teddy O'Halloran; Miss Jeannie Weston's embodiment of Salema was a decidedly creditable one; Miss Harlington was bright and cheery as Mary, and Miss Lily Crammonde sustained Dora Drummond with much grace and charm, speaking her lines with womanly tenderness and pathos.

THE SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM.

On Monday, April 15, the Drama, entitled
"WOMAN AND WINE."

Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds's company is appearing this week in the above well-known play, in which a great success is achieved by a bright and spirited performance. Miss Cissie St. Elmo acts with power and effect as Marcel Rigadout; Miss Violet Sims plays with much skill as Mary Andrews; Miss Joan Pereira gives a vivid performance of La Colombe. The realism of her acting hold the audience with rapt attention; and Miss Ethel Vinroy makes a charming young widow of Janet Marlow. Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds is worthy of considerable praise for the passion and feeling he infuses into his part as Dick Seymour, a student; Mr. George S. Lester is exceedingly clever in the part of Pierre Crucru. Messrs. John S. Haydon, Charles Wilton, and Samuel Hilton play their parts artistically; and the remaining characters are exceedingly well represented.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, April 15, the Comedy entitled
"THE FREEDOM OF SUZANNE."

Miss Mabel Love made a reappearance at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, on Monday and during the week in this charming production, and received a hearty welcome from those who had the pleasure of seeing her on the occasion of her former visits. Her impersonation of the central figure in the comedy, Suzanne, was admirable, and did not fail to win the approval of the house. The part of Charles Trevor was in the hands of Mr. Templar Powell, who gave a good account of himself in the part. Miss Annie Halman acquitted herself well as Lady Charlotte Trevor; and satisfactory delineations of their respective parts were also given by Miss Florence Harwood, Miss Violet Ley, Miss Dorothy Lart, Mrs. F. Turner, Mr. E. Eder, Mr. F. G. Thurstoms, Mr. Gerald Alexander, Mr. J. Hastings Batson, Mr. Townsend Whitling, Mr. Richard Neville, Mr. Montgomery, and Mr. F. Pritchard. The play, which was brought to Kingston under the direction of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison, was admirably presented, and was well received.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, April 15, the Drama, entitled
"THE SOLDIER'S WEDDING."

The first visit to Stratford of Mr. Walter Melville's latest drama, The Soldier's Wedding, is proving a welcome attraction to the patrons of the popular parts of the commodious Borough Theatre this week. The piece has less of the sensational element than characterises others of the same author's productions, relying for success on a story of strong domestic interest most picturesquely mounted, with, naturally, a decided military flavour permeating its course. Mr. Wingold Lawrence makes a bold and dashing Jack Brown, looking extremely smart in his well-fitting uniform, and his easy and fluent style make him a very popular hero. Mr. Beresford Whitcomb is a dignified and soldierly Colonel Graham; and Mr. Raymond Wood submits an incisive portraiture of the scheming Charles Courtney. Mr. A. Gamoier Melford supplies an able and amusing sketch of Tommy Spratt; and Mr. Frederick Biron makes the most of his opportunities as David Munroe. A pretty and engaging heroine is found in Miss Jessie Winter, as Nancy Lee, and she is deservedly a favourite, being charming and vicacious, tender and sympathetic as occasion requires, and her acting quite raises the part above the ordinary. Miss Georgie de Lara handles the part of Peggie Munroe with considerable tact and skill; and Miss Marie Macaulay, in the rather difficult rôle of Julie de Beauvais, contributes a finished performance, despite the handicap of playing an "accent" part. Miss Ettie Carlisle is a bright and entertaining Lizzie Walker; and Miss Maggie Burton is well placed as Miss Hatherton. Mr. D. J. Hennessey makes a satisfactory John Marks; and Mr. Fred Yarnold depicts an old farmer very successfully. The remaining parts are all intelligently and carefully played.

ACTORS' UNION MEETINGS.

LONDON.

At the meeting of the Actors' Union which was held at 3, Bedford-street, on Tuesday, the chair was taken by Mr. Arthur Bawtree, and present were Miss Gladys Ffolliott, Miss Mary Bissell, Miss Agnes Paulton, Miss Beatrice Lloyd, Miss Mabel Syringa, Mr. Cecil Raleigh, Mr. Chas. Sugden, Mr. Robson Paige, Mr. Rawson Buckley, Mr. E. Y. Rae, Mr. Edward S. Petley, Mr. Chas. Aldred, Mr. F. Chamier, Mr. Robt. Taylor, Mr. H. Tripp Edgar, Mr. G. W. Reynolds, Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., Mr. Harry Paulton, Mr. Orlando Barnett, Mr. Fred Bentley, Mr. Wilfred Shine, Miss Violet Chamier, Mr. E. S. Petley, Mr. Elliott, Miss Raymond, Mr. H. Pritchard, Mr. E. Story Gofton, Mr. E. Howard Templeton, and Mr. Oswald Marshall (Hon. Sec.).

The CHAIRMAN called attention to the two meetings which had been held at Manchester and Glasgow, and asked Mr. Robson Paige to read the report of the latter.

Mr. ROBSON PAIGE, before he read the report, pointed out what could be done by a postcard. The Committee had been looking for Mr. Hamilton Deane's address for some time; but Mr. Paige found it, and dropped Mr. Deane a postcard, inviting him to join. Not only had he joined, but he had been the means of inducing 48 others to do so within a fortnight. Mr. Paige hoped all interested would write postcards to their friends inviting them to join. He thought the fact of 48 members having been obtained from an attendance of 53 spoke for itself.

Mr. CECIL RALEIGH said he would work heart and soul for the Union until the A.U. showed him the door. He mentioned a letter he had received from an actor in the country, who was engaged at a salary of £1 10s. per week in a recognised drama. After he had paid his fare, spent £1 10s. on his wardrobe, and played for two weeks, the manager came to him and said that he was quite willing to run on if he would accept £1 per week, and at the end of the run any profits to be so divided as to ensure his salary being as near £1 10s. as possible. The theatre managers and touring managers organised secretly: why should not the actors? Mr. Raleigh concluded by appealing to the profession, through those present, to join the Union.

Mr. CHAS. SUGDEN said although he knew that some such body as the Actors' Union was required and had been needed for years, he went to the meeting at Glasgow with the idea that the latest effort would go the way of its predecessors and fall to the ground. He was so much struck with the prevailing enthusiasm and the businesslike way in which the meeting was carried through that he joined at once.

Mr. HARRY PAULTON endorsed all that Mr. Raleigh had said, and he hoped all concerned would do their level best to keep the Actors' Union on a solid foundation.

Miss GLADYS FFOLLIOTT said if possible they should become an Affiliated Trades Union.

On Mr. ROBSON PAIGE'S proposition a vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Hamilton Deane for his efforts in Glasgow. He (Mr. Paige) thought Mr. Deane had made a very fine speech.

The meeting of the Reform party of the A.A., which was held at 3, Bedford-street, Strand, on Sunday evening, the chair being occupied by Mr. Frederick Moriand, was chiefly formal. Among those present were Misses Wynne Matthison, Claire Greet, Rosamund Mayne Young, Winifred Mayo, Agnes Thomas, Beatrice Chester, Beatrice Mervyn, Beatrice and Amy de Burgh, and Messrs. Lewis Casson, Kenyon Musgrave, Arthur Morris, Athol Forde, C. F. Collings, and Charles Caffrey. The propositions which are to be put before the Council at the general meeting on May 6 next were discussed.

The following are the Provincial Agencies appointed by the Actors' Union, where meetings in future will be held every Tuesday.

SOUTHAMPTON.—The Sussex Hotel, 86 and 88, Above Bar.

GLASGOW.

At the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, on the 12th inst. a meeting was held to discuss the working of the Actors' Union. Amongst those present were Mr. Hamilton Deane, Miss Bessie Rignold, Mr. Paul Belmore, Mr. Bernard Hishin, Miss Violet Thorold, Miss Ethel Russell, Mr. H. Armitage, Mr. H. Morgan, Mr. Campbell Goldsmid, Miss Florence Dulhunty, Mr. Greene Taylor, Mr. C. Pope, Mr. Edward Beecher, Mr. Stanley Field, Mr. Douglas Payne, Mr. Edwin Palmer, Miss Lilian Stafford, Mr. Dare Austin, Mr. Mark Lester, Mr. Frank M. Cross, Mr. Richard Sullivan, Mr. Geoffrey Saville, Mr. Frederick Lloyd, Miss Florence Creagh, Mr. Valentine Henry, Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes, Mr. Arthur Stratton, Miss Alice Marsden, Miss Lilian Clare Cassidy, Mr. J. W. Stewart, Mr. Carl Rovinelli, Miss Lily Cuthbertson, Mr. Jo. Cuthbertson, Mr. Frank Copeland, Mr. Charles Sugden, Mrs. Charles Sugden, Mr. Harry Courtin, Mr. William S. Palmer, Mr. Herbert Bentone, Mr. Arthur Poole, Mr. Harry Glenney, Mr. Joseph B. Montague, Mrs. Montague, Mr. Russell Wallett, Mr. Frederick Sandy, Mrs. F. Sandy, Mr. Frederick Clive, Mr. Martin H. More, and Mr. Geo. Mitchell.

Mr. EDWARD BEECHER proposed Mr. Hamilton Deane as Chairman. This was seconded by Mr. H. ARMITAGE. Mr. Deane read telegrams and letters received from Mr. Harry Paulton, Mr. Robson Paige, Mr. Lennox Pawle, Mr. Wilfred E. Shine, Miss Anna Hickish, and Miss Madge Devereux, and others.

In the course of his opening speech, Mr. DEANE said:—Surely you all must realise in these days of syndicates and managerial associations the crying need of some definite union amongst us actors and actresses, without whom neither syndicates nor associated managers can exist. If, therefore, you recognise this need, and fully realise that some day there must be a federation or union amongst us, all-embracing and self-supporting, let me ask you not to place obstacles in the way of this toddling child, but to give it a leg-up and help it on its way. The Actors' Union is now an accomplished fact, not a visionary idea, and it only needs the co-operation of the masses to make it an operating force, the like of which has never before existed in our profession.

Mr. RUSSELL WALLETT, a member of the executive committee of the V.A.F., assured his hearers that in these days of trusts and syndicates, a union of actors founded on the lines proposed was the only safeguard for the masses of the dramatic profession. He wound up by wishing the Actors' Union, on behalf of himself and the executive committee of the V.A.F., all possible success.

The CHAIRMAN then read the rules of the Actors' Union, which have been prepared by the Provisional Committee. They were as follows:—

1. The title of this body is to be the Actors' Union.

2. That this Union is being formed for the object of safeguarding the interest and welfare of all those who earn their living by acting or singing in Musical or Dramatic Plays.

3. The Union will be governed and developed on strictly democratic lines—by Actors, for Actors.

4. Qualifications for membership: That all entering the profession can be admitted as probationary members, but no one to be allowed to vote or sit on the Council under five years' actual experience on the stage, or five years' membership of the Union. That each candidate for election shall be proposed by one and seconded by two Fellows of the Union, who, from personal knowledge, can vouch that, in their opinion, the candidate is professionally and socially fit for membership.

5. That the entrance fee be 2s. 6d., and a subscription of 6d. per week to be paid for forty weeks of the year. Members to be in full benefit must not allow their weekly subscriptions to fall in arrears. Those who are desirous of doing so can pay their subscriptions quarterly 5s., half-yearly 10s., or annually 20s.

6. That any member of the Union becoming a manager or acting manager shall, during the period of his management, forfeit his right to vote and cease to hold executive powers in the Union.

7. That the Union be governed by a Council of twenty-four Fellows annually elected, all being allowed to offer themselves for re-election.

8. That branches of the Union at the earliest date possible shall be formed in other centres such as are already forming in London and Manchester.

9. Members shall be known by a number, and each shall have a card to which special stamps issued by the Union shall be affixed, thus denoting their weekly payments.

The Objects of the Union are:—

1. To establish and maintain an honest living minimum salary.

2. To abolish the unfair competition of unpaid or premium-paying amateurs on the professional stage.

3. To insist on the decent and healthy structural condition of Theatres.

4. To found a Provident Fund, Loan Fund, and Old Age Pension Fund so soon as the Union is on a sound financial footing.

5. To give Free Legal Advice to all members.

6. To grant Free Legal Protection to all members.

7. To collect a levy of 6d. per member in the event of the death of any member, to defray the funeral expenses and assist the widow, widower, children, or next-of-kin.

8. To form an honourable, solid, and united body of Actresses and Actors whose decisions will be accepted with respect, and whose protests will be made with authority when directed towards the reform or abolition of any abuses that are detrimental to the interests of the Stage.

Mr. SINCLAIR FORBES wished to know how an actor would stand if in times of stress he were offered a salary below the minimum; would he have to refuse such a salary as a member of the Union, and, if so, would the Union keep him?

The CHAIRMAN said it rested with themselves as to what their rules and regulations in future would be. They would have the electing of their executive themselves.

Mr. VALENTINE HENRY stated that he believed a a minimum wage was necessary, but could small managers afford to pay such a minimum as £2, and if they were compelled to do so, would it not affect the salaries of the leading artists, which would naturally be cut to square accounts?

Mr. H. ARMITAGE replied that if the masses of the profession were loyal, and joined the Union, such a thing as a manager offering any artist less than £2 would become a matter of impossibility.

Mr. FRED LLOYD thought a £2 minimum was too high, and would be non-operative in the event of an artist signing for a vacation or summer tour, which managers sometimes risked in order to keep their artists together. A minimum of 30s. would meet the case.

Mr. GOLDSMID said the imposition of a £2 minimum salary would naturally enhance the prestige of the travelling company, and the travelling manager and resident managers who now offered the small companies "share after," or ridiculous percentages, such as 35 or 40 per cent., would be unable in future to do so. If the terms to the travelling manager went up slightly, the matter of the extra little on the salary list would be equalised.

Mr. EDWARD BEECHER, with reference to Rule 4, said the necessity of five years' experience to vote or sit on the Council was obvious. As to the portion of Clause 4 about being professionally and socially fitted to become a member, they were only applying a rule they would apply to any decent club. The rule was passed unanimously.

The question then arose as to what position an advance agent, carpenter, or acting-manager would hold, to which the Chairman replied that if he ceased to be an actor—or, in other words, if he became exclusively an agent or acting-manager—he would cease to have his vote or be able to sit upon the executive body.

The CHAIRMAN, in reading Rule 5, pointed out that they were only asked to subscribe 6d. per week for forty weeks in the year, allowing a margin of twelve weeks for illness or for being out of work This clause was passed unanimously.

Mr. RICHARD SULLIVAN said that he welcomed the Union in every way, and that, as it was a union of actors for actors, it was but right that managers should not have votes. Managers might find themselves asked by proprietors to do things that went against the grain, and which, as members of the Union, they should not do. This clause, therefore, was very welcome. He was entirely in favour of the movement.

The clause was carried unanimously.

When Rule 7, in which it is stated that the Union be governed by a Council of twenty-four Fellows, was considered, the question arose as to whether the provinces would be adequately represented.

The CHAIRMAN said it was proposed to make twelve representatives provincial and twelve London, and that the Fellows must be actors pure and simple.

The clause was unanimously passed, as were Rule 8, referring to weekly meetings, and Rule 9.

The CHAIRMAN then applied himself to the Objects of the Union.

Nos. 1, 2, and 3 were passed unanimously as soon as read.

Mr. EDWARD BEECHER opined that the idea of "old age pensions" was premature, and suggested that the question should be deferred.

Mr. GOLDSMID said in his opinion it should be pushed forward as rapidly as possible. There was no reason to defer it if the masses came into the Union.

Mr. H. ARMITAGE supported Mr. Goldsmid, and the clause was carried unanimously.

No. 5 Clause was explained by the Chairman, and passed.

Clause No. 6 was read and explained by the Chairman, who, in reply to an interrogatory stated that "protection" meant that the Union would take up the case of a member who was threatened with law proceedings, defraying the expenses of the process.

The clause was carried unanimously.

In answer to questions on Clause 7, the CHAIRMAN explained that the money raised on the death levy would in all probability be paid in advance from the head office, or at least enough to defray the immediate funeral expenses, and the remainder as it came in.

Clause 8 was passed unanimously.

The following artists signed a paper, promising to join the new Actors' Union:—A. Armitage, Harry Courtin, Lilian Clare Cassidy, Florence Creagh, Doris Lorraine, Alice Marsden, Arthur Stratton, Valentine Henry, Carl Rovinelli, J. W. Stewart, Edith Matt, Bessie Patience Rignold, Ethel Russell, Helen Sugden, Violet Thorold, Charles Sugden, E. St. Claire Forbes, Lilian Stafford, Greene-Taylor, Dare Austin, Joseph B. Montague, Harry Glenney, C. Pope, Richard Sullivan, Lilian Glen, Edward Shirley, Frederick Sandy, Frederick Clive, Frank Copeland, Frederick Lloyd, Mark Lester, G. Cuthbertson, Bernard Hishin, Florence Dulhunty, H. J. Morgan, Campbell Goldsmid, L. Ashton-Jarry, Paul Belmore, Florence Delman, Douglas Payne, Arthur Leigh, Frances Wolviston, Arthur Poole, Cecil Elgar, Julie Kennard, Hamilton Deane, and Edward Beecher.

MANCHESTER.

Mr. Ruddle Brown took the chair at a meeting of the Actors' Union which was held at the Salisbury Hotel, Manchester on Tuesday last. Amongst those present were Messrs. John B. Murray, Hugh Mewburn, Leonard Lawrence, Wm. Matthews, C. M. Buckland, Malcolm J. Cumming, C. L. Belcliffe, A. W. Norman, Henry Loraine, Misses Nita Langford, Georgie Trewman, Nellie Howitt, Teresa Haynes, and Bertha St. Ruth.

The CHAIRMAN having referred to the success of the Union meetings and the increase in membership,

Miss BERTHA ST. RUTH advocated a five years' qualification before artists could be enrolled as fellows, and a minimum salary of £2.

Mr. MALCOLM J. CUMMING asked whether an artist who joined the Union was expected to comply immediately with the £2 per week minimum rule.

Mr. J. B. MURRAY knew of cases where actors were compelled to accept less than £2 per week. The £2 minimum could not be effective until the Actors' Union had gained a strong membership.

Mr. LEONARD LAWRENCE suggested that when the Union was sufficiently strong enough to render itself assertive, then would be the time to insist on the minimum salary.

Mr. HUGH MEWBURN suggested the formation of a loan society in connection with the Union. Members in want of money to pay their railway fares, &c., should be able to obtain it from this source.

The CHAIRMAN said it was one of the items that would no doubt receive consideration.

Mr. L. LAWRENCE suggested that the entrance fee to the Union should be fixed at 2s. 6d. up to the end of the present year; that members joining during the following six months should pay 5s., while afterwards the fee should be raised to half a guinea.

The original resolution on being put to the vote was passed as a recommendation for the Provisional Committee to deal with.

At the special meeting of the members of the Actors' Association on May 6 resolutions will be proposed to amend the Articles of Association, with a view to keeping managers out of the Association. The principal resolution runs:—

"No manager shall be qualified to become president, vice-president, or member of the Association, and any such office-holder or member becoming a manager shall ipso facto vacate his office and be suspended from all privileges of membership so long as he shall remain a manager.

"The term manager is to be held to include all responsible managers of theatres or theatrical companies, and their general business and acting-managers."

If the motion is adopted it will mean the resignation of the following vice-presidents:—Miss Ellen Terry, Sir Charles Wyndham, Messrs. George Alexander, F. R. Benson, Arthur Bourchier, John Hare, H. B. Irving, Cyril Maude, Edward Terry, and H. Beerbohm Tree. The only vice-presidents unaffected are Messrs. A. W. Pinero and Lionel Brough. The resolution would also enforce the retirement of two councillors, Mr. Granville Barker and Mr. Brandon Thomas.

The large and fashionable audience assembled at Stanley Hall last evening had the pleasure of enjoying one of the best entertainments that has been seen in Montreal for months.—The Gazette.

GANTHONY ENTERTAINMENT.

Mr. Robert Ganthony as a humorous entertainer has a world-wide reputation, and last night appeared before a Canadian audience for the first time, delighting everyone present, and fully sustaining this talented artist's reputation.—Daily Witness.

ROBERT GANTHONY AMUSED HIS AUDIENCE.

There was a show at Stanley Hall last night. Robert Ganthony was the show. Quite a good-sized bunch of very select Montrealers were the audience. They seemed to enjoy Robert—laughed at all his jokes. Everybody seemed to have a good time, and Robert had the best of all.—The Star.

THE GANTHONY RECITAL.

Mr. Robert Ganthony, the dramatic entertainer and actor, gave a recital last night in the Stanley Hall, and scored a signal success. His numbers were enthusiastically encored by the large and fashionable audience which assembled to hear him, and his "Ganthonicals" provoked much laughter and proved their author to be a person of originality as well as talent.—Daily Herald.

ONE OF A NUMBER OF NEW YORK CRITICISMS.

And speaking of versatile actors, have you ever heard Robert Ganthony's imitation of a boarding-school girl's performances on the mandoline? If you have not had that felicity, has amiable fate ever afforded you the opportunity of hearing Mr. Ganthony's wonderful impersonation of the three characters in a French father-in-law farce? Unless one excepts his delicious imitation of an amateur soprano singing to a 'cello obbligato, I reckon the French farce monologue is the cleverest bit of nonsense in the world.—Morning Daily Telegraph.

"A BOATSWAIN'S MATE."

Play, in One Act, by W. W. Jacobs and Herbert C. Sargent, adapted from Mr. Jacobs' story with the same title, and produced on Monday, April 15, at Wyndham's Theatre.

Mrs. Waters .....MISS ETHEL HOLLINGSHEAD
George Benn .....MR. W. E. RICHARDSON
Ned Travers .....MR. GEORGE F. TULLY

Mr. W. W. Jacobs' humour added largely to the gaiety of Britishers with the production of Beauty and the Barge. Since then we have laughed heartily at That Brute Simmons, both at the theatres and the halls, and, therefore, Mr. James Welch's introduction of another piece from the pen of the author of The Monkey's Paw enables faithful playgoers to renew acquaintance with an author who is always able to frame life's little ironies with wit, ingenuity, and interesting studies of character. Mr. Herbert C. Sargent has come to Mr. Jacobs' aid in the adaptation of the story for the stage, and A Boatswain's Mate will no doubt become a valuable addition to the attenuated list of successful modern curtain-raisers.

An attractive widow, possessing a snug little roadside "pub," has proved a potent attraction to George Benn, an ex-boatswain, but he is not exactly to the taste of Mrs. Waters, who notes that Benn is always prompted to declare his unalterable attachment to her after the third mug of beer, though he asserts that he is consumed with love for her even before he has had a drop. During the widow's supper-time Benn consents to take charge of the bar, his only customer being Ned Travers, a discharged soldier. A brilliant scheme occurs to the ex-bo'sun, and he immediately proceeds to take Travers into his confidence. As he cannot gain the widow by protestations and vows, he will try stratagem. For the sum of two pounds, borrowed from the widow, Benn cajoles the ex-soldier into acting as a pretended burglar, merely to frighten the lady into the belief that she needs a protector—that protector, of course, being Benn, who is to come forward at the proper moment, and heroically rescue her from the amateur cracksman. The widow upsets both Benn and his calculations when she descends in her "nighty" and covers the pretended burglar, who has hidden in a cupboard, with a loaded gun. Learning the true state of affairs from a paper handed through the chinks of a cupboard-door, through which Travers had made a rapid exit, the widow quite checkmates Benn's little game by a counterplot in which she has the assistance of Travers Firing off the gun she persuades Benn that she has killed the pretended burglar. There's only one thing to be done—conceal all evidence of the tragedy by the burial of the body. Benn must get her out of her difficulty by digging the grave. His horror may be guessed; but, trembling in every limb and groaning, he obeys. Ned Travers watches him with a chuckle, and then strikes terror into his inmost soul by "appearing" to him, and he flies. "What a rare joke it would be," says the soldier, "if old Benn came back and found me as the landlord." The widow's consent to this proposal is hastened perhaps by Travers's repayment of the two-pound loan, borrowed by Benn; for when that worthy returns he sees that his hopes are crushed. The cast will play with a greater certainty of touch after a few representations; but Mr. W. E. Richardson did very well as the boatswain; Mr. George Tully made a genuine success as the soldier; and Miss Ethel Hollingshead entered thoroughly into the humour of the chief situation, and did not lack rustic coquetry. When Knights Were Bold pursues its hilarious course, and evokes peals of laughter nightly from packed houses.

FUNERAL OF OWEN HALL.

The burial of the late Mr. James Davis, better known as Owen Hall, whose death was announced in our last issue, took place at Highgate New Cemetery on Saturday. The funeral procession, which consisted of an open car and a large number of private carriages, left 6, Montague-mansions, York-street, N.W., shortly after eleven, arriving at the cemetery chapel about an hour later. It was preceded by a brougham containing some beautiful floral tributes, conspicuous amongst these being one in the form of a closed book, and consisting of orchids and other rare flowers. This was sent by Miss Edna May. Flowers that formed a red cross, in a framework of green and white, came from Mr. Ivan Caryll, and from Mrs. Frankau (sister) an open volume, over one page of which roses bloomed, while opposite, worked on green, were the words, "Alas, poor Yorick!" A card attached was inscribed—"From Julia Frankau. Infinite grief and regret." Lady de Bathe (Mrs. Langtry) sent a beautiful wreath of lilies; and Mr. Lionel Monckton a pillow of flowers. Other wreaths were from Mrs. Davis (the widow), Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Frankau, Lord and Lady Marcus Beresford, the Dowager Lady Rossmore, Sir J. Edwards-Moss, Mr. George Edwardes, Lieut.-Colonel Newnham Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Collins, Sir Theodore Brinckman, Mrs. Harry de Windt, Captain Graham Pigott, and Miss Alice Hollander.

The chief mourners were Mr. Hyman Davis, son of the deceased; Mr. Hall's sister, Mrs. Frankau, well known as a novelist under the nom-de-plume of Frank Danby; Mrs. Benjamin, another sister; Mr. Marcus Collins, his brother-in-law; Mr. Edward Benjamin and Mr. Ashley Benjamin, nephews; and Miss Benjamin and Miss Nita Aria (nieces). The other mourners included Sir James Hume, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. Leslie Stuart, Mr. Arthur Cohen (of the Gaiety Theatre directorate, representing Mr. George Edwardes), Mr. Malcolm Salaman, Mr. John de la Cour, Mr. Charles Taylor, Mr. Ducane, Mr. Roy Horniman, Mr. Loftus Thornhill, Mr. James Smith, Mr. Sidney Ellison, and Mr. Davis's coachman (Charles) and his butler (Brookes), the former of whom had been in his service sixteen and the latter ten years.

The service, held at the chapel and by the grave (which is situated just inside the Chester-road entrance to the new cemetery), was conducted by the Rev. J. T. Bingley, of St. James's, Highgate. Matinée performances accounted for the absence of many professional friends and colleagues, who would otherwise have attended the funeral.

CHAS. FISHER "POCKET OPERA" CO.

Referee says:—

"At the Chelsea Palace Mr. Chas. Fisher and company presented a capital little musical farce, entitled The Music-Master. The central figure of the sketch is a music-master, who is in great trouble because his special operatic production seems doomed to failure owing to the fact that his chief vocalists have let him down at the eleventh hour. But his servant and the young man from next door come to the rescue, and all join in a sort of impromptu rehearsal, full of fun and excellent vocalism. On Monday the company rendered in fine style an excerpt from Faust as a grand finale. The Music-Master was received with every sign of favour, and Mr. Fisher may be congratulated on a really good show."

The Entr'acte says:—

"A novelty at the Chelsea Palace, and at the top of the bill, was The Music-Master, presented by Chas. Fisher and company, which achieved a distinct success. Their new act is simply a very clever burlesque on opera. Mr. Fisher and his associates thus have the opportunity of demonstrating that they possess besides—as is well known—fine operatic voices, a rare combination of voice and comedy. They received three hearty curtain calls on Monday night; then the audience still clamoured for a repeat of the grand finale from Faust."

REVIVAL OF "THE LIARS."

On Saturday, April 13, the Comedy, in Four Acts, by Henry Arthur Jones, revived at the Criterion.

Sir Charles Wyndham returned on Saturday to his home—the house that he raised to a pinnacle of popularity at first by frivolous comedy, mostly adapted from the French, and later by slightly more serious work by the best English dramatists. He had the warmest, the most affectionate of welcomes, from a house crowded in every part as he strolled on the stage as Colonel Sir Christopher Deering, in The Liars, a character that must always be regarded as one of the best in his repertory. The comedy, which was originally produced on Oct. 6, 1897, was perhaps the most successful of the pieces produced in the later Criterion era, and in it we find Mr. Henry Arthur Jones in his most genial mood, sketching character with the lightest of touches, and writing with literary elegance and an epigrammatic verve that is positively brilliant.

Sir Christopher Deering is the raisonneur of the younger Dumas brought up to date. To misquote "Father O'Flynn" he is the "powerfullest preacher" and the "tenderest teacher" in the domain of high comedy. Like that popular priest, too, he has wide and generous sympathies, and a wonderful "way wid him." Sir Christopher treats his friend Falkner's infatuation for the rather feather-headed Lady Jessica Nepean as a huge joke; but when he finds the South African hero fixed and determined to throw his reputation to the winds and risk a grave scandal, he gives him a long lecture, which contains not only some of the best writing in the piece, but some of the best Mr. Jones has given us. We tremble to think what would be the fate of such a passage in any other hands than those of Sir Charles, whose variableness in delivery, whose kindly earnestness and deep sincerity shown in every inflection of the voice, take the house captive. Miss Mary Moore returns to fascinate us by her delightful irresponsibility as Lady Jessica, who has a predilection for taking the "wrong turning," which invariably leads her into compromising entanglements. Miss Moore looks as pretty and flirts as coquettishly as ever, and her presence in a character she has certainly made her own is very welcome. Mr. Thalberg Corbett, who, as Mr. T. B. Thalberg, originally played the rôle of Edward Falkner, is very much in earnest, and makes the part stand out in vivid contrast. One feels that the reading is correct; for to Falkner life is real, life is serious. Mr. Eille Norwood, too, adopts the correct attitude as the rough, tyrannical, and inconsiderate husband, who supplies some reason for the temporary defection of Lady Jessica. Mr. Sam Sothern is exactly suited as Freddie Tatton; and an excellent successor to Mr. Alfred Bishop is found in Mr. Henry Kemble, who is particularly amusing as Archibald Coke. Miss Granville easily acquits herself of her slight responsibilities as the sarcastic and cutting Mrs. Crespin; Miss Dorothy Thomas, a beautiful girl, looks superb and acts with sweet sensibility as Beatrice Ebernoe; Miss Spencer-Brunton's Lady Rosamund gives a light and agreeable character-sketch of a captivating society leader; and Miss Francis Vine's Ferris lacks none of the nonchalance and coolness of the lady's maid. Mr. Herbert Dansey supplies a neat sketch of the waiter; and Mr. Reginald Walter, Mr. L. White, Mr. John Cabourn, and Miss Catherine Dupont lend adequate aid to an irreproachable representation.

At its conclusion the company assembled on the stage, with Sir Charles Wyndham in the centre. The curtain was lifted several times, and at last Sir Charles yielded to the demands for a speech. He said:—"In the name of all of us, Miss Mary Moore, my company, and myself, I thank you for your presence in such numbers and your generous reception of us. This performance has a special significance, for I am returning home. That is to say to my first home, for, as most of you know, I have, in conjunction with Miss Moore, acquired two other theatres which are homes to us. If a captain may, as he often does, call his ship his wife, may not an actor-manager, when speaking of his theatre, do likewise. Of course, I know that in any case it will be a little awkward, for I shall be speaking of my three wives and risking your reproof, for having during the last few years lived in a state of picturesque trigamy. Do me the justice, however, to remember that I played the game fairly and impartially, and that I love them all just as did that moral philosopher, who, in somewhat similar circumstances said "to be faithful to one is moral: to be faithful to all is an epic." Well, I complete my epic to-day, for I return with pleasure to my first and oldest—a pleasure tempered only by the fact that I shall not stay long. For Fate seems to have decreed that Miss Moore and I shall be wanderers during the rest of our career—here to-day—over the way to-morrow. Nevertheless, it is a great delight to find myself here, where insufferable conceit might tempt me to say I made my name, did I not feel that in truth you kindly made it for me. For that, for your attitude to-night, and indeed all favours past and present, I tender you my gratitude, my respect, and my affection."

THE CHARLES GARTHORNE WIDOW FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—May I once more encroach upon your space to call attention to the statement of accounts of this fund, and to remind those who have not contributed that further assistance is much needed? Thanks are due to Messrs. Hudson, Victoria Station Repository, who have kindly consented to make a substantial reduction on the amount owing for the storage of Mrs. Garthorne's furniture; at the same time, the balance in hand is not sufficient to pay the amount due to this firm after allowing for this reduction.—Faithfully yours, JAMES W. MATHEWS.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree and his company arrive in London this morning, and will re-open at His Majesty's on Monday with The Tempest. The triumphs achieved by the eminent actor and his company are recorded by our Berlin correspondent in another page, and further testimony to the brilliant results gained is furnished by a telegram from Mr. Henry Dana, Mr. Tree's business-manager, which ran as follows: "Notwithstanding captious local critics, entire visit enormous success with public. Second performance last night of Twelfth Night received with uproarious applause. Could have continued taking calls indefinitely."

The closing performance of Mr. Tree's visit was The Merry Wives of Windsor, which was repeated on Thursday night before a crowded house, the Crown Prince and Princess and the Princess Eitel Friedrich occupying the Royal box. An extraordinary ovation attended the fall of the curtain, and Mr. Tree, responding to the calls for a speech, said, in German, that he would never forget his splendid reception. The readiness wherewith the Berlin public had shown its appreciation of English theatrical art was to him a delightful surprise. He had great pleasure in saying this was to be "Au revoir," not "Good-bye," since he had accepted Berlin's invitation to return next year.

Subsequently Mr. Tree, Miss Viola Tree, and Miss Collier had an audience of the Crown Prince, who expressed the warmest appreciation of the delightful performance, and said he hoped he would have the pleasure of coming to see and hear Mr. Tree's company again next year. The spectators waited till the audience was over, and then began again lusty cheering, which was redoubled when Mr. Tree appeared in the gallery and addressed a second and similar speech in English to the crowd, many of whom waved handkerchiefs and cheered in a manner unmistakably British.

Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, who intends to carry her season at the Savoy well into June, when the theatre is to undergo a few alterations in readiness for the Court Theatre company, has determined to add another to the number of Gilbert and Sullivan revivals. The public are offered their choice between Pinafore, The Sorcerer, The Pirates of Penzance, Iolanthe, and Princess Ida, and Mrs. Carte will be influenced in her decision entirely by the number of postcards sent in favour of either one of the works mentioned.

Mr. E. S. Willard arrived at Plymouth on Monday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II., having finished his American tour at Cleveland on Saturday week last. The eminent actor was accompanied by his nephew, Mr. Walter Edmunds. The remaining English members of Mr. Willard's company are on the Vaderland, due at Dover to-morrow, Sunday.

Mr. Willard said "farewell" this season to all American cities west of the Alleghenny Mountains, and in the course of a few years may return to America to play "good-bye" engagements in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Washington. For the present, however, he remains in England, but has no intention of appearing on the stage for six months at least, as he needs a rest.

Mr. William Mollison was the recipient of a massive silver loving-cup from the members of his company at the termination of his first Shakespearean tour at Newport last week. In making the presentation Mr. Sidney Cooper referred to the high esteem in which Mr. Mollison was held by the members of the company, and their great admiration of him as an actor, and of his own personal business relationship with Mr. Mollison, which is of a most cordial nature. The first Shakespearean tour had been a pronounced success, Mr. Mollison having made a great impression among theatre-goers both artistically and socially, and he was happy to tell them that the week at Newport had far exceeded his most sanguine expectations, for the receipts approached those of the late Sir Henry Irving's visit, and far exceeded those of any other individual star during his lesseeship. In accepting the gift, Mr. Mollison made an eloquent and sympathetic speech, during which he thanked the ladies and gentlemen of the company for their beautiful present, for their earnest work throughout the tour, and expressed the hope that they may again be associated with him.

Mr Arthur Bourchier will appear in both The Duel and Doctor Johnson at the Garrick Theatre on Tuesday. In the former piece, for the adaptation of which Mr. Bourchier is responsible, Miss Violet Vanbrugh will be seen as a fascinating Duchess, and the cast will also comprise Messrs. Sydney Valentine, Cyril Keightley, Charles Goodhart, Alfred Bristowe, G. Harrison Carter, and Douglas Imbert; Mrs. Herbert Bennett and Miss Eva Killick. The action passes in three consecutive days, the first act taking place at a private hospital near London, the second at a priest's rooms in poorer London, and the third at a bishop's apartments in a Duke's house in richer London, overlooking the private chapel and oratory. In the revival of Doctor Johnson Mr. Bourchier will be supported by Mr. Arthur Whitby, Mr. Walter Pearce, and Miss Pamela Gaythorne.

The Managers' Club held their last ladies' social evening of the season at their elegant and cosy rooms in Savoy Mansions on Sunday. Mr. Frank Weathersby presided and supplied the entertainment, which was voted first-class by the large muster of members and friends who availed themselves of the evening's amusement. The programme was contributed by the following artists: Misses Ena Souter, Flo Wakeman, E. Heron-Brown, Ida Freeman, Chrissie Ralland, Kitty Cavendish, and Messrs. Robert Noble, Edmund Lea, John Gill, Ivan Berlyn, William Butler, and J. Carpenter.

The illness of Miss Lena Ashwell, through which she was compelled to bring her recent American tour to a premature conclusion, has, we regret to state, been attended by more serious results than were anticipated, and on the advice of her physician the popular actress is to undergo an operation. On Thursday Miss Ashwell was removed to a nursing home, and though there is no reason to fear any grave results, some little time must elapse before she can hope to resume work.

Ladies and gentlemen desirous of obtaining engagements with Mr. George Edwardes's companies either in London or for the provinces should note that voice trials are held at Daly's Theatre every Tuesday at four o'clock. No card of admission is necessary, all the applicants have to do being simply to present themselves and be provided with a song.

Saturday next will witness the farewell to the stage of Miss Edna May, whose influence over musical comedy since her appearance in The Belle of New York in London has been so powerfully exercised. As a parting refrain Miss May is singing the popular "Follow On" for the remainder of her engagement in Nelly Neil at the Aldwych, which will precede her "retirement into private life" on her marriage with the young American millionaire. The next attraction at the Aldwych will be an American drama entitled Strongheart, which has enjoyed a prosperous run for over two years in the United States, and will be played in London by an American company.

Matinées will be given at the Playhouse, kindly lent by Mr. Cyril Maude, on Tuesday, April 30, and Thursday and Friday, May 2 and 3, in aid of the St. Vincent's Homes for Destitute Children, Harrow-road. The entertainment will include a new psychic play, entitled The Finding of the Sword (which deals with the subject of reincarnation), by the Countess of Cromartie. Miss Edyth Olive will dance a classic dance, and Tom's Second Missus, a new peasant play by M. E. Francis, and The Grey Domino, an eighteenth-century play, in one act, by Mr. and Mrs. Egerton Castle, will be among the features of the programme.

Mr. Cyril Maude has kindly given the use of the Playhouse for a matinée under the patronage of the Princess of Wales, the Princess Royal, and the Duke of Fife, which is to take place on Thursday afternoon, May 16, in aid of the Girls' Realm Cot in the Great Ormonde-street Hospital for Children. Mr. Maude and Miss Winifred Emery, supported by Mr. Fred Terry and Mr. Ben Webster, will give the Screen Scene from The School for Scandal; Miss Gertrude Kingston will appear in t piece, entitled A Friend in the Garden, by E. F. Benson, the novelist, and the popular curtain-raiser Compromising Martha, will be given, with Miss Florence Haydon in the name-part. Miss Aimée Lowther and Mlle. Rita Jolivet will interpret a short French play, and Miss Camille Clifford, Miss Phyllis Dare, Miss Zena Dare, Miss Billie Burke, Miss Vera Le Fleming (the wonder-child dancer), Mr. Harry Lauder, and Miss Margeret Cooper will also contribute to the programme.

The Playhouse will again be put to the purposes of philanthropy on June 27, when a matinée performance of Captain Marshall's comedy, The Noble Lord, the cast of which will include several well-known amateurs, will take place, by kind permission of Mr. Cyril Maude. The performance, which will be under the immediate patronage of the Princess Louise, will be in aid of the Regimental Homes belonging to the Royal Artillery, Royal Warwickshire, and Essex Regiments.

Mr. Edward Compton has been persistently dogged by illnesses during his present tour. Miss Mackenzie (his daughter) had to be left behind at Perth recently suffering from an attack of jaundice, and did not rejoin her father's company for a fortnight. In her absence her parts of Violet Gresham, Mistress Prue, and Lady Teazle were admirably taken by Miss Phyllis Relph, to whom Mr. Edward Compton has presented a charming necklace of Tay pearls, with a still more valuable letter of appreciation. Miss Marian Le Strange and Miss Barbara Pigot also did capital emergency work, and to each of them Miss Mackenzie gave a handsome travelling bag in recognition of their services. Last week Mr. Edward Compton was down again with a second attack of influenza, and could not appear on the Tuesday night or at the Saturday matinée at West Hartlepool, his place being filled by Mr. Wallace Johnston as Charles Surface, and Mr. Philip Gordon as Tony Lumpkin, Mr. Vernon Crabtree also doing good work as Moses. Both Mr. Compton and his daughter are now quite themselves again, and the former is working quietly on his preparations for his London season in August.

Mr. E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe, our distinguished American guests, begin their season at the Waldorf on Monday with Hauptmann's fantastic drama, The Sunken Bell. Mr. Sothern is the Bell-founder, Heinrich, Miss Marlowe the "elfin creature," Rautendelein, and the rest of the company consists of Misses Kruger, Betty and Freda Green, Clifton, Alexander, Clement, Lamison, Sanford, and Hammond, and Messrs. Crompton, Aspland, Anderson, Buckstone, and Eric. The season ends on Saturday, June 1, and on the following day the company leaves for Denmark, and subsequently gives a performance of Hamlet at the little theatre close to Elsinore.

"The Great Conspiracy" is to be withdrawn within a fortnight from the Duke of York's, and will be followed, on Saturday, May 4, by the revival of A Royal Family, the clever comedy by Captain Robert Marshall, originally produced at the Court Theatre in the autumn of 1889. Included in the cast will be Mr. Henry Ainley and Miss Alexandra Carlisle.

Mr. W. F. Crowe, who has managed the Theatre Royal, Bristol, for Mr. Ernest Carpenter for the past two years, and has been appointed manager of the Lyceum Theatre, had a farewell benefit at Bristol on the 12th inst., when the current attraction, The Christian, was supplemented by many "turns" from local halls, including Mr. Whit Cunliffe, the popular comedian; Mr. Alec Kendal; Mr. Charlie Goodman; and Mr. Syd Bishop, the local impromptu comedian. Towards the end of the performance Mr. Horace Livermore came before the footlights, and amidst applause handed the departing manager a purse of gold from the members of the theatre staff and other friends. Mr. Crowe, who was enthusiastically received, said the gift gave him all the more pleasure through being handed him by such an old friend. He had been very happy in Bristol, and was sorry to have to say farewell to his numerous friends in front of the footlights and behind, but at the same time it was a great pleasure to him to know that Mr. Carpenter had remembered him in taking on his London house. Mr. Crowe is succeeded by Mr. Henry C. Alty.

Mr. Walter Slaughter's forthcoming romantic light opera Lady Tatters, which will see the footlights at the Shaftesbury on Wednesday, May 1, is in the press, and will be published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter. The book of the opera, the scene of which is laid in the time of Charles II., is by Mr. Herbert Leonard, the author of On Active Service and several other popular Surrey dramas, and the lyrics are by Mr. Roland Carse, whose graceful fancy has had plenty of scope, the very titles of some of the songs breathing the spirit of the picturesque period of the Restoration. Mr. Herbert Cottesmore produces the work.

The numbers include "Boot, Saddle, and Horse!" "A Bunch of Blue Ribbons," "Never Laugh at Love," "The Folly, Folly, Folly of Flirtation," "The Fiddler and his Dog," "Sing Hey-down-derry!" "O'er the Countryside we Wander," "A Lady of Fashion," "Wouldst thou recall the past?" and "Dance and be gay." The company will number such well-known names as Mr. Courtice Pounds and Miss Louie Pounds, Miss Marie George, Mr. Walter Passmore, Mr. Ivor Foster, Mr. Johnny Danvers, Mr. Sydney Brough, Mr. Herbert Sparling, and Miss Claudia Lasell, an actress comparatively new to London, but who has met with very considerable success in the provinces in, notably, The Sweet Girl and Peggy Machree.

Mr. W. S. Hartford, who has concluded a most successful special engagement as Iago, Macduff, the King, Touchstone, &c., has been engaged by Mr. Fred Winn to play the part of the convict in his sketch The Light in the Window at the Palace, Leicester, next week.

Mr. J. B. Mulholland is about to erect at Wimbledon a new theatre, the site for which he has already obtained. Plans and quantities are also practically settled. It will be one of the biggest houses in Greater London, and will hold over 3,500, its prominent feature being a magnificent grand circle.

The Reform Party in the Actors' Association will hold a meeting to-morrow (Sunday) evening at 9, Trafalgar-square Studios, Manresa-road, Chelsea. A further meeting of the Actors' Union is fixed for Tuesday afternoon next, at 3, Bedford-street, when Mr. Wm. Farren, jun., will occupy the chair; and the provincial meeting will take place at 13.30 p.m. on the same day at the Salisbury Hotel, Oxford-street, Manchester. A paper on "Actors' Organisation" will be read by Mr. J. Telly Dillsen at a meeting to be held on Friday next at the club room of the Percy Arms, Percy-street, Newcastle. Miss Marie Clavering will take the chair, and discussion will be invited. A meeting in connection with the Actors' Union will also take place at Leicester during next week. All particulars may be obtained from Mr. E. S. Petley, at the Palace, Leicester, or from Mr. E. H. Templeton, Theatre, Leicester.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee of the Actors' Association held a meeting on the 12th inst., when there were present Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), Lewis Casson, H. Athol Forde, and C. Aubrey Smith. Several matters were dealt with and recommendations to the council agreed upon.

The usual weekly meeting of the council was held on Tuesday last, when there were present Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater in the chair), Henry W. Mote (solicitor), Misses Carlotta Addison, Clare Greet, and Kate Phillips, and Messrs. Acton Bond, W. Graham Browne, C. F. Collings, Burton Cooke, H. Athol Forde, Laurence Irving, Frederick Morland, Kenyon Musgrave, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary).

The hon. solicitors reported they had obtained a verdict for the full amount of a member's claim, together with costs; they also reported they had advised several members on points submitted, and were requested to advise three others. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was given, and the several suggestions made by that body were adopted by the council.

The secretary was instructed to engage the hall at the Passmore Edwards Settlement for the purposes of holding the extraordinary general meeting of members of the Association on the 6th and 27th days of May next. It was agreed that, together with the notice of such meeting to be sent to each member, a list of pros and cons setting forth the position of affairs from both sides, with request for information and a proxy if necessary, should be forwarded. Douglas Beaufort was nominated for election. Twenty-seven former members were reinstated. The meeting opened at 2.30 and closed at six o'clock.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday, when there were present Messrs. Acton Bond chairman), A. E. Drinkwater, H. Athol Forde, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). Matters referred to the committee by the council were considered, and ultimately instructions given for the preparation of reports, &c., to be placed before the council at their next meeting.

The Irving Memorial Committee held a meeting on Monday last, when there were present Mr. Cecil Raleigh (chairman), Sir Charles Wyndham, and Messrs. G. P. Bancroft, Acton Bond, Lewis Casson, John Hare, A. W. Pinero, Edward Terry, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). Questions in connection with the proposed site were discussed, and it was agreed that the sculptor, Mr. Thomas Brock, should be consulted on the matter. The secretary received instructions to write to various ladies and gentlemen who had promised financial support, and it was agreed that the second list of subscriptions should be published next week.

"Peter's Mother," which is giving delight to numberless playgoers in country and suburbs by the medium of Mr. Percy and Miss Emma Hutchison's company, received a charming compliment on Thursday last week, when Sir Charles Wyndham postponed his rehearsal of his imminent production at the Criterion in order to travel to Brighton and be present at the representation of Mrs. De La Pasture's clever play at the Theatre Royal there. The eminent actor greatly enjoyed the performance, and heartily congratulated Mr. Percy Hutchison, Miss Ruth Mackay, Mr. Norwood, and the other members of what is undoubtedly one of the best all-round companies seen out of London for some time past.

Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's companies have visited Brighton on seventy different occasions with their various attractions, and have done record business, but Peter's Mother has taken the highest receipts of any. Mr. Cecil Beryl, the manager of the Theatre Royal, Brighton, was so captivated by the play and company that he watched the performance no fewer than seven times.

The Playgoers' Club have this year obtained the New Theatre for their annual ladies' concert, which will be held to-morrow evening. It is intended that the concert shall consist of light music, and among the artists who have already accepted invitations to be present are Miss Billie Burke, Miss Margaret Cooper, Miss Marie Dainton, Miss Clarice Mayne, Miss Marie Tempest, Mr. Tom Clare, Mr. R. H. Douglass, Francis, Mr. Harry Lauder, Mr. George Mozart, and Mr. Malcolm Scott.

Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker's revival of The Return of the Prodigal is announced for Monday, April 29. The cast will consist of Mr. Eric Lewis, Miss Florence Haydon, Mr. Dennis Eadie, Mr. A. E. Matthews, Miss Amy Lamborn, Mr. Cecil Rose, Miss Fortescue, Miss Dorothy Minto, Mr. James Hearn, Mr. Norman Page, Miss Mary Barton, and Mr. Edmund Gwenn.

A new farce, entitled Priscilla and the President, by Charles Heslop, will be produced at the Royal Opera House, Wakefield, on Wednesday. The opening act takes place at a ladies' club in London, the second at Mauritania (Central America), and the third in the country house of the Duchess of Knightsbridge and Kensington Gardens. Included in the cast are Mr. Arthur Hare, Mr. Ernest Trevor, Mr. Dean Williams, Miss Hetta Bartlett, Miss Mary Deverell, Miss Lillian Tweed, and Miss Violet Symonds.

"Romeo and Juliet" is to be produced next week at the Terriss Theatre. Mr. Ashley Page will be the Romeo and Miss Marion Denvil the Juliet. Prelude, extracts, and incidental music have been specially composed by Mr. Alexander Humphry.

Jacob Gordin's sensational drama, Alfonso the Noble, was again repeated on Monday night at the Pavilion Theatre by the capable Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company, when Mr. Charles Natansohn in the title-rôle and Mme. Natansohn as Rachel once more scored a great success. Special interest was again evinced at the beautiful scenic effects, while the dive and swim in real water by Mr. Natansohn provoked great excitement. During the week Love and Poverty, The Truth, and The Witch have been played.

Mr. Thomas Sidney has arranged with Mr. Cosmo Gordon-Lennox to tour The Marriage of Kitty through the summer with the same excellent cast that played it with him last spring at Hastings. The tour starts with a return visit to Hastings on April 29.

The success of Her Love Against the World at the Lyceum has been remarkable, 30,000 persons having visited ten shows. It is reported that at ten performances at the Lyceum no less than 10,000 programmes were sold at an average of 2d. apiece. £80 odd for programmes per week is equal to a goodly rental.

Mr. Lester Collingwood, who has in his time contributed so largely to the charities and amusements of the nation, has, our readers will be sorry to learn, been far from well, though we are glad to know that his illness, which has been of a somewhat painful and irksome, though not dangerous, nature, has taken a favourable turn. Mr. Collingwood has been working hard, both in connection with Bluebeard on tour and Cinderella at Birmingham, which ran for upwards of three months, and we trust he will emerge from his indisposition more robust and "brighter" than ever.

We record with regret the death of Miss Christine Lanscar at the early age of twenty-two years. Ten months of intense suffering with lupus of the larynx led to rapid consumption, which terminated fatally on the 4th inst. The deceased began her stage career with Mr. Beerbohm Tree at His Majesty's Theatre eight years ago, but during the last few years travelled with the "Four Magnets," a quartette owned by herself and her sister. Miss Lanscar, who was a very charming young artist, was highly respected and beloved by a large circle of relatives and friends. Her private name was Christine Garland Nicholls, and she was first cousin to the famous singer Miss Agnes Nicholls.

Messrs. Melford and Polini's company will play The Silver King at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, during next week, with a special matinée on Thursday. By desire of Mr. J. B. Mulholland Wilfred Denver will be played by Mr. Austin Melford.

The annual service of the Actors' Church Union will take place at four o'clock evensong at St. Paul's, Knightsbridge, on Sunday, April 28, when the Lord Bishop of Birmingham will deliver an address. All members of the profession interested in the movement are invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Collins presided on Saturday at a pleasant little function at Bexhill-on-Sea, where the youthful performers connected with the recent Drury-lane pantomime have been giving a few representations of their own production, The Forte Thieves, by invitation of Mr. James Glover, the musical-director at the National Theatre and Mayor of Bexhill. The youngsters have spent a most enjoyable time at the popular watering-place, and the festivities were concluded on Saturday by a "Baddeley Cake" night. The proprietors of a local confectioner's had two beautiful cakes made them, with "Good Luck" on one and "Good-bye" on the other, and these were duly brought on the stage at the end of the performance, when the Mayor introduced Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Collins to the children, and called upon Mrs. Collins to cut the new cake, an operation which was performed amidst the greatest enthusiasm.

At the Royal Academy of Music the Charles Mortimer prize (for composition) has been awarded to Percy Bowie, a native of London, Morton F. G. Stephenson and Katharine E. Eggar being commended. The examiners were Messrs. Hamilton Harty, Stanley Hawley, and John E. West. The Louisa Hopkins' Memorial prize (for pianists) has been awarded to Myra Hess, of London, Marjorie Wigley being highly commended, and Rose Keen commended. The examiners were Messrs. Frederic Moore, Fritz Read, and Gustav Ernest (chairman).

Mr. Charles Collette, who has rejoined Messrs. Cartwright, Lawrence, and Tapping's Dan'l Peggotty company, will appear every evening next week in his famous impersonation of Micawber, a part which for some years he has made essentially his own.

During his very successful week at the Grand Theatre, Leeds, Mr. Martin Harvey had some extraordinarily packed houses with The Only Way. On Thursday evening 1212 people paid for admission to the early door pit, and even after that hundreds were turned away.

Mr. Robert Forsyth, the managing-director of the Victoria Pier, Folkestone, will be assisted in the management by his brother, Mr. Lloyd Forsyth. A speciality this season will be the flying matinées, and we understand contracts have already been made for the appearance, among others, of Miss Phyllis Dare and Miss Louie Freear and their respective companies.

The Pioneers will add to their record of new productions by the staging, on the evening of Sunday, May 12, of a three-act light comedy, entitled Clothes and the Woman, by George Paston, and a one-act play, called A Man's Foes, by Miss Diana Cholmondeley, sister of the well-known novelist, Miss Mary Cholmondeley. "Temporary members" of the society will be elected for the occasion, and on payment of half a guinea will be entitled to two tickets for admission.

"The Stronger Sex" was on Tuesday transferred from the Apollo to the New Royalty Theatre, where the powerful piece has already found favour. Mr. Leonard Boyne has been succeeded in the part of the Hon. Warren Barrington by Mr. Herbert Waring, whose finished style and vigorous acting are admirably suited to the part. Miss Nina Boucicault is seen again in her clever rendering of the self-willed wife, Miss Lilian Braithwaite's freshness and charm are still agreeably apparent in the rôle of her friend, and Miss Marie Illington and Mr. Paul Arthur repeat their fine impersonations in an engrossing performance. The Peacemaker, as at the Apollo, precedes the chief piece.

Brixton Theatre, which is steadily returning to its former prosperous condition, will be occupied next week by M. Russell Rosse's company, which will appear in Haddon Chambers's Haymarket success, Captain Swift. The company will include Messrs. James Gelderd, Charles Boult, Norman Clark, George Mudie, jun., Albert Bernard, and Misses E. Nolan O'Connor, L. Kingston, Rachael de Travis, and Ida Phillips.

The Scala Theatre, the beauty of which aroused such wide-spread admiration on its opening about eighteen months ago, has undergone a change in order to relieve the classical severity of the interior. The ceiling has been treated architecturally in a combination of Pompeian colours, and the mouldings throughout are now in bronze, while the fronts of the circles and of the boxes have been draped with red cloth. Carpets of the same hue cover the marble staircases, bright crimson shades adorn the numerous electric globes, and a general air of warmth and agreeable colouring prevails. At the re-opening this evening with The Judgment of Pharaoh a reversion will be made to the former cheaper prices, comprising 7s. for a stall and 2s. for pit seats.

We regret to record the death of Mr. Wallis Mackay, the artist and humorous cartoonist, who was found dead in his room from the effects of coal-gas poisoning. Wallis Mackay at one time contributed both artistic and literary work to Punch and to the Illustrated Sporting and Dramatic News, and was the originator of the "Captious Critic" article. He married Miss Emily Nichols, sister of Mr. Harry Nichols, the comedian.

"The Lady Dandies" at Daly's has been strengthened by the introduction of new numbers, the most acceptable of which is a melodious ballad, entitled "Little bird of blue," sung by Miss Denise Orme to her own accompaniment on the harp. The item is a delicious morsel in an already well-diversified bill of fare. Another novelty is a duet, called "Etiquette," sung by Miss Gabrielle Ray and Mr. W. H. Berry, and supplemented by a captivating dance. Mr. Huntley Wright is quite at home again at Daly's, where his welcome is invariably of the most enthusiastic character; and Miss Evie Greene's fascinations as the chief of the Merveilleuses are still irresistible. The brightness of Mr. George Edwardes's production is further enhanced by Mr. Louis Bradfield, Mr. Fred Kaye, Mr. Robert Evett, and the rest of the talented company.

A link with the times when the art of terpsichore occupied a foremost position on the lyric stage has been broken by the death of Mme. Lucile Grahn, who passed away at Munich last week at an advanced age. Mme. Grahn, who was of Danish birth, made her début in London in a new ballet d'action, entitled Eoline, at Her Majesty's Theatre at the beginning of the season of 1845, and achieved a great success, which was followed by many more triumphs. After her marriage with Mr. Frederic Young, a tenor, in 1856, Mme. Grahn made no more public appearances, but devoted a good deal of time and care to the superintendence of ballets at Leipzig and Munich, in which latter town she lived. Her reputation there for benevolence was so great that a street has been named after her, and the municipal council has lately decreed that her grave shall be cared for in perpetuity, the cost to be borne by the town.

Since August last Messrs. Polini and Maitland have given away over one hundred tons of coal to the deserving poor in the towns visited by The Coal King company. At Gateshead this week, where large audiences have witnessed the performances of Mr. Maitland and company, the usual two tons have been divided amongst four of the most deserving people of the town.

At the Grimsby Town Council meeting, on the 12th inst., on the motion of the Mayor, a licence was granted to Mr. Jos. Hy. Curry for the performance of stage plays at the Tivoli Theatre, Grimsby, with the proviso that no intoxicants should be sold there.

The Liverpool Shakespeare Theatre Company has, we understand, been transferred to a syndicate which for some time has been busy taking over enterprises in Scotland and elsewhere. Messrs. R. C. Buchanan, of Glasgow, and Ernest Stevens, of London, have been added to the board of managing directors.

Mr. Russell Vaun, whose collaboration with Miss Maud Hildyard in The Great Awakening resulted in such gratifying success, has just finished another piece written in conjunction with the same talented lady, who will produce it in Australia.

Mr. Fred Bulmer has achieved a great success in a new domestic play, entitled The Girl Who Went Astray, which he has written in collaboration with Mr. William Hibbert. The play has a most original and weird ending, and in sending it on tour Mr. Bulmer hopes to surpass all his previous productions. Mr. Bulmer will have four companies on the road next autumn.

After an absence of some years, Mr. Jack Gladwin has resumed management of Aldershot Theatre this week. During the time Mr. Gladwin has been away from Aldershot he has been connected with Mr. Clarence Sounes' other theatres.

The attractions at the Theatre Royal, Stratford, next week will include an Indian episode, entitled The Hindu's Revenge, founded on fact, by Mr. Wal Pink. A feature of the sketch, which will be played by Miss Geraldine Montrose and company, will be a fight to the death between a woman and a snake, the latter having been specially procured for the thrilling contest by Cross, the famous animal importer, of Liverpool.

A comedietta, entitled Violets, from the pen of Miss Mary Staples, has been accepted by Mr. W. Fraser Brunner, and it will be played as a curtain-raiser in front of The Superior Miss Pellender.

"The Eternal City," the powerful play presented by his own company with which Mr. Bannister Howard inaugurated his enterprise in the evening at the Crystal Palace Theatre a little more than a year ago, will again be the attraction at the popular Sydenham house next week. Friday evening and the Saturday matinée are set apart for The Four Just Men, which has also appeared with much success at the Palace. The following week will welcome Jim the Penman, and on Friday, May 3, a special flying matinée will be given by Mme. Jane Hading and her Paris company in Frou-Frou.

Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow will produce a new drama, entitled For Her Sake, at the Metropole, Devonport, on Monday night. This play, a stirring Russian military drama, comes with a big reputation from America, where it has been toured for the last six years. The American author is Mr. Wm. Roberts, and Mr. Ben Landeck has partly rewritten the play for the English stage. The piece goes to the Royal, Wolverhampton, for the week of April 29, and has a very good tour already booked for the autumn, when it will visit the principal drama houses. A very fine plant of American pictorial printing is among the features of the production.

Miss Louisa Peach concludes to-night at the Opera House, Coventry, a third starring engagement with Mr. Morton Powell for her original part, Countess Natalie, in The Woman who Gambles.

"A Fool's Paradise" starts out on May 6, the tour comprising Brighton, Eastbourne, Oxford, and other important towns. The strong cast will include Miss Laura Hansen, Miss Margery Chard, Miss Hilda Stericker, Mr. Cecil Wynne, Mr. J. Henry Twyford, Mr. Arthur Claremont, and Mr. Wylie V. Thompson.

A large congregation assembled in St. Margaret's, Westminster, on Wednesday to witness the marriage of Miss Jean Caverhill Newman, the clever Canadian lyric soprano, and the youngest daughter of Mr. F. W. Newman, of Hampton Wick, England, and Montreal, Canada, with Mr. Alois J. J. Pfeiffer, the general-manager and chief engineer of the Calcutta Tramways, India. The Rev. Cecil Knox, B.A., officiated. Mr. F. D. Wanning, of Derby, Connecticut, U.S.A., acted as best man, and Mr. Newman gave his daughter away. After the ceremony, a reception, largely attended, was held at the Westminster Palace Hotel, and subsequently the happy couple left for their honeymoon, which will be spent in France, Italy, and Germany, to be followed by a trip to the United States and Canada.

Rudolf Herzog's successful play, Die Condottieri, which was performed by the German Theatre in London last week, after a phenomenal run at the Neues Theater, Berlin, is going on tour through all the principal towns in Germany. It is also to be played in Italy next season, and it is hoped that an English adaptation may soon be seen on the London stage.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Mr. Tree and the Critics.

MR. BERSOHN TREE has told the Berlin correspondent of the Morning Leader that he is charmed and delighted with the reception that has been accorded him in Berlin. "You saw yourself," said Mr. Tree, "that we have had full houses; that the public applauded us most heartily, and even gathered behind the footlights to cheer us. We have been treated everywhere most kindly, and have thoroughly enjoyed our visit to Berlin. The criticisms which have appeared in the Berlin Press have passed over me without making the slightest impression. The Germans have evolved an ideal according to which they consider Shakespeare should be played. This ideal is in all cases exactly alike. I consider that Shakespeare left room for the development of the individuality of the actor who reproduces his parts, and thus we cannot be expected to agree."

Strike of Stage-hands.

ALL the technical difficulties leading up to the strike of German stage-hands at Mr. Tree's performance in Berlin on Saturday had, says the Daily Mail, their inception in the failure of the Royal Theatre management to hand over the house to Mr. Tree's carpenters, mechanics, and electricians until April 9—three days before the opening—instead of April 1, as had been agreed. Mr. Tree found it necessary to make a formal protest to the Kaiser's theatrical director, Dr. von Huesslen. The protest had little effect, and the rebellious attitude of the stage-hands was continued. Sunday night's performance of Antony and Cleopatra would have come to a sudden termination had not the members of Mr. Tree's company—both men and women—with praiseworthy pluck, undertaken the most cumbersome jobs of scene-shifting left undone by the fatigued and thirsty German workmen.

Hoffmann at the Adelphi.

ONE of our contemporaries remarks that the librettists of Les Contes d'Hoffmann made Hoffmann as a wild and dissipated personage. But this is exactly what he was. Ernst Theodor Wilhelm was an extraordinary mixture of keen intellect and wild imagination. He was trained for the law, but the French invasion of Warsaw stopped his career, and he became in turn musical director, composer, musical critic, scene-painter, and story-writer. His opera Undine was a success, and it is from his "Serapionbrüder," translated into English under the title of "Weird Tales," that the three stories used in the libretto are taken.

Told by Mr. G. H. Snazelle.

THE most persistent of practical jokers, says Mr. G. H. Snazelle, occasionally gets the tables turned on him, and just once the late J. L. Toole came off second best to "Teddy" Silverthorne. One evening, at Scarborough, the popular comedian was playing his favourite part in Uncle Dick's Darling. It will be remembered that Uncle Dick is a travelling hawker—a "cheap jack." At the end of the first act he is found selling his goods in a country village to a crowd of yokels. The sale concluded, they disperse, and he falls asleep on the steps of his cart. Silverthorne, an old friend of the actor, arrived in the town about seven o'clock, and, unknown to Toole, borrowed a countryman's long smock frock, made up his face, and went on with the crowd in the scene described. When the auction was over, and Toole should have been left alone on the stage, there was one obstinate countryman who seemed reluctant to leave, and there followed a scene which had not been rehearsed. Uncle Dick (quietly): Get off. Countryman: I beant agoing until you give me that there saucepan. Uncle Dick: Get off, you idiot, you are spoiling the scene. Countryman: You give me that there saucepan, then. Uncle Dick (turning to audience and trying to make the best of it): He says he wants the saucepan. I suppose I shall have to give it him. (He gives it, and whispers again in the countryman's ear that he should get off sharp.) Countryman: I ain't agoing until you give me that there concertina. Uncle Dick (sotto voce): You blithering idiot, get off the stage. Countryman: Not till I get that there concertina. Uncle Dick (turning to audience in despair): He says he wants the concertina now; I suppose I must give it him. (Climbs up on the roof of van and hands it down, with another order to get off and a promise of half a crown.) Countryman: Not till I get that there warming-pan. Uncle Dick (thinks he has a madman to deal with, looks into the prompt entrance for the stage-manager, Mr. Westland, who, of course, has been squared, and turns again to the audience): Says he wants the warming-pan. (Climbs up to the roof again and hands down the warming-pan, promising the countryman a sovereign if he will clear out).

THE dialogue went on as follows: Countryman: Give me them there two bundles of clothes pegs, and that there watch and half a dozen spoons, and the sovereign, and I'll think it over. Uncle Dick (helpless and livid with rage): Well, there, take them, and now be off. Countryman: Thank 'ee, sir; so long, guv'nor. See you later. On the fall of the act-drop, Toole rushes off to find the stage-manager, with, ready for him, a verbal display of fireworks not to be surpassed even at Brock's benefit. Toole: Where have you been? Westland (innocently): I knew I shouldn't be wanted for ten minutes, and went out to get a glass of beer. Toole: There has been a bally madman ramping round the stage; he has spoilt my scene. Fetch him here.

THE theatre was searched, but the "madman" was not to be found. That night at the hotel, while Toole sat at supper with some of the members of his company, in walked Silverthorne in full evening dress. This followed:—Silverthorne: Hallo, Johnnie, how are you? Toole: Pretty well; but I have been so upset to-night; never had such a doing in all my life. Silverthorne: I was in front, Johnnie; I thought the play did not go very well, and I don't think that new scene you have got in with the comic countryman is at all a success. Toole: Success! If I had had a knife on the blessed cart I should have killed him. They couldn't find him anywhere about the theatre, and he has got off with a saucepan, a concertina, a warming-pan, clothes pegs, a watch, six spoons, and a sovereign. After supper Toole went up into Silverthorne's bedroom for a chat, and there discovered all the stolen "props," with the exception of the sovereign. "Oh! it was you, was it?" said Toole.

Miss May's Many Friends.

MISS EDNA MAY, who will take her farewell of the stage on Saturday week, has been giving a Daily Chronicle man particulars of the worship she has received from the public. She says: "I'm simply overwhelmed with letters, most of them strangely pathetic farewell messages from people I don't know. Mail after mail, they come from all parts of the world. Some of them ask for autographs. I am replying to every request personally. Then there are people who want souvenirs—slippers, old shoes, old frocks, any old thing, they say, for a keepsake. If you go outside the theatre at 11.30 you will find two ladies, cousins, who have waited for me every night, rain, hail, or snow. When I'm abroad or in America they write to me by every post telling me to take care of myself. And all I have ever said to them is just 'Good evening,' and a few kind words as I pass out of the door. During the last year or so I have given orders that they are to wait in the corridor on wet nights."

MR. TREE IN BERLIN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

All thinking persons, of course, were confident that Mr. Tree's season here would prove an unqualified success, and the anticipations of the most sanguine have been more than realised. The triumph is all the greater on account of the technical difficulties and other adverse conditions that had to be met and conquered at the outset. In consequence of the Monte Carlo opera holding the boards of the Opera House all last week, the Royal Opera Company proper gave their performances at Krolls (New Royal Opera), so that the latter stage was unavailable until practically the eleventh hour for the English company. Thus, rehearsals which Mr. Dana wished to hold with the German supernumeraries, and which were naturally most imperative, could not take place, neither could some even more urgent trials of the elaborate stage fittings be made. Mr. Tree's general-manager has not had a bed of roses; he has probably seldom been so rushed and worried in his life before; but he may now rest upon his well-earned laurels, for the results were brilliant.

When the curtain finally descended upon the opening performance of Richard the Second, it was apparent to all that Mr. Tree and his company of picked artists had come, been seen, and had conquered. The Kaiser—who was present with the Kaiserin, Princess Victoria Luise, and Princess Feodora—led the applause, and the great English actor was called before the curtain over a dozen times. German audiences do not, as a rule, applaud by open stage, but wait until the end of the acts; in this case, however, a marked exception was made, enthusiastic applause breaking forth from every part of the crowded house after many of the scenes. That Mr. Tree and his daughter were invited to the Imperial box to receive the compliments of their Majesties is now a matter of history. Mr. Tree's reading of the part of King Richard differs a good deal from that of most leading German actors. It is less passionate, but more intense, and, by reason of its faithfulness to life, more impressive. The critics are unanimous in praise of its originality and power. Miss Viola Tree as the Queen, Mr. Basil Gill (Mowbray), Mr. Neville (Gaunt), and others of the faultless cast came in for their share of the applause, while expressions of admiration at the magnificence of the costumes and mounting were heard on every side.

Expectation was rife as to Mr. Tree's conception of Malvolio on the following evening, and the theatre was filled with a representative audience. There is no doubt but that Twelfth Night has proved the most popular of all the performances up to the time of writing. Miss Tree took the hearts of her audience by storm, and held them spellbound throughout by her delightful impersonation of Viola—the finest rendering of the rôle, one of our best critics declares, that he has ever witnessed. Mr. Tree's Malvolio is too well known to be described, and is above all praise. Seldom have I seen a German audience so enthusiastic; again and again this marvellously versatile actor was called before the curtain and cheered to the echo. The critics are full of unstinted praise for the even well-roundedness of the ensemble; it would be difficult to say which of the admirable cast pleased the most. Miss Alice Crawford's charming study of Olivia, and Miss Cicely Richards's bright and sparkling rendering of Maria, captivated the audience; Mr. Basil Gill's Orsino was a very fine piece of acting; and the Sir Toby Belch of Mr. Fred Lewis, and the Sir Andrew of Mr. Quartermaine, created storms of delighted laughter. Perhaps no German audience has ever seen such a good impersonation of Feste, the clown, as that presented by Mr. Courtice Pounds; the clever actor was in capital voice, and several of his ditties were encored. Other artists who scored were Mr. Hugh Buckler as Sebastian, Mr. Fisher White (Antonio), Mr. Atkins, and Mr. Beresford. Several points in the play came as novelties to German audiences, among them the entrance of Malvolio in night attire, candle in hand, to see that everything is in order in his mistress's kitchen. The beauty of the Garden Scene provoked spontaneous applause as the curtain rose upon it.

The performance of Trilby was postponed from Sunday until Tuesday afternoon, owing to some technical difficulties. Antony and Cleopatra was given on Sunday evening before a crowded and fashionable audience. Their Imperial Majesties were again present, with several of their sons and a numerous suite, and applauded as heartily as anyone. Mr. Tree, Miss Collier, and Miss Viola Tree were once more bidden to the Imperial box, where, with very flattering words, the Kaiser presented them with handsome and costly souvenirs—in the case of the ladies a gold and diamond bracelet, with His Majesty's initials, Mr. Tree's gift being diamond solitaires. The play was magnificently acted, the mise-en-scène being the finest thing of the kind witnessed here for a long time.

The Merry Wives of Windsor scored a tremendous success on Monday, and proved—if such proof were needed—that the English are absolutely unrivalled in comedy. Mr. Tree's Falstaff came as a revelation to all, critics and public alike declaring his study of the character to be the most entirely Shakespearean, and therefore the best extant. A sweeter Anne Page could not be found than Miss Viola Tree, nor a more tender yet manly Fenton than Mr. Basil Gill. The merry trio, Mistresses Page, Quickly, and Ford, found faultless exponents in Misses Richards, Alexander, and Collier respectively. Mr. Quartermaine's Master Slender convulsed the audience with laughter; Ford and Page were admirably represented by Messrs. Harding and Buckler; Mr. Playfair's Dr. Caius was very clever, and Bardolph, Nym, Pistol, and Simple were capitally rendered by Messrs. Goddard, Beresford, L'Estrange, and Buffum, while a word of unstinted praise must be accorded to Mr. Pounds' Sir Hugh Evans. The fine mounting reached its highest pitch in the last scene, Windsor Forest, which was one of indescribable beauty, and presented much that was new to German audiences. It would be difficult to say how many times Mr. Tree and the principal artists were called before the curtain at the close.

The performance of Trilby was a great and well-deserved triumph. Mr. Tree excelled himself in the rôle of Svengali, one of the most masterly impersonations of his repertory. The critics are full of unbounded praise, and the audience applauded till they were tired. Miss Viola Tree, in the name-part, was quite perfect, as your readers all know; her charming singing, too, was much admired. It was difficult to recognise Mr. Charles Quartermaine as Billie after his rendering of Master Slender a few hours before, but one rôle was as admirably played as the other. Mme. Vinard was delightfully acted by Miss Cicely Richards, who reminds many English people here of Miss Ellen Terry in her early days; Taffy and the Laird and Gecko found excellent exponents in Messrs. L'Estrange, White, and Beresford, while Mr. Lewis made a hit as the Rev. Thomas Bagot. The wild merriment of the students and their friends in the studio on Christmas Eve was perfectly irresistible; it was absolutely true to life, and the dancing, under the leadership of Miss Hilda Moore, fascinated all beholders. In the Imperial box sat the Crown Prince and Princess with a number of friends. Their Imperial Highnesses evidently enjoyed the play immensely, and told Mr. and Miss Tree so afterwards in warm and appreciative words.

Notwithstanding the enormous demands made upon them, Mr. and Miss Tree have found time to entertain and be entertained. After the performance of Antony and Cleopatra over 200 guests were invited by Mr. Tree to a reception at the Bristol. The famous actor and his daughter have been entertained at the British Embassy, and on Tuesday were guests of the Lyceum Club.

"TALES OF HOFFMANN."

Offenbach's Opera, in a Prologue, Epilogue, and Three Acts, played for the first time in England at the Adelphi Theatre on Wednesday, April 17.

Those who only know Offenbach by his scores for The Grand Duchess and other comic operas of his that have been produced in London, may be a little puzzled by his music to Les Contes d'Hoffmann, which was performed for the first time in London at the Adelphi Theatre on Wednesday evening by the German company which has been brought over from the Komische Oper, Berlin, by Herr Hans Gregor. After making a tremendous success of the popular sort with his lighter work, Offenbach, in advanced age, yearned for more artistic triumphs; and in the Chanson de Fortunio he tuned his talent to a more elevated key. But it was to the Contes d'Hoffmann that he looked as the work which was to establish his fame as a "great" musician, and to give him immortality as a composer. About 1850 MM. Jules Barbier and Michel Carré brought out, at the Odéon Theatre, a drama taken from the stories of the celebrated German tale-teller. General criticism of the work was that it was better fitted for the libretto of an opera; and it was proposed to transfer it to the Porte St. Martin, with a musical accompaniment by M. Hector Salomon. This idea was, however, abandoned, and, when Offenbach took over the management of the Gaieté, he offered to compose a grand opera on the piece. M. Carré being dead, M. Barbier willingly turned the play into a libretto, and this was the origin of the present work.

Offenbach was generally most fortunate in his librettos, which were well-constructed comedies, as cleverly invented and as carefully worked out as if they had been intended to stand by themselves without the help of music. This cannot be said of the "book" of Les Contes d'Hoffmann, which is disjointed, undramatic, and a little bewildering. MM. Carré and Barbier took three of Hoffmann's most interesting fables, and accounted for their connection by a prologue and an epilogue. Hoffmann is introduced to us at a tavern in Nuremberg. He is in love with a singer called Stella, and has for a rival a certain Counsel Lindorf, who determines to lead Hoffmann on to drink and then let him be seen in this condition by Stella, so as to disgust her with her lover. The latter is a dreamy, imaginative, and intemperate genius, who believes that an evil spirit has always cast a bad spell over his loves, the stories of which he offers to tell to his student-friends in the tavern.

This gives an excuse for three little plays of the nature of the dreams which are sometimes shown on the stage, each play making an act. The first will remind English playgoers of La Poupée. An old scientist called Spalanzani has made a mechanical figure which imitates the movements and voice of a woman. When Hoffmann is at Spalanzani's house a dealer named Coppelius sells the former a magic pair of spectacles which make him see in the doll "Stella" a beautiful woman. He makes love to her; but, happening to touch a spring in the figure, it runs off, leaving Hoffmann in despair, which is increased when Coppelius, who has been cheated by Spalanzani, revenges himself my smashing up the automaton.

The second of Hoffmann's "loves" is shown in the next division of the libretto. Giuletta is a fashionable courtesan; and we see her lying on a couch in a beautiful moonlit palace, surrounded with every sensual and amorous attraction. A magician gives Giuletta a magic mirror. If Hoffmann looks into it his heart will belong to the courtesan, and his life and soul to the sorcerer. Giuletta gets Hoffmann to look in the enchanted glass; and, after yielding entirely to the wanton's charm, he kills his rival, Schlemil, in an impromptu duel, and has to fly to escape justice.

The last of his loves is Antonia, a singer whose delicate health prevents her from using her fine voice, for the exertion is likely to be fatal. A certain Dr. Mirakel—obviously an evil genius—tries to tempt Antonia to sing, but she resists until her dead mother's voice is heard entreating her. Then she bursts into song, and dies. The opera ends with a brief epilogue, in which Stella comes to seek Hoffmann, and finds him drunk, the epilogue ending with a Bacchanalian chorus.

Offenbach finished Les Contes d'Hoffmann in 1880, but died a few weeks later; and the opera was not brought out in Paris until the February of 1881, the leading parts being performed by Mlle. Isaac and M. Talazac. The fire at the Ring Theatre, Vienna, prevented the work being done there in the same year, as had been intended; but, in the November of 1905, Les Contes d'Hoffmann was put on at the Komische Oper, Berlin, and had a run of 300 nights.

The score is full of colour and variety, and at times the composer rises to a real height of inspiration. In the original performance the present second act was suppressed, and the beautiful barcarolle in it was transferred to the opening of what is now the third act. There is striking vigour in some passages in the last "story," suggesting great possibilities in Offenbach had he not preferred to devote his talent to a lighter form of art. As an instance of his skill as a writer of florid music may be quoted the aria for Olympia in the first act, which was rendered with remarkable agility and accomplishment by Fräulein Hedwig Franzillo-Kauffmann, who won an enthusiastic encore from a very demonstrative audience. She also had hearty applause for her singing of her share in the duet in the second act, and for her fine treatment of Antonia's music in the third. Herr Jean Nadolovitch acted and vocalised with energy as Hoffmann; and Fräulein Ery S. Urban gave a bright and pleasing performance of the part of Niklaus, Herr Willy Fabian being active and amusing as the fat innkeeper. A neat impersonation of Spalanzani was supplied by Herr Peter Kreuder; and Herr Willi Brose rendered Schlemil's music in the second act admirably. Herr Rudolf Hofbauer was characteristic and dramatic as Coppelius, Dapertutto, and Mirakel, and made a striking success by his singing; and some quaint and eccentric comedy was supplied by Herr Stephen Borodin-Delwary as Cochenille. The fine orchestra was capitally conducted by Herr Fritz Cassirer, and under Herr Maximilian Morris's stage-management the opera went with remarkable smoothness, and the rather elaborate scenery was, all things considered, shifted with small delay. The costumes, from the designs of Professor Karl Walser, were picturesque, and the chorus was thoroughly well trained and drilled. The Tales of Hoffmann had a most friendly and encouraging reception, part of which was doubtless due to a feeling of "reciprocity" in connection with the present exchange of art between this country and the "Fatherland."

Not many months ago a pathetic sight could be seen by passers along Aldwych. In the course of the demolitions, the whole of the back of the old Olympic Theatre had been cut away, so that the auditorium, including the private boxes, could be seen from the street. To many old playgoers the spectacle must have revived pleasant memories connected with the house; and amongst the most agreeable would be those of Miss Ada Cavendish's season in 1872, with its production of the New Magdalen, and of Mr. Henry Neville's six years' reign, with its presentations of The Two Orphans and Lady Clancarty.

Mr. Lewis Waller was happily inspired with the idea of reviving the latter piece under the title of Clancarty. Tom Taylor's play was originally produced at the Olympic in the March of 1874. The leading incident and the principal personages, as the author reminded his audience in his explanatory note, are historical. The story of the assassination plot of 1696 has been told in detail by Lord Macaulay, from materials furnished mainly by the State Trials of that date. The incident of the marriage of Lord and Lady Clancarty while still boy and girl—a practice not uncommon at the time when it occurred—their long and entire separation, their encounter as strangers, the husband's subsequent discovery of himself to his wife, the rapid growth of their love, Clancarty's arrest in his wife's arms by Lord Charles Spencer, her brother, his condemnation to death under the High Treason Act, and the pardon obtained from the King by the loving courage of Lady Clancarty, are all historical; but Tom Taylor took the liberty of assigning to Lord Clancarty the part in revealing the assassination plot of 1696, which was really played by Thomas Prendergast, a Jacobite gentleman of Lancashire.

The story, which must be forgotten by many of our readers, begins with a Jacobite meeting at Romney Marsh. Lord Clancarty, who is an ardent but honourable conspirator, recoils with horror from a proposal to burn Kensington Palace, and shoot William of Orange in the scuffle. Lady Clancarty and her cousin, Lady Betty Noel, take shelter at the inn on the marsh, are assaulted by "Scum" Goodman, a vile associate of the Jacobites, and are rescued from his clutches by Lord Clancarty, who has no idea that the lady he has protected is the little girl to whom he was formally married when she was ten and he fifteen. Clancarty gives his name to her as Heseltine, so she is equally ignorant of his identity. The chivalrous Irishman goes to Kensington Palace, informs the King of the plot against his life, and learns that the lady he saved at Romney Marsh was his girl-wife. Clancarty, however, refuses to give the names of the conspirators. Close on his heels comes "Scum" Goodman, in haste to betray his associates, and with a full list of their names. William of Orange, impressed by the gallant bearing of Clancarty, conducts him in person through the Palace gardens, and warns him that after twenty-four hours he may be liable to arrest. But Clancarty determines to see his wife once again; and, though shot at in transit, manages to climb in at the window of her bedchamber. Here he reveals himself to her; but, in the midst of their raptures, her brother comes to arrest him. With the aid of Lady Betty, Lady Clancarty gets audience of the King, and pleads with him so earnestly that she obtains her husband's pardon. The piece was played at the Olympic by a strong company, Mr. Henry Neville as Clancarty, Miss Ada Cavendish as Lady Clancarty, and Mr. Anson as "Scum" Goodman, being particularly noteworthy; Mr. Charles Neville as William the Third, and Mr. Vernon as the stern brother, also giving memorable impersonations.

The Lyric revival is excellent. For William III., Mr. Waller has secured that admirable actor, Mr. W. Mackintosh. Mr. Mackintosh's embodiment has lost none of its original characteristics; and the courteous gravity of the King's manner, his Dutch accent, his trick of clapping his hand to his side at intervals, and his kingly dignity, are as effective as they are well-conceived. Mr. Lewis Waller assumes with success the genial and persuasive style of Lord Clancarty, and acts throughout with his accustomed energy and acuteness, making every point in the dialogue tell. Clancarty's gallant bearing, the impetuosity with which he makes love, and his easy assurance and quiet impudence, are all most ably indicated by Mr. Waller, who scores a complete success in the rôle. Mr. Herbert Jarman gives an admirable interpretation of the character of "Scum" Goodman, not overdoing the rascality of the bully's appearance, but indicating his base effrontery in every speech and gesture. Miss Adrienne Augarde makes a very "kittenish" and impulsive Betty Noel, and wins the hearts of the audience entirely by her dainty impersonation of the frolicsome young lady. Solid importance, strength, and seriousness are given to the part of the Earl of Portland by Mr. A. E. George; and Mr. Owen Roughwood contributes a neat and alert depiction of Lord Woodstock. Mr. Franklin Dyall is naturally well gifted for the embodiment of Lord Spencer, and hits off the sluggish sternness of the character exactly, besides being sufficiently emphatic in the stronger passages. The party of Jacobites have excellent representatives, Mr. H. J. Carvill as Sir George Barclay and Mr. S. B. Brereton as Sir John Friend being especially commendable. Mr. A. Caton Woodville does good work as the Officer of the Guard; Mr. P. Digan and Mr. J. H. Irvine being fully efficient as Tremlett and James Hunt; Mr. Shiel Barry supplying a bright and acute impersonation of Gille; and Mr. F. W. Trott being praiseworthy as Clink. Miss Eleanor May is very happily cast as the Princess Anne. Miss Leonora Braham gives a ripe, sound, and full-bodied representation of Mother Hunt; and Miss Dora Barton is pleasing in the small part of Susannah. That Miss Evelyn Millard would play Lady Clancarty finely was a foregone conclusion; but even her warmest admirers will not be disappointed with a reading so full of technical excellence, grace, dignity, tenderness, and emotional expression as that given by this accomplished actress. The production, in which Mr. Waller has been assisted by Mr. Herbert Jarman, is finished and complete, the costumes from the designs of Mr. Tom Heslewood, and the scenery by Messrs. E. G. Banks and Walter Hann, being thoroughly good. The merits of the revival were warmly appreciated.

"Despite a certain taint, which is coarseness rather than immorality, Tom Jones has gained its immortality as a work of art because it is fundamentally pure in its pictures of human nature." Thus the late Mr. Robert Buchanan in a foreword to his successful play Sophia, founded upon incidents in Henry Fielding's classic, and produced at the Vaudeville on April 12, 1886. Strange as it may seem to the Britisher, the first composer to give a musical setting to the novel was Poinsinet, whose opera on the subject was produced in Paris a few years before Joseph Reed's weak adaptation of it was seen at Covent Garden in 1769. Tom Jones was also musically treated by Thomas Dibdin in the form of a burletta brought out at the Surrey. But all this is ancient history, and need not trouble lovers of comedy opera, who will crowd the Apollo for months to come to enjoy the musical delights of Mr. Edward German's setting of the famous work, and to applaud the legitimate successor of Dorothy. Purists will, of course, carp at the faint reflex of the spirit of Fielding to be found in the libretto and at the omission of certain characters; but there is sufficient of the story, and each of the first two acts reaches forward to a fine dramatic climax, both of which have been most cleverly treated by the composer, the first being perhaps the most effective. There is sufficient, too, of the story of Tom Jones's love and adventures and of the faith of his sweet Sophia to sustain the interest, and of the heartiness and jollity of the "full-bodied" period of English life mirrored in Fielding's pages there is also enough. For the rest, the opera, in its amplitude of detail, picturesque dressing, and brilliant setting, appeals most successfully to eyes and ears that have been glutted with the luxury of musical comedy, and the enthusiasm of Wednesday, which commenced early in the first act—the most artistic and satisfying of the three, culminated in ringing cheers at the conclusion.

Naturally, the acting and singing reach a much higher plane of excellence than we are accustomed to in mere musical comedy. Towards the undoubted first-night triumph Miss Ruth Vincent contributed greatly, and her impersonation of Sophia Western not only sustains her well-earned reputation as the "Queen of light opera," but it adds appreciably to her status as an actress. Looking sweet and lovable in a pretty grey costume of the period, she grasps the more dramatic situations like the true artist she is. There is real tenderness in the scene where Sophia discovers that Tom Jones has been trifling with another, and true pathos rings through her delivery of the pretty lilt "Hey derry down derry." Other most successful numbers are a florid valse song in the last act and "By night and day." As an actress, Miss Carrie Moore's piquancy and charm were warmly recognised by Londoners in musical comedy. She now takes a higher flight as the maid Honour, and scores both by her fascination as a comedienne and her art as a vocalist. She has a special number in the last act, "Green ribbon," which is most artistically rendered, and she is of immense help in several of the concerted numbers. Tom Jones is much more delicate in the opera than he is in the book; but still Mr. Hayden Coffin makes him a lad of spirit, and sings with all the vocal expression to which he has accustomed us. He infuses much tenderness into the number "A little foundling boy," and shares with Miss Vincent the success of a pretty duet, "For aye, my love." Mr. Dan Rolyat, who plays Benjamin Partridge, the village barber and wit of the countryside, is eccentric and mirth-provoking in a way that is peculiarly his own. He is funny with his legs, and droll with his tongue. He is audacious, too, in his gags, for, if we are not mistaken, he has added not a little to the lines originally given him; but is he not fortified by precedent? At any rate, he is original and refreshing, and his best justification lies in the hearty peals of laughter heard all over the house whenever he is on the stage. Mr. Jay Laurier, who has recently finished a successful engagement at the Tivoli, gives a wonderful character-sketch of a Somersetshire chaw-bacon as Gregory, and sings most successfully a folk-song of the West Country, entitled "Uncle Jan Tappit," also assisting in the success of the famous "Barley Mow." Mr. Ambrose Manning as Squire Western is as boisterous and as splenetic as any gentleman of the three-bottle period need be, and his sketch of the character is firmly drawn and consistent. Mr. Arthur Soames makes the very most of his limited opportunities as Blifil; and Mr. John Morley, with an excellent voice, has little else to do in the first act but assist in the success of the pretty madrigal, "Here's a paradox for lovers." Miss Marie Daltra, an excellent actress, has a fine appreciation of old comedy, as she shows by her rendering of Miss Western; and Lady Bellaston finds in Miss Dora Rignold a really admirable representative of a part that is none too easy to play. Miss Florence Parfrey, a lively hostess, sings well; and two parts that stand out from the many are Grizzle and Dobbin, capitally rendered by Mr. Walter L. Rignold and Mr. Reginald Crompton. The chorus particularly distinguishes itself in the haunting barcarolle, "Beguile, Beguile." The scenery is from the artistic brushes of Stafford Hall and Conrad Tritschler. The former has distinguished himself by a pretty picture of the lawn and gardens of Squire Western in the first act, and the latter's interior of the inn at Upton and Ranelagh Gardens realise the old-world atmosphere of the opera. The composer, Mr. Edward German, conducted a fine orchestra, and was received with much heartiness. The principals were enthusiastically called and recalled after each act, and the success of the opera, which was originally produced at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester on March 30, was never in doubt.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

SMETHWICK.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Mr. Charles Harrington's American combination is paying a return visit here with Uncle Tom's Cabin, opening on Monday to a large audience. The Grand Plantation Festival is finely worked up by the large chorus of negroes and others, and is a prominent and attractive feature. Mr. J. Carr is still Uncle Tom, and no more able exponent could be desired; he is the old negro to the life. Mr. J. H. Renney is good as Phineas Fletcher; Mr. Leslie Beaufort is well placed as George Harris; and Mr. Charles Harrington plays St. Clair with commendable skill. Mr. J. H. Rogers as the inhuman Legree makes a hit; Mr. Walter Langford makes an amusing Marks; Little Eva is sweetly and cleverly played by Miss Holly Haselwood, a well-known local girl; Miss Sylvia Stella as Topsy gives a clever and realistic interpretation; Miss Hero Hathaway as Eliza submits a pleasing performance.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—Pier Pavilion.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless. — A first-class programme is presented this week by Mr. Harry Reynolds's Minstrels. Part I. is devoted to minstrelsy, and the manner in which every item is received fully maintains this popular troupe's reputation. Part II. commences with a capital series of animated pictures shown on the Biograph; then follows a capital vaudeville entertainment, a musical treat being provided by Trippello, whose selections on various instruments create great enthusiasm; Mr. Neville Delmar mimics in good style, and his whistling is well received; Mr. Percy Banning as a burlesque artist gets a worthy reception; as also does Little Thomas, in his new eccentricity. Mr. Arthur Gallimore is a clever acrobatic comedian and trick dancer. The concluding item is a laughable sketch, entitled Me Too, Charlie.

SOUTHPORT.—Opera House, Winter Gardens.—Proprietors, the Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. Robert Crossman's company is this week presenting the successful musical comedy Sergeant Brue. Mr. T. A. Shale submits a capital comedy-sketch in the part of Crookie Scrubbs; the title-rôle is characteristically acted by Mr. E. Russell, who is responsible for much of the merriment of the piece; Miss Mabel Keith portrays Aurora Brue with charming vivacity; Michael Brue has an effective and clever exponent in Mr. Tom Shelford; Miss Edith Housley essayed the rôle of Lady Bickenhall with marked success; Mr. Henry Chichester acquits himself with credit as Mr. Crank; and Miss Constance Berkeley does some commendable work as Daisy, the servant.

Albert Hall, Winter Gardens.—Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—The principal turn here is this week supplied by the Cee-Mee Family of gymnasts, who give a wonderful performance; the programme includes Dan Conroy, comedian; J. B. Preston, typical Scotch comedian; Louie Lauri, operatic and ballad vocalist; Almon, the upside-down marvel; Ronald and Evelyn Hope, in an original costume scena, entitled "An Emperor's Divorce"; H. Pawson, Australian illusionist and shadowgraphist; Cliffe Carter, eccentric comedian; and the Bioscope with the latest films.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson. — Mr. George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company, in Her Luck in London, is here. Miss Mary Neil is a pronounced success as Nellie Harborne; and Mr. Chas. A. Leicester makes the part of the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor stand out. The Richard Lenowen of Mr. G. Heath is an excellent piece of acting; Mr. Tyrone Power is suitably cast as Stephen Harborne; and Mr. D. Tremayne gives a good rendering of the Rev. Lionel Strong. The Mme. Gabrielle of Miss Marie Clavering is a powerful performance; and Miss Frances Bruce appears to advantage as Lilian Harborne. Miss F. Groves as Maud Gladys Shovepenny, and Mr. J. Telly Dillsen as Jerry Gotobed, prove diverting.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Proprietors, The South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Mike S. Whallen meets with an enthusiastic reception; the dancing submitted by Gwennie Hasto arouses admiration; Nellie Coleman as a lady comedienne is in her element; and Dome, the comedy clay-modeller, is still entertaining. Nipper Lupino Lane, boy comedian, displays versatility; and other welcome turns include the Lupino Brothers, in their comedy speciality act; Fanny Erris, comedienne; Robbie Roy, comedian; and the Bioscope.

Tivoli.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. K. Hall and Joseph Sweeney; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—Johnny Hollond and company, in a comedy sketch, My Friend Boots, created an excellent impression on Monday evening; the Three Sisters Urma, in a thrilling and graceful trapeze performance, gained hearty applause; Bert Weston, comedian, made a decided hit; and other acceptable turns are Madge Allen, vocalist and dancer; Bert Crosby, comedian; Gracie Bard, coon artist and dancer; and the Tivoli Bioscope.

ST. HELENS.—Theatre Royal and Opera House, Ltd. — General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—The management of this theatre have provided the music-lovers of St. Helens this week with a rare musical treat. It is the first visit of the famous Carl Rosa Opera Company. They opened on Monday night with an enjoyable representation of Carmen. Mr. Walter Wheatley was the José, and scored a huge success; the Carmen of Miss Doris Woodall was a splendid performance, her acting being admirable, and she sang with charming spirit; Mr. Charles Victor as Escamillo sang and acted in excellent style; and the Micaela of Miss Elizabeth Burgess gave the utmost satisfaction. Useful assistance was given by Miss Ina Hill (Frasquita), Miss Dorothy Mayfield (Mercedes), Mr. Alec Richard (Zuniga), Mr. Arthur Thomas (Morales), Mr. A. Felton (Lilias Pastia), Mr. Fred Clendon (Doncairo), and Mr. Arthur Hyde (Remendado). Lohengrin was produced on Tuesday night, and was specially remarkable for a fine interpretation of the title-rôle by Mr. Julius Walther, who was in excellent voice, and was rapturously applauded. Elsa was finely played by Mme. Lucille Hill, her acting and vocalisation being alike capital; Mme. Marie Alexander as Ortrud met with the fullest appreciation; Mr. Charles Victor (Telramund), Mr. Arthur Winckworth (Henry), and Mr. Fredk. Clendon (the Herald) were the recipients of much favour. The choral work and orchestral execution won flattering encomiums. The mounting and dresses are of the richest description, and the whole production is of the very highest class. Mr. Walter Van Noorden and Mr. Eugene Goossens are the musical conductors; and Mr. Ernest C. Gittins, who is well known locally, is the courteous acting-manager for the company. The week's répertoire also included Faust, Il Trovatore, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Tannhäuser, and The Bohemian Girl.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Wilmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Vic Carnell.—Mr. Carnell, the energetic and popular manager, took his annual benefit on Thursday last week, which proved a record one, the two houses being packed from floor to ceiling. Miss Marie Loftus was the bright particular star, and there was a long list of turns. This week's bill includes Yvette De Laabe, in her reproductions of sculpture, which win enthusiastic applause; Cullen, Carthy, and Cluney create plenty of laughter; Craig, Rose, and Craig, horizontal bar performers, are heartily appreciated; Miss Emmie Ames, a pleasing comedienne, is nightly recalled; Mr. Harry Vardon, ventriloquist, does well; Mr. Harry Bancroft, vocalist, makes a hit; Ray and Miles, comedy jugglers, are amusing; and Fred S. Peake and company, in the dramatic sketch, The Hypocrite, are well received.

STOCKPORT.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun. —Large audiences have witnessed The Village Blacksmith, capitally played by Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company here this week. Mr. Sam Livesey's acting in the character of John Strong is able and effective; Mr. Joseph Carter impersonates the villain, Captain Leo, with much ability; genuinely funny and amusing is Mr. Geo. V. Campbell as Billy Twigg, and Mr. George Wilton as St. John Herman, the music hall manager, and Mr. Edwin Maydew as Lucas Farler are both excellent. Miss Maggie Edwards acts feelingly as Kate Strong, and Miss Cassie Le Grande sympathetically fills the part of Ruth Parkins; whilst the child-actress, Miss Bertha Hanbury, is clever as Harry Strong.

Empire. — Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black. —The Lorch Family of acrobats have achieved a great success here this week. The Wakeman Quartette, in a musical comedy-sketch, are very entertaining; Violet Morgan is pleasing in her imitations of well-known artists; Lorne and Rene, in a Lancashire singing sketch, Capital and Labour, quite suit the popular taste; the McKays display ability as lightning oil-painters; Ailsa Douglas, soprano vocalist, sings delightfully; and Marquis and Mignonette are successful in a comedy act, entitled Little Willie.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Hippodrome Theatre. Proprietors, Messrs. George and Robert Nicholson; Manager, Mr. Geo. Stanton.—Irvan Tschernoff, with his trained dogs and ponies, is here this week, and has received a good reception; Ford and Hanson are successful in their musical act; and Gibson and Doyle create great amusement with their patter. Fred Clifford, who possesses a rich baritone voice, is loudly applauded for his fine singing; Desmonti and Mora are excellent acrobats, and the Three Panamas are greatly appreciated in their tumbling display; the Sisters McQueen are excellent vocalists and dancers; Hanvarr and Lee are great favourites as the "Golfer and the Maid"; and the Pictures are both interesting and humorous.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Councillor J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—Will Vay's Juveniles head the bill this week, and are greatly appreciated; Irene Rose is an ideal comedienne; Mendel, the blind pianist, is a clever musician; Sandford and Lyons are comedians of rare ability; and Herbert Bates is greatly appreciated in his songs. Vandinoff, a remarkable lightning painter, is loudly applauded; Donn, the miniature comedian, greatly delights the audience; and the Pictures, as usual, complete the programme.

STOKE.—Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—The Mohamed Ben Mohamed Troupe of Sousa Arabs head the bill this week in their remarkable bounding turn; the Three Macdonalds, in their musical act, contribute a novel and clever turn; Tom Kelso and company do well in their sketch, The Silly Servant; Nellie Chandos sings her coon songs cleverly, and dances admirably; the Sisters Clifton are capital duettists and skipping-rope dancers; Cyclo is a clever trick cyclist; Geo. Grenville is a comedian of merit; Carr and Rosi are a smart pair, and provide an excellent turn.

STOURBRIDGE.—Alhambra Theatre.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Mr. James P. Moore and company is here for the week, presenting an old-time favourite drama, The Seven Sisters. Mr. Arthur Millward as Robert Raebourne played with good effect, and was ably assisted by Mr. Charles Clifford as Dr. Walraven; Mr. James P. Moore as Holden Dale gave quite a natural impersonation; while Mr. Monson Thorpe as the brother, Gilbert Dale, acted with force and ability; and Mr. Clarence Turner as Billy Bubbles provided plenty of fun, and was applauded for his songs. Miss Gwendoline Hastings as Ida Raebourne proved an accomplished actress; and Mr. Alwynne Ermon did well as Norah. Miss Mollie Revell as Judith was prominent.

SUNDERLAND.—King's Theatre.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan.—Mr. Robert Crossman's company, in Sergeant Brue, is drawing crowded houses here this week. The title-rôle is in the capable hands of Mr. Arthur Reynolds, who does it every justice; Crooke Scrubbs finds an apt exponent in Mr. Clarence Ibbotson, and Michael Brue is admirably portrayed by Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy; Mr. Charles Sims is well placed as Mr. Crank; as Lady Bickenhall Miss Cissie Raymond acts with chic, which makes her impersonation charming; Miss Mary Hay is a bright and winsome Aurora Brue; whilst as Daisy Miss Marion Hargrave gives a fine character-study.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway. —Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company, in The Face at the Window, is the attraction here. Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale is again playing Le Loup with all his accustomed ferocity; Mr. T. W. Dunscome gives an excellent delineation of Paul Gouffet; Mr. G. Phythian scores as Le Blanc; as Peter Pottleberry Mr. C. Alan Hineson proves himself to be a comedian of some ability, and with Miss Gladys Newcombe as Bamette is responsible for most of the fun; Miss Marie Barrett gives a pathetic rendering of Marie de Brisson; and as La Ginau Miss Marie Dennant is excellent.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Acting-Managers, Messrs. A. Brown and S. B. Stringer.—Fred Karno's amusing sketch, Early Birds, heads the bill, and is as popular as ever; Jennie Evans, comedienne; C. St. John Denton and G. Rowland's company, in The Punch and Judy Girl; Martine and Son, singing picture artists; Nelson and Thomas, comedy team; Daisy Morell, versatile vocalist; Marstro and Oretta, equilibrists; Rowland Hill, comedian; and the Palace Pictures complete the programme.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD. — King's Theatre. —Proprietors. Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—After a long absence, Mr. F. S. Gibbert is paying a visit here this week with grand opera, and on Monday evening Maritana was most favourably received. Mr. F. S. Gibbert was particularly good in his tenor songs, "There is a flower that bloometh" and "Let me like a soldier fall," and had to respond to numerous encores. The part of King of Spain was ably supported by Mr. K. Campbell. The rôle of Martinano was sustained by Miss Elsie May, who gave a very capable rendering. The week's bill includes Il Trovatore, The Daughter of the Regiment, and The Bohemian Girl.

SWANSEA.—The Empire. — Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Albert Mitchell; Assistant-Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe.—The ever-popular Lockhart's elephants, presented by Capt. Taylor, are here; the Bros. Horne have lost nothing of their popularity, being welcomed as heartily as ever; the Bocaccio Minstrels, including Signor Francia (mandoline soloist), give a most refined turn; and Rosa Loader, the musical mimic, is much appreciated; May Evans, character comedienne, is as bright as ever; Allis and Cassiti give a very humorous show; whilst Lady Fauntleroy, ventriloquist, ranks with the best. The Bioscope complete a good all-round bill.

The Grand.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Brooks and Woodbridge; Resident Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks.—The Officers' Mess is being presented here by Mr. W. Penrhyn Forster's company. Miss Nellie Sheffield as Rose Smith is delightful; Miss Clara Nicholls, Miss Edith Harmer, and Miss Marcella Hudson charmingly sustain their parts, whilst the dancing of the Alston Troupe (including Miss Maude Sandemann) is particularly commendable. As Major-General Sir Adelbert de Beaune, Mr. L. Cadwaladr has a part eminently suited to him; whilst Mr. Harry Emerie as Sir Adelbert's body-servant could not be improved upon. Messrs. Geo. Ellis, Charles D. Cleveland, and Mr. H. Vyvian do full justice to their characters.

The Star.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts.—The Middleman and Saints and Sinners are staged here this week by Miss Elaine Verner and company. In The Middleman Mr. Harding Thomas, in the difficult rôle of Cyrus Blenkarn, gives convincing proofs of his ability; as Mary, Miss Elaine Verner was sweet, and shared with Mr. Harding Thomas the triumph of the evening; Mr. John Hooper is admirable as Joseph Chandler; as is also Mr. Edgar Kent, as his managing man. Miss Ada Clark (Nancy), Mr. Guy Dene (Sir Seaton Umfraville), and Mr. E. Rayson Cousens (Joseph Chandler) worthily sustained their parts. The play is excellently staged.

TODMORDEN.—Town Hall.—Proprietors, Corporation of Todmorden; Secretary, Mr. Howarth Stansfield.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company are here in The Christian. As Glory Quayle Miss Laura Walker plays with much discrimination and feeling; whilst Mr. Jack Fortesque as John Storm gives a fine impersonation. They are ably supported by Mr. Ernest Stidwell as Horatio Drake; Mr. P. Gedge Twyman as Lord Robert Ure; Mr. Phipps Stanley as Archdeacon Wealthy; Mr. Courtenay as Brother Paul; and Mr. Harry Colbeck as Father Lamplugh. A word of praise is due to Miss Edith M. Savery for her excellent rendering of the part of Polly Love; and the Liza of Miss V. Herne, and the Mrs. Callender of Miss Constance Stevens are alike worthy of commendation.

TON-Y-PANDY.—Theatre Royal. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth.—Mr. Ernest Abbott and company are here in Lady Audley's Secret. Mr. Ernest Abbott furnishes a fine character-study as George Talboys; Robert Audley is taken by Mr. Douglas Phelps with great distinction; Mr. W. H. Garboi is powerful in the rôle of Sir Michael Audley; Luke Marks is successfully played by Mr. Edwin Keen; the part of Master George Talboys is well played by Miss Hetty Jones; Miss Doris Dew is very amusing as Alicia Audley; Miss Ada Abbott submits a charming performance of Lady Audley. Sapho, East Lynne, and The Unknown are billed for the remainder of the week.

Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. W. Stone; Manager, Mr. Edgar Harper.—On Monday the Hippodrome was opened for a season by Mr. W. Stone.—Davis Charter and Bedford are very amusing in their sketch, Jack's Uncle; Mr. Edgar Harper is very successful in his illustrated songs, namely, "Off to Philadelphia" and "The Village Blacksmith"; Poole and Poole are an attraction; and a prominent feature of the programme is the cinématograph, some very fine films being shown.

TORQUAY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Managing Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. A. Pearse.—Mr. Norman Macowan's company paid a welcome return visit on Monday with Monsieur Beaucaire, in the name-part of which Mr. Macowan achieved a great success, his acting throughout being distinguished by manly dignity; as Lady Mary Carlisle, Miss Violet Sterne acted with feeling and an aristocratic bearing that was in every sense admirable; Mr. Murray Hathorn took the part of the Duke of Winterset with great ability; Mr. Arthur Somers was a successful Major Molyneaux, and the Captain Badger of Mr. Ramsey Forman was well acted. On Tuesday evening A Marriage of Convenience was given with the Screen Scene from The School for Scandal.

WAKEFIELD.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. Sherwood and Co.—On Monday night Mr. Charles F. Cooke's company opened a week's stay here in the military play The Trumpet Call. Mr. Leonard Yorke gives a manly and spirited impersonation as the hero, Cuthbert Cuthbertson; the part of Sergeant-Major Milligan is skilfully portrayed by Mr. Charles F. Cooke; Mr. Freddie Bentley does well as Tommy Dutton; and is well supported by Miss May Foster as Lavinia Ginnifer. Mr. David Beattie does good work as Professor Ginnifer; and Mr. John Dennys is successful as Richard Featherstone. Mr. J. Betterton proves capable as Sir William Barton; the trying part of Constance Cuthbertson finds a clever exponent in Miss Helena Millais; and Miss Doris Gilham is efficient as Astrea.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Herr Fritz, illusionist, assisted by Mlle. Jeannette, heads the bill this week, and completely mystifies the audience by his wonderful illusions. Mr. Frank Bernard and company are successful in a sketch entitled Hello! which evokes much laughter; Babs Lloyd, juvenile comedienne, is smart; Mr. T. E. Johnstone, actor-vocalist, proves popular; Hurman, hoop manipulator and juggler, merits favour; and Miss Nellie Vance is a pleasing comedienne.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Theatre of Varieties. —Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—Joe Reichen's dogs perform wonderful tricks here this week; Sterling and Love are a refined couple; James Gorse, blind pianist and vocalist, scores well; Conan and Doyle have up-to-date business; Jack Ross has a voice of good range; and T. C. Callaghan is a refined character comedian. The Bioscope Pictures are good.

WEST BROMWICH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Messrs. E. A'Dell and Charbot's company is here this week with the musical comedy-drama, His Sister's Honour. Mr. Evelyn A'Dell gives great satisfaction in his impersonation of Frank Stanley; Mr. Harry C. Robinson makes a capital villain in the character of Sir Richard Redvers; a fund of humour is exhibited by Mr. Sidney Dean as Timothy Timid, and certainly keeps the audience in very good spirits; Mr. Gilson Brooke is effective as Dr. Godfrey; Mr. Harry Mitchelson doing well as the policeman. Miss Bessie Deares is a great success in the part of Maria; Miss Ethel Ashleigh succeeds in gaining the sympathy of the house for her excellent acting of Ivy Merton, a cripple; in the rôle of Dora Stanley Miss Kathryne Eckart displays clever acting; and Miss Winnie Hennerley does well as Gretchen.

New Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Lewis Gilbert. —A delightful performance is given here by the Selbinis in a combination of marvellous cycling tricks, for which they receive encore after encore; Dan Filmer sings some very jolly songs; Miss Crissie Cross meets with a good reception; Stewart and Morgan are highly-successful in their vocal scena, "Leaving Ireland; the Markies are deserving of much praise for their clever musical act; Miss Rose Elliott sings her songs with great taste and feeling; Miss Lily Le Breton is very smart on the trapeze; the programme being brought to a close by the Hippodrome Pictures.

WIDNES.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—A unique production took place here on Monday evening, when Mr. Kiddie "put on" 130 school children in the pantomime, Dick Whittington. The principals were all youngsters of tender years, some of whom will be heard of again. Miss Nellie Carr was a delightful Dick, singing charmingly; Miss May Barrett's Alice was a pleasing performance; Miss Lena Merrick played the Fairy remarkably well, and proved herself a vocalist of unusual merit. The efforts of the junior comedians were highly pleasing to a crowded house.

"A KING FOR A DAY."

A complete Musical Comedy, the Book, Lyrics, and Music by George Sheldon, produced for the first time on any stage at the Ardwick Empire, Manchester, on Monday, April 15.

H.H. the Hereditary Prince of Polignac ..... Mr. Fred Brampton
Signor Carrara ..... Mr. Will Letters
Septimus Tupper ..... Mr. Harry Buss
Adolf ..... Mr. Robert Barbour
Eliza Remnant ..... Miss Edith Barwell
Elise Remnant .... Miss Molly Woolstenhulme

(from our own correspondent.)

The action of this bright and amusing miniature musical comedy (toured by Mr. Sidney Dooley and Mr. Charles Seymour) hinges upon the expectation of Signor Carrara that H.H. the Hereditary Prince of Polignac, the King, is coming, upon request, to unveil his latest masterpiece, a statue of Psyche, in the Kursaal Gardens, at Badenbad (Austria), where the scene is laid. Carrara is in high glee at the honour that is about to be bestowed upon him, and the general sentiment of a fête day is voiced lustily by himself and a chorus of girls in brilliant holiday costumes, who give life and colour to the scene. Carrara has little of the conventional sculptor in his appearance, however, and it is at once obvious that his gifts lie rather in the direction of low comedy. Into the midst of the expectant crowd come Eliza Remnant, a spinster of prim and unlovely aspect, and her niece Elise, the latter of whom, wishing to be present at the unveiling ceremony in spite of her aunt's refusal, disguises herself as a boy; while her aunt—much to the lady's surprise and delight—receives by mistake an offer of marriage from Septimus Tupper, who is smitten by the charms of Elise. The endeavour of the aunt after this to find Mr. Tupper leads to a considerable amount of chasing and dodging on the part of various characters (including Mr. Tupper himself), and no small amount of fun is got out of the idea that the elderly Miss Remnant must never give up her hope of finding Mr. Tupper until she has got hold of a husband of some sort. In the meantime the King, desiring a holiday incognito at the Kursaal, has wired his inability to come and unveil the statue. In this crisis Signor Carrara prevails upon Tupper to impersonate the King. Tupper's get-up is very funny. No one but the audience know that the real King is on the scene; but his Highness is in trouble, having been chased by Miss Remnant, and hidden himself, with Psyche, under the drapery to escape the pertinacious lady's attentions. When the unveiling takes place the King is discovered. Fine fun ensues, Carrara and Tupper producing roars of laughter by their mock-legal handling of the situation. Finally, the King is incarcerated, but the aunt, releasing him, is shut up by him in his place, while he goes to establish his identity for the righting of affairs. When he comes back, however, Tupper has resumed his own identity, and so has Elise. The aunt, let out of durance, is faced with the revelation of Tupper's misdirection of his offer of marriage; but, not to be disappointed, she takes headlong advantage of the very obliging nature of Adolf, the waiter, who is wholly at anyone's service. For everyone, in short, the day of the ceremony has been a lively time. The piece is remarkably well done. The music is bright, the lyrics are smart, and the action never flags for a moment. Miss Edith Barwell was excellent as the old maid; Miss Molly Woolstenhulme was very pleasing as Elise, and scored especially in her song-scena, "Fighting for Home and King"; Mr. Robert Barbour made a characteristic waiter, Adolf; Mr. Fred Brampton played brusquely as the King; and Mr. Harry Buss worked hard and well in a successful depiction of the lively Mr. Tupper. But the hit of the piece was the Carrara of Mr. Will Letters, who got the utmost out of—or put the utmost into—a score of fine opportunities. For the rest, Mr. George Sheldon is to be congratulated upon his work as well as upon his cast. It should be added that some electrical effects are introduced very prettily.

THE WAYFARERS' DRAMATIC CLUB.

Judging by the programme which announced the production on Tuesday at Ladbroke Hall, Notting Hill, W., of a three-act comedy, the wayfarers might be an association of literary vagabonds possessing ambition to climb the steeps of Parnassus; but the piece was written in such a jejune style that we may conclude that they are merely players dallying with the drama in their spare moments. Mr. O. Percy Martin, the author, should have tried his 'prentice hand on a one-act piece before attempting to shape a three-act comedy. Poverty of incident and conversations of the most insipid nature mark its progress from the rise to the final fall of the curtain. It is impossible either to feel any sympathy with Teddy Travers, the hero, after whom the so-called comedy is named. He lacks backbone, and cuts a very poor figure. There is some feeling for character in the sketch of the modern sailor, Jack Barker, and some consistency is found in the character of Philip Everest. The piece has no dramatic scheme to speak of, and is mostly episodical. Teddy Travers, a bank clerk, has fallen in love with Enid Marsden, the daughter of the Vicar of Woodington, a little country town where the action takes place. He confides his hopes to Enid's mother, who makes him promise not to propose to her until he is in a position to keep a wife. Enid, who returns his affection, is at a loss to understand his backwardness, and listens to the suit of Mr. Philip Everest, a rich parti of mature age. To his declaration of love, Enid promises to give an answer on the morrow near the hollow oak in Woodington Woods. Frank Marsden, son of the clergyman, a very ordinary specimen of the bounder, who when he is not making an ass of himself is acting—as he himself confesses—like "a beastly cad," has kissed his mother's slavey, Lucy, with whom he makes an appointment near the same rendezvous. Lucy does not keep the appointment, but tells her sailorman, Jack Barker, of the insult offered her without revealing any name. Jack, coming to the spot, misses Marsden, who hides himself in the hollow of the tree, and happens on Everest, who is impatiently awaiting Enid's arrival. The sailor, mistaking him for the insulter of his Lucy, prepares to give Everest a sound thrashing; but the latter saves his skin by a bribe of twenty pounds. Eventually a bank managership conferred upon him enables Teddy Travers to take Enid to his arms; and Marsden, contrite and humble, makes it up with his fiancée, and the curtain falls on the unalloyed happiness of the four principal characters. Miss Margaret Martin, Mr. George H. Chappell, Mr. Montague Lewis (who stage-managed), Mr. C. F. Frost, and Miss Isabel E. Frost were the best of the company playing Teddy Travers, but no conspicuous ability was shown by anyone.

The first meeting of the committee of the old Welcome Club, of which Lord Roberts of Kandahar is president, was held at the Criterion last week in order to elect members and do other business in regard to the coming season, during which the Balkan States Exhibition is to be held at Earl's Court. The club premises and lawns have been improved and extended, and the buildings opposite have been replaced by a charming illuminated garden, which gives a more beautiful outlook to members on the lawn, and is also the means of doing away with the noises of the side-show attendants, to which exception was hitherto taken.

"WEE WILLIE WINKIE."

A Nursery Rhyme Pantomime, in Three Acts, written by H. Weston Wells, music by Frederic Leeds, produced at St. Peter's Hall, Brockley, on Saturday, April 6.

Old King Cole ..... Mr. Harry de Koningh
Robin ..... Miss Daisy Aucutt
Richard ..... Miss Irene Southall
Simple Simon ..... Mr. Harold James
Dr. Fell ..... Mr. Weston Wells
Dr. Foster ..... Master Eddie Slade
Princess Mary Mary, Quite Contrary ..... Miss Birdie Barnett
The Old Woman who Lived in a Shoe ..... Miss Bessie James
Tom Tom, the Piper's Son ..... Master Archie Wells
Queen Mab ..... Miss Kathleen Jackson
Robin Goodfellow ..... Master Leslie Cole
Thistle-down ..... Miss May Lockwood
Wee Willie Winkie ..... Master Percy Barnett

The plot of Wee Willie Winkie; or, The Pig and the Pedigree, is as follows:—King Valiant, who has been slain in battle, has left an infant son, who is rescued by a benevolent little sprite, Wee Willie Winkie, and spirited away into fairyland. When he has become a grown lad, known as Tom Tom, the Piper's Son, he comes to the Court of King Cole. That usually jovial monarch has fallen into the hands of a couple of quacks, Dr. Fell and Dr. Foster, and these worthies, by their pills and potions, have nearly killed the unfortunate King, who naturally suffers from melancholia. Tom, on coming to the Court, falls in love with Mary Mary, Quite Contrary, the King's daughter, and in accordance with nursery lore, steals a pig intended for the King's dinner. Tom is arrested and sentenced to death, but having obtained permission to play upon his pipe, his wondrous music causes the invalid King to dance, and, finally, to regain his wonted health. In his gratitude King Cole bestows the hand of his daughter Mary upon Tom, and the quack doctors are ducked in a horse-pond by the children. Mr. Wells' piece is well suited for the juveniles, and Mr. Leeds' music, if not very striking, is tuneful and catchy. Mr. Harry de Koningh was amusing as Old King Cole. Master Leslie Cole sang excellently as Robin Goodfellow; Miss Birdie Barnett made a pretty and tuneful Mary Mary, Quite Contrary; Mr. Percy Barnett looked an ideal Wee Willie Winkie; Mr. H. Weston Wells gained laughter as Dr. Fell; Mr. Fred d'Encer sang well as Little Jack Horner. Miss Bessie James spoke her lines intelligently as the Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe; and Master Archie Wells scored well as Tom. Some pretty dances were arranged by Miss Lucy O. Wheeler. The scenery by Messrs. T. Bull and Son was very effective. The piece was well received by the audience, and both author and composer were awarded a hearty call before the curtain.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, March 12.—Robin Hood, with its picturesque setting and historical traditions, continues to attract at Her Majesty's Theatre. Mr. Julius Knight, with his bold, vigorous embodiment of the outlaw, is still the centre figure; Miss Elbert Orton has become a firm favourite; and Mr. Harry Plimmer, and the rest of the specially-chosen company, combine to make the Sherwood Forest idyll a charming production.

"The White Heather," perhaps Mr. Bland Holt's most notable production, and in which he plays a congenial part as Edgar Trefusis, was revived for the last week of the actor-manager's present season at the Theatre Royal; and Mrs. Bland Holt was again the Lady Janet Maclintock; and Miss Frances Ross, Messrs. W. E. Baker, Chas. Brown, Albert Norman, and Maurice F. Kemp were to the fore in a strong cast.

"The Kelly Gang" was staged at the Criterion on the 9th. The house was packed. Mr. J. T. Ryan directs the venture, and Mr. Ernest Blackstone is business-manager, the stage-management being left to Mr. Robert Henry.

The Tivoli has a capital bill. King and Benson, Will Lochnane, Fred Russell and Coster Joe, clever Fanny Powers, Gracie Grahame, Cassy Walmer, Fred Bluett, Art Slavin, Harold Reeves, Frank G. King, Addie Leigh, Pearl Lovell, Gracie Compton, Annie Laurie, and Lily Grimshaw, are all popular with the public, and to this long list Mr. Harry Rickards promises to add next Saturday the American character-actor, Charles N. Fletcher.

The National Amphitheatre has the Bovis Brothers, Apollo Belvidere, Essie Jennings, Carder Wilson, Bert Nicholson, and Gertie Everett, among a host of others.

MELBOURNE, March 12.—Princess's Theatre. —Lessees, Messrs. Ward and Willoughby.—After a successful run of three weeks, The New Clown was withdrawn last Friday in favour of Mr. Hopkinson, which was presented to a crowded house on Saturday evening. The performance, taken on the whole, was a most successful one in every way. Mr. Ward, in the name-part, looked and acted the part excellently. It is undoubtedly one of the best things Mr. Ward has done since this first appearance in Melbourne. Miss Grace Palotta was admirably suited with the part of the Duchess, Miss Olive Winton gave a natural presentation of Lady Thyra, Mr. George Willoughby was well placed as the crotchety old Earl. Mr. Edward Bonfield as Lord Gawthorpe was well suited; while the minor parts were pleasingly acted by Messrs. Gamble, Harry Overton, C. Angler, and F. Walhalla.

Her Majesty's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. George Tallis.—Mother Goose is still going strong, and on Saturday evening the theatre was packed long before eight o'clock. The season is now limited to eight more performances, so the management anticipate a record week. Active preparations are being made for the performance of Parsifal, which will be staged on Saturday, 23rd inst.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant.—People had to be turned away on Saturday night, where the exciting episodes of The Squatter's Daughter were portrayed by Mr. Anderson's company. So great has been the success of this piece that, although the season has yet three weeks to run, it is anticipated that the present programme will last the full time without the necessity for a change.

Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon.—Brinn, the herculean juggler and cannon manipulator, made his reappearance on Saturday evening for a brief farewell season. The last nights are announced of Mr. Charles Leonard Fletcher, whose character-sketches have proved highly successful during his season here. The programme at present also includes Antonio and his dogs, Cora Caselli, Rochfort and Hart, Charlene and Charlene, Fred Curran, Leonard Nelson, Nellie Kilburn, Ethel Preston, Eileen Lyons, Ada Saddler, Olive Robinson, Maud Florence, Brightie Smith, and Joe Lashwood.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Owing to pressure on our space, we have been compelled to hold over the weekly instalment of the above. The series will be continued next week.

Maxam.—April 11, Clara Maxam, the beloved wife of Harry Maxam, at her residence, White House, Hackney Marshes, from pleurisy, age 38. Gone, but not forgotten.

Nicholls.—On the 4th inst. Christine Garland Nicholls, professionally known as Christine Lanscar, of the Four Magnets, age 22, after 10 months' illness.

Russell.—On April 16, Kenna Russell, dearly loved and deeply mourned by her devoted friend Clover (K. H.).

Shipley.—Beatrice Worth, the wife of Sam Shipley, died at Stockton-on-Tees, April 13, 1907. Buried at Salford Borough Cemetery, Wednesday, April 17. Gone, but not forgotten.

In Memoriam.

Adams.—In ever loving memory of our darling brother, Albert George Down Adams (Bert Adams), who fell asleep April 17, 1904. Ever deeply mourned by his devoted sisters, Ada Blanche, Edith Tully, Rosie Courtneidge, and Addie Peacock.

If love and care could death prevent,
Thy days would not so soon be spent;
Life was desired, but God could see,
Eternal Life was best for thee.

Redfern.—In ever-loving memory of our darling mother, who died April 20, '05. "Though our faces wear a smile, our hearts do yearn for thee." Rubie and Elsie Redfern and family.

Smith.—In ever-loving memory of my dear husband, Charles P. Smith, late Secretary of the Guildhall School of Music, who died April 18, 1894. Gone, but never forgotten.

The County Theatre, Kingston, will next week be visited by The Prince of Pilsen, the popular musical comedy presented by Baron H. Harriss' company, which has achieved a series of successes on tour. Miss Sophie Harriss and Mr. Harry Kilburn are the principals of the company, which is a strong one in every respect, and the piece should prove a powerful attraction to the theatre-loving inhabitants of the historic borough.

The annual Shakespeare dinner of the Urban Club will be held at the Covent Garden Hotel on Tuesday evening next, under the presidency of Mr. Bram Stoker, for so many years the genial business-manager at the Lyceum Theatre, and the author of a biography of Sir Henry Irving. The toast of the evening will be, as usual, in memory of Shakespeare, and the after-dinner programme will consist of songs and recitations from the poet's plays.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.
BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR
Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—Sir Henry Irving.
Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

"STARS" AT QUEEN'S HALL.

Celebrities of the stage adorned the platform at the Queen's (Small) Hall on Tuesday afternoon, when a matinée was given in aid of the funds of St. Mark's, Hamilton-terrace, N.W. An outstanding attraction was the presence in the programme of the names of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Maude, who appeared in the Quarrel Scene from The School for Scandal. An ideal performance of the excerpt from Sheridan's celebrated comedy was given, and while Miss Winifred Emery fascinated with her delicacy, freshness, and grace as Lady Teazle, the artistic finish of Mr. Maude's rendering of Sir Peter was a delight to all. Great enthusiasm was aroused by the performance, the talented couple being recalled again and again. Another eminent representative of the drama was found in Miss Eva Moore, who recited "If we only knew," by Mel. B. Spurr, with rare feeling and effect, and as an encore gave a dainty fragment which might be called "Ma Belle Amie." Mr. H. V. Esmond contributed to the pleasure of the audience by a rendering rich in elocutionary graces of Tennyson's stirring poem, "The Defence of Lucknow," thrilling his hearers through and through with the intensity of his delivery.

The comic side of the entertainment had a practised exponent in Mr. Charles Allan, who was very cordially welcomed. His drollery in a couple of monologues, in which the disadvantages of "Yachting" and the misadventures of a youth's first entry into "Society" are detailed, was irresistible. Few raconteurs can put such a wealth of meaning into the words of a piece as can Mr. Allan, and the laughter which began at his first utterance grew quite riotous as he proceeded. Harp solos, including Mendelssohn's "Songs Without Words," were exquisitely played by Herr Alfred Kastner, and Herr Anton Tschaikov displayed a rare mastery of the violin in some difficult selections, producing a magnificent tone and showing a remarkable command of technique. The afternoon was rendered additionally agreeable by a couple of songs from Mr. Francis Ludlow and a ballad by Miss Birdie Garnault. The hall was well filled by an audience including many distinguished persons, and the purpose for which the entertainment was given should be amply fulfilled.

At the Exchange Theatre, Wellingborough, Messrs. Henry Chattel and G. W. Bowes's company appeared on Tuesday and Wednesday with The Sign of the Cross, which again drew crowded audiences. Mr. Wallace G. Court gave a manly impersonation of Marcus; and an excellent contrast was found in the sweetly-played Mercia of Miss Nancy York. Miss Lena Gordon as Berenice, Mr. Donald McAdams as Glabrio, and others in the cast gave general satisfaction.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that an EXTRAORDINARY GENERAL MEETING of the Actors' Association will be held at THE PASSMORE EDWARDS SETTLEMENT, 35, TAVISTOCK PLACE, TAVISTOCK SQUARE, LONDON, W.C., at 2 O'CLOCK IN THE AFTERNOON, on MONDAY, THE 6TH DAY OF MAY, 1907, for the purpose of considering and, if thought fit, passing the subjoined Resolutions as Special Resolutions; and NOTICE IS ALSO HEREBY GIVEN that a further EXTRAORDINARY GENERAL MEETING of the above Association will be held at THE PASSMORE EDWARDS SETTLEMENT, 35, TAVISTOCK PLACE, TAVISTOCK SQUARE, LONDON, W.C., at 2 O'CLOCK IN THE AFTERNOON, on MONDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF MAY, 1907, when a report will be furnished of the proceedings at the Extraordinary General Meeting to be held on the 6th day of May next, and the subjoined Resolutions will, if passed by the requisite majority at that Meeting, be submitted for confirmation as Special Resolutions.

RESOLUTIONS.

That the Articles of Association be amended as follows:—
To Article IV., add—
"But no Manager shall be qualified to become "President, Vice-President, or Member of "the Association, and any such office-"holder or Member becoming a Manager "shall ipso facto vacate his office and be "suspended from all privileges of member-"ship so long as he shall remain a Mana-"ger.
"The term Manager is to be held to include all "responsible Managers of Theatres, or "Theatrical Companies, and their General, "Business, and Acting Managers."
At the commencement of Article IX., add the words—
"The Council shall elect a President and shall "have power to elect Vice-Presidents. The "President and Vice-Presidents shall be "or shall have been actors, and subject to "the provisions of Article IV., shall hold "office for life or till they resign."
To Article IX., add the words—
"The provisions of Article IV. shall not apply "to Life Members elected before January "1st, 1907."
Delete Article XI., and replace by—
"The Association shall be governed by a "Council consisting of 25 Members, who "shall hold office for one year and shall "retire at the time appointed for the "Annual General Meeting, any retiring "member being eligible for re-election. The "Council shall have power to transact all "the business of the Association, five to "form a quorum.
"Any two Members whose subscriptions for the "current year are paid may give to the "Secretary a notice or notices signed by "them nominating any qualified member "or members as a candidate or candidates "for the Council. Such notices shall contain the name and address of the proposed candidate or candidates, and shall "be signed by him or them. Such notices "shall be sent to the Secretary not less "than 21 days before the date of the Annual "General Meeting. If the candidates are "not more in number than are required to "fill the vacancies they shall be declared "to be elected at that Meeting. But if a "greater number of candidates are nominated than there are vacancies to be "filled, voting papers shall be issued by "post to all the Members of the Association containing the names of the candi "dates. The voting papers shall be sent "out by the Secretary 14 days prior to the "date of the Annual General Meeting, and "must be filled in and signed by the Members and returned to the Secretary before "the commencement of the Annual General "Meeting."
Article XV. to read—
Delete from "time when the term" to the end of Article, and add the words "next "Annual General Meeting."
Article XXIII., Delete "President, Vice-Presi-"dents, and"
Article XXIV., Delete.
Article XXV., Section 2, Delete from "But if a "greater number" to "hereinafter pro-"vided."
Article XXV., Section 3, Delete section and substitute "If the election has been by voting "papers the members present shall elect "four scrutineers who shall examine the "voting papers, and after the same have "been counted the result shall be published at the Offices of the Association."
That Articles 7 and 8 be deleted and be replaced by the following:—

SUBSCRIPTION.

7. The Entrance Fee shall be Five Shillings.
8. The Annual Subscription shall be Fifteen Shillings payable in advance on January 1st in each year, or Eighteen Shillings payable in advance by equal instalments on the 1st January, 1st April, 1st July, and 1st October in each year, and only those Members whose Subscriptions are paid shall be entitled to vote at any Meeting.
Should a Member fail to pay his Subscription within seventy days after it is due his membership shall cease, but he may be re-elected by the Council upon payment of arrears and a reinstatement fee of One Shilling.
The Subscription of any person elected on or after the 1st of April shall be regulated by the quarterages for the remainder of the year.
The Council may, at their discretion, suspend payment of Subscription by Members travelling Abroad.
Should the said Resolutions not be passed by the requisite majority at the Meeting to be held on the 6th May next, due notice will be given to the members of the Association that the Meeting on the 27th day of May, 1907, of which notice is now given, will not be held.
Dated the 16th day of April, 1907.
By Order of the Council.
CHAS. CRUIKSHANKS,
Secretary, Actors' Association,
10, King-street, Covent Garden, London, W.C.
The attention of Members is directed to the following Articles:—
26. At least seven days before the day appointed for holding any annual or other meeting, written notice shall be given to the Secretary of any motion to be moved or proposition to be considered thereat.
30. All Members shall be entitled to attend, and every Member whose subscription for the current year is paid shall be entitled to vote. Those who do not desire to attend and whose subscriptions for the current year are paid may vote by proxy. Persons appointed as proxies must be so appointed in writing, and must be Members of the Association whose subscriptions for the current year are paid. Each proxy paper shall be stamped, and shall be forwarded to the Secretary twenty-four hours at least before the meeting at which it is to be used.
Forms of Proxy may be had upon application to the Secretary.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, APRIL 20, 1907.

SHAW AND MELODRAMA.

The flavour and the quality of the "Dramatic Opinions of Bernard Shaw," which Messrs. ARCHIBALD CONSTABLE and Co. recently published in two volumes, depend on the attitude of the writer to the world at large. Mr. SHAW is not a stylist; he is amusingly "slangy," not to say coarse, at times. The irresistible piquancy of his essays lies in the fact that he is a kind of "rogue elephant," ravaging, alone and at large, the plantations of the benighted Britisher. Mr. BERNARD SHAW has never published a confession of his faith; but it may be gathered from his writings. In the first place, he is a vigorous opponent of the institution of Marriage as it exists in England at present. According to Mr. SHAW, 299 out of every 1000 persons find marriage a failure.

"It is insufferable," he says in his "Quintessence of Ibsenism," "that two human beings, having entered into relations which only warm affection can render tolerable, should be forced to maintain them after such affections have ceased to exist, or in spite of the fact that they have never arisen. . . . Let us provide otherwise for the social ends which the family subserves; and then abolish its compulsory character altogether."

Mr. SHAW is also an advocate of much greater latitude being allowed to pre-nuptial lapses in women. He says:

"The desirability of women preserving their chastity depends just as much on circumstances as the desirability of taking a cab instead of walking."

As everyone knows, in politics Mr. SHAW is a Socialist; and his religion is the abandonment of Duty as a guide to conduct. He is an advocate of the system of public education and maintenance of children which was employed at Oneida Creek. "We are not likely," he admits, "to dispense with legal ties and obligations until the continuity of society no longer depends on the private nursery." Oneida Creek, our readers will remember, was a free-love community, and therefore all the children belonged to everybody.

The humour of the situation when Mr. SHAW became a dramatic critic was intense. Imagine a writer—holding the opinions above expressed with all the tenacity of a reformer—commissioned to report upon an art which of all others needs to be "understanded of the people." "Change yourn!" said the raw recruit when his comrade in his company whispered to him that he was out of step; and the attitude of the iconoclast firmly convinced of his own faith, and half-amused, half-irritated by the absurdities of his fellow-men is irresistibly diverting. There is even a pathos in the futility of all this cleverness. In connection with these essays of Mr. SHAW's we think, with moistened eyes, of the number of attacks that have been made on stays, tall hats, and modern "evening dress." "Don't mind them, Tanner!" says the heroine at the end of Man and Superman, "go on talking!"; and perhaps this line was meant by Mr. SHAW as a touch of melancholy self-summing-up.

ROSA BONHEUR once said of RUSKIN that he was a man who "saw Art with one eye—like a bird"; and there is something in Mr. SHAW of the "limited wision" which Sam Weller owned to in the witness-box. "What I want," he writes in one of his essays, "is an audience of philosophers"; and we do not think he fully understands how small the philosophic minority really is, and how insignificant. For, after all, it is the people and not the philosophers who "run the show." The only occasion on which the philosophers tried to do it was the French Revolution; and a nice mess they made of it.

If we want to understand how utterly un-Shawesque is the average Englishman we have only to point to the popularity of melodrama. For Man in melodrama, which forms the staple entertainment to thousands in this country, is Mr. SHAW's antipodes. He is the flesh-eating, fisticuffing, forgiving, emotional, impulsive man, marrying and giving in marriage, dying for his country, worshipping the opposite sex; the sentimental, inconsistent, and illogical animal that does the work of the world—that tills the soil, fights the battles, and generally speaking manures the world with his "absurd" energies. Now it is possible for certain arts to exist for the sake of an intellectual coterie; but not for the art of the stage. We must not be misled by the apparent "success" of Mr. SHAW's plays in London and America. The average individual is attracted to the Court Theatre by the motives which move the simple sightseer. He comes away from a play like Major Barbara absolutely bewildered, but feeling, at any rate, that he has seen something extraordinary. A very different motive impelled the crowds who worshipped at the shrine of WILLIAM TERRISS at the Adelphi in the old days, and now stand in closed ranks outside the entrances to the Lyceum. What the mass of the public like is melodrama in some form or another. Every London manager who has tried the experiment knows that an IBSEN translation is "no good for a run." It is easy to understand why Mr. SHAW dislikes SHAKESPEARE as a dramatist. The popularity of SHAKESPEARE'S plays is an undeniable proof of the enduring sentiments of the English race. They are splendid melodramas, with plenty of bloodshed, sentiment, patriotism, maternal and paternal love, religion, and—marriages. If Mr. SHAW could only understand the importance of fox-hunting to one sort of Englishman, and of football to another sort, and the absolute indifference of both classes to philosophy, he would cease writing plays as he has ceased to write criticisms; and that, certainly, would be a pity.

THE LATE DICK MANSELL.

Mr. Edward Compton, in sending a contribution to the "Dick Mansell Widow Fund," writes:—"I send you my cheque for one guinea. I only knew Mansell slightly, but I read with much regret of the straits to which he was reduced at the last, and the sad position in which the widow has been left. In regard to his meteoric career, and the many things he has been connected with, I have been surprised that no one has mentioned the fact that some thirty-five years ago (or it may be thirty-six or thirty-seven), he and (I think) his brother produced at the old Holborn Theatre a very literal, bald translation of the play of Kean, by Alexandre Dumas the elder. I was one of a very thin house on one night of its brief career, having, as a mere boy, stolen out and gone to the play; and, although there was very little to recommend the piece to English audiences, it yet lived in my memory so vividly that some dozen years ago I commissioned the late T. Edgar Pemberton to do me a very free adaptation of the piece, which he and I practically wrote together, though only his name appears. This I have been playing continuously in my répertoire since then, and am nearing the 300th performance.

"I may mention that in Mr. Mansell's cast the late Tom Swinburne played the part of Kean, and E. J. O'Dell—now still alive, and nearly ninety, I suppose—played the part of the old Prompter, created in my version by the late Lewis Ball. It is also interesting to note that in the original French play the part of Anna Danby was sustained by Mme. Sarah Bernhardt; she thus, I believe, making her first appearance on the regular stage. Both Salvini and Rossi played the piece in Italy a great deal, but, I believe, with the exception of the disastrous production of the Mansells which I have alluded to, I am the only English actor who has produced the work and played the part. I may say it is a great favourite with my audiences."

The following gentlemen have kindly consented to act on the Committee of the Dick Mansell's Widow Fund:—Sir Charles Wyndham, Lewis Waller, Esq., Sir William Bull, M.P., T. P. O'Connor, Esq., M.P., G. R. Sims, Esq., Jocelyn Brandon, Esq., L.C.C., E. G. Saunders, Esq., J. Bannister Howard, Esq., E. Lockwood, Esq., E. Graham Falcon, Esq., Bertie Crewe, Esq., Austin Melford, Esq., A. F. Henderson, Esq., Rollo Balmain, Esq.

A. A. SOCIAL.

"The Sketch Question" was the subject of the debate at last week's social gathering of the Actors' Association. The chair was occupied by Mr. Henry Ainley.

Mr. Cecil Raleigh, who opened the discussion in an interesting speech, said that, in regard to the production of sketches, metropolitan theatres suffered under certain disabilities as compared with provincial playhouses. Managers in the country had no London County Council to contend against. He thought it was time they all realised that the public were drifting to the music halls, and that they—the actors—were drifting to the workhouse. Yet, for all that, the public were true to drama. They supported the sketches which were every day getting better. Why, even Mr. George Alexander and Mr. Seymour Hicks had appeared in a music hall; while Mrs. Brown-Potter had curtailed Shakespeare for the purpose of a variety entertainment, and he (Mr. Raleigh) did not see why Shakespeare should not be curtailed for modern production. It was a very good thing for actors that the tendency of popular taste was to support really good drama on the music halls. Nowadays, of course, people wanted everything of the tit-bitty order, and actors would have to bow to that decision. So far as the legitimate stage was concerned, there had been a disinclination to recognise the signs of the times, the result being that the music hall had progressed while the theatre had declined in public favour. In America no restrictions were placed upon a manager as to what he should produce, or how he should produce it. In England a very different state of things obtained, and it should be the business, if not the duty, of actors and actresses to agitate for new legislation. The Actors' Association should realise that here was something that hindered the art of the drama and of the player. Our licensing laws should be put on the same footing as they are in America. Censorship in this country should be done away with; it was one of the relics of mediæval barbarism. Dramatic art should be free from the licence or the censorship of one man, as it was free in Australia, Canada, and South Africa, and even in Ireland. The Lord Chamberlain had no voice in the latter country. It was only in England, Wales, and Scotland that he interfered with the theatre. Concluding, Mr. Raleigh urged upon his hearers the fact that music-hall audiences were calling for higher art, and they—the actors—could supply it. There was, unquestionably, an enormous audience for one-act plays. Why could not even Hamlet be reduced, so that an artistic one-act performance be given of it?

THE ACTORS' UNION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA

SIR,—May I draw the attention of such of your readers as may be members of the A.A. to the vital importance of a matter which will shortly be placed before all members of the Actors' Association for their votes, through the efforts of the reform party? I refer to the measures—"Exclusion of managers and exclusion of business-managers from the Association." In advocating these measures the reform party are merely adhering to the original idea with which the Association was founded fifteen years ago, namely, an Actors' Association, formed of actors, run by actors, in the interests of actors. The mere fact that in times of past financial stress the aid of managers has been called in is no reason at all for the government of the Association, even in part, by managers. Although possibly well-intentioned, the very doubtful kindness of retaining the Association in a position of even partial dependence on the charity of managers, instead of encouraging it to become self-supporting, gives matter for thought. Has not the maintenance of the Association as a kind of protegé of the managers now for some years to some extent served the managerial interest by minimising the chances of a more efficient combination of actors being formed? I would ask all those who so gladly welcome managers as members of the Association if they, as actors, are equally welcome into the various managers' associations which exist? There are members of the A.A. at present who are also members of the Touring Managers' Association. In the event of a difference of opinion between the Touring Managers' Association and the Actors' Association would it be possible for these gentlemen to take an entirely disinterested view of the case? One cannot drive a bargain on two sides at once, and however sincere the attempt to be fair, the leaning would undoubtedly be (even if unconsciously) towards the stronger interest.

If fifteen years ago actors felt the need of an Association of their own to protect their interests, how infinitely greater is that need to-day! The trusts are creeping in like great octopods, with long feelers out in all directions under the surface squeezing out the individual manager wherever possible. In place of the old paternal government of the manager (were he tyrant or friend) actors have, as often as not, now to deal with the paid officials of a syndicate. Managers themselves have formed associations for their mutual protection; music hall artists have combined; but the actor in the Association still clings to the skirts of the manager, timorous of managing his own affairs.

In response to all those who prate of what the Association owes the managers, I would ask if it be a greater kindness to a man to give him an occasional £10 note, while keeping his services a drug in the market, or deny him the £10 note while putting him in the way of earning a decent livelihood for himself? The present Association does nothing to keep up the wage of the actor. It admits members on so low a qualification that it rather tends to cheapen the actor's services by dragging down the reputation of the good artists who belong to it to the level of the novices, who are admitted for the sake of their subscriptions. Membership is low, and it will remain low until the old standard of qualification (the eighty-two weeks, or something equivalent to this) is required, and until actors are left to manage their own affairs without managerial interference.

An Association of actors only, with a certain standard of qualification for membership; with branches in the provinces tapping that large body of steady workers who tour year in and year out; with a decent economy exercised in London in order to start those provincial branches; with a better membership which would come when these changes had been made, and hence a good fund at the back of it to fight the actor's battles for him—an Association such as this would very soon be a power against the trusts and the tide of amateurs, and that other evil, the short-sighted, greedy manager, who is blinded by his desire for "cheap material" to the fact that with this same "cheap material" he is fast killing the geese which lay the golden eggs, namely, the best public and the best actor.

It is to be hoped that the Association will give serious thought to these vitally important matters, which, owing to the efforts of the reform party, are shortly to be laid before them for their individual attention.—Yours faithfully,

ROSE MATTHEWS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—For forty years I have held aloof from all theatrical—shall I call them?—amalgamations; weird institutions founded for the supposed purpose of benefiting the actor, starting off with a flourish of trumpets like the celebrated Dramatic College, and often enough ending in unsavoury smoke. I have been greatly struck, however, by the fact that in recent days the administration of our charities has greatly improved. They are conducted in an honourable, careful, and businesslike manner by kind, sympathetic men and women, who have nothing to gain, and who devote valuable time and great ability to the work of helping others.

Now, if this can be done with regard to the charities, why is it not done in connection with other institutions with which our calling is concerned? I was pondering this question last week when I found myself touring at Glasgow, and I saw that a meeting of the new Actors' Union was to be held. Therefore, I determined to go and hear what was said, and see whether the new spirit I have mentioned was permeating this new idea. At the same time, I went with the fixed suspicion in my head that the ideas of the Union would be confused and impossible, and that the whole thing was doomed to fail, if it were ever actually floated.

Well, sir, I left the meeting in question—after having signed the paper enrolling myself as a member—with the firm conviction that the Actors' Union was destined to be a splendid success, if actors and actresses will only "stick together" and be in earnest.

At that meeting I saw fifty or sixty provincial actors and actresses, all in deadly earnest. An able chairman presided over the meeting, and maintained a dignity of procedure and discussion that contrasted very favourably with the curious ineptitude displayed at the last general meeting of the Actors' Association. A gentleman from the V.A.F., to whom all thanks are due, most kindly and thoroughly explained the working of his institution, and he even went so far as to explain how and why certain experiments had failed. Others dealt with the economic situation, and we were told that provincial theatres had offered companies 35 or 40 per cent. of the gross, a fact that is sometimes put forward as an excuse for touring managers being obliged to "starve" their companies. I heard with shame and disgust of companies paying their leading man 35s. a week, and of young girls doubling several parts getting 25s., 20s., and even as little as 18s. a week. These miserable and degrading conditions can only be alleviated by the formation of a definite and powerful Union, and I hope that every self-respecting actor and actress in this country will, for the honour of his calling, join the Actors' Union at once. The provinces are thoroughly roused and mean business; I have assured myself of that. The Union will, of course, be of little use in London, where honourable and decent conditions prevail; but, surely, it is for us, who occasionally taste the sweets of a London engagement, and know the pleasures and courtesies of working for honourable managements, to stand up and fight for our poorer brethren, and do what we can to abolish what is little better than a "white slave" traffic, at starvation wages, that prevails in the provinces to-day.

Many people no doubt are in a position to say that they will get nothing by joining the Actors' Union. That is quite true. But, at least, they can do something of which they will always have cause to feel proud.

I was delighted to find that men like Mr. Frank Cooper, and that ladies like Miss Gertrude Kingston had already joined the Union. I appeal to all in their position to come in and help; and then, at last, we shall have indeed a Union of actors that is run for actors by actors; and that, and nothing else, is what an Actors' Union ought to be.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES SUGDEN.

Savage Club, April 19, 1907.

RARELY has Miss Mary Moore looked more charming than she does as Lady Jessica Nepean in the revival of The Liars at the Criterion Theatre. Her three dresses are in summery tones, and she throws superstition to the winds by making her first entrance in green—delicate, but bright, green net over white, with a shimmering design in silver tissue and padded embroideries of flowers and leaves, the décolletage showing a small vest of white lace, while the silver belt has a fold of rose-pink at the back and front. When Lady Jessica appears at the Star and Garter, Shepperford, in the second act, she is dressed in cream spotted silk net, heavily embroidered in guipure, with a full-blown rose tucked into her lacey bodice, pretty puffy elbow sleeves, and a black crinoline hat, with a wreath of roses and a black lace veil which falls to her waist at the back, a delightful finishing touch being given by a little bolero entirely composed of embroidery, and she wears turquoise ornaments. For the last two acts Miss Moore has chosen rose-pink—a clever blending of D'Alençon lace, guipure, and touches of mauve velvet, with the idea of the rose being carried out, not only in colouring, but in the petal-like effect of garlands of pink lace on the skirt, which is edged with a band of mauve, and in the soft effect of the lace and pink embroidery of the dainty bodice.

MISS SPENCER BRUNTON, as the effusive Lady Rosamund Tatton, also wears a frock of pink tulle, embroidered with different shades of pink, a "splash" of tiny gold beads, and a ribbon design that runs from waist to hem. Her prettiest costume, however, is Wedgewood-blue, trimmed in a way that suggests the peculiar tint of an apricot, a scheme which is completed by the appearance of apricots on her big picture hat, with its wide blue bows and twists of silk tulle. Miss Granville looks very handsome in copper-coloured chiffon over orange, embroidered with different shades from mulberry to deep brown, with effective touches of pink and blue. She afterwards appears in violet chiffon over mauve, her hat being the same tint, and she wears a long black feather boa. Miss Dorothy Thomas wears at the beginning of the piece a smoke-grey gown that is in excellent contrast to the vivid colour of her surroundings, and at the end she appears in white satin, under a mauve chiffon cloak. Miss Catherine Dupont's dresses have the happy effect of elaborate simplicity, perhaps the first being the prettiest—a mingling of white chiffon, pale blue moiré, and silk crochet. All the costumes at the Criterion are by Maison Beer, of Paris and London, and the hats by Maison Lewis, of Regent-street.

"THE GREEN-ROOM BOOK" for 1907 will be published on Monday. It contains biographies of all the leading actors, dramatists, and critics of the day brought down to the most recent times, with numerous full-page portraits of the "stars" of the stage. The appendices comprise an editorial review of the dramatic year; also a special review of the Vedrenne-Barker régime at the Court; a full account of the Ellen Terry jubilee celebrations; a synopsis of London playbills for 1906; the French and German theatres in London; new plays in New York, Paris, and Berlin; thirty-eight genealogical tables of well-known theatrical families; "Dramatic Critics and Criticisms," by J. T. Grein and the managing-editor; green-room gleanings in the Law Courts, comprising leading theatrical law cases and judgments of the year; a full list of the theatrical clubs, institutions, and charities of London and New York; a special article by a member of the London Stock Exchange, with table showing capital, dividends for five years, and prices of shares of thirty theatre and music-hall companies; lists of London and provincial theatres and halls; theatrical variety and concert agents, with practical advice to stage aspirants; box-plans of forty London theatres; and obituary for the year. The publishers are Messrs. T. Sealey Clark and Co., Ltd., 1, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Sir Edward and Lady Moss have returned to London from the Riviera, where they have been spending the winter.

Mr. Thomas Barrasford has, by the aid of his Sunday concerts, been enabled to provide 14,000 dinners to the poor of the neighbourhood of Hoxton, and hopes during the summer months to give boots and clothing to the deserving cases.

Mr. John Lawson has engaged Miss Buena Bent to create the leading part in his new production, The Unwritten Law. This lady bears a remarkable resemblance to the central figure in the recent great murder trial in America.

Mr. Gus Elen, who is enjoying a month's trout-fishing in preserved waters at Dulverton, in Somersetshire, has placed a special commission for a song-scena with Edgar Bateman, who assured the comedian he had once enjoyed a similar luxury, but afterwards confessed it was not trout-fishing in preserved water, but "fly-fishing in preserved milk!"

It was reported in the Referee that Mr. Oswald Stoll had withdrawn from the arbitration proceedings, but he was present on Tuesday throughout the sitting, when the case of the artists was again under consideration. On Thursday, when the case for the managers commenced, Mr. George Adney Payne and Mr. Henry Tozer were examined, and on Thursday Mr. Henri Gros and Mr. Walter Gibbons gave evidence. Mr. Ben Nathan and Mr. Ernest Cadle have been heard on behalf of the agents.

Mr. Dick Knowles, it is understood, will be visiting London shortly in order to fulfil some special engagements. It is quite within the bounds of possibility that he will be seen at the Palace Theatre.

At the last general meeting of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund it was announced that that institution must cease to exist unless some strong measures were taken to remodel it. The unanimous opinion of those present was that it would be a lasting shame if the Fund were allowed to die, and with a view of finding out the best means of averting such a disaster a joint committee of members of the Benevolent Fund Committee and the V.A.F. Committee was appointed. A suggestion has now been made by Mr. Horace Marriott that if it could be arranged to hold the annual dinner shortly after the Arbitrator has given his award it would be a suitable occasion for managers and artists to meet together in the cause of charity. Sunday, May 5, is the date suggested. The joint committee will meet shortly and discuss the matter fully.

Mr. Bransby Williams, who is about to visit the Hackney Empire, will have his foot on his native heath, so to speak, as he was born in the Hackney-road. Early in his career he was attached to an East End mission, and addressed meetings. Mr. E. V. Page, the well-known manager and song-writer, did the same thing in the days of his callow youth, and before he attained fame as the writer of "La-di-dah," sung by Nellie Power. For a time Mr. Williams was a tea-sampler, and then a designer of wall-papers—an occupation quite congenial to his artistic temperament. Like the lamented Dan Leno, he draws in more senses than one, and many of his friends treasure sketches from his pencil.

It was a tall order to the contractors at the Alhambra to shift the position of the dress circle without interfering with the performances or in any way inconveniencing audiences. Yet it has been done. After last Saturday night's performance and before the audience assembled on Monday evening the contractors moved the entire grand circle, dropping it eleven inches in front and giving it a tilt of eight inches at the back. The host of workmen toiled incessantly through night and day, and only put the finishing touches to their task at 7.10 on Monday night, the entertainment commencing at 7.45.

At the Palace Theatre a large number of alterations deemed necessary by the London County Council are being carried out; but the ordinary visitor is not aware of it. Every night, when the place is closed, hordes of workmen invade the house, and "oft in the stilly night" are heard the clanging of hammers and the hoarse directions of the foremen. Massive pillars are being changed into more graceful columns; new exits are being evolved; the stage is being thrown back some 20in., and under it some 30 tons of cement are to be laid down. From floor to ceiling the auditorium will be reseated, and the elaborate electric light installation is being remodelled, the entire house being rewired with the latest improvements. Great pains are being taken to mask the alterations, and Mr. Alfred Butt, up to the present, has been quite successful in concealing all signs of putting the "house in order."

Not only Americans in London, but Americans at home, will soon have the opportunity of seeing the "Living Pictures" which the Empire is still presenting. A tour, in fact, has been arranged for the States, where the whole series will go en bloc. A tour has also been arranged for the provinces, so that the principal cities of England will have an opportunity, which has been denied them till now, of seeing the great masterpieces of the picture galleries brought to their own doors. The pictures have been universally conceded to be unique in their lighting, their arrangement, and their presentation.

The great Football Cup final—the blue ribbon of the socker season—to be played between Everton and Sheffield Wednesday at the Crystal Palace to-day, will be shown in its entirety in the animated pictures of "Urbanora" at the Alhambra at half-past nine in the evening. To accomplish this feat the Urban Company has secured the sole rights for bioscoping the contest, and has arranged a special motor service to expedite the developing and printing. Both teams will visit the Alhambra to-night.

Messrs. Jackson and McLaren, two of the champion tree fellers of Australia, will be seen shortly at the London Hippodrome. The audience will be shown how each of these men can bring down a tree fifty inches in circumference in a fraction over a minute. The two men are due at Plymouth to-day, and are bringing with them from Australia a supply of timber sufficient to last them for three months. A special setting, illustrating a scene in the Australian bush, will be provided from snap-shots taken by officials of the Australian Governments.

Les Frasettis, whilst motoring to a little village twenty miles from The Hague, met with a serious accident, a wheel of their motor catching in the train-lines, which run at the side of the road, causing it to swerve and run down a bank into a house. They were particularly fortunate to escape with a severe shaking and a few bruises, as the car was travelling at a good speed, and striking the house with a terrible crash, was completely A[illegible] The pro[illegible] series of pi[illegible] was five o'clock in the afternoon, titled "The [illegible]uble to get back in time for the compliment [illegible]), but eventually succeeded in his kindly ar[illegible]ned Dutch coach, which, after of those in fi[illegible] landed them just in time to

The report that the Grand, Nottingham, is to go on the De Frece Tour shortly is incorrect. The negotiations have fallen through.

Mr. A. Rand, who severed his connection with Mr. Geo. Dance at the Empire, Coventry, last week, is, we understand, shortly taking up another position on the Moss and Stoll circuit.

An important move is projected in connection with Scotland's provincial theatres in the autumn. This will take the form of a combined theatrical and variety programme at several of the theatres weekly, giving, say, three nights of a play and then three of variety business, so catering for all tastes. Mr. E. H. Bostock is understood to be interested in the new arrangements.

The Pavilion, Glasgow, under Mr. Samuel Lloyd's energetic management, is rapidly taking a front place in the list of Glasgow variety theatres. Important structural alterations are in progress, designed to provide a large waiting hall below the street level to accommodate the crowds waiting for admission. Additional bars will also be included in the new plans.

Mr. William Holland writes us respecting his engagement by the New Brighton Tower and Recreation Company. He says: "By my agreement with the company I am responsible for all the departments of their extensive undertaking, including the theatre, ballroom, "Fun Park," side shows, and other branches, except the financial and secretarial."

Mr. Harry Barker, for the second year in succession, has been appointed general-manager of the al-fresco concerts at Great Yarmouth, which for so many years were directed by the lamented Mr. James Chappell. The site has been let on lease to Mrs. S. Lawton, daughter of Mr. Chappell.

Mr. John Kurkamp, the American singing conductor, one of the company appearing at the Brighton Hippodrome, entertained on Friday afternoon, the 12th, a small party of guests at the Dyke Park Hotel, those present including Mrs. Thomas Barrasford, the Mayor of Hove (Ald. Bruce Morison, J.P.), and several pressmen. Mr. Kurkamp proved a genial chairman, and delighted the company with his singing and his short stories of American life. A violin solo was also given very tastefully by Mrs. Barrasford. Mr. Kurkamp was warmly thanked for his hospitality.

Rezene and Robini, the drolls on trapeze and rings, performed in a cage with Mme. Ella's lions at the Palace, Bristol, accepting her challenge on Friday evening, the 12th, for the second house only. They were accompanied by Mme. Ella and her playful pets. The exhibition caused great amusement, but the happily-associated pair have no present intention of taking the title of lion-comiques.

"If there was anything wrong with the posters we display and the photographs we exhibit, you may depend upon it the police authorities would be down on us in a moment" is the opinion of Mr. Nelson Barry, the manager of the Manchester Palace, which house is alleged to have exhibited posters "in the highest degree detrimental to the moral interests of the community." It was pointed out that not only was there a censorship of all posters, but that the particular act pictured in the photographs had been witnessed by the Chief Constable and the chairman of the Watch Committee.

Mr. Percy Broadhead is also emphatic in his defence of living representatives of marble, and says that any minister of religion or member of the Vigilance Association will be admitted to the Hulme Hippodrome, where a living statuary turn is billed this week, on presenting their cards. He undertakes not to use the visitors' names for advertising purposes.

Mr. Arthur Hoskins was much exercised in his mind recently when at the Hippodrome, Ealing, at the exhibition of a certain picture on the Bioscope, and hissed somewhat aggressively. He was requested to leave by an attendant, and later was escorted to the door. He summoned both the manager, Mr. Edward James, and the attendant, and the case was disposed of yesterday by the summonses being withdrawn, and each of the parties expressing regret and paying their own costs.

On the stage of the Empire, Glasgow, on Saturday night, just previous to the rise of the curtain on Mr. Herbert Darnley's sketch, The Skirmishers, Mr. Haldane, general manager for Mr. Herbert Darnley, was presented by the ladies and gentlemen of the company with a silver card-case as a token of sincere friendship and esteem, following upon a handsome money present by Mr. Herbert Darnley. Both gifts were a surprise. Mr. Haldane, who leaves The Skirmishers company to take up again his duties as general secretary to Mr. Herbert Darnley at the offices in London, returned his sincere thanks. Mr. Frank Howard succeeds Mr. B. Haldane as manager of The Skirmishers and Moving In companies.

Miss Patty Yole has produced two new numbers this week at the Lyric, Liverpool, which were an instantaneous success.

Miss Katie Marsh finishes to-night, at the Palace, Blackpool, a three months' tour with great success everywhere.

A grand matinée (under the patronage of the Lord Mayor of Belfast, Earl of Shaftesbury) was held on Saturday, 13th inst., at the Palace Theatre, in the linen metropolis. The proceeds are to be devoted to the Belfast Theatrical Charity Fund and Theatrical and Music-Hall Benevolent Funds, London. There was a good audience, and the programme provided was certainly most varied and comprehensive. By kind permission of Messrs. Fred W. Warden and J. H. Saville, Miss Ethel Campbell, Miss Maggie Bowman, Mr. T. J. Morton, Karr and Kooney, and Peter Bermingham came over from the Theatre Royal, and Mr. Harry Downs, with his usual courtesy, permitted Miss Molly Doon, Messrs. A. Woodville, F. Vollker, the Royal Quintette, and the College Boys, from the Hippodrome, to appear, and they were most successful. Mr. Sinclair Neill sent over Mr. Tom H. Solly, and Mr. John A. Walker, with characteristic kindness, sent the following from the Empire: "The Duchess of Tooting" Co., Stevens and Rennior, and Miss Minnie Hunt and Mr. Rhys Thomas. All the artists at the Palace contributed items, Chirgwin's success especially being most pronounced.

The entire proceedings were most enthusiastic, and during an interval Mr. Fred W. Warden appeared on the stage, accompanied by Messrs. W. Laird, D. Motherwell, H. E. Lynas, and George Harris, manager of the Palace. Mr. Warden, speaking as chairman and hon. treasurer of the fund, expressed his appreciation of the magnificent manner in which the public had again supported a movement, not only for the benefit of the theatrical charities, but for the benefit of local public institutions. On behalf of the committee and himself he wished to thank Mr. Harry Downs, of the Hippodrome; Mr. Sinclair Neill, of the Alhambra; and Mr. J. A. Walker, of the Empire, for their kindly assistance in giving members of their companies permission to take part.

Artists holding collecting cards for the Music Hall Home are requested to forward them to the hon. treasurer in order that the amounts may be duly announced. It is intended to close the Fund at an early date.

Miss Katie Lawrence desires us to contradict the rumour that she is going to America in August. It is true she has had a tempting offer, but is at present undecided.

The sad circumstnces of the death of Mr. J. D. Kirtland, the manager of the Foresters', has excited much sympathy for his widow and relatives. The deceased manager before accepting his position under the Macnaghten régime was manager of the Empire, Brighton.

Miss Anna De Grey, secretary of the Ladies' Guild, desires to thank Mrs. Barnard, Miss Erris, Miss Edna Rimforth, Mrs. Geo. Smythson, and Harwood's Juveniles for donations of clothing, and Miss Madoline Rees for a donation of 2s. 6d.

In The Hindu's Revenge, to be produced at the Theatre Royal, Stratford, on Monday, we are to have the weird sensation of a struggle for life and death between a python and Miss Geraldine Montrose, who will be supported by a strong company. A bungalow set will give the necessary atmosphere, and the ophidian drama will be well dressed. It is from the pen of Mr. Wal Pink, the author of so many of Mr. Joe Elvin's sketches.

Mr. Tom Craven did so well for Mr. Jesse Sparrow at the Camberwell Empire with the sketch The Lady in Red that Mr. Sparrow has arranged with him to produce the new musical duologue—an entertainment long anticipated and widely advertised—The Understudy. In this original musical interlude Mr. Craven impersonates no less than six diverse characters, and a moral and plot mortice the whole thing.

Mr. Ernest Ch. Gittins' production of his condensed version of Il Trovatore will be one of the chief features at the Empire, Holborn, next week. With a cast including Mesdames Una Bruckshaw and Elizabeth Elliston, Messrs. Saxton Granville and Albert Chapman, late of the Carl Rosa and Moody-Manners companies, lovers of opera should have a treat.

Miss Flo Penley and Mr. George English will be bringing to the Middlesex on Monday the humorous sketch, by Brien McCullough, entitled Two Runaway Girls. The trifle has an ingenious plot, and is full of gaiety and fun. A comic boxing scene is one of the farcical developments, and both the performers mentioned are well fitted with parts. Miss Penley is an old favourite with Mr. Graydon's patrons.

Miss Hanid Alexander returns from Germany on May 2, having completed a most successful tour. During her stay she was offered the Keith and Orpheum circuit in America, and also a year's engagement in Berlin. Existing contracts, however, prevent her acceptance of these offers.

Mr. Denman, the Marlborough-street magistrate, referred on Monday to the greatly improved conduct of the crowds waiting entrance at the London theatres. In a charge of obstructing the police it was urged against Harry Johansen that, when outside the Oxford, he pushed as hard as he could into the crowd, and several women were hurt against some railings. Johansen's defence was that he was merely trying to protect a young lady who was with him. This form of disorder, remarked Mr. Denman, in imposing a fine of 20s., was common in England some years ago, but, by the combined efforts of managers of places of amusement and the public, a great improvement had been effected. All ought to assist the police in this matter.

Mrs. John Lawson's success with The Devil's Sunday still continues, and it is pleasing to note that this clever lady is well booked. During the past week this episode has been presented at the Duchess, Balham, where it has drawn large houses. Next week it will be seen at the Grand, Clapham, and on April 29 at the Canterbury and Euston. Mrs. Lawson has accepted a new work by Mrs. Pole, which she hopes to produce in August at Camberwell.

Miss Lilian Dundas and company, including Mr. Laurence Leyton and Mr. Harry Kendall, will appear at the Chelsea Palace on Monday in Mr. Cecil Raleigh's successful "Episode with a Moral," The Doom of Delilah. Miss Dundas's highly finished acting has been most favourably received at all the halls visited, and goes to make, with the excellent work of Mr. Leyton and Mr. Kendall, a unique production.

Mme. Helen Shelley, première danseuse, sister of the popular actor-vocalist, Herbert Shelley, and daughter of the old-time journalist and dramatic author, A. C. Shelley, has opened a dancing academy at 55, Sydney-street, South Kensington. Many of her pupils occupy leading positions on the stage to-day.

Messrs. Sherek and Braff, the international variety agents, have removed their offices from 10, Leicester-place, W.C., to 17, Lisle-street, W.

Little Dott Moss, who is so well known in the dramatic world, hade her début on the variety stage on April 1 at the Tivoli, Grimsby, when some of the warmest applause of the evening was awarded to this talented little lady. Judging from her receptions, she bids fair to become as big a success on the music-halls as she was in drama.

The latest quotations for music-hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1 7/8; Canterbury, ½; Empire (15s. paid) 1½, ditto (10s. paid) 1½; London Pavilion Ordinary 4⅜, ditto Preferred 5; London Coliseum, ½; Metropolitan, ⅜; Moss Empire 4⅝, ditto 4 per cent. Preference 4½; Oxford, 6⅞; Palace, 10s.; Tivoli, 5⅞; Variety Consolidated Theatres, ⅞.

Mr. Charles Bertram, whose conjuring tricks and illusions for a quarter of a century did much to divert and mystify the amusement-loving public, has left his widow and daughters in sadly straitened circumstances. The directors of the Palace Theatre, on learning the facts, immediately offered that house for a special benefit matinée, and a strong committee, including the Marquis of Dufferin, the Earl of Lonsdale, Lord Glenesk, and the Lord Mayor of London was formed. The matinée is fixed for Tuesday next, when an exceptionally good programme will be submitted. Miss Sybil Arundale, Miss Margaret Cooper, Miss Kitty Gordon, Mr. Louis Bradfield, Miss Marie Tempest, Mr. George Grossmith, Little Tich, Mr. Courtice Pounds, Mr. George Robey, and Mr. Lewis Waller are among those who have already proffered their services. During his long career Mr. Bertram, by his gratuitous services, did much to aid hospitals and other benevolent institutions in all parts of the country.

Miss Lily Burnand, with her alluring attractions and excellently chosen songs, has been capturing all hearts at the Empire, Bristol, where packed houses have been applauding her in all her songs, but especially in her up-to-date number concerning the flying-machine and M. Santos-Dumont. This has been written by C. W. Murphy and Harry Castling, and Bristolians are whistling it everywhere. Miss Burnand's sweet comeliness is set off by a beautiful dress of royal purple, in which she burlesques the Gibson girl.

Don Juan A. Caicedo, the king of the wire, has been presenting his original and daring act recently at Belfast, Walsall, and Glasgow. The grace, the agility, and the intrepidity of the performance have taken the Glaswegians captive; and the enthusiasm of the good people of Belfast knew no bounds when Caicedo did his wonderful bounding somersaults on a thin filament of steel no less than forty-five feet from the ground.

"Les Grandes" diamond statues, represented by Walter Seldom, Max Seldom, Franz de la Paix (Paris), and Mlle. Rita (Paris), are the latest novelty in nude departures, and a special performance of the act will be given at the Empress, Brixton, on Thursday afternoon next.

Primavesi thanks the following artists for their kind enquiries and sympathy at Eastbourne last week during his severe illness (rheumatic fever):—Miss Edie Anderson, Mr. Walter Norman, Derenda and Green, Mr. Jack Wayho, Mr. Phil Bransby, and Mr. Russell. They will be glad to hear that he is improving every day under the care of Dr. McKetnie, Devonshire Lodge, Eastbourne.

Mr. Charles D. Wright will produce a new comedy duologue, entitled The Rehearsal, at the Hippodrome, Hastings, on Monday next. In the representation he will be associated with Miss Katie Blair.

Mr. Austin Boyd and Miss Trixie Gilfain have produced their new act, of which a feature is the introduction by the lady of the Irish bagpipes. We hope to see it shortly in London, where it is certain to repeat its provincial success.

Miss Jennie Johns, who was personally complimented recently at the Empire, Holloway, by Mr. Will Collins on her artistic success, has a number of new lyrics in study, and will shortly produce a novel gipsy song by Bert H. Delmar.

Mr. Ernest Rivarez, late of The Night of the Party company, presented at the Foresters' this week an original dramatic musical sketch, entitled Monsieur Lepinard, which has many interesting features, among them being an angels' chorus and a vision scene.

Miss Florence Elliott and Chichelets made their appearance in a smart vocal and dancing act at the Bedford on Wednesday, when owing to their success they were retained for the rest of the weeks. One of the hits of their act is the song "It's a Girl," sung by Harvey Rayne. The words and music are by that clever writer, Bert H. Delmar. The number is published by Price and Reynolds.

Regan and Ryan are scoring heavily on the Barrasford tour with a new entertainment. They are re-engaged by Mr. Robert Arthur for next season, and after pantomime they sail for Australia to fulfil an engagement with Mr. Harry Rickards.

A tremendous array of well-known artists will, as usual, positively appear on the night of May 2 at the concert (the twentieth) to be held in the great hall of the Northern Polytechnic in aid of the funds of the London General (horse and motor) Omnibus Drivers and Conductors' Sick and Burial Club, Holloway, Stoke Newington, "Favourite," Islington, Hampstead, Oxford-street, and Muswell Hill. In addition to the names of thirty-nine well-known concert turns, those of some two dozen first-class music-hall artists figure on the third prospective announcement; but that Napoleon of managers, Mr. Alf Bishop, again has charge of the stage, and will doubtless once more demonstrate how easy it is to get a quart into a pint receptacle when one knows how.

Mr. Bertram C. Ross, who enjoys what, alas! must be an ephemeral distinction—that of being the youngest manager in London, has been presented by the staff of the Duchess, Balham, with a leather travelling trunk and a silver-mounted walking-stick. Mr. Archie Hulley, the youngest London musical director, said it was a spontaneous expression of the good feeling of the staff towards him. Mr. Ross said that he prized the gift very much indeed, and it would always pleasantly remind him of their kindness.

A new and original musical extravaganza, entitled L'Atelier Sans-Dessus Dessous, by the Estraverleys, is to be seen next week at the Hippodrome, Crouch End.

The famous native choir from Jamaica are now almost fully booked up for this year, and have but few vacant dates. At Southport, last week, remarkable business was done, and on their last night an audience numbering 2200 crowded the Cambridge Hall, and over 1000 were unable to obtain admission.

Miss Helen Charles (daughter of the late Madame Lennard and Tom Charles) has been for the last fortnight confined to her bed with an attack of bronchitis. Mr. Macnaghten, under whose management she had been appearing, has very kindly postponed her dates. She is now on the high road to recovery, and hopes to entertain her friends on Sunday next at her residence, Welburn House, Hartlepool, and to celebrate her twenty-first birthday. Accompanied by her husband, Mr. Harry Burns, the popular agent, she will have an American tour in June.

In the King's Bench Division, before the Lord Chief Justice and Justices Darling and Phillimore, on Saturday came up the Palace Theatre appeal. In the case of the King v. Denman, ex parte the Palace Theatre Company, a rule had been obtained calling upon Mr. Denman, the magistrate, to state a case in regard to a conviction under the London Building Act of 1894. Their lordships decided that the conviction should be upheld. The magistrate convicted on the ground that the illuminated advertisement, made of wood, with a design in ornamental plaster, was a building or structure within the meaning of the Act. An affidavit by Mr. Denman was read, stating that he decided the case on fact and not upon law, no question of law arising. In his judgment, there was no necessity to state a case. Mr. Bodkin, who supported the appeal, said that the structure did not really project beyond the building line, because a turret in the main building came out further than the frame in question. He asked that the rule should be made absolute. The Lord Chief Justice agreed that the question was one of fact, and therefore discharged the rule. Justices Darling and Phillimore concurred. There are evidently some remarkable vagaries in the interpretation of the London Building Act.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Messrs. Francis and Day have, among other noteworthy purchases made during the last few days, secured "The Laureate Dance," by J. Follit and Arthur Morris, the inventors of the now world-famous Veleta, and the following songs: "Knock your heads together" (sung by Michael Nolan), by Harry Castling and C. W. Murphy; "Zulieoo" (featured by Billy Hobbs), by Scott McKenzie; "He went on his way rejoicing" (Miss Josie Mooney), by Phil Ray and Walter Munroe; and a new number by those favourite writers F. W. Leigh and H. E. Pether, entitled "The only home that's home for me."

Mr. Billy Williams's amusing song, his own composition, entitled "John, go and put your trousers on!" has been added to Messrs. Francis and Day's "Sixpenny Pops," being No. 364 of the series.

Miss Maidie Scott produced on Monday a new character song, by Messrs. Alfred Wood and George Ess, which proved an instantaneous success. The "gods" absolutely revelled in the refrain, and the rest of the house showed its appreciation in an equally hearty, if less boisterous, manner.

Mr. Harry Randall's new song, "All he's left me is the old cracked basin that we strain the 'taturs in," is from the pen of T. W. Connor, who has fitted to this comic plaint of a neglected wife a lilting melody which will be a sure favourite with the frequenters of Olympus.

Following the announcement in these columns that Messrs. Francis and Day's Summer Books for the use of seaside entertainers were ready, comes the interesting news that so great was the demand for copies that the huge first editions of the three volumes were entirely exhausted in four days. Large reprints have been prepared, and are now ready of Vol. I., Fifty Humorous Songs; Vol. II., Fifty Coon and Soubrette Songs; and Vol. III., Fifty Ballads, Descriptive, and Chorus Songs.

Mr. F. V. St. Clair has provided Coram, the famous ventriloquist, with several winning numbers. The latest are a recitation, "Bill did," and a touching little ditty, "I'm only a little bit of wood." The same author has found a winner for James and Alexander, in the shape of a scena, entitled The Bouquet.

Moss' Empires have bought three novel songs by Denham Harrison and Richard Elton. One of them, "Follow your captain's lead," will, it may be predicted, undoubtedly become a popular favourite.

Mr. George Robey is featuring with enormous success a new song, written and composed by E. W. Rogers, entitled "Now laugh." The publishing rights have been secured by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.

The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., will shortly issue in their popular sixpenny edition, Mr. T. E. Dunville's latest, "Just my luck," written and composed by Alf. Ellerton. Mr. Dunville has been featuring this number at the Tivoli, and it is a signal success.

Two great al-fresco songs, "Heliotrope" (Geo. Arthurs), sung by Whit Cunliffe, and "Presents" (Medley Barrett and Nat Clifford), sung by Fred Earle, are in great demand by all pierrots for the coming season, and the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., predict a great demand for both numbers.

THE PARAGON.

MATINEE FOR LONDON'S CRIPPLES.

Thursday was quite a field day at the Paragon. That something of special importance was taking place was evidenced by the gay decorations outside the building and by the crowd which throughout the afternoon held the approaches to the establishment. To come to the point, the occasion was the visit of the Lord Mayor of London in connection with a matinée which Mr. H. H. Wells was giving in aid of his Lordship's Fund for Crippled Children. The box occupied by the Lord Mayor, as well as the other boxes and the frontages of the balconies, bore the City colours, while the civic emblem of the St. George's Cross and the dagger was also to be seen in various parts of the house.

Mr. H. H. Wells, who as everybody knows is a director of the Canterbury and Paragon, came before the footlights during the afternoon, along with the Lord Mayor, and delivered an interesting speech. "On the present occasion," he said, "I venture to inform you that I have recently been elected a member of the Corporation of the City of London, and I thought that it would be a very fitting occasion on my part to celebrate that auspicious event by inviting you to come here this afternoon to support a scheme which has been inaugurated by the Lord Mayor—who, I am sure, you will be delighted to welcome for the first time in this hall—in aid of his Lordship's fund for the benefit of crippled boys and girls in London. There are 7,000 of those unfortunates in the Metropolis, and the Lord Mayor's idea is to raise £60,000, and with that money to establish a home at some seaside place where these poor children can receive proper medical care and attention and a certain amount of manual training which will enable many of them to gain a livelihood. The scheme has the cordial approval of their Majesties the King and Queen, and I have a letter from Sir Dighton Probyn in which he encloses two cheques for 100 guineas each as donations from their Majesties towards the fund. I have to express my gratitude to Mr. Charles Beecham, the manager of this hall, for the very able assistance he has rendered me and for the magnificent programme he has placed before you. I have also to thank the orchestra and the staff and the artists for their appearing without fees of any kind. There is no body of men and women who do more for the cause of charity than variety artists."

The Lord Mayor, who was most enthusiastically received on coming forward to speak, said that he thought himself very fortunate in the election of Mr. H. H. Wells as a member of the Corporation of London. He was greatly encouraged to see such a large audience, and he had to thank most sincerely his hearers, the artists, Mr. Wells, and everybody who had assisted to make the function what it was—a success.

Among those who were on the stage during the speech-making were Mr. Fred Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beecham, and Mr. and Mrs. Worland S. Wheeler. Mr. David Alexander, assisted by Mr. David Cowis, had charge of the stage arrangements.

A goodly number of artists turned up to assist in the entertainment portion of the function, and these were—Baby Baker, the Bensons, Marguerite Broadfoote, Victoria Dagmar and clown, the Dandies, Tots Davis, Dora Deveen, T. E. Dunville, Lilian Elfreda, G. H. Elliott, Fielding and Hull, Bertha Goddard, Clarisse Heney, Lee and Kingston, J. P. Ling, Sam Mayo, Pete and Juno, Jessie Preston, Phil Ray, George Robey, the Sisters St. Julian, the Stella Girls, and Harry Tate. Ruffell's animated pictures were also among the attractions.

THE V.A.F. ANNUAL MEETING.

The first annual general meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation was held at the Empire Theatre, Camberwell, on Sunday. Mr. Joe O'Gorman, who was warmly received, opened the meeting shortly after half-past four. In the course of his remarks he said:—"When I left for Africa on July 14 this little Association had grown to be a very healthy child, and was well on the road to success. When I returned, I am sorry to say that a certain few gentlemen had captured the Association. I am nothing if not candid, and whether you like it or not, I am going to tell you the truth. There have been such false reports circulated all over the country that I think now is the time for every member of this organisation to know the cause of these reports, and whether the Executive Committee are to blame for the action they have taken. We come, then, down to the meeting at the Surrey, when we were committed to the policy of an Alliance, on which I, for one, had not been consulted at all. We were in the middle of the fight, and, considering that we had given our promise that there would be no strike because it was repugnant to our wishes, every member of the Federation will admit that we fought, having been so committed, as one man. Another meeting was held at the Surrey Theatre, when our secretary arose and made an excellent speech, and said: 'You are now the proprietors of the handsomest theatre in the world.' Now let me tell you that I can speak for dozens of persons in the building at the time, and they all thought the Scala Theatre was going to be a variety theatre pure and simple. I was asked for a cheque for the £1200 to pay a month's rent, and I declined to sign it.

Mr. Fred Millis asked at whose instigation the Scala was taken.

On being pressed, Mr. O'Gorman stated that Mr. Gerald was responsible.

Mr. Millis: Did the stars promise to appear there?

Mr. O'Gorman: No.

Mr. Millis: Why were we misled and told that they were going to appear?

Mr. O'Gorman: I personally insisted upon Mr. Joe Elvin, who is engaged with Mr. Payne at a considerable salary for thirty weeks in the year for the next six years, not appearing. I told Mr. Elvin that it would not be wise to prejudice those engagements by appearing at the Scala Theatre.

Mr. Adderley Howard: If the Executive Committee were against taking the Scala Theatre, now was it that the majority allowed the minority to take it?

Mr. O'Gorman: Because Mr. Gerald had negotiated a contract.

Mr. Frank Gerald, general secretary, in submitting his report and balance-sheet for the first year of the Federation, said: This Federation was christened on Sunday, Feb. 11, 1906, when Albert Voyce gave it the name of "The Variety Artists' Federation." It was born a week after it was christened, Feb. 18, when Wal Pink threw down the first shilling on the table, and Fred Herbert, acting as hon. treasurer pro tem., picked it up. Since that day 171,640 other shillings have been paid in to the coffers of the V.A.F. Starting with one small room at 28, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C., at a rental of £30 per annum and two clerks, we have now two floors of the building and a staff of seventeen clerks, and pay £115 yearly in rent. We have 110 agencies in the provinces and abroad; and we have enrolled 4516 members; £2800 has been received in subscriptions, £610 in donations, £429 in death levies, £3963 2s. 9d. in donations and strike levies, and £446 13s. 4d. has been loaned to members to assist them to travel to engagements. The registration of the V.A.F. as a trade union is another landmark in the year's history, and a mark that will stand out, perhaps, more vividly than any other. It has been a matter of considerable difficulty to adapt our rules to the requirements of the Trade Union Acts, but this has at last been brought about through our solicitors, Messrs. Morris and Rickards, and Counsel W. M. S. Knight, and hon. counsel, and the Federation was duly registered as a trade union on March 21 last.

Referring to the Scala Theatre, Mr. Gerald said: The Scala Theatre, I believed, would become the home of the music-hall profession. I had the idea of having our offices there, of it becoming the music hall exchange. That was the main idea in my mind in agreeing to the Scala Theatre being taken.

Mr. O'Gorman: May I ask Mr. Gerald who are the stars who promised and then withdrew? That is a fair question. Joe Elvin did not promise.

Joe Elvin: Quite right, Mr. Chairman, I did not. I brought my contracts to the Executive Committee, and showed them that I was liable for breach of contract on something like 200 contracts, and I said, "If you pass it that I appear, I will appear."

Mr. Gerald: I did not say that Joe Elvin had promised to appear. The Brothers McNaughton promised, together with Miss Alice Lloyd.

Mr. O'Gorman: The McNaughtons and Miss Alice Lloyd were sailing for America on the Wednesday, and could only have appeared for one night. Arthur Roberts was on the Conciliation Board, and so was Wal Pink, and could not have appeared had they been ever so willing.

Arthur Roberts: I think that Mr. Gerald has been rather moderate. I will do him the justice to say that I partly promised. I had already broken one, and on looking up my contracts, I found that I should have broken a contract which had not come into force. I had also a writ to the tune of £1000. Therefore, I went the first night and sat in the stalls to show that my thoughts were with you.

John F. Preston: I can say this in connection with the Scala. When Mr. Gerald spoke to me first about it he said undoubtedly we shall get many of the stars. Had I known that the stars were not going to appear, I can assure you that I should not have suggested the title A Night With the Stars.

Mr. Mountford considered that the Scala was one of the biggest levers used during the music hall war. "I claim, if we never had opened it, if we had brought the war to an end without opening it, it would have been money well spent. Here you are, men who have gone through a fight, sitting here and holding a post-mortem on our actions. We all did our best, and I stand here and say there is no harm in disagreeing with the opinions of your fellow committeemen. It is impossible to find any 126 men who agree on one subject."

Mr. George Gray seconded the resolution, and the secretary's report and balance-sheet was put to the meeting and carried unanimously.

Mr. C. C. Bartram, in his capacity of managing-editor of the Performer, gave some interesting particulars of that publication, and the account thereof was adopted. The agenda was then reached.

Mr. Charles Coborn moved: (1) That, in the opinion of this meeting, in order to place the Federation in line with all other similar institutions, a president, and one or more vice-presidents should be appointed, who must be members of the Variety Artists' Federation. (2) That in the best interests of the Federation it is desirable that the Press should be fully represented at our general meetings.

No. 1 suggestion was put to the meeting, after discussion, only two hands showing in favour. Before putting No. 2 suggestion, Mr. Coborn asked Mr. Mitchell whether it was usual for the Press to be present at meetings, and on being answered in the negative, he asked permission to withdraw the resolution.

Mr. John F. Preston moved that Clause 18 in Book of Rules be altered to read: "The secretary shall be elected annually by votes of the whole of the members of the Federation, and not by the executive committee only."

Mr. Cliquot seconded the resolution.

Mr. Monte Bayly proposed an amendment that the secretary shall be elected annually by the votes of the whole of the executive committee members in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Clemart: At the present moment I distinctly object to any secretary being elected by the main body of the Federation. The main body of the Federation do not know what is required of the secretary. You elect the executive committee to run your Federation, surely to goodness you can trust them to elect a secretary. After remarks from Mr. Mitchell it was carried that the secretary shall be elected annually by members of the executive committee in the United Kingdom, voting by ballot.

Mr. George Gray proposed: "That an Inner Council be formed, comprised of twelve members elected from the executive committee, including chairman, vice-chairman, and secretary, to which body all disputes arising in committee, proposals of alterations of the constitution, or other drastic reforms, shall be submitted for consideration, approval, or otherwise, such Inner Council to be constituted a Court of Appeal, from whose decision a special meeting in town and provinces simultaneously held on an appointed date, and a three-fourths majority vote of such meetings shall overrule such decision."

Mr. Walter Munro seconded the resolution.

Mr. Mountford called the chairman's attention to Rule 25, and asked if this and the next resolution on the agenda had been published as per this rule.

The chairman thought not, and that it would be better to now adjourn until after the Arbitrator's award had been given, and to carry the balance of the agenda over until that meeting.

Mr. Clemart said that his first resolution was ruled not unconstitutional, therefore could be considered. He moved, "That the quorum of the executive committee be ten," and added to this "that the quorum, if there are not more than ten present, must be unanimous."

Mr. T. M. Paul moved an amendment to this resolution, "That no important measures be taken by the executive committee unless a quorum of fifteen be in attendance, the measures to be approved of by ten of the members," but on it being pointed out that there would be a difficulty in defining the words, "important measures," also in getting fifteen members together at the same time, he withdrew the amendment.

The Chairman put Mr. Clemart's resolution, which was carried, and the meeting was adjourned until after the Arbitrator had given his award.

A vote of thanks was passed to the directors of the Empire Theatre, Camberwell, which was responded to by Mr. Harry Bawn, on behalf of Mr. Sparrow, himself, and the directors.

A vote of thanks to the chairman, proposed by Mr. Wal Pink, seconded by Mr. Millis, concluded the meeting.

THE V.A.F. COMMITTEE.

Below are to be found the names of candidates for the Executive Committee of the Variety Artists' Federation. The forty-nine candidates receiving the highest number of votes are elected for three years. The poll closes at 12 noon on Saturday next.

Mr. Editor,—Sir,—In your notice last week of trial turns at the New Cross Empire, you style us as Pollods. It should have been Pollard Bros. and Kitty Grey (the Lilliputian Oddities).

Mr. Edmond Bosanquet has been booked for America by Mr. Alfred E. Aarons, manager for Klaw and Erlanger. He opens in New York in October.

DEATH OF BEATRICE WORTH.

Everyone connected with the profession will hear with deep regret of the death of Beatrice Worth, comedienne (wife of Sam Shipley). Miss Worth had been suffering for some eight months from an ulcerated stomach, but had recovered sufficiently to be able to appear at the Hippodrome, Stockton-on-Tees, on Monday, April 8. She performed every night during the week right up to Friday, when a relapse prostrated her, and she passed away at noon on Saturday after a few hours' suffering. Miss Worth was thirty-two years of age, and is sister of Miss Ada Twibell, who travelled from Carlisle to attend the funeral, which took place at the Weaste Cemetery, Manchester. During her severe illness in Stockton Miss Worth was lovingly attended to by Mrs. Thomas, of the Royal Oak. We are sure Mr. Sam Shipley has the deep sympathy of the profession in his sad bereavement.

THE LATE MISS BEATRICE WORTH.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—Sir Henry Irving.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

DEATH OF WILLIAM HAMILTON.

It is with great regret that we announce the death of Mr. William Hamilton, of the original Hamilton Brothers, of Hamilton's Excursions fame, which took place at his residence in London on the 12th inst. The body was cremated at Golder's-hill, Hampstead, on Monday, the chief mourners being A. and V. Hamilton (sons), H. Judson and R. Woodhead (sons-in-law), and J. King (brother-in-law of the deceased). Mr. Hamilton underwent a serious operation in October last, from the effects of which he never recovered. He had been ill for some time before his death; and the show had been successfully carried on by his sons, Archie and Victor Hamilton. The Hamilton family gave their first exhibition at the Linwood Gallery in 1848, and were the pioneers of dioramic excursions.

THE LATE MR. WILLIAM HAMILTON.

Miss Dorothy Rundell, who is playing for the Muswell Hill Dramatic Society next Wednesday, has for some considerable time been studying under Miss Kate Rorke at the Guildhall School, and has shown such promise that Mr. Oswald Stoll will give her a leading part in the very next sketch to be produced on his tour.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

COLLINS'S.

On Monday, April 15, a new sketch, by Percival H. T. Sykes, entitled "THE STORM; OR, JEAN RUSSEAU'S LAST PICTURE."

Jean Russeau ..... Mr. Percy Murray
Philippe ..... Mr. Herbert Segerton
Cure Lacelles ..... Mr. Charles Frome
Suzell ..... Miss Helena Parsons
Camille Russeau ..... Miss Lena Penrose

Grimly sensational is Mr. Percival H. T. Sykes's latest sketch, the gloomy nature of the theme being unrelieved by any touches of comedy. It is based upon the old story of a woman's perfidy and a man's deadly revenge. Described as a French story, the one scene represents the home of Jean Russeau, a clever artist, who has just completed a picture for the Salon, by the sale of which he hopes to make good the heavy loss he has sustained by an unfortunate business speculation. The painting is called "The Madonna," and the artist's wife, Camille, has acted as his model. From a conversation between husband and wife we learn how Jean lost his money. He entrusted it to Camille's brother, who invested the whole amount in the purchase of mining shares, which eventually proved worthless; and now the artist is so poor that he is compelled to use their living-room as a studio. Jean is an absinthe drinker, and so, too, is Philippe, a brother artist who pays him a visit, and announces that their old friend the Cure Lascelles, is in Paris, and intends paying Russeau a visit. Their conversation is interrupted by the arrival of the venerable priest, who relates to Jean how his nephew, ruined by a woman, threw himself into the Seine. On his dead body was found her portrait. The priest's attention is called to the picture, which Jean is about to send to the Salon, and to his horror he recognises the face of the woman who caused his nephew, in a moment of desperation, to commit suicide. He informs Jean that his wife's so-called brother has no existence; but is a man with whom Camille lived. Camille, little suspecting the revelations that have been made in her absence, returns. She has to face an infuriated husband, whose feelings are intensified by the absinthe he has so freely imbibed. She begs for mercy and pardon, but the man means murder. She switches off the electric light, and crouches behind the picture. Russeau, intent on destroying the painting, thrusts the knife through the canvas, and the weapon enters the breast of the faithless wife. "You've painted your last picture—the guillotine," she cries, as she falls dead at his feet. But Jean escapes arrest as a murderer, for when he is discovered lying by the side of his dead wife, he also has joined the great majority. Mr. Percy Murray gave a powerful embodiment of Jean Russeau, and was well supported by Miss Lena Penrose as the false wife, who pays the penalty with her life. Mr. Charles Frome, though a little uncertain of his words on the first night, was good as the Cure Lacelles; Mr. Herbert Segerton was satisfactory as Philippe; and Miss Helena Parsons also deserves favourable mention for her excellent impersonation of Suzell. The stage effects are by Mr. Frank Clinton; and the storm which gives its title to the new production was extremely realistic.

The general company at Collins's this week includes Mr. Harry Randall, who, having concluded his pantomime engagement, has returned to the halls with new songs. As usual, domestic topics form the basis of his ditties, and in "No more gardening out-of-doors for me" he comically describes how he cultivates horticulture in his own house, and so defies the vagaries of the weather. Next, in the familiar character of a dame, Mr. Randall tells the story of a broken-up home in his own humorous style. This is a capital chorus song. Mr. G. W. Hunter is also here, and with his ditties and jokelets fully maintains his popularity. Miss Peggy Pryde is as energetic and as vivacious as ever, and meets with a cordial reception. Sinclair and Parr are excellent vocalists, who score with a medley of popular Irish songs. The Maples are very successful in their act, How to Treat a Burglar; and the Daunton-Shaw troupe of trick cyclists, consisting of two men and three young and charming ladies, give an exceedingly clever and graceful performance. Mr. Arthur Lennard has a capital song in "The boy and the eagle," and the old favourite, "Mother," with the touch of pathos in the last verse, is greeted with loud applause. Mr. Bert Coote's Yankee-Doodle Girls give a very smart show; Miss Rosie Bartlett, a dainty comedienne, is also well received; and the Imperial Bioscope depicts the adventures of a too enthusiastic billiard player. Mr. Alfred Selwyn has been appointed the general-manager at this hall; and Mr. Edmund Leslie is the assistant-manager. The ladies' band has been replaced by an orchestra conducted by Mr. George Richardson.

HOLBORN EMPIRE.

The invasion of London by the Scotch comedian still proceeds. This week Mr. Donald Macdougall, whose name emphatically proclaims his native land, has made his first appearance in the Metropolis at the Holborn Empire. Mr. Macdougall, who, we believe, is not related in any way to the London County Councillor who has shown a warm interest in variety theatres, wears the garb of ancient Gaul, and there can be no doubt regarding the genuineness of his northern brogue. He has made a decidedly favourable impression by his undeniable vivacity and humour. There is nothing particularly distinctive or original in his methods, but he is evidently a comedian of experience, and can with confidence be recommended as a good turn. An important engagement is that of Miss Madge Lessing, the popular musical comedy artist, who is supported by a number of graceful young girls. Opening in her pretty scena, "Snowland," Miss Lessing not only presents a very charming appearance in a costume appropriate to the wintry scene, but gives the audience a delightful specimen of her ability as a vocalist. Next she appears as a Dutch girl, and in the garb peculiar to Holland appear other girls and boys, who join in the chorus of the song and assist Miss Lessing in a quaint dance. In the final glimpse we get of her she is carrying off pickback one of the small Dutch lads already mentioned.

The Six Brothers Luck, in their sketch, The Grand Hotel, work very hard in a performance distinguished by abundance of fun and frolic of the broadest kind. Much depends upon the two waiters at the hotel, and the remarkable tricks they play the customers cause roars of laughter. A fiery military officer, actively engaged in a search for the villain who has made advances to his wife, is a prominent character in this boisterous sketch, which concludes with the capture of this gentleman. Each member of the company contributes his share to the merriment which prevails during the whole time the performance lasts. Another combination which greatly amuses the audience is the Three Prestons (George, Joey, and Jock), in the comedy act entitled The Liftman's Rise, which is one of the best items in the current bill. Miss Mabel Thorne, comedienne, in her song makes a pretence of recognising male members of the audience and addressing them respectively as Green, White, and Brown. The last mentioned occupies a private box, and is accompanied by a lady, who it is evident strongly disapproves of his demonstrative recognition of Mabel, and angrily takes her departure followed by her male escort. Miss Gertie Gitana, comedienne, meets with a very hearty reception, and makes her biggest hit with her "Songbird" ditty, which she renders with a charm of manner that is most delightful. Mr. R. H. Douglas is here with his clever and amusing monologue entertainment, in which he gives an imitation of a counsel appealing to judge and jury on behalf of his fair client in a breach of promise case, followed by a very life-like character-sketch of a temperance orator addressing a crowd on the evils of drink, which he is so ready to "put down" in a double sense of that term. Mr. H. O. Wills is a comedian whose make up is very suggestive of the simian race. While singing his second song he munches a small loaf, in which he at intervals discovers various curious articles. Mr. Wills's methods are original and successful. Miss Queenie Essex is a good-looking comedienne, and sings in pleasing style, "Isn't that a girl all over?" and "Dear heart." The Four Vincents are young girls who, described as miniature gladiators, pose in such a manner as to represent groups of statuary, and they achieve a decided success. The Lancashire Lads, vocalists and dancers, are rewarded by abundant applause; and Mr. Walter Stanley and Mr. Leslie Harris, comedians, are also in the bill. On the evening of our visit a deputy appeared in the place of Thorpe and Coe in their comedy sketch, The Burglar. The Imperial Bioscope has a series of interesting films depicting a wild boar hunt. Excellent work is done by the orchestra under the direction of Mr. James Sale; and the front of the house is well looked after by Mr. J. C. Cuthbertson, the acting-manager.

THE FORESTERS'.

The death, under the tragic circumstances which are detailed in another column, of Mr. Kirtland, the late manager of the Foresters', has aroused a feeling of deep regret in the neighbourhood, where Mr. Kirtland was highly respected. Mr. Fred Lawrence, the well-known light comedian, is the acting-manager pro tem, and this week he has been attending with much assiduity and ability to the duties connected therewith.

There is plenty to interest one in the programme presented this week. Mr. Arnold Bell and his company in Paul Kauvar provide the leading attraction. Paul Kauvar is a story of the French Revolution. We have recollections of it not as a music-hall sketch, but as a lengthy play, and an extremely popular one, too. Now it is reduced to half an hour or less, and it can be said that in the curtailment the most stirring incidents have not been cast aside. The little piece is very well acted and superbly staged. Mr. Arnold Bell is seen and heard to advantage in the title-rôle; and Miss Frances Campbell wins everybody's sympathy for her graceful and charming representation of the heroine. Mr. Cuthbert Imrie as the Marquis de Vaux, Mr. J. W. Henson as the Duke de Beaumont, Mr. Arthur T. Lennard as General de la Roche, and Mr. Frank C. Robson as Potin, all give admirable assistance in the presentation of the playlet. Coming to the other items, we have an intensely amusing comedian in Mr. John E. Coyle, whose rendering of the songs, "Ought to see a doctor," and "Bathing in the sea," is characterised by a keen sense of the ridiculous. Clifton and Gibson also contrive to be exceedingly absurd with their thought-reading burlesque and their patter, while a word of praise is due to them for the medley duet on London plays. The Zampas win great applause for their speciality dancing and bâton manipulating; and the Brothers Smart give an entertaining eccentric acrobatic act. The Waltons, too, excel in the latter direction, their knockabout business being of an astonishing nature. Miss Flo Vincent appears in place of the Hippodrome Girls, and renders a good account of herself as a comedienne. Mr. Charles Gardener, attired firstly as a policeman and then as an old woman, sings in a style quite characteristic of the people he is supposed to represent two ditties, "Not on my beat," and "I am a lady." The Sisters Lunelle, soubrettes and dancers, contribute in pleasing style some sets of verses about a "Rickshaw queen" and the "Coonville coloured band"; and Mr. Victor Travis keeps the audience in a happy frame of mind with his eccentric comedy, as applied to the song, "The Angel of Love," to his laughable poses, and his legmania. Reymond's Bio-Tableaux give us a clear and sensational film in "The Automobile Thieves."

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

Packed houses nightly are the rule at this popular and well-managed variety theatre, a happy state of affairs which the strong programme submitted each week thoroughly justifies. The principal attraction in the current bill is Mr. Jake Friedman's company in Happy Holland, a musical comedy in miniature. A pretty and picturesque scene depicts the Quay of Rotterdam, and a number of merry Dutch girls are disporting themselves, and some lively and tuneful numbers are introduced. The principal character is undertaken by Mr. Jake Friedman, who is very quaint and amusing as Jakey Dodlevassal, as well as when masquerading as a female guide. Gretchen (Jakey's sweetheart) is charmingly impersonated by Miss Florence Hunton, whose fine vocalism wins general praise. Others supporting are Mr. L. Ellis, Mr. Fred Dennis, Mr. John Tudor, and Miss L. Braham. The piece is well staged and most cordially received.

Mr. Bransby Williams shows much histrionic ability and resource in some well-contrasted character-sketches. While submitting "An Old Man's Soliloquy to His Pipe" the proverbial pin could be heard to drop, and silence is changed to mirth while "The Student" is given. The favourite, "Devil May Care," is Mr. Williams's third item, and at its conclusion the applause is loud and continuous. The Three Sisters Macarte are deservedly popular in their tight-wire act, a novel and daring conclusion to which is for two of the sisters to be suspended in mid-air at opposite ends of the stage. A wire is then passed, across which each holds in her teeth, and the third sister mounts the wire and performs a serpentine dance thereon. Frank Leslie as a dilapidated crossing-sweeper is very amusing in his song, "The kerb-stone millionaire," whose jollity is evidence that this precarious means of earning a livelihood has not made him downhearted. Visions of the blackness of the coalmine are conjured up to the mind by the appearance of Godfrey James, who wears the attire of a pit-worker, but the underground atmosphere has not impaired his voice, which is heard to fine advantage in a rousing ballad.

Alexandre and Hughes contribute a most diverting entertainment, and there is a continuous ripple of laughter while they are on the stage. As musicians, too, they are excellent. The amusing by-play which ensues during the rehearsal of a visit to a temple of Bacchus, where one of the twain is on friendly terms with the fair Hebe who dispenses the liquid refreshment, but, unfortunately, he only possesses three pence, sufficient only to quench the thirst proclivities of himself, is in the best comedy vein, and their turn might be long extended to satisfy the audience. Frank Bertram and company provide some entertaining moments in their sketch, The Chaperon, and the Bioscope Pictures are watched with keen interest, this week's series including a military episode, entitled "The Spy." Dion Wade has a successful style peculiar to himself, and is decidedly amusing in "Wouldn't you be better in a home?" Dennis Drew displays fine vocal powers in his military song-scena, "Back to Barracks," and he has the assistance of a smart squad of boys, the patriotic refrain of one of his songs, "Every British boy should be a soldier," being delivered by the youngsters with rare gusto. Early comers are regaled by the overture, "The deep blue sea" (the piccolo solo in which is well rendered by Mr. R. Vernon Pierson), by the orchestra, under the skilful bâton of [illegible] The energetic and popular acting-m[illegible] T. S. Mayne, directs affairs with t[illegible]ER. courtesy, and he has an able lieut[illegible]he list very W. S. Bucclengh.

BRITANNIA, HOXTON.

The patrons of this popular house of amusement have been well provided this week with a programme that should suit all tastes. After a spirited overture by Mr. Carl Hamlin's efficient orchestra, Miss Peggy Frame appears and renders an excellent song entitled "I am looking for a sweetheart" in an agreeable fashion; she also wins the approval of the audience in a well-executed dance. That popular comedian, Mr. Harry Wright, next favours with a rollicking song in his well-known style, entitled "Come round home"; on being recalled he gives his successful extempore song, "The little items of the day," which is warmly greeted. The succeeding item is the Royal Raynors, a pair of smart legmania artists, who introduce some excellent gymnastic feats. Miss Lottie Govell next appears, and this smartly-dressed and agile young lady warbles a tuneful ditty, "Don't cry," and also gives a neat dance. An item on the programme that causes the audience to indulge in hearty applause is Leoni Clarke, "the Cat King." A vast amount of time and trouble, to say nothing of patience, must have been expended in bringing his troupe of animals to such a state of perfection. It is certainly one of the smartest animal acts on the variety stage. The Sisters Florence are an exceedingly clever pair of dancers, and introduce some fine specimens of acrobatic dancing; they are well received. Mr. Chas. Lilburn was billed, but owing to a severe cold was unable to appear. Messrs. Kerr and Keo deputised for him, and highly amused the crowded audience with their funny cross-talk, excellent singing and dancing. Another well-known favourite who is warmly greeted is Miss Nellie Gannow, whose powerful voice is listened to with rapt attention in the rendering of "Little love-bird" and a song dealing with the times of Nelson. The programme is not complete without a sketch, and this important item is presented by Mr. Leonard Mortimer's company in a romantic drama entitled The Martyrdom of Michael, which is well played by a good company, and fully deserves the applause bestowed upon it. The performance is brought to a close with an exhibition of Raymond's Bio-Tableaux. Mr. James McCarthy is the able and courteous acting-manager, who studies the comfort of his audience.

EMPRESS, BRIXTON.

The programme which is being presented here this week is one of general excellence rather than of individual brilliance. Dull moments are scarce, and well-filled houses seem to be well pleased with the fare provided. Miss Jeanette Hall is deputed to set the ball rolling, and her powerful voice is heard to exceptional advantage. Fred Barnes, a new comedian, has a capital number, entitled "Just raise your hat to the lady," which is set to taking music, the result being that the chorus is most readily taken up.

Mrs. Oscar Luck's company is presenting a dramatic episode, entitled Kismet. Mr. Heaton Grey, as Frank Galbraith, appears to advantage; Jessie Elvin, as the artist's model, is successful; and Miss May Vaughan as Julie Grey, with little to do, does well.

Tom Leo has a very amusing song, entitled "I'm lazy," the idea of the number being well carried out, as is the singer. After hearty and prolonged applause Tom appears to bow his acknowledgements, and is again "removed." Cruikshank, described as "the fool of the family," has some very amusing patter, and brings his turn to a conclusion by a clever parody on "Under the old apple-tree." After deafening applause he submits as an encore a series of verses, each line ending with a word ending with "ion." This impromptu is very clever. The turn presented by Henry A. Moore is certainly most interesting and well diversified. He supplements clever imitations of Wilkie Bard, Wilson Barrett, and R. G. Knowles by burlesques of some of our leading actors and comedians reciting the first verse of "Mary had a little lamb" Messrs. Beerbohm Tree, George Alexander, Arthur Roberts, and the late Dan Leno are very happily hit off. He brings his turn to a conclusion by a recitation entitled "The coquette; or, never carry your heart on your arm." Cole and Rags, comedy jugglers, are very amusing, he who styles himself as Rags being especially quaint. Sinclair and Parr are the possessors of very fine voices, which they know full well how to use; Jessie Preston is seen to advantage in a couple of numbers; and the Bensons are again here with their musical act. This is going as well as ever, and their clever dancing is a delight to all. Henry de Vry's statuary consists of a series of finely-realised bas-relief and white marble representations, that of "The Runners" being especially effective.

Miss Madeline Rees is exploiting a couple of capital numbers with success, viz., "Dear little water lily, I love you" and "What is the good of knocking at an empty house." Herbert Terry's company is presenting what is described on the programme as a powerful Russian incident. Mr. Terry as the Prince and Miss Jessie Danvers as the wife work hard for the success of the piece, which meets with hearty applause. The evening's enjoyment is brought to a close by some amusing pictures on the Bioscope. Mr. Francis Winchcombe, the popular acting-manager, does everything possible for the comfort of his friends and patrons.

SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE.

Mr. B. G. Maclachlan has an excellent programme to offer his patrons at this very popular house this week, and crowded houses are the rule. The bill is headed by that popular artist, Eugene Stratton, whose singing and dancing are as delicate and fascinating as ever. Although he prefers to always appear as a coon, the variety of the characters he impersonates afford him plenty of scope for his versatility. Mr. Stratton's songs on this occasion include "That little gal of Johnson's," "That coon's in love," and, most admirable of all, and an old favourite, "I may be crazy, but I love you." A most interesting event is the first appearance at this house of young Dan Leno, son of the famous and much-lamented comedian. Mr. Leno on the stage closely resembles his father in appearance and manner, and his song, or, rather, sketch, is of the type always associated with "dear old Dan." At present he is somewhat handicapped by his boyish voice; but he quickly gets on good terms with his audience, and his reception is most cordial. Mr. Leno's development as a comedian will be watched with interest. A very clever coin and card manipulating turn is provided by Leipzig; and Mark Merry sings a song, as he describes it, "in mirthful melancholy." Syd May does his usual imitations in his usual excellent manner, impersonating in turn Gus Elen, George Robey, and Harry Lauder, and winds up with a most amusing "study" of George Hackenschmidt. Syd May's realistic struggles with a dummy figure is one of the funniest things on the music-hall stage. Elsie Claire sings a charming song in a very sweet manner; and Ruth Lytton, in Scotch attire, soon becomes very popular with a light, humorous song. An excellent turn is contributed by Phil and Lettie Peters, in a clever comedy duologue. One of the pièces de résistance at Shepherd's Bush this week is the now famous sketch, The Would-be Actors. Played by the same company as when it first appeared in London during last year at the Palace Theatre, the progress of this splendid sketch is followed by roars of laughter from beginning to end. Mr. Carter Livesey as the hero and others, Miss Lilian Rosebery as the heroine, and Mr. [illegible] Mason as the villain, are all admirable. [illegible]gramme this week is terminated by a [illegible]ictures on the American Bioscope, en- Wonderful Electric Belt." A word of [illegible]must be passed to Mr. Maclachlan for [illegible]d courteous attention to the comfort [illegible]ront.

"THE ERA" SHILLING FUND FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

Mr. Barrasford and Miss Vesta Victoria join in a strenuous appeal for the generosity of the profession in support of The Era Shilling Fund. When, twelve months ago, we brought before our readers the claims of this deserving charity, a very considerable sum of money was collected in separate shillings. That last year's appeal, however, and most of the money obtained by it, are, as Miss Marie Lloyd would say, "a thing of the past, old dear."

P. Collins's New Organ Front.

THE very latest and the best thing in organ fronts was opened at Wrexham Fair, built to the order of Mr. P. Collins for his cinematograph theatre by Messrs Manenghi et Cie, Paris, and erected under the personal supervision of the London agent, Mr. J. Wentworth. As a masterpiece of art it dominated the fair and claimed the attention of the vast crowds that thronged the ground. Mr. Collins is to be congratulated on his latest acquisition. We are informed that the cost of the beautiful organ and the artistic front is quite £3,000.

Technical Education at the Fair.

MR. T. WORTLEY'S latest side-show—the working model of a colliery—is a most interesting technical exhibition. Every detail of colliery expert work is shown in action—above and below ground. The collier at the face of the coal, the underground conveyance by pony tramway of the coal, the descent in the cage to the coal seam, the pit mouth, the arrival of the loaded lorries of coal, the weighing, screening, and sorting the coal at the pit bank—every part of the work of coal mining is shown in full, from the coal seam to the coal wagon for transport to the coal merchant and consumer.

Photography at the Fair.

THE Caddick family (to the third generation) are famous fairground artists in photography. Mr. Caddick's well-known photo van has attended Wrexham Fair for nearly forty years, and he justly claims to be the oldest tenant of the fairground at the present fair. Mr. Caddick and his clever son are artists of known ability, and their work in the portable studio is justly prized by an ever-increasing number of patrons. The Caddick family may also be cited as examples of the longevity of life enjoyed by van-dwellers. There are at the present time five generations of the Caddicks. The patriarch of the family, Mr. Caddick, sen., living in retirement, is over ninety-one years old, and his good wife still hale and hearty at eighty-two.

A Novel Show Front.

THE willow-pattern plate forms a quaint and delightful subject for a side-show front. Mr. C. Relph's living novelty show is the first to have this original idea, and extremely effective and arresting it is—a huge plate, with just a clear-cut segment of the circle open for visitors to enter the show.

FOSSETT'S circus visited Kidwelly on Saturday, and gave two performances to large crowds in the Fair Field. Mr. Robert Yelding and Mr. J. Holloway were, as usual, excellent equestrian performers; Miss Scott did admirably on the rolling globe; and a very good turn was given by the Siegels, wrestlers.

LORD JOHN SANGER'S circus was visited by thousands of people at Sheffield on Saturday and Monday. The programme retains the best features of the old-time circus, with many new and up-to-date turns, including the Maros and others, who show the skill, grace, and intrepidity of the new school of acrobats, gymnasts, and equestrians. The time-honoured and always acceptable Dick Turpin concluded a bountiful bill of fare.

THE market-place at Denton, Lancashire, is occupied this week by J. Green's racing cockerels, Purchase's over-boats, cocoanut sheets and shooters by Messrs. E. Booth, the shows also including Captain Eagle Davis's knife-throwing and wild animal encampment. Business is very fair.

PRESENT on the Darwen market-ground are Captain Payne's bioscope, J. Green's motor cars, Holden's cockerels, and rifle ranges by Cornwell and J. Sharpe.

"FUN CITIES" are evidently to be multiplied in this country, for a scheme is in preparation for the erection of six permanent pleasure parks, to be known by the name of "fun cities." The "cities" will be framed on a most elaborate plan, and will be centres of innocent but up-to-date gaiety on the American model. In the centre of each will be a grand entertainment, in which the circus element will predominate, and all around will be permanent buildings for side-shows.

THE "White City" enterprise is to be inaugurated in Manchester in Whit Week, and at nightfall 40,000 electric lamps will make the walks and buildings brilliant with light. Among the attractions will be a fairy fountain, 120ft. high, playing constantly, a magnificent ball-room, a huge rink for roller skaters, and music by the best bands in this country and the Continent. An average daily attendance is expected during the twenty-five weeks the season is to last of between 30,000 and 40,000. Entertainments of a startling character drawn from the best American sources, and similar to those at Coney Island, are promised, and there will be plenty of foreign exhibits.

MESSRS. L. GAUMONT AND CO., the cinematographers by Royal command, being unable to acquire the whole of Cecil-court for the transaction of their constantly increasing business, have decided to remove, and on Monday re-open in two spacious buildings, comprising 12 floors in all, at 5 and 6, Sherwood-street, back of the County Fire Office. Old and new friends are cordially welcomed at the handsome new premises, where many new and interesting features in the business of cinematography are promised.

ANSWERS TO SHOWMEN.

J. B.—There will be a fair at the usual time at Burslem. If the adverse majority on the Borough Council comes to a right mind and relents, the fair will be held on its usual pitches, in the centre of the town. Failing that, Mr. P. Collins has secured a suitable centrally-situated fairground, so that under no circumstance will the fair be allowed to lapse. We cannot say more at the present moment as the negotiations with the Corporation are still pending, and the local committee are still hopeful of success with the Council.

A. S. (London).—Your letter has, unfortunately, been mislaid. We should be glad to hear from you again. The Guild chaplain is on tour of the fairs in Wales, or he would have endeavoured to visit you.

WILL Harry Ashington please send permanent address and his route for the next fortnight to this office?

SHOWMEN'S GUILD AT WREXHAM FAIR.

The organising chaplain of the Guild had a full day's work last Sunday at Wrexham Fair. The first meeting was in the afternoon, and it was attended by nearly every showman at Wrexham, and a few Welsh and Cheshire showmen who made a special visit to hear about the Cheshire County by-laws. The gathering took place in Mr. P. Collins's cinematograph theatre, and Mr. P. Collins, as a vice-president of the society, took the chair. Amongst the prominent showmen and stall-holders present were Messrs. C. Farrell, J. Caddick, J. Cordwell, T. Wortley, J. Wright, J. Caddick, jun., P. Collins, jun., T. Kemp, J. Hall, L. Parry, J. West, G. Simons, J. Dillon, J. Pilling, J. Turner, T. Avery, T. J. Humphries, H. Hambrough, J. Greatorex, and many others.

Mr. P. Collins particularly wished to emphasise the necessity laid upon all those who follow the fair to support the mother society of all showmen societies. They might, and might rightly, support other societies, whether show or machine proprietors or stall-holders. Here, he contended, was a society that worked for all, defended all alike when and wherever attacked, and it was the duty of all to support and to strengthen it for its necessary and important work. (Applause.) They might take it from him—and he claimed to know the work of the van-dwellers from the beginning—that but for its work they would have had precious little liberty of life left them to carry on trade and means of livelihood. He referred to the early days of their trade defence movement, and he rejoiced to see with them that old veteran traveller and champion of theirs, Mr. Joe Caddick. It was men like Mr. Caddick and the late James Dean who led them and organised in those early days of struggle and strife when they fought the iniquitous Movable Dwellings Bill. Did they realise, he asked them, what that Bill sought to impose upon the travelling community? Why, amongst other things, it sought to break up the family life, and to prevent more than two people sleeping in a van. It sought to give powers of summary inspection at any hour of vans by any constable or parish officer. In fact, it sought to stigmatise show-people as needing special laws to make them cleanly and moral citizens. They fought that Bill and killed it. But that was not all. Their friend and chaplain, Mr. Horne, would tell them that a Bill to deal with their children had been before Parliament only the last Sessions, and that it was the vigilance of this society that prevented that Bill reaching the second reading stage. He warmly commended Mr. Horne for the self-sacrifice of his life and work for their good, and concluded by urging all present to join the society. (Applause.)

The Rev. T. Horne, in the course of his address, covered the whole range of the Guild's activities in recent years. In particular he dwelt upon the position their trade society had won as the recognised official defender of their character as citizens, as honest, industrious, God-fearing men and women—as the official exponent and champion of their trade and business in life. The general public, instructed by their society, now recognised that show-people, as a class of workers and traders in the community, were entitled to equal privileges with other classes and workers, that the same law that was good enough for the "butcher, the baker, or the candlestick-maker," was good enough for showmen; that their life and their business did not need special laws and special penalties any more than other lawful trades and callings in the community. Mr. Collins knew, he said, and men like Mr. Caddick remembered the bad old days, not more than twenty years ago, when show-people were regarded with suspicion, and when they were classed with gipsies or the pariahs of the road. They had worked hard, and they had succeeded in gaining both public sympathy and support; and the whole status and position of showmen had been raised in the public mind. Why had this happy condition of things, this altered state of affairs, come about? It was because their society had instructed and had guided and had moulded public opinion. Those early pioneers of the Guild, fighting to defeat the immediate enemy, little realised the tremendous forces for good they were setting in motion. He had the honour and the privilege of throwing in his lot with them in those early, strenuous years. He remembered speaking at their first great public demonstration in the Free Trade Hall, Manchester, in the first year of their society's life. How they defeated the Movable Dwellings Bill was ancient history; but in human affairs it was curious to notice how history repeated itself. This had been brought home to them by the fact that only last year a Bill was introduced into the House of Commons that would have stigmatised their domestic life just as vilely as the now historic relic of a bad past—the Movable Dwellings Bill. If the recent measure had succeeded in becoming law it would have prevented the children being with their parents in their homes on wheels. It would have given power to any constable, without a warrant, on mere suspicion, at his own sweet will, to take into custody the parents and to send to the nearest workhouse the children of the van. (Shame.) Yes, they might well cry "Shame!" Why should show children be subjected to any such invidious proposals? He asked them to notice the great advance their society had made since its origination eighteen years ago; to notice how by their Parliamentary and public propaganda work they were able at once to meet all threatened danger and to deal with every emergency as it arose. They had friends in the House of Commons, and it only needed that these friends of theirs should be informed of the injustice of proposed invidious legislation for these crude essays in faddist legislation to be met and to be defeated. (Applause.) He desired to impress upon his hearers the important fact that the Van-dwellers' Society came into existence for the urgent reason that faddists and fanatics persisted in their mistaken zeal, and that as one obnoxious proposal was defeated another would come to the front, and the only way of safety was to be always prepared for defence; and more than defence, to carry the war into the enemy's country and to show that the large and important industry of the fair-ground was a national and necessary work, and entitled to all the liberties and privileges of a well-ordered and honestly-worked trade and business. (Cheers.) Their society dealt with all the outside dangers and troubles that from time to time threatened their very existence. He recognised that there were inside difficulties, but these inside troubles could be met best and better dealt with by other trade organisations. The Guild had its hands quite full, and more than full, with the outside dangers—dangers like those he had already noticed; dangers from both public and Private Bill legislation; dangers from proposed by-laws, and the schemes of mistaken zealots to abolish fairs and to curtail the holidays and amusements of the people. Bad by-laws were dangers to be met and defeated, and insidious clauses to obtain additional powers in Private Bills had to be met and fought. The latest example of by-law proposals was that of the Chester County Council. He saw before him a large number of amusement caterers whose yearly round of business took them into the county of Chester. Their society had petitioned against the Chester by-laws, and the Home Secretary had recognised the justice of their complaint. The County Council had accepted the amendments submitted by the Guild, and the saving clause exempting fairs, wakes, feasts, and festivals, had been added to the by-law. (Great applause.) Since they commenced their Parliamentary defence work they had carefully scrutinised hundreds of Private Bills, and either by private negotiations or by persistent opposition in the Houses of Parliament they had prevented scores of towns being closed to their business. They had succeeded at last in convincing public bodies that any proposal, however cleverly it might be drafted in a Parliamentary Bill, would be found out, and if not dropped at our request, would be fought by us and thrown out by the House of Commons. (Cheers.) There were valuable principles that their persistent defence work had maintained. In their first great Parliamentary fight they secured the valuable principle that the ordinary law of the land was quite sufficient for shows. As regards closing-time and Sunday work, corporations like Mansfield, Hyde, and Eccles wanted powers to enable them to fix the hours during which shows and fair-ground amusements should be open. We objected on the broad principle that the ordinary law that closed shops and places of entertainment at reasonable hours was good enough for fairs, and we won our contention. Our fight for our trading rights did more; it caused the assertion of a broad principle of vast importance to all traders and entertainers—the affirmation as part and parcel of the law of the land; that Private Bill legislation cannot rightly obtain powers in restraint of trade; and that it is a constitutional principle that legislation in restraint of trade must be by Public Bill, and subject to discussion in all its stages by the Houses of Parliament. Another important principle gained in Parliament was the recognition of free trade in fairs. Many corporations have sought powers to prevent private ground being used within their boundaries for the show business, the most notable examples being Halifax and Rotherham. Halifax the organised showmen fought and defeated after three days' argument before the Private Bills Committee of the House of Commons. Rotherham and other towns dropped the clauses at our request; but remember that if Halifax had won the day the other towns would have persisted in their demands. The very latest example of this kind was the Borough of Rawtenstall, in a Bill promoted by that Corporation. They sought a monopoly of market grounds. It was wisely foreseen that if the Corporation obtained market monopolies they might want to use their powers to prevent private land being used for fair-ground purposes by showmen. Their society had to petition against the Rawtenstall Bill and to appear before the Committee by counsel, in order to obtain the valuable admission from the Corporation that their market rights did not threaten show-grounds, nor did their Bill seek powers against the local wakes or fair. He had but briefly referred to these extremely important victories of their trade defence work in order to impress upon the show-people present the vast importance of adequately supporting the society, whose record was so brilliant in the past, and whose influence and position in the public eye was so great a guarantee for their peace in the future. (Cheers.)

Mr. J. Caddick said that as one who had been a founder of the society he entirely endorsed, and wished to emphasise fully, all that Mr. Horne had so well said. Great as the work achieved in the past had been, there still remained the necessities of the present day and the possibilities of the future. He felt very keenly that all who travel the fairs ought to rally to the support of the cause so ably championed by their good friend the showmen's chaplain. Remembering, as he did, the prejudice that dogged their footsteps in past years, and how their position and status had been lifted up by the work of the Guild, he for one would ever recognise the society's claim upon their loyal and generous support. (Cheers.)

Mr. P. Collins urged the necessity of increasing the membership of the Guild as well as finding the necessary funds for its work. He told how the committee of the Guild had originated a system of benefit performances at the fairs, and announced that he intended to give one hour's benefit on Monday night from his show and machines. (Applause.) He confidently trusted that the other proprietors would do the same.

Mr. Horne said that at Rotherham Fair the first benefit was taken for the Guild funds, and £26 had been the result. At Queen's-road Fair, Manchester, the second benefit resulted in over £18. The idea of thus replenishing the exhausted treasury of the Guild was a good one, but at the same time he urged the importance of joining the society. It was of the greatest value to be able to produce the member-roll of their organisation and to prove by the great number of its members the unanimity and solidarity of its work.

The following members were then enrolled:—

Mr. P. Collins, jun.	£1	0	0
Mr. Charles Farrell	1	0	0
Mrs. Hambrough	0	10	6
Mr. J. Turner	0	10	0
Mr. J. Cordwell	0	10	0
Mr. James Hall	0	10	0
Mr. T. Wortley	0	5	0

Mr. T. Kemp	0	5	0
Mr. J. Dillon	0	5	0
Mr. G. Simons	0	5	0
Mr. J. Greatorex	0	5	0
Mr. L. Parry	0	5	0
Mr. T. Avery	0	5	0
Mr. J. Caddick, jun.	0	5	0
Mr. J. Wright	0	5	0
Mr. J. Pilling	0	5	0

The evening meeting was also held in Mr. P. Collins' show, and thrown open to the general public. The booth was crowded to its utmost capacity, and the Guild service, conducted by the Rev. T. Horne, was followed with the closest attention by a most reverent and deeply interested congregation. The singing of the service was much assisted by the Church Army Mission Choir (forty in number). The lesson was read by the senior curate of Wrexham Parish Church, the Rev. Probert, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. T. Horne, who took for his subject the Church theme of the day, "The Good Shepherd."

Again, the show people attended in a body, and the greatest satisfaction was expressed at the evident interest of the people and clergy of Wrexham in the work of the Showmen's Guild.

The excellent lead given by Mr. P. Collins in promoting benefit performances for the Guild funds at Wrexham Fair was heartily taken up by the other show and machine proprietors. Considering the satisfactory response to the request of the speakers at the afternoon meeting for new members, it was not thought necessary (or wise), at so short a notice to ask the side-show and novelty owners, or the providers of throwing games or stalls to join in the benefit or to give another subscription.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIAL.—Empire Theatre, Liverpool. April 16, 1907. Dear Sir,—Many thanks for your prompt attention to our order, and the way you have cleaned our musical dresses. They are done splendidly.—Yours faithfully, MAGGIE ELLIOTT. T. Harris, Esq., Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Co., 6, Argyll-street, W. [ADVT.]

CHELSEA PALACE ANNIVERSARY.

Ever since a variety house of the first class was erected in their midst, the Chelsonians have chosen the best way of exhibiting their appreciation of the privilege by setting the seal of success on the enterprise. Mr. Henri Gros, indeed, has no more loyal and gratified constituency than that patronising the fine theatre in the King's-road, and were any further evidence required in confirmation of this statement, it would have been discovered on the evening of Friday, the 12th inst., when two gigantic houses celebrated with joyous unanimity and extreme heartiness the fourth anniversary of the establishment, which was opened to the public on April 13th, 1903. Mr. J. Norman Berlin, the popular acting-manager, was in command, and happily was able to assure many kind enquirers that the health of Mr. "Teddy" Swanborough, the much-esteemed manager, was showing a decided improvement. Among those who looked in to congratulate the management were Messrs. Tom Barrasford, Braff, Ernest Leathley, Fred Neiman, Ernest De Vere, Felice Napoli, Fred Leighton (Hippodrome, Sheerness), and Leon Zeitlin and Harry Bawn (both former acting-managers).

Both the entertainments given were full and varied, and hilarity was largely in the ascendant throughout the evening. A great hit was made by the Smythsons in a new vehicle for their mirth, entitled Love Germs; a very popular favourite was found in Harry Champion, who described in his own characteristic way the man with the large mouth and the wearer of the same old brown hat; and a tremendous reception awaited Harry Lauder. The contemplation of the serious and the pathetic fixed the audience when Mr. Arthur Conquest—the legitimate successor of the lamented Charles Lauri—and his company appeared in The Sioux, which brought back the vivid pages of Fenimore Cooper to the memories of those whose boyhood had long been a thing of the past. Mr. Marriott Edgar, "the man in red," sang successfully of a juvenile episode from which one might draw their own moral; Mr. T. E. Dunville's rapidity of style and exuberant methods elicited laughter; Herbert La Martine danced exceedingly well; and Miss Gladys Huxley's coon song was well appreciated. Music, heavenly maid, found one of her most artistic disciples in Mr. Angelo Asher, the popular director of the orchestra, who, like William, plays the fiddle like an angel; the Lyric Mummers were heard to advantage in an entertainment uniting the elements of comedy and music; the Cecilias, in instrumental selections, were voted pleasing; and Miss Nina Gordon, with mimicry at the piano, found favour. Dancing in its most attractive form was seen in the graceful doings of Espinosa and Neilson; Mr. Ivan Berlyn, a capital actor, gave some impressions; and other turns appearing during the evening were Little Alice, Nellie Christie, Vona Clifford, Dene and Dawson, Harriett Fawn, Fred Harrison, Master Reginald Leyland, Nina Martino, Ernie Myers, Julian Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Royston Dene in My Lady's Chamber, Talbot and Pearce in their musical comedy scena; Miss Taylor, and Jeapes' Animated Graphic, with comic and up-to-date pictures. The house was prettily decorated with flowers.

"A SON OF THE PEOPLE."

A Dramatic Episode, by Tom Tindall, produced at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday Evening, April 15.

Ivan Briloff.....MR. J. G. GRAHAME, JUN.
Pitonet.....MR. GEORGE WALLACE
The Countess Olga Karovitch
MISS ZERLINA HARRINGTON

Beautifully staged, powerfully acted, and of absorbing interest, this intensely exciting one-act tragedy has held the audience spellbound at each performance this week, and it is safe to predict a successful future for the new production. Born in serfdom, of humble parents, Ivan Briloff leaves Russia, and wins fame in Paris as an artist under the assumed name of Ivan Ivanovitch, and we find him busy in his studio hard at work on his picture of "Nero," for which his humorous model, Pitonet, is sitting. Hearing a carriage drive up to his door, Ivan hurries his model away. Scarcely has he gone, when the beautiful Countess Olga Karovitch arrives to give a sitting for her portrait. Under the spell of her charming presence Ivan impetuously declares his love for the lady, and is enraptured to find it is reciprocated. He pleads for an early marriage, but the Countess replies that when her portrait is finished and hung in the Salon the announcement of their engagement can be made public. Just at this moment Pitonet returns with an official letter, which the Countess playfully takes from him, and teases Ivan to let her open it and read its contents. Ivan pleads to her not to do so, but the more he objects the more her woman's curiosity is aroused, and while her arms are placed coaxingly around his neck she opens the envelope and reads that Ivan Briloff, son of a labourer, is called to Russia to serve the Czar. The Countess questions Ivan, and reads in his face the painful truth that Ivan Briloff and Ivan Ivanovitch are one. All the outraged pride and dignity of the aristocrat rise within her, and subordinate all her former love and tenderness, and in scathing tones she taunts him with his lowly birth and his daring assumption and deceit in asking her, the representative of one of the oldest families in Russia, to wed a man born in serfdom. Ivan pleads his great love and devotion, but Olga is obdurate, and his appeal only inflames her passion, and in her blind fury she seizes a dagger and slashes at her portrait. Ivan rushes forward to save the picture and restrain her, and receives one of her mad thrusts in his breast and drops dead at her feet. The awfulness of the deed dawns on Olga, and her first impulse is flight; but while gazing at her dead lover all her old love for him returns, and in her despair she seizes the dagger, stabs herself, and falls lifeless across the body of her lover.

Miss Zerlina Harrington has a most charming personality, and as the Countess Olga acts first with a queenly grace and deep and tender emotions, and afterwards delineates with skill and artistic ease the strong passions of outraged womanhood. Her performance throughout is most agreeable, interesting, and fascinating. As Ivan Mr. J. G. Grahame, jun., is manly, earnest, incisive, and highly convincing. Mr. George Wallace as the model, Pitonet, has little to do, but does that litle well.

QUEEN'S, POPLAR, ANNIVERSARY.

The first anniversary of the Queen's under its new management was held on Tuesday night. The enthusiastic audience that packed the theatre from floor to ceiling testified by their presence their hearty appreciation of the enterprise and skilful administration manifested by the proprietors, Messrs. F. and M. Abrahams, and their able coadjutor, Mr. Jack Woolf, in the excellent conduct of the hall. The house presented a bright appearance with its wealth of floral display. Mr. Sam Mayo caused immense amusement with his song, and Mr. Hyram Travers sang "Collar and Tie" in good style; Miss Peggy Pryde was well received for her item, "Molly the jolly little lady," and the fine voice of Miss Ghita Corri was heard to advantage in "The banks of Loch Lomond." An exceptionally smart turn, introducing many novel effects, was given by The Donas, and the Leotard Brothers were smart with their hat throwing. The well-known lady mimic, Miss Lil Elfrida, gave excellent imitations of Harry Lauder, Marie Lloyd, and Kate Carney, and Mr. Ted Saunders was good in a similar performance, his subjects being Wilkie Bard and George Lashwood. The Ten Dixie Girls were charming with their song and chorus, "Lady Vi," and Messrs. Phillips and Terry were mirth-provoking in their sketch. Little Zola, who is a host in himself, had the audience entirely with him in his "Who'd have thought it," and the Five Merry Maids created quite a furore with their pretty dances. Miss Cecilia Maude was applauded for "Sweetheart," and The Mascots gave "Sailing in my balloon," while Mr. Ted Cowan was funny with his "In Case." Towards the close of the evening there was a series of presentations to those principally connected with the establishment. The general manager, Mr. Jack Woolf, was given a handsome silver flower epergne, a pair of solid gold and diamond links, two gold mounted umbrellas, and a solid silver cigar case, these valuable gifts being severally presented by members of the staff, Mr. Fred Brown (acting manager, Pavilion Theatre), Mrs. Fred Brown, and Mr. and Mrs. Barnett (Miss Florrie Forde). The assistant acting manager, Mr. Morris Abrahams, had the pleasure of receiving on behalf of the staff and many personal friends a solid gold demi-hunter watch suitably inscribed, a gold-mounted ebony walking-stick, and a life-sized framed picture of himself. The presents were handed to the popular recipients by Mr. Arthur T. Piper, who made a graceful speech, and Mr. Jack Woolf, on replying for himself and colleague, stated that they had at heart the comfort and enjoyment of their patrons. Messrs. F. and M. Abrahams, on advancing forward, were received with loud cheering, the audience singing "Dear old pals," after which Mr. Jack Woolf then presented on his own behalf a solid silver cigar case to the musical director, Mr. F. W. Venton, a diamond pin to Mr. Ben Abrahams, and handsome ladies' handbags to Mrs. Fred Brown and Miss Lily Brown. Mr. Issy Woolf, brother of the general manager, gave valuable help in the direction of the stage. Among the many visitors were Mr. Isaac Cohen, Mr. Fred Brown (Pavilion Theatre), Mr. W. Rosenthal (Pavilion Theatre), Mr. Charles Briggs (Crown Theatre), Mr. Harry Lyons (late Prince's Theatre), and Mr. Barnett.

PUTNEY EMPIRE.

If one may draw conclusions from the excellent audience assembled on Monday, the two-houses-a-night system has caught on, and business is booming. There is no gainsaying the fact that ultimate success is deserved, as the entertainments provided are invariably up to the standard, and the week's programme is made up of interesting, varied, and enjoyable items, calculated to suit even the most fastidious. A pleasing feature to lovers of instrumental music is the capable orchestra which, under the leadership of Mr. William Hinkinson, renders excellent overtures commendably. They prefaced this week's show by "The Belle of New York." The Sisters Grosvenor, a trio of vocalists, opened with an operatic excerpt, in which voices were nicely blended. This was followed by a harmonised version of "May I come home again?" in which the gallery joined. Miss Nina Elmo, a smartly-dressed serio, sang of a certain "Marjorie," and then recorded in song the amatory experiences of Jennie and Jeremiah Jenkins. A very smart turn is that of Park's Eton Boys: they are all clever performers as soloists or in glee singing. Opening with "Excelsior," an excellent impression was created, and was sustained as the following items were presented in rapid succession—"Manitoba," "Wearing my heart away for you," "There's always room for a girl," and "Starlight." The O'Gorman Brothers, a pair of youthful Irish comedians, might improve their song and patter, which has not the virtue of originality, but their dancing turn is far above the average, and secured for the exponents rounds of applause as they retired. Lee and Bentley are a comical pair of American entertainers, the sailor make-up of the gentleman being in itself extremely comical. He introduced some trick violin playing, and his partner in addition to some spirited dancing, sang "The little boy named Tapps." This was "illustrated" by caricatures thrown on a screen whilst the song was being sung, and produced roars of laughter. The New York Comedy Four fully answered their description, being both harmonious and humorous vocalists; the mock speech and presentation given by one of the quartette as a comic interlude was cleverly done. Tom Leo, "the lazy comedian," seemed to be fairly well known; the house took up the refrain, which he was too lazy to sing, with great gusto. That clever impressionist, Miss Alice Pierce, had a good reception, and easily ranked as one of the cleverest turns on the bill. After giving striking imitations of Miss Irene Vanbrugh in His House in Order and Mrs. Leslie Carter in Zaza, she gave an equally clever impersonation of Miss Ellaline Terriss in "Teasing," from The Catch of the Season, and wound up with a charming little rustic love idyll. Ruffell's pictures—"Capturing a coiner" and "An International Paper-chase"—finished a capital entertainment.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA

Kind expressions from Authors and Managers.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT.

"I congratulate you on your 'Fifty Years of the Drama': the list must prove both interesting and useful to lovers of and workers for the stage."

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES.

"I think the new feature of The Era is most interesting and useful. A list of plays produced from 1850 to 1900 will certainly be of great service to a very large number of your readers."

MR. EDWARD TERRY.

"An admirable idea, and will prove a most valuable record."

MR. FRANK CURZON.

"Your list, I think, will be most useful for reference."

MRS. W. K. CLIFFORD.

"I think the list will be immensely useful."

MR. SYDNEY GRUNDY.

"Your list will be exceedingly useful. But, of course, there is no reason why old titles should not be used again. Indeed, some day we shall have to go back to them. Some of our modern titles, when they are not mere proper names with an adjective attached, display the desperation of the dramatist in too ludicrous a light. Such a title as 'The Importance of Being Earnest' amounts to a misdemeanour."

MR. ARTHUR W. PINERO.

"The list of plays produced during the last half-century is a most valuable record. The thanks of those interested in the theatre are due to The Era for this and many other enterprises."

MR. ALFRED SUTRO.

"The list you are compiling will be of very great benefit, and I am looking forward to the time when it shall be complete, and obtainable in pamphlet form."

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER.

"Mr. Arthur Bourchier thinks the list very useful indeed."

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

WALSALL.—Her Majesty's Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—The principal item here this week is Mr. John Warren in a conjuring act, "The Magic Carpet." Lola Patey is a vivacious comedienne; George and May Wyffs score in their farcical absurdity, The Parson's Mishaps in a London Flat; Signor and Mme. Borelli are well received; Howe and Ardie are extremely clever as comedy acrobats and gymnasts; George Leonard, comedian, and Dare's famous minstrels contribute interesting turns. The entertainment concludes with an admirable show of animated pictures.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Messrs. Northway and Garrod's company in The Prodigal Parson is the attraction here this week. As the Rev. Tom Godley Mr. W. V. Garrod fills the part with excellent dramatic effect; Mr. Alfred Northway makes a capital Enoch Jaggins; Miss Bertha Kingston plays sympathetically as Fern Godley; Miss Violet Jeffries does well as Myrtle, the blind child; Mr. William Hayward scores as Ben Jaggins; and Mr. Walter Vincent is a capital Ned Kettlepin; Mr. Owen Remonde as Phil Drive and Miss Lydia Hart as Gretchen Fan Crans are very humorous.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather. —Mr. Fred Karno's company is here this week with the extravaganza Saturday to Monday. Mr. Rolando Martin, who undertakes the rôle of John Willie Jaggs, keeps the audience in one continual ripple of merriment with his ceaseless drollery; Miss Amy Rogerson as Clarinda is entirely successful; a capable representative of Mr. Blake is found in Mr. J. W. Bradbury. The trio, Messrs. V. H. Crawford, B. Patten, and Master T. McDonagh are amusing as the Junior Jaggses.

Palace. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The host of talent assembled this week is resulting in houses well filled at each performance. The vocal harmony by the Six Æolians is delighting all; Tiny Arnold, a wee mite, is brimming with sparkle and vivacity; considerable hilarity is the result of the novelty pantomimic act by the Pirmans Trio; the singing and dancing by the Coolvilles is an enjoyable item; Lombart Bros., artists of wonderful ability, perform some startlingly clever acrobatic and hand-balancing feats; the vaudeville entertainment by Walker and Hall (the former of whom is totally blind) is a remarkably clever one, and a series of films are exceptionally good.

WEST STANLEY.—Victoria Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; Manager, Mr. Ted Raws. —The programme here this week includes the Dayton Family, in an acrobatic act, entitled "Les Rendezvous"; Mr. Walter Bellian, ably assisted by Mr. J. W. Groves and Miss Tina Shaw, gives an amusing sketch, called A Night's Frivolity; the Milford Bros. are a trio of smart trapeze performers; the Cecilian Family, with their smart dancing and catchy music, are great favourites; the Hannaway Bros. are responsible for some smart dancing and singing; the Bioscope concludes a well-appreciated variety bill.

Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. Chas. March's company in The Gamester of Metz is here this week. Mr. Charles March, in his many rôles, proves to be an able actor; Mr. Paul Teuton gives a fine presentation of General de Monparasse; Mr. Wilfred Prothero is an acceptable Captain Bedaire; the part of Lieut. Herve is carefully handled by Mr. George Paget; Mr. George Harte's impersonation of Louis Bedaire is excellent; Miss Elsie Cole is a capital Babette; Miss Eva Lyndhurst as Countess Baldot is responsible for some clever acting; Miss Zana St. George is a lively Gwendolin Pearson; the rôle of Lucia Baldot is ably acted by Miss Una Lane.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Messrs. C. Hamilton Bains and H. Keates Hales' company is here in the musical play, The Pet of the Embassy, and Mr. Witty Wattie Walton as John William Bung, a middy, creates endless fun. Mr. G. Sinclair Holden as the Hon. Percy Brassington, Mr. Harry Fischer as Palatine Brown, and Mr. Robert Hyett as Eric Brown all give capable impersonations of their respective parts. Hilda Graham is excellently represented by Miss Ethel Dunford; and the parts of Dorothy Stanley and Miss Pamela Bung are admirably portrayed by Miss Florence Watson and Miss Julia Bassett respectively. Songs are artistically sung by the principals and chorus, and the general ensemble is exceedingly good.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Fred Karno's troupe in the highly amusing sketch, Dame Trot, win great popularity. Other capital turns are Apollo, the strong man; the Treshams, in a comedy absurdity; Vincent, lightning Arab tumbler; Booker and Narbis, society entertainers; Latine, female impersonator, and Frank Boyce, comedian.

WORTHING.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Sebold. — Mr. Rollo Balmain and Miss Sara Mignon's company is here for the first three nights presenting Our Flat. Mr. Rollo Balmain gives an excellent performance as Nathaniel Glover. Mr. Sydney Leyton does well as Reginald Sylvester, as does Mr. Langford Reed as Clarence Vane. Mr. J. W. Braithwaite is highly amusing as Mr. McCullum; Mr. Wilfred Compton and Mr. James Ellis are well placed as Pinchard and the Foreman respectively; too much praise cannot be allotted Miss Sara Mignon as Margery Sylvester. On Thursday The Ticket-of-Leave Man was presented.

YORK.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Dacre.—The The ever-green Charley's Aunt is here again, meeting with great success. Mr. Spencer Trevor assumes his old part with undiminished success; as Charley Mr. R. B. Mason gives a racy and neat performance; Mr. Hastings Lynn is in every way successful as Jack; Miss Bertha Northam is a delightful Kitty; and as Amy Miss Ida Vynall does well. Miss Lena McNaghton is a handsome Donna Lucia, and Mr. W. Beaumont is vastly amusing as Spettigue.

Opera House and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—Mr. Neil Kenyon may almost be termed York's favourite comedian. He has appeared this week with phenomenal success. The Little Colonel, as played by Mr. Ernest Montefiore and company, is well received, and Eva Chadwick is a nice soprano. The Four Maisanos are eccentric musicians, whose performance is much above the average; Mlle. Roseltha speedily dances herself into favour; and Hookey Walker as a Scotch comedian appears to advantage. Esme Gordon is a dainty singer, and the original business of the Cole de Losse duo is a pleasing feature.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

(INCLUDING THE LONDON COLISEUM, LTD.).

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not re-booked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOLL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER,
The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

THE LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD.

Pioneers of the 4D. per foot, nett.

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

THE LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD.

THE BLIND BEGGAR'S DOG.

Code Word, CAPAOITE.

The kind guide. Separated. The voice of a friend. Poor dog! Help. Free. Too late. In search of his Friend. Touching fidelity.

We see here two old friends who never leave each other, and every day have the same fight for life, one being the eyes of the other. Separation comes one day when two scamps steal the dog, and the poor beggar in distress is taken to his miserable home by charitable people. Friendless from now on, one morning he is found dead. Next we see the dog which has escaped, back in the old home, and finally tracing his master to the cemetery, he lies down on his grave, faithful to the end. Length 362ft. The Subject £6 0s. 8d.

CHAMONIX TO FAYET. Code Word, CANAILLE.

Journey from Chamonix to Fayet, showing most beautiful Alpine Scenery. The Pines. Cascades. Rivers and the St. Marie Viaduct. The Mont Blanc and the other snow-capped heights.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.

THE BOAR HUNT. Code Word, CLAIRON.

Exciting and realistic scenes of a Boar Hunt. The Meet. The arrival of the dogs. The start. The wild and thrilling chase. The animal caught, and the presentation of the boar's foot, which ends this most fascinating film.

676ft. The Subject £11 5s. 4d.

LAWYER ON THE SPREE. Code Word, CANICULE.

Mr. Pleasurlove goes out to enjoy himself, which he does to such an extent that he is taken up for the night, and after a very extraordinary experience, we see him returned to his anxious wife.

528ft. The Subject £8 16s.

JULIUS, THE SANDWICH MAN. Code Word, CALUMET.

A sandwich man advertises some beverage, describes his wares to everyone. Meets a friend, talks, boy lights fireworks under him. Timely arrival of policeman. Awfully funny.

445ft. The Subject £7 8s. 4d.

TAMING HIS WIFE. Code Word, CALCIUM.

A wife with a grievance. A husband fond of his glass. Their efforts to get the better of each other are very amusing. The husband wins at first, but naturally it is the wife who finally conquers.

165ft. The Subject £2 15s.

AN ARTFUL HUSBAND. Code Word, CITRONNIER.

A distracted wife waiting for her husband. He is at the public house. She goes to find him. He sees her coming and escapes. She returns home and finds him in bed. Most amusing.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d. Colouring 6/6.

ALL FOR A NECKLACE. Code Word, BUVARD.

A selfish wife and a devoted husband. To obtain what she wants, she drives her husband to steal and even commit suicide. Pathetic film.

362ft. The Subject £6 0s. 8d. Colouring 9s.

THE FIANCÉE'S NIGHTMARE. Code Word, BROUISSURE.

The night before the wedding the mother turns a beggar away from the house. This the bride thinks will be an ill-omen. She dreams all kinds of terrible things at first, later on a fairy comes, lets her see her bridegroom, and all is well. Very pretty scenes.

230ft. The Subject £3 16s. 8d. Colouring 5s. 6d.

DISTRESS. Code Word, CALEBASSE

Thrilling story of a father and daughter. The man steals a loaf and is imprisoned; subsequently escapes, and goes to look for his little girl, who has been sent to a home for children. Great joy when father and daughter meet. Later on he is tracked by the police. In preference to being taken again he throws himself from a great height and is killed. Very pathetic scenes, and full of interest.

610ft. The Subject £10 3s. 4d.

JEALOUSY AND FOLLY. Code Word, CABARETIER

A tragic story of a jealous husband. He goes mad, and is shut up in an asylum. Later on he is allowed to return home, but is still a victim of the insane jealousy which leads him to kill his young wife, and finally to get arrested and shot. Most pathetic story.

595ft. The Subject £9 18s. 4d. Tinting 8s.

WONDERFUL FLAMES. Code Word, CAISSON.

Wonderful flames. Lovely girls representing butterflies; also a demon performing all kinds of weird exercises. Very pretty. Splendid quality.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d. Colouring £2 10s, 6d. extra.

THE ELECTRIC BELT. Code Word, CANAPE.

The husband has a bad pain in his back. His wife gets an electric belt; puts it in his overcoat; it makes him jump all over the place and want to kiss every woman he meets. He is arrested; the magistrate accidently puts on the coat and goes through the same performance; many amusing complications follow. This is one of the most humorous films we have ever produced, and is bound to be a large seller.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

BABY'S FIRST OUTING. Code Word, CHICANE.

The careless nurse takes baby out and speaks to many people on the way, and keeps on colliding with various obstacles. Eventually a naughty boy ties the pram to a dog, who rushes off with it, followed by an interested crowd of spectators. Finally the pram is precipitated into a pond, but baby is unhurt, and is brought back to her parents in triumph by a kindly policeman. Fine quality, and really amusing.

FOXY HOBOS. Code word FOXY.

A lady whose lover has just left her is crying on a seat in a park. A tramp sits next to her and tries to console her. She does not look up, and thinks it is her lover returned. She discovers her mistake in time and very angrily runs after the tramp, who tries to escape from her and the mob which subsequently collects. By a clever detour he gets away and joins in the pursuit against himself, and a harmless old man is made a victim in the end.
Very droll and grand quality.

290 ft., £7 5s. 0d, less 33⅓ per cent.

DOLLY'S PAPA. Code word DOLLY.

This is a great temperance picture. It depicts the drunken father in his home, always imbibing, the only one who seems to have any influence with him being his sweet little daughter. The scene changes to the works where he has just drawn his pay. He leaves work and gets hopelessly drunk again. His little daughter goes to find him, gets lost, and is taken to the police station by a friendly policeman. Here before the magistrate she meets her father. He throws the bottle away and swears to become sober. He is allowed to leave the police-station, being given a fresh start.

FOOTBALL CUP FINAL

EVERTON v. SHEFFIELD WEDNESDAY, CRYSTAL PALACE, APRIL 20th.

BY COURTESY OF THE INTERNATIONAL FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION.

We have arranged a special Argyll Motor Car Service to expedite the publication of these Pictures, which will be taken from the most advantageous positions, will include Photographic Groups of both Teams, and, weather permitting, the presentation of the Cup to the winning team.

The Film will be shown at the Principal London Theatres on Saturday night.

Code "Final." Approximate Length 400ft. Price 4d. per foot net.

"HIS ONE FRIEND."

A beautifully Pathetic Picture illustrating the almost superhuman sagacity, devotion, and touching fidelity of a dog to his master, a poor blind beggar, to whom he is "Faithful unto Death."
This is the original film which gave one of our competitors an idea for another subject on somewhat similar lines. A comparison of the two will effectively demonstrate the superiority of the original Urban Production.

No. 3173. Code "Faithful." Length 475ft. Price £7 18s. 4d.

"THE MAGICAL PRESS."

A marvellous Pictorial Reproduction and Humorous Presentation of some of the leading London Journals, with symbolic illustrations magically introduced.

No. 1973. Code "Press." Length 500ft. Price £8 6s. 8d.

THROUGH THE MICROSCOPE.

A fascinating series, the result of long and patient research by our scientific staff. A new and startling exhibition of usually invisible animated objects.

No. 2122. Code "Mites." Length 580ft. Price £9 13s. 4d.

LIFE AT A SOUTH AFRICAN GOLD MINE.

A wonderful series, describing White, Coolie and Kaffir Life at the Mines and in Compound, with demonstrations of Crushing, Stamping, Sluicing and work at the Cyanide Tanks. An education in Gold Mining methods.

No. 1975. Code "Compound." Length 490ft. Price £8 3s. 4d.

The above Film Subjects are most enthusiastically received at the Alhambra, London, where they are being exhibited this week for the first time.

Re THE WONDERFUL ELECTRIC BELT.

We find that one of our contemporaries has considered this film worth copying, even copying our description as on this page. Imitation is the surest flattery, but we are the original producers of this film, which was put on the market some three weeks ago.

The husband has a bad pain in his back. His wife gets an electric belt; puts it in his overcoat; it makes him jump all over the place and want to kiss every woman he meets. He is arrested; the magistrate accidentally puts on the coat and goes through the same performance; many amusing complications follow.

No. 1590. Length 740ft. Price £12 6s. 8d. net.

Which was produced and advertised by us a month ago. IMPORTANT NOTICE.

EARLY TRAINS.

The Railway Companies are despatching many morning trains earlier than hitherto. This will enable subscribers and advertisers in the provincial towns to get copies of "The Era" in time for the breakfast table. Advertisers are requested to forward their advertisements as early in the week as possible, and not later than 7 p.m. on Thursday.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring Gardens.

INSPECTION.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that the expenditure incurred in connection with reports upon the character of the performances at places of public entertainment during the quarter ended March 31 last was £1 6s.

PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

The Committee reported that they had considered drawings, submitted by Messrs. F. Matcham and Co., showing a new pair of doors proposed to be fitted in the vestibule, and a proposal to re-space the seating on the ground floor of the Putney Hippodrome, Felsham-road, Putney. They considered that the applicants' proposal with regard to the vestibule is unobjectionable, but the proposed re-arrangement of the seating is not in accordance with regulations of the Council, and would be less satisfactory than the present arrangement. They recommended that Messrs. F. Matcham and Co. be so informed.

Agreed to.

AGRICULTURAL HALL.

The Committee having considered a drawing submitted by Mr. J. Jeffrey, recommended that he be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing submitted by him with regard to the proposed alteration to the entrance to the refreshment bar on the north side of the galleries in the main building of the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, subject to the second exit from the refreshment-room being retained.

Approved.

A NEW ST. JAMES'S HALL.

The Council on Oct. 30 last approved drawings of the concert hall to be known as the St. James's Hall, proposed to be erected on the site of St. Paul's Church, Great Portland-street, and on Nov. 30 granted a provisional music licence for the proposed premises. Amended drawings have now been submitted by Messrs. Joseph and Smithem. These drawings show the provision of seating accommodation for 1,112 persons, or 122 persons less than the number shown to be accommodated on the original drawings. The site complies with the regulations of the Council, and the Committee recommended that Messrs. Joseph and Smithem be informed that, provided the works shown on the eight drawings submitted by them with regard to the proposed concert hall be commenced within six months, the Council will be prepared to grant the usual certificate to the owner of such building, on being satisfied that the premises have been completed in accordance with the drawings referred to, and that certain conditions have been complied with, these including that a doorway be provided from the choir and orchestra room to the staircase on the south side, and that such doorway be fitted with a door hung in a manner satisfactory to the Council; that the direction of the stairs from the prompt side of the balcony be reversed so that persons descending do not meet face to face those leaving the orchestra; and that the regulations of the Council with regard to lighting, heating, seating, notices, fastenings, small fire appliances, and other details be satisfactorily complied with.

The recommendation was adopted.

DALY'S THEATRE.

The Building Act Committee recommended that the Council do consent to the erection of iron and glass shelters on the eastern and western sides of Daly's Theatre, Cranbourne-street, one of such shelters abutting upon Ryder's-court, as shown on the plans submitted in connection with the application of Mr. J. Sinnott, on behalf of Mr. G. Edwardes, such consent being subject to the usual conditions.

Agreed to.

THE PLAYHOUSE.

The Council, on Jan. 29 last, consented to the erection of a projecting illuminated sign over the shelter at the main entrance to the Playhouse Theatre, Northumberland-avenue, Strand. The applicant has since informed the Building Act Committee that it is not now intended to erect the sign, and they recommended that the resolution of Jan. 29 consenting to the proposed erection be rescinded.

Approved.

LOCAL HALLS.

Plans for the erection of a parochial hall to be erected in Trinity-road, Tooting, to provide seating accommodation for about 400 persons, and for which it is proposed to apply for a music licence, were recommended for approval (subject to the usual conditions being complied with), as were also amended drawings showing proposed alterations and additions to the St. Clement's Parish Hall, Fulham Palace-road.

"FAND."

A Play in Verse, in Two Acts, by Wilfred Scawen Blunt, produced for the first time at the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, on Saturday, April 20, 1907.

Cuchulain	MR. F. J. FAY
Conchubar	MR. ARTHUR SINCLAIR
Laeg	MR. J. M. KERRIGAN
Laegaire	MR. ERNEST VAUGHAN
Lugaid	MR. J. A. O'ROURKE
Emer	MISS SARA ALLGOOD
Fand	MISS MAIRE O'NEILL
Eithne	MISS MARIE-NI-GHARBHAIGH
Attendants	MISS BRIGIT O'DEMPSEY, MISS ANNIE ALLGOOD

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Fand is in two acts, and by a well-known poet, Mr. Wilfred Scawen Blunt. Set in Alexandrines, it was splendidly produced, and well received by the audience present. In the first act, A Room in the Speckled House at Emain, the hero, Cuchulain, is discovered at the rise of the curtain in a trance-like sleep out of which his wife, the King, and a poetess who has won his heart cannot waken him. Then Fand, the fairy bride of the God of Storms, appears on the scene, promptly falls in love with Cuchulain, who reciprocates her passion, but then matters get complicated by the sudden appearance of Emer, Cuchulain's wife, and the poetess. In the second scene, on Baile's Strand, there is much tender writing in the passages where Emer discovers that she has lost first place in her husband's affections, and some effective dramatic touches are also introduced in Fand's renunciation of earthly love in favour of the rather shabbily treated wife of Cuchulain. Finally the Storm God is heard approaching to claim his fairy wife, and Fand obeys his call, leaving, however, as a token of her love to Cuchulain a cloak gifted with the virtue of conferring immense power upon its possessor.

The acting was in very capable hands. Mr. F. J. Fay's reading of Cuchulain was an excellent performance; and as Conchubar Mr. Arthur Sinclair gave entire satisfaction. Miss Sara Allgood as Emer, Cuchulain's wife, was most sympathetic and dramatic throughout; Miss Maire O'Neill most creditably acted the rôle of Fand; and the remaining parts were well sustained. A number of pretty songs composed by Mr. Arthur Darley were heard throughout the two acts.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, April 22, the Musical Comedy, "THE BELLE OF MAYFAIR."

Musical comedy is always a strong card to play at the Stratford Borough Theatre, and consequently excellent business is resulting from the visit of Mr. Milton Bode's company in The Belle of Mayfair. Mr. Harry Parker is always droll and amusing as Sir John Chaldicott, and he has a clever topical ditty, which goes remarkably well. Mr. Edward Hugonnet makes a dashing and buoyant Raymond Finchley; Hugh Meredith is smartly played by Mr. Gwyn Alwyn; Mr. Haddon Cave submits a clever portraiture of Lord Mount Highgate; and Mr. Laurie Lisle portrays the idiosyncracies of Comte de Perrier most appropriately. Miss Queenie Finnis acts and sings in dainty and captivating style as Julia Chaldicott; Miss Veronica Brady plays with much charm and vivacity as Pincott, her skilful dancing being greatly admired; Miss Agnes Tandy is a graceful Princess Carl; Miss Aurelie de Loriere is seen to distinct advantage as Lady Rosaline, her "Gibson Girl" song being a popular number; Miss Emily Stevens is eminently successful as Lady Chaldicott; Miss May Harris makes a prepossessing Lady Violet; and Miss Leslie St. John does well as the Countess of Highgate. Minor parts are all in capable hands. Mr. T. M. Tonbridge as musical director secures a splendid ensemble; and Mr. Hugh Nolan is the courteous general manager of the company.

THE Ben Greet Players, on the other side of the Atlantic, celebrated Shakespeare's Birthday Week by performing the poet's plays "as he wrote them." The representations were given at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania. Hamlet, 2nd Quarto, acted in its entirety and taking five hours—four to six and eight to eleven—formed the bill for the 23rd. The other plays were The Merchant of Venice, As You Like It, Much Ado About Nothing, Twelfth Night, Julius Cæsar, and Macbeth. Mr. Greet, it is interesting to learn, has recently been invited to West Point Military Academy.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—Your West Stanley correspondent omitted my name from his last week's report of the Victoria Theatre.—Yours faithfully, GEO. BERNARD.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—Mr. John H. Tomkinson's No. 1 Royal Gipsy company is here this week. The entertainment is, as usual, bright and amusing. The company includes the Rizarelis, lady gymnasts, who are exceptionally clever; the Regars, two child acrobats, are received with great favour; Vio Lette, described as a "Pocket Edition of Vesta Tilley," gives a capital turn; Miss Elsie Rubina is also worthy of praise; Miss Evie Lynn is a dainty comedienne and a graceful dancer; Mr. Walter Wallace, entertainer, Mr. Frank Power, Mr. Arthur Daintree, Miss Minnie Richardson, Miss Annie Knowles, Miss Mona Clare, the Sisters Dudley, and Miss Kitty Druid also add greatly to the evening's enjoyment, and the same may be said of Mr. Tweed Andrews, the Two Does and Mr. A. Ventnor.

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer and company opened their week's engagement with a version of Mme. Sans-Gêne, entitled From Washerwoman to Duchess. Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer played with much fervour the part of the heroine, and she was capably supported by Mr. F. Skein as Fouche, Mr. Robert Pittard as the Marechal, and Mr. Cheetham as the Lieutenant. The minor parts were well filled. On Tuesday Jane Shore was staged, and in the course of the week Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer will also appear in Sapho and East Lynne.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The chief turn this week is that of Captain Max Gruber with his remarkably well-trained performing elephant and pony. Mr. George Formby captivates the audiences with his funny eccentric songs; Mr. Ambrose Thorne appears most successfully as a comedian, and the Eight Pavilion Girls are likewise highly appreciated. The Mayfair Trio dance and sing admirably; and among the other clever artists on the bill are Mr. George Westland, Miss Lilian Victoria, the Belmores, and Mr. Luis Hardt.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—On Monday Miss Mary Austin's company presented The Cotton Spinner. Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds in his old part was well supported by Miss Mary Austin as Mary Prescott. The rest of the parts were played by Messrs. J. Milne Taylor, George P. Lester, Fred W. Goddard, John S. Haydon, Albert T. Cooper, and Misses Ethel Inwool, Bella Power, and May Grimshaw. On Tuesday and Friday Shall We Forgive Her? was produced by the same company.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot Potter, Vandy, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Parsons.—The Harmony Four fairly bring down the house by the excellent rendering of their numbers; Harry Rogerson is particularly quaint as the Tired Comedian; Tray and Rich must be complimented for their very smart turn; Alice Maude is duly appreciated; Sterling and Love are very good in their vocal and instrumental comedy act; Vardon gives a good ventriloquial show; and Jack Ross, the double-voiced vocalist, is praiseworthy; F. V. St. Clair is pleasing in The Shoeblack Hero.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's company is here with In Sight of St. Paul's. Miss Gussie Everitt as Cynthia Dell, the woman who betrays, and afterwards atones, plays with telling effect; Mr. Ernest R. Allen as Tom Chichester, and Mr. W. H. Domoney as Harry Chichester, jun., his brother, submit able impersonations; Mr. A. Armfield is good as the father; and villainy is ably represented by Messrs. H Cecil and H. Gilpin. Good work is also done by Miss Cissie Bellamy.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—Cyril Carle, actor-vocalist, has a good reception in his song-scena, "Dreams"; good comedy juggling is done by Halma; the singing pit lad, Greener, has an expressive method; the Four Sisters Victoria attract great attention with their skill as instrumentalists; Gladys Williams is a charming comedienne; and Emma Don and her black and white comedy team are lively and entertaining. Snowball and Miss Dolia, American comedy artists, and the episode, entitled Conscience, are other attractions.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaughten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chris. A. Wordsworth.—The Imperial Animated Picture Company submit an entire change of programme here this week. A special feature is the illustrated songs, for which Miss Nellie Burke meets with well-deserved success. The Cup Tie at the Crystal Palace won by Sheffield Wednesday, is received with hearty applause.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. E. Owen.—A programme full of good things is headed by the Avolos in a smart performance on perpendicular poles; the Four Jumels give an interesting musical act; Mr. Leslie Paget introduces a unique speciality entitled "My Picture Gallery"; and other attractions are Mr. Walter Wade, mimic; Mr. H. C. Bori, comedy juggler; the sisters Hula, vocalists and dancers; and Miss Nellie Chandos, comedienne, and pictures.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—On Monday night Mr. Walter Maxwell's principal company opened here with the powerful domestic play, The Lion and the Mouse. Mr. Leslie Carter is responsible for the "lion" part, and his acting is admirable throughout. He has a capital foil in Miss Shirley Rossmore—the Mouse—with her sympathetic voice and pretty ways. Mr. Martyn Roland is a manly, true-hearted Jefferson Ryder; the Hon. Fitzroy Bagley has a clever exponent in Mr. Herbert Chown; Mr. Douglas West as James Rossmore presents a capital picture of the broken man; Mr. Geoffrey Hall acts the part of the Rossmore legal adviser very well; Mr. John Wheatman as Mr. J. W. Roberts, M.P., looks the part, and plays with effect; the Mrs. John Burdett Ryder of Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is carefully and artistically treated; Miss Maud Townsend makes the most of the part of Mrs. Rossmore; while Miss Margaret Nybloc is charming and vivacious as Kate Roberts.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Miss Bonwin Carlton's company is here with The Plucky Nipper. Mr. J. H. Butler, as Colonel Fenwick of the gallant 24th plays in manly and praiseworthy style, and is ably supported by Mr. Morris Maud as Captain Frank Leslie; Mr. William Heilbronn as Richard Vanbrugh does full justice to that repulsive character; and Mr. Edward Surrey as Bill Burgess gives a lifelike representation of the character. Mr. Syd. H. Morton as Tommy Atkins ably sustains his part, and his acting, as well as his singing, is fully appreciated by the audience; Miss Esther Lamont is good in the part of Ina Fenwick; and Miss Bonwin Carlton scores heavily in the title-rôle. A word of praise is due to Miss Kitty Maynard for her pleasing impersonation of a blind girl.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. C. Watson Mill is here with his A Warning to Women company. He himself is exceedingly effective as Shaun and Mr. Richard Vane is capital as Dr. Marcus Ward; Mr. Norman B. Cannon is a typical Fergus McNaughton; and Mr. N. Carter Slaughter imparts humour into the part of Lord Eversleigh; Sheila Kennion is gracefully played by Miss Grace Barton; Molly O'Moore is admirably done by Miss Ellen Beverley; and Miss Rosalind Tate makes excellent use of her powers in portraying Moira Kennion.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Miss Lancashire, Limited, is here, and Miss Florence Baines again gives a vivacious portrait of the heroine, Mary Ellen, and Mr. David Donaldson is a capable John Higgins; Miss Kitty Jones is a pleasing Eva Lancashire; and Miss Muriel Johnson a winsome Bertha.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Edgar Laban.—Leslie Brothers provide much amusement, particularly by their "Cure for Lockjaw," and the Wheelers are good knockabout comedy cyclists; Stark gives a pleasing pot-pourri entertainment, and Lowenthal Brothers are amusing dialect comedians. Lena Wylie is a good soprano vocalist; Wedburns, in a refined original act, and Millie Payne a capital low comedy artist, complete the cast.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Mr. Charles Constant's company is presenting a musical extravaganza, Blue Beard the Bold. This cast is headed by Miss Isa Bowman as Selim, and this talented little lady acts, sings, and dances with all her well-known animation. As Fatima Miss Dorothy Dempster has plenty of opportunities of displaying her vocal and Terpsichorean abilities to the best advantage. The comic element is well looked after by Mr. Johnny Clegg as Sister Ann, who works indefatigably, and receives capital support from Mr. Gus Danby (Bamboozlum), Mr. Morris Holmes (Pimple), and Mr. Mac Stuart (Shakabak). Blue Beard is impersonated upon traditional burlesque lines by Mr. Charles Lake. Amongst others who contribute are Miss Cissie Thompson as Cassim, Stuart and Stuart, and Morrice Holmes.

PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth. — Mooney and Holbein, the grotesque dancing comedian and lady associate, get an enthusiastic reception; the Bros. Huxter are a trio of young acrobats that require a great deal of beating in their particular line; Fioretti and Elly appear in a spade and barrel act, the gentleman being a marvellous jumper; the Sisters Edwards score as vocalists and dancers; Mike Gray, tramp comedy juggler, and his dog Dolly provide plenty of amusement combined with cleverness; Helm and Cozens, in a comedy act, The Doctor and the Patient, create much hilarity; T. C. Jaques, in his dramatic song, "The Fatal Card," meets with a cordial reception; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux is highly appreciated.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Mr. J. W. Turner's English opera company presented Maritana here on Monday. The principal rôle was ably taken by Mr. J. W. Turner, whose fine rendering of "Let me like a soldier fall" evoked a clamorous encore; Mr. John Ridding was a capital Don Jose; and Mr. Sidney Clifford gave an admirable representation of the King of Spain. Miss Christine Gomez as Maritana soon established herself as prime favourite, all her songs being encored. On Tuesday night Gounod's Faust was presented, and on Wednesday Verdi's Il Trovatore was staged. For the latter end of the week Mr. Norman Macowan's company, in Monsieur Beaucaire, was announced.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Lionel Glenister and Mr. Wood-Ingram presented here on Monday the sparkling comedy, All-of-a-Sudden Peggy. Miss Decima Moore's impersonation of Peggy is delightful, and she gained a success on Monday of which she has every reason to feel proud. In Hon. Jimmy Keppel, Mr. Lionel Glenister has a part that fits him like the proverbial glove, his acting being admirable throughout; Miss Kate Wingfield is the haughty and stately Lady Crackenthorpe to the life; Mr. Frank G. Bayly must be commended for his clever impersonation of Lord Crackenthorpe; and the rôle of the retired Major Archie Phipps is in the safe hands of Mr. Henderson Bland. Miss Eva Lonsdale plays the rôle of Hon. Millicent Keppel with grace and charm; and Miss Naomi Neilson is deserving of much praise for her realistic impersonation of Mrs. O'Mara, her brogue being perfect. The rôle of Hon. Mrs. Colquhoun is well sustained by Miss Estelle Despa; and other parts receive careful treatment at the hands of Messrs. J. Edgar Stevenson, Harry Philips, and P. Fitzgerald. The dramatic episode, The Lady Who Dwelt in the Dark, forms an admirable curtain-raiser.

PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris. The great Miss Marie Loftus is the star here this week, and worthily does she fill the position, with her inimitable rendering of several catchy songs, her success being even greater than ever. The Five Juggling Geraldos furnish an exhibition of the art which it would be difficult to surpass; Mr. Frank Cass's vocal items command much success; and a hit has been made by Mr. Leslie Holland and Miss Vere Vere in their smart and racy duologue, A Side-Slip. The Three Sisters Silcott are delightful vocalists and capital dancers; and Mlle. Renee's musical act has been accorded a fine reception. Mr. George Prince is a decidedly humorous comedian; and Mr. Joe Carney a smart coon delineator. Miss Mabel La Blanche, vocal comedienne, and the attractive Palace Pictures are also in the bill.

ROYAL HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Barton and Ashley are the stars here this week, and create unbounded merriment with their comedy act, Canal-Boat Sal. Mr. Fred W. Millis upholds his reputation as one of the smartest ventriloquists before the public; and a hit has been made by Simms and Simms, musical comedians. Weiland, comedy juggler (assisted by Mlle. Carlotta), wins high approval for his novel act; and Miss Edie Gray and Boys, in their vocalism, gain unbounded applause. Mr. Walter Emmerson is a droll comedian; and the sweet tenor vocalism of Mr. Jack Truman has been accorded an enthusiastic reception. Also here are Miss Ivy Kildare, soprano vocalist; the Columbia Trio, comedy vocalists; the Three Moxons, acrobatic comedians; and new pictures on the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Mr. George Gray and company head the bill, and present The Fighting Parson with all possible success, Mr. Gray's impersonation of the title-rôle being an engrossing piece of acting. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden create much laughter with their well-acted comedy duologue, Two to One; and a musical treat has been provided by Mons. Slippere (assisted by Miss Ramsay), blind novelty pianist and fine baritone vocalist. Miss Edie King is a smart comedienne and capital dancer; and the Howards appear to every advantage in their comedy musical act. Miss Kitty Marion, comedienne, and the Empire Bioscope are also among the attractions.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Sinclair Neill.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company, under the personal supervision of Mr. M. Montgomery, produced here this week the fine drama, On Circumstantial Evidence. Miss Nina Blake-Adams, a clever actress, furnished a skilful impersonation of Violet Ogilvy; and Mr. Horace Denton must be commended for his admirable portrayal of Lieut. John Ogilvy. Mr. Cyril Grier gained the utmost approval for his finished interpretation of the dual rôle of Sergt. Gabriel and Sergt. Cavour; and Miss Kathleen Magee upheld her fine reputation by her acting as the twin sisters, Olga Brandom and Mary Brandom. Mr. Elmore Frith's dignified impersonation of Col. Sir Laurence Kurloch reflected much credit on this able actor; and the iniquities of Capt. Hamilton were powerfully depicted by Mr. Edward M. Jeanley. The humour of the piece was safely entrusted to Mr. Tom H. Solly, who created roars of laughter as Jeremiah Tobin; and he was ably assisted by Miss Mattie Crawford as Polly Smithers. Other rôles were carefully sustained by Messrs. J. E. Davies, E. Smithers, &c. The Alhambra Bioscope exhibits a fine picture.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Batersby; Musical-Director, Mr. J. E. Machin.—This week we have Chas. Morritt, hypnotiser; Mme. Beulah, mental telepathist; Will Souls, laughing comedian; Blanche and Diacoff, novel cyclists; the boy Samson, athlete; and the Blind Man of Memory, all attractive and clever. Further, there are Collin and Croft, illustrators; J. Hines, coloured dancer; Magna, the suspended lady; and some capital pictures on the Bioscope.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—A visit from Mr. Alec Flood and Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice's The Angel of Unrest company is proving attractive. Mr. Alec Flood earns premier honour by a powerful and telling performance of Napoleon I.; Mr. Henry Belding plays Papa Bompasse with marked ability; Paul Brandt is well acted by Mr. Creagh Henry; and Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice is an excellent General Renaudot. The important rôle of Julie is skilfully depicted by Miss Florence Tressilian; Miss Pattie March is well suited as Madame Renaudot; and Miss Nita Imeson is an efficient Lisette.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Mr. Arthur Prince, an exceptionally clever ventriloquist, is a prominent attraction, and Mr. Harry Ford, the popular comedian, is on a welcome return visit. The mysterious Lilith is a marvellous illusion; Miss Lillian Warren and her capital illustrated songs secure a warm welcome; Harrigan and Holt, comedians; Mr. Harry Anderson, comedian, Miss Winnie Derson, comedienne, Mr. Jack Hylton, comedian, and Brown's Royal Bioscope with some up-to-date pictures also furnish attractive turns.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Miss Ellaline Terris and Mr. Seymour Hicks have again taken Birmingham by storm. Miss Terris, in The Beauty of Bath, charms her admirers as she never charmed them before. Her dainty tricks of acting and her sweet and gracious style of singing wrought the audience to an ecstasy. Mr. Hicks as the gay lieutenant is received with ringing cheers, and everything he does brings him thunderous applause. Master Valchera, who has the sense of humour fully developed, distinguished himself as the programme boy; Mr. Stanley Brett is clever and useful as the double, Mr. Beverley; Mr. Laurence Caird makes an admirable Lord Quorn; and every success attends the efforts of Mr. William Lugg as Bellingham, Miss Florence Lloyd as Mrs. Alington, Miss Sydney Fairbrother as Mrs. Goodge, and Miss Maude Darrell as the actress, Miss Truly St. Cyr, &c. The twelve "Bath Buns" and a good-looking and melodious chorus support this elegant production, which on Monday appears at the Prince of Wales Theatre here for the week.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The Geisha, with Miss Louie Collier in her delightful rôle of O Mimosa San, is charming audiences here; Mr. Edmund Carlton keeps the audience in full glee as the irrepressible Wun-Hi; Mr. Cyril Thompson's fine voice and energetic acting bring the part of Reggie Fairfax into fine prominence; Mr. Lionel Braham plays the Marquis Imari on extremely clever lines; and Messrs. J. Mansell Stringer and A. J. Nicholls shine as Katana and Takemine respectively. Miss Florrie Saunders makes a big success with her handsome presence and fine singing as Molly Seymour; and Miss Violet Kenyon has an enchanting manner as Juliette. On Friday A Greek Slave was performed, with Miss Collier as Maia, Miss Florrie Saunders as Iris, and Mr. S. Lockridge as Archias.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo.—The Prodigal Parson is being played here this week. Mr. W. V. Garrod as the Vicar of Grassleigh realises the dramatic possibilities of the part in a masterly manner; Mr. Alfred Northway as the Churchwarden is as nature would have moulded the part; Miss Gwen Stewart acts the part of Fern Godley in a manner that is very pleasing; Miss Violet Jeffries enlists the audience's fullest sympathies as the blind daughter, Myrtle; Mr. Wm. Hayward gives a fully complete study of Ben Jaggins; Mr. W. Vincent ably supports as the confederate, Kettlepin; Mr. T. Edward Evans scores well as the detective Markby; and Mrs. Ashton, Miss E. Fredericks, Miss Dot Russell, and Messrs. E. Ashton, E. Vincent, and others all add to an excellent portrayal. The pathos of the play is well relieved by the clever humorous acting of Mr. Owen Redmonde as Phil Drive and Miss Lydia Hart as Gretchen. Still Waters Run Deep and A Regular Fix filled the programme on Friday.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Frank Bateman Dramatic Company, under the direction of Mr. Stuart Lomath, is here with No Wedding Bells for Her. Mr. Lomath figures as Frank Hatherleigh, representing the church militant with striking effect; Mr. Percy Shaw as the detective, Delver, acts in a very smart manner; Mr. Frederick Carton acts true to the part of Montague Blair; Mr. P. Beresford inspires admiration as Trevelyn; Mr. Geo. Herbert supplies an engrossing characterisation of the old actor, Frane; and Messrs. Morice Holmes, Frank Davies, Fred Vaughan, and Chas. Liddon are all happy in their parts. Miss Lizzie Montague holds the audience complete under her spell as Lola Delaspierre; Miss Dora Pass as Doris Fane, adds to the charm of the play; Miss Louie Danby is successful as Peggy, and Miss Patty Albery makes an effective rôle of the landlady.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Theatrescope shows here with the Nelson v. Gans fight, and other engrossing pictures of the day, including the race for the Grand National. Much interest and enthusiasm is evinced in the views which are supplemented by variety turns from Little Violet, burlesque artiste; Will Doren and company, in their clever absurdity The Inventors; Tom Haynes, the pocket comedian; and the clever actor-vocalist, Barney Stuart, whose contributions are much appreciated and vociferously encored.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—The Swiss Express has returned here. Mr. Wilfred E. Brandon makes clever diversion as Dr. Gall; while Messrs. Charles Renad and J. Oliver Russell keep the audience uproariously merry with their smart drolleries as Dr. Gull's eccentric servants. Miss Celestine Brandon comes in for much admiration as Virginia; Mr. Basil Reynolds makes a suitable Bob Rollingstone; Mr. Alec Wylie amply fills the rôle of Dudley Green, and Mr. Harry H. Vernon, Mr. Chas. Gray, Miss Blanche Vernon, and the Misses Lilian Lea, Beatrice Fairfax, Daisy Caulder, and Queenie Bilterton add with their talents and charms.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—La Milo is appearing in her representations of famous classical statues; the Molassos are expert lightning dancers, who contribute an excellent turn; Roma and Romana have an excellent vocal and instrumental act. Other excellent turns are provided by the Brewsters, vocalists and dancers; Albert Whelan, the Australian entertainer; the Kirbys, comedy artists; Lola Patey, burlesque actress; Katie Butler, comedian; and F. H. Fox, comedian.

GAIETY.—General Manager, Mr. Albert T. Bushell.—Florrie Forde has several new and successful songs; the dramatic sketch, No. 99, by Fred Kitchen and Frank Lister and company received great favour; the Athos Troupe excel in their performance of acrobatic feats, and the remainder of the programme is provided by Sandford and Lyons, Peggy Fame, Rose Archer, Fields and Lewis, Johnson and Bert, and the animated pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Lord Harkaway is the star turn at this house, and proves very popular. Musical Sylvo gets some good melodies out of musical glasses; Herbert La Martine is a capital dancer; and Laurence Barclay is extremely entertaining with his Scottish songs. Letine, female impersonator; Fred Herbert, vocalist; Tod Lowen, Dave O'Toole, comedians; Verno and Voyce, George Antil, and the pictures conclude an excellent show.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Fred Storey, in Rip Van Winkle, gives an exceedingly meritorious performance; he is supported by a very strong company, including Miss Lilian Holmes and Miss Gwendoline Burney. Fernee's Juveniles supply a bright turn; and the Sisters Herbert are two of the cleverest of the troupe. The Fitzroys are graceful in their daring gymnastic performance; and the Jackley Trio contribute an enjoyable turn. Alice Blandford has an excellent voice; Harry Carsdale is a very lifelike farmyard mimic; whilst Herbert Rule is a first-rate comedian.

CURZON HALL.—Mr. Waller Jeffs, with his New Century Pictures, continues to attract crowded houses.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Harry Rogerson's company, in the musical absurdity, Jacko, preceded by the burlesque Herne the Hunter, is the attraction here this week. Mr Charles Leverton causes much innocent amusement in the rôle of Fred Fitzgerald; Professor Zerio is capably handled by Mr J. H. Booth; Mr. W. G. Wesley causes much laughter by his portrayal of Sims Spotter; Miss Jessie St. Clare represents Mrs. Zerio in a very able manner; whilst Ada Zerio finds an altogether pleasing exponent in Miss Bessie Herbert. Mr. Anthony Gordon's interpretation of Dr. Samuel Smith is also very good.

BLACKBURN. — THEATRE ROYAL.— Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Fred Karno's company is here in Saturday to Monday. Mr. Rolando Martin, as John Willie Jaggs, is the life and soul of the piece; Mr. J. Fletch as Spinks and Mr. L. H. Crawford as Jaggs, junior, are also extremely funny, while Miss Amy Rogerson as Clarinda Blake acts and sings charmingly. Next week the popular manager, Mr. Reginald Yorke, takes his benefit.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page. — Mr. Sam Duckworth's company in A Nameless Child, occupy the boards this week.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—The following artists give the entertainment this week:—Florrie Bray comedienne; Tom Kelso and company in The Silly Servant; Deane, Tribune and company in Applicants; Arthur Croxon, comedian; Three Pirmans in In the Garden; Clown Barker and Miss Roysika; and W. Selkirk's Scottish spectacle, The Congress of Border Heroes.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. Arthur Hardy's company is here this week, giving a very efficient representation of Beauty and the Barge. The ability of Mr. Blake Adams is well known, and his impersonation of Captain Barley is as good as was expected, which is saying a great deal. Mr. Edward Coventry carefully plays Lieut. Seton Boyne; and Mr. Walter Pemberton makes a capital Major Smedley. Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu as Herbert Manners and Mr. Fred Knight as Tom Codd also give a satisfactory account of themselves. A charming Ethel Smedley is found in Miss Dido Drake; whilst Lucy Dallas is cleverly portrayed by Miss Mary Pemberton.

Grand Theatre. — Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—The Little Stranger, played by Mr. Charles Steuart's company, is again proving a big attraction here this week. Several changes have been made in the cast since the last visit, but the title-rôle still remains in the hands of Master Edward Garratt, who again scores a success. Mr. Charles A. Doran contributes a clever study of Paul Vronsky; Mr. Stanley Lathbury is really excellent as General Allenby; Miss Frances Dillon is very successful in the trying part of Mrs. Dick Allenby; and Miss Louie Tinsley makes a decided hit as the nurse. The Second Mrs. Grundy, cleverly played by Mr. Herbert Druce and Miss Christine Rayner, makes a good curtain-raiser.

Palace.— General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—The Violas, the original White Mahatmas, are the great attraction here this week, and their performance is certainly wonderful. George French, comedian, is another favourite turn. Other contributors are Rich and Rich, amusing comedians; the Tups, eccentric acrobats; Sadie Simpson, a charming comedienne; Billy Hobbs, a clever coon dancer; J. W. Magers, comedian and raconteur; and Bert Dansie, a very humorous artist. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope winds up the show, as usual.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—The romantic play, entitled The Throne of Terror, has been presented here with success The part of Robespierre is entrusted to Mr. W. J. Miller, who gives a most artistic and carefully-studied portrayal; as Marguerite de Roqueforte Miss Katherine Maud Downs finds favour with the audience; and Miss Isabel Marte, in the rôle of Victorine d'Almonte, is decidedly successful.

The Gaiety.—Lessee, Mr. George E. Good.—The principal turn has been supplied by the Thompson-Wood's juvenile stars, in their musical sketches, A Gipsy's Holiday and The Henpecked Husband, which have proved strong attractions; the Prinellas, in A Country Flirtation, are much in evidence; and the Bioscope continues to be a good draw.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Tudor.—The Scottish Animated Picture and Variety continue in possession here, and are meeting with fair patronage.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal (Ltd.)—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—Messrs. C. Hamilton Baines and H. Keates Hale's principal company is being well received here with the successful musical play, The Pet of the Embassy. Witty Watty Walton is very humorous in his impersonation of John William Bung, a middy; Mr. G. Sinclair Holden as the Hon. Percy Brasington, Mr. Harry Fischar as Palatine Brown, and Mr. Robert Hyett as Eric Brown, are good in their several parts; Miss Ethel Dunford is graceful and ladylike as Hilda Graham, "the pet of the Embassy"; the characters of Dorothy Stanley and Mrs. Pamela Bung are capably taken by Miss Florence Watson and Miss Julia Bassett, and smaller parts are in good hands.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon. —One of Fred Karno's combinations is here with the special production of Dame Trot and The Bailiff, a second and revised edition of Moses and Son, with Fred Kitchen in possession. A company comprising Aggie Morris, Luna Love, Harry Lappo, Albert Bruno, H. Landeck, and Madge Rockingham, do excellent work. Other turns on the bill are Kid Johnson and Maisie Pelham in a comedy pot-pourri act, The Golf Match; the Sisters Brenton, comediennes and expert dancers; Booker and Narbis, society entertainers; The Lorrisons, the amiable idiot and dainty soubrette; Nina Gordon, mimic and entertainer; Walter Curtis, the merriment merchant; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE. — Muncaster Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—The New World is presented by Mr. Will White's company. Miss Beatrice Moore delights all with her portrayal of Jenny Williams, and Mr. Victor Rae realises the character of Jack Hawley with clever art. Mr. W. S. Stevenson gives a good personation of the villainous Jim Rawlings, ably assisted by Mr. Albert Carlton as Jose Alvarez. Mr. Donald Gilbert (Col. Bijah Clayton) and Miss Evelyn Robson (May Walton) sustain their rôles with much credit. Joe Williams is cleverly played by Mr. Albert H. Clark; also Pete by Mr. Willie Hicks. The humour of Messrs. Bass and Guinness as Brutus Brown and Sam Smart is irresistible. Attractive specialities are given by Miss Beatrice Moore and Mr. Willie Hicks.

BOSCOMBE. — Hippodrome.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—Haley's company of juveniles dance and sing here this week in a manner that gains for them most enthusiastic applause; Lonnen, Meadows, and company are laughable in their farcical comedy, Kiss Your Father; a refined turn is submitted by Mr. and Mrs. Ed. H. Lucas, in scenes from the works of Charles Dickens; and other good turns include Charles Austin, a droll comedian; Charles Ulrick, the barrel king; Moon and Morris, a clever comedy pair; Dolly Denton, a chic comedienne; and the Hippodrome pictures.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's company in La Poupée opened here on Monday. Mr. Fred Seymour bore off the leading honours with his impersonation of Hilarius, whose daughter, Alesia, was cleverly played by Miss Mysie Devine; the Father Maxime of Mr. Walter Balfour and the Lancelot of Mr. Arthur Cosens stood out well; and strong support came from Mr. Fuller Allen, Mr. E. Mooney, Miss Edith Hunter, and Miss Doris Dickens.

Shaftesbury Hall.—West's pictures, presented twice daily, continue to prove highly attractive. The principal item is a series of interesting films illustrating life in the Holy Land. Mr. Mackenzie Henderson is a capable raconteur, and Mr. Mattie Cheshire scores with his musical sketches.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The D'Oyly Carte principal répertoire opera company commenced an engagement here on Monday evening with The Gondoliers, and a large audience greeted the revival with much heartiness. Mr. Fred Billington was seen once more in his delightful impersonation of Don Alhambra del Bolero; Mr. Albert Kavanagh in his part of Guiseppe Palmieri was, as heretofore, excellent; and he had capital support from Mr. Pacie Ripple as Marco. Mr. C. R. Wallenn brilliantly filled the rôle of the Duke of Plaza-Toro; as Luiz, Mr. Leicester Tunks was excellent; Miss Theresa Rassam admirably filled the part of the stately Duchess; Miss Mabel Graham was charming as Gianetta; with success Miss Marie Carveth played Casilda; and Miss Lulu Evans was a capable exponent of Tessa. The Yeomen of the Guard was the opera on Tuesday night, and, during the engagement The Pirates of Penzance, Trial by Jury, Iolanthe, Princess Ida, and The Mikado are billed for representation.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne and company are presenting here this week, with considerable success, the finely-staged drama, Napoleon. Mr. Hugh Montgomery represents with force and dignity the part of the French Emperor; Miss Maud Russell acts with power as Mlle. Leonie Marbœuf; as Marie Walenska, Miss Leslie Warner achieves success; in the part of the Vivandière, Miss Marie Harcourt is very good; as Pierre Pompenot, Mr. Thorne is seen to advantage; and Mr. Albert Sinclair as Sergeant Choupin is successful in bringing out the comedy element.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig. — Those excellent comedians and musicians, Seeley and West, who are responsible for much laughter, are on a return visit here; and Spry and Monti are also here again, and are as amusing as ever in The Dandy Guardsman. A very bright and enjoyable entertainment is supplied by C. St. John Denton and George Rowland's smart company of juveniles (including little Marjorie Lawrence), in The Punch and Judy Girl; Tom Costello is again to the fore with his humorous skit, The Suffragettes, and his pathetic sketch, The Old Clown; the Three Missouris are clever acrobats; George Ridgwell, vocalist, is heard to advantage in good songs; Barnard's Mannikins are cleverly manipulated and very entertaining; in a gymnastic pot-pourri, Rhoda Brothers, head and hand balancers, do some smart work; Florence is a good lady mimic; and the American Bioscope shows some capital pictures.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Realistically statuesque poses by the Modern Venus form a prominent feature of this week's programme here; Vera Mayne, comedienne, contributes acceptably; a clever and humorous Risley turn is contributed by the Alskarno Trio; the Coolvilles are charming dancers and vocalists; Zarmo, "the mad juggler," is distinctly funny; Edna Latonne renders good songs with much success; the Leonards, with illustrated song, are deputising for Bert Coote's Yankee Doodle Girls; Walker and May, coloured vaudeville entertainers, are particularly energetic and smart; and some fine pictures are shown on Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

BRIDLINGTON.—Royal Victoria Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Josephs' variety company is here for a second week, and is scoring in its varied programme, entitled Samples. The cleverly-played sketches, in which Miss Stanton, Mr. Bruce Green, and Mr. Will Terry appear never fail to keep the audience in constant laughter. Little Keeno is a remarkably clever exponent of humorous songs; the Sisters Richardson introduce several new and smartly-executed dances; the Pagoda Pierrots are highly entertaining, the various concerted numbers being very finely rendered; Miss Lena Stanton's song-scenas are carefully-finished performances; and the other members of a clever company contribute to a very attractive programme.

The Palace.—Managers, Messrs. W. H. and J. W. Delmar.—Mr. J. W. Delmar, who has had the management of this place of entertainment during the winter, and who has secured a host of friends, was accorded a benefit on Monday, when a big programme was presented before a crowded house, both the Mayor and the Deputy-Mayor of the borough (Alderman Sawdon and Councillor G. Rennald) being present. The turns included Professor Reno, a capital illusionist; Mr. Fred Field, a capable baritone vocalist; Mr. Geo. Le Wist, ventriloquist and mimic; Miss Catherine Grantham, a charming young comedienne; Mr. E. Brewin, vocalist; and Master Angus Grantham, a clever boy impersonator of female character. Mr. Joe Bath introduced a new sketch, A Night Out, which was admirably done. The Tennessee Minstrels gave a short "nigger" entertainment and a burlesque sketch; and there was a series of good animated pictures by the Parisian Picture Company. Mr. Delmar thanked his friends for their many kindnesses, and announced that he had taken the Palace for the coming year, and hoped to introduce some of the best talent he could procure for the entertainment of his patrons.

BRIGHTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee, Mr. H Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. George Alexander's company is here this week with His House in Order. Mr. Frank Fenton submits an artistic and very warmly-appreciated impersonation of Hilary Jesson; Miss Auriol Lee displays charming and impressive acting as the young wife, Nina; and Mr. Cyril Harcourt gives an excellent enactment of the weak-minded husband, Filmer Jesson. The members of the Ridgeley Family are well represented by Mr. George Fitzgerald as the pharisaical Sir Daniel, Mrs. Kemmis as the narrow-minded Lady Ridgeley, Miss Audrey Campbell as the overbearing Geraldine, and Mr. George Silver as the caddish son, Price. Little Miss Maisie Richardson makes a pleasing Derek; and others who merit praise include Mr. Lloyd Lowndes (Major Maurewarde), Mr. A. E. Benedict (Dr. Dilnott), Miss Lilli Kerr (Mlle. Thomé), and Mr. Reginald Besant (Harding).

Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—The great bloodless surgeon and electric wizard, Dr. Walford Bodie, is still here, and, in addition to his successful treatment of paralysed patients on the stage, gives advice gratuitously to very many who visit him privately at the theatre each day, between the hours of one and two. A variety programme is again sustained. Tom N. Mills, comedy and character actor, and vocalist, is heartily applauded for his songs and recitations; Belford and Mars are amusing duettists; little Dolly Robson sings and dances in capital style; the Musical Acmes achieve great success in their refined drawing-room entertainment; Fred Brooks, character comedian, is well received; and Bella Skene is effective in a Scottish scena.

Alhambra.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Ernest Lepard. — An attractive programme is sustained here this week. Dan Conroy, comedian, is warmly applauded for his songs; Miss Ella's well-trained African Cape lions provide a capital turn; Mabel Bright and company are entertaining in an original vocal mélange, Girls Will Be Girls; Driscoll and Felino are amusing in the absurdity, Paddock Life; the Two Palmers are pleasing comedy duettists; Billie Burford is a charming vocal comedienne; the Sisters St. Julian (Gladys and Lillie), duettists and expert dancers, are well received; Master Charles Carr, comedian and dancer, merits praise; Patta Bella is a dainty comedienne; and the Alhambrascope pictures, including this year's Football Final, are interesting.

Hippodrome Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford. — There is an excellent company here this week. Morris Cronin and company, modern jugglers, perform some clever feats; Harry Brown, coloured comedian, wins enthusiastic applause; Regan and Ryan are diverting in their comedy act; the Four Maisanos achieve much success in their eccentric musical act; J. B. Preston, Scotch comedian, contributes some capital songs; Harry Taft is an entertaining whistling comedian; the Meymotts are humorous in their comedy duologue, Semi-detached; Spencer and Marks are good speciality comedians; George Barron is an eccentric comedian; Wylie's wonderful dogs furnish an excellent turn; Myra Love is a pleasing comedienne; and the Barrascope pictures are amusing.

West Pier.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company is here this week with The Private Secretary. Mr. Donald Price-Evans is very amusing as the Reverend Robert Spalding; Mr. W. Hargreaves submits a clever character-study of the elder Mr. Cattermole; Mr. W. Telworthy is well suited as Mr. Marsland; Mr. James P. E. Hussey is successful as Harry Marsland; Mr. Randolfe Reade is a capital Douglas Cattermole; Mr. Alfred Davis as Miss Ashford makes the most of her opportunities; and Miss Beth Elliott as Eva Webster and Miss Dora Grey as Edith Maitland act brightly.

Palace Pier.—Mr. Charles Carte and company are here this week with A Noble Brother. Mr. Carte achieves conspicuous success by his fine portrayal of Jerry, the tramp; Miss Doris Brookes makes a charming Nana Leigh; Mr. G. W. Hewitson is admirably suited as Jack Elsworth; Miss Phyllis Brent's Rosie Rapid is a good character-study; Mr. Arthur A. Tomlin gives a powerful impersonation of the villainous Henry Travers; and Mr. Gerald Weston is excellent as the Strange Preacher.

BRISTOL.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. Martin Harvey and company are here for the week. On Monday evening The Only Way attracted a full house. Mr. Harvey as Sydney Carton acted with earnestness, and was highly effective throughout. Miss N. de Silva presented a highly interesting exposition of Mimi; Miss Coleridge was pleasing as Lucie Manette, and Miss Mary Rorke displayed considerable power as The Vengeance. Mr. Leonard Craike acted with much sincerity as Charles Darnay; Mr. Charles Glenny was sufficiently powerful as Ernest Defarge; Mr. P. Alexander was decidedly good as Mr. Lorry; Mr. Philip Hewland made the most of Mr. Stryver; and Mr. Fred Wright, sen., acted admirably as Dr. Manette. In the prologue the parts of the Marquis de St. Evremond, Vicomte de St. Evremond, Jean Defarge, and a peasant were ably taken by Messrs. E. A. Raynor, Leslie Palmer, Alfred Mansfield, and H. Blackmore. The augmented orchestra was ably conducted by Mr. Clemens Franckenstein. On Tuesday evening Hamlet was presented, Mr. Harvey being highly successful in the title-rôle. The Corsican Brothers is billed for Thursday and Friday evenings.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry C. Alty. —Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is here with Man and Wife. Miss Kate Hallam plays Marcelle in sympathetic style; Mr. John F. Traynor presents a fine, manly exposition of Paul Revere; Mr. Wilson Coleman is highly successful in the unpopular part of Captain D'Esparre; Mr. Ambrose Horton is suitably bluff as Sergeant Jacques; Messrs. Sidney Bryant and Val Gully are amusing as Bimbo and Bambo; and Mr. E. Van Bien makes a good part of Colonel Latour. Other characters have clever exponents in Miss Polly Denville, Miss Ethel F. Greene, Miss Violet Temple, Messrs. Edward Leslie, Argus Phillips, Harcourt Ralph, and R. Stone.

Palace Theatre.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Grais's baboons do remarkable gymnastic feats, including a sensational "looping the loop" on a tricycle. Marstro, assisted by Mlle. Oretta, does a clever equilibristic and tumbling act; Billie Barlow, comedienne, presents a pleasing turn; the Schafers are successful in a musical comedy act, The Garden of Melody; Madge Allan is a pleasing vocalist and dancer; Harry Weldon, comedian, is successful; Russell and Reed amuse with their sketch, Binks' Blunder; Dene and Dawson have also a comical sketch, Stage Aspirants, which is successful; and the performance concludes with "The Wonderful Electric Belt," depicted by Vernon's Bioscope.

Empire.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—John Humphries and company are amusing in the absurdity Ancient Britons; Clarice Mayne, comedienne and mimic presents a pleasing turn; Burt Shepard, comedian, is successful; Eustace and Eyre have a smart ventriloquial absurdity, Tomkins Junior; Charlton is successful as an illusionist, &c.; Ethel Arundale, comedienne, presents a pleasing turn; Derenda and Green, juggling comedians, obtain considerable applause; and Harris and Worth, patter comedians and dancers, are successful. The performance concludes with a good selection of animated pictures. For Friday evening, being the anniversary of the present management, special attractions are announced.

BROUGHTON.—Victoria Theatre, Ltd.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. Ian Maclaren met with a gratifying reception on Monday evening when he represented the title-rôle in Hamlet in a most impressive and convincing style; Miss Katherine Harrington was an excellent Ophelia; the King and Queen were well presented by Mr. G. Westland and Miss Edith Coleman; Laertes was also a fine piece of work by Mr. Frank Royde; Mr. Arthur Fayne ably sustained Polonius; Mr. J. V. Bryant carefully played Horatio; Mr. Basil Dean, Mr. George Powell, Miss G. Littlewood, Mr. W. S. Butt, Mr. P. Stafford Dawson, and the other members of the company gave excellent studies of their various characters. The staging was excellent. Hamlet was announced to be repeated on Saturday, the intervening evenings and Wednesday matinée being filled with David Garrick, As You Like It, She Stoops to Conquer, The Merchant of Venice, and Romeo and Juliet.

BURNLEY.—Victoria Opera House. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Good houses are witnessing Mr. Henry Swinerd's company here in Dare Devil Dorothy. Miss Dorothy Esmond, an excellent actress, makes the most of the title-rôle; Mr. Walter Ashley as Captain George Fielden displays good voice and is heartily applauded; Miss Marie Vere gives a clever performance as Ruth Montrose; and Mr. Dean Cliffe is capital as Featherstone Haugh. The humour is maintained at a high standard by Mr. Bert Edwards as Silas Crump and Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith; Mr. Henry C. Ward is clever as Captain Dudley; and the Misses Mabel and Lillie Blake give a "mirror dance" which is greatly appreciated.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The principal item here this week is furnished by the Lorch Family (nine in number) in a brilliant series of risley feats, for which they are heartily recalled; Minnie Cunningham sings some excellent songs in a charming manner; A Game for Two is the subject of a good sketch given by the Two Custances; Merson and company give a hunting absurdity, introducing some smart patter; Ada and Lucien Grey are loudly applauded for "Down the Vale"; and the Collier and his Child give a clever performance of second sight; Chas. Santon double-voiced vocalist, sings most acceptably; Dunningusto, conjuror, is exceedingly dexterous with cards; and the Empire Theatroscope projects a good picture.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — New Theatre and Opera House (Hippodrome).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Capital variety turns are the order here this week. The Abadaroffs, in their quaint pre-historic garb, are responsible for some clever acrobatic work; Ethel York is a pleasing vocalist; the comic duets of the Sisters Ford are well received; Mr. J. T. McMellan is decidedly original in his Scotch character songs, and speedily gains favour; Stuart and Evans sing and dance well; Russell Carr is a skilful ventriloquist; the Brothers St. Clair excel as comedy cyclists; and entertaining pictures are produced by the Raymond Bio-tableaux.

BURY (Lancs.).—Theatre Royal and Opera House, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Her Love Against the World is being played here by Messrs. W. H. Hallatt and Walter Howard's company. Miss Ellen Snow is a charming Princess Iris, and Mr. Walter Howard makes a manly Eric Strathmere; Miss Blanche Steele acts well as the Countess of Rassellyn; Miss Rosie St. John is well suited as Nello Strathmere; and Mr. Mayor-Cooke, as Prince Ulric, is a fine villain.

Circus of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Manager, Mr. Walter Mould. —The principal feature is Pathé Frère's Passion Play, depicted on the Ottograph. There are also numerous other pictures. Other turns are the Lynches, who sing acceptable illustrated songs, and Will Van Allen, the American comedian and tramp musician, who evokes much applause.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Sons; General Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun. —A good company here includes The Smart Set (under the direction of Walter George), who sing very well; W. L. Murray, winner of the Sandow competition; Vilvare, a clever illusionist; Alvina Mining, assisted by Dan Mining, in a dramatic sketch entitled A Modern Shylock; The Gentrys, humorists; Landor Brothers, contortionists; Harry Nelson, comedian; Lytton, ventriloquist; Cleland, juggler; and Stuart Melville, comedian.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—The boards are occupied this week by the Colchester Military Amateur Dramatic Society in My Friend the Prince, preceded by The Man in the Street.

Royal Hippodrome.—At the head of the bill here are the Zerbinis, in their musical act; Beattie Bloom makes a good impression with her catchy songs; Ben Jackson is a clever banjoist; Wisper gives a smart display of juggling; Eva Rosslyn is a pleasing vocalist; Jury's Pictures are better than usual; and the Cosmans, in their diverting sketch complete a first-class programme.

CAMBRIDGE. — New Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—On Monday and Wednesday Mr. Norman Macowan and company paid a welcome return visit with Monsieur Beaucaire. Mr. Macowan endows the Frenchman with a personality quite his own, and makes the character thoroughly interesting; Miss Violet Sterne fills the part of Lady Mary Carlisle with much charm; Mr. Murray Hathom gives a clever impersonation of the Duke of Winterset; Mr. Arthur Somers is pleasing as Major Molyneaux; and Mr. Sidney R. Palfrey, Mr. George Traill, Mr. P. Ramsey Forman, Mr. Robert Entwistle, Miss Mary Masters, Miss Mabel Adams, Miss Lister Stevens, and Miss Isabel Hathorn give adequate representations of their respective parts. On Tuesday evening A Marriage of Convenience was played.

CARDIFF.—New Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford. — Mr. Mouillot's company is here in The Girl Behind the Counter. The fun is kept going rapidly by Mr. Howard Gridland as Viscount Gushington and Mr. Ellis Holand as General Willoughby; Mr. Arthur Cartwright as Charles Chetwynd, and Miss Nora Brocklebank as Winnie Willoughby, are a delightful couple, their fine voices blending beautifully; as Mons. Duval, the excitable proprietor of the Maison Duval, Mons Jules Charmettes scores an instantaneous success; Mr. Frederick Park as Adolphus Dudds is a very versatile artist, his songs and business with Miss Rose Helene, the charming and captivating impersonator of Susie, being among the prettiest things in the whole performance; Miss Florence Lee as Millie presents a delineation which is quite irresistible; Mr. A. M. Moore as the "energetic" waiter deserves praise for a rendition which is extremely funny; the Commissionaire is well represented by Mr. Geoffrey Allsopp; and Ninette is capitally presented by Miss Doris Langdon.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt Redford.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company presents Honour Thy Father. Miss Mabel Coleman is to be congratulated upon her rendering of Lilian Garth; and Gabriel Garth is admirably represented by Mr. Walter M. Cameron; while Mr. Howell Travis is sufficiently villainous as Duncan Bly. Mr. Robert Gilbert as Jack Halyard is an unqualified success; Mr. Fred L. Conynghame is exceedingly good as Mike Copplestone; Mr. Claude Merton in the dual rôle of Job Merry and George Bloggs acts with much ability; Gertrude Garth is well sustained by Miss Kate Newton; and Miss Winnie Donovan as Mercy Merry gives a capital delineation. Excellent fun is provided by Mr. W. H. Melrose as Ned Pennycomquick and Miss Ada Salmon as Poppy Cornleigh.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. W. Lea; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring. — On Monday night Paul Cinquevalli made his first appearance after his most successful American tour; he is as entertaining as ever. Carter Livesey and Lillian Rosebery present an amusing sketch, entitled The Would-be Actors; Lottie Lennox is a favourite comedienne, her catchy songs being well appreciated; Syd May is an admirable imitator, and his wrestling skit is undoubtedly one of the funniest items to be seen; Russell Brandow, an exceptionally clever acrobatic dancer; Ruth Lytton, Scotch comedienne; A. W. Scott, the popular coon singer; Elsie Claire, soprano vocalist; and an amusing Bioscope picture, complete an ideal programme.

CARLISLE.—H. M. Theatre.—Lessees, Mr Thos. Courtice and Mr. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—His House in Order is being played here for the first time by Mr. George Alexander's company Mr. Stephen T. Ewart has a part which suits him admirably, and the power, earnestness, and agreeable vivacity with which he invests the part of Hilary Jesson stamps him as an actor of unusual ability. As Filmer Jesson, M.P., Mr. Edward Pearce was seen to distinct advantage. Little Derek was splendidly played by Miss Doris Champion; and Mr. Herbert Lomas as Sir Daniel Ridgeley, Mr. Ernest R. Holloway as his son, Mr. Charles Tyrel as the Mayor, and Mr. Luke Forster as Dr. Dilnott contributed sound and thoroughly interesting performances. The delightful and artistic impersonation of Nina by Miss Dorothy Grimston was highly appreciated, her emotional and dramatic scenes being rendered with true feeling and effect. Miss Augusta Haviland was clever and amusing as Lady Ridgeley, whose daughter Geraldine was cleverly impersonated by Miss Elaine Steddall.

The Palace.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—The sketch Dotty, played by the Ten Loonies, is one of the funniest and smartest turns seen on these boards; a distinctly novel sketch entitled The Phantom Ship, in which the stage effects were remarkably clever, is also much appreciated; Chapters from Life, by Tennis and Laune, interests the audience, and the ventriloquial humourist Gillan meets with his usual success; Henriquette Maude, described as "the little New Zealand Girl," relates the experiences of her tour round the world, illustrated by the Bioscope; Carr and Rose contribute a pleasing turn; as did also Charlie Pastor, a laughing comedian; and there is a splendid picture by the Pepiscope.

CASTLEFORD.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman.—Mrs. F. Wybert Clive's company, under the direction of Mr. Wybert Clive, presents The Conscript this week. Mr. H. Creagh Hunt is an excellent Karl Truevitch; Mr. Douglas Watson acts with great effect as Ivan Manloff; the villain, Count Paul Hardiski, is well played by Mr. Walter Steele; Doggervitch is presented with skill by Mr. Edward Lourie; Mr. Wybert Clive makes a deep impression as Maxim Fredka, "the ferret"; Miss Lilian Ross does good work as Nadia Truevitch; Miss Florence M. Daly gives a successful performance as Dame Katinka; and Little Karl is nicely portrayed by Miss Cissie Reenan. The comedy parts are amusingly played by Mr. Harry Lidole as Tretch Tretoff, and Miss Isabel Hunt as Wanda; both sing and dance. Mr. James Jeff's performance is capital as Sergeant Michael Andrevitch. The staging is excellent.

Queen's Theatre of Varieties. — Proprietors, Messrs. Charles Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Emerson.—Kahn and Kahn are remarkably clever in their exposition of magic; Mr. George Belrose and Miss Maud de Velin, duettists of unusual ability, are loudly applauded; a successful turn is given by Mr. Beanland, comedian; the Brothers Curran, in their original boxing act, Taking the Census, are both clever and amusing; a hit is made by Wright and Elton as speciality artists; the Evalos give an exhibition of jocular juggling in finished style; R. Dunning is well received as an up-to-date ventriloquist; and Mr. E. sings well, and causes fun with witty patter. The Loyal Dominion Company's Animated Pictures are entertaining.

CHATHAM.—Barnard's Palace of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. S. B. Barnard.—Miss Maude Elliston and company are creating plenty of fun here in Dobson's Day Off. Fred Hallam's comic songs take well, and Frank and Free's domestic squabble is very capably represented; Mabel Thorne, an old favourite here, sings some new numbers, including "Waiting at the Church," which fairly brings down the house; Gustave Fasola mystifies the audience with his conjuring tricks and illusions; Winnie Wynne, vocalist, and Beale and Broadway, comedians and dancers, complete the variety turns, while pictures by Lacey's Erascope continue to afford amusement.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager Mr. Frank J. Donne.—Jock Walker opens the ball here with songs à la Harry Lauder. Then comes Miss Mabel Moss with some pleasing ballads and Frank Coyle, whose ditty, "The Songs they Sing To-day," is certainly deserving of the applause he gets; Stelling and Revell appear in a smart comedy bar act, and Mabel Sinclair gives a neat ventriloquial act, Esme Gordon, serio, advises us in song, "Don't tell your troubles to the world"; the Dandies please everyone with their songs and dances, and the Edisonograph contributes a laughable film, "The Juggling Maniac."

CHELTENHAM. — Opera House. — General Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—What the Butler Saw draws crowded houses this week. Mr. Lionel Rignold as the Butler leads the revels in an inimitable manner; Miss Ada Blanche is a delightful comedienne, and as Mrs. Barrington has a part that suits her perfectly; Mr. Charles Fawcett gives a racy impersonation of Jack Barrington; Mr. Victor Widdicombe is realistic as the apoplectic General Dunlop; Mr. H. H. Rignold is excellent as the little Jew, Wilnstein; and Mr. Roy Byford is good as Professor Shale; Miss Clara Russell, as the haughty Miss Foden, is irresistible; Miss Jennie Wigney as Nora is capable; Misses Dorothy Hart and Vera O'Connell are effective as the feline sisters; Miss Julie St. George is well placed as Mrs. Hake; and Miss May Hart is the enfant terrible to the life.

CHESTER.—Royalty Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—A good bill is presented here, Mr. Fred Karno's vaudeville company appearing in Mumming Birds and Early Birds with great success. Apollo, assisted by Bacchus, presents a novel athletic entertainment; the Miltons are a smart comedy duo; Lincoln and Warren are clever acrobatic comedy cyclists; Jack Neil, Scotch comedian, has some smart patter. Others appearing are Chas. Denion, comedian; the Sisters Lavender, duettists and dancers; and Lily Stuart, a sprightly comedienne.

CHORLEY (Lancs.). — Grand Theatre. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hemingway.—The attraction this week is Mr. Gilbert Payne's company in the musical comedy The Honeymoon. Mr. Gilbert Payne creates much amusement by his jokes and antics as Nathaniel Noodle; Mr. Alvin Sawyer as Colonel Vandyke Brown, and Mr. Leslie Erle as his nephew, Jack Armstrong, respectively, are excellent; Miss Patty Fairley is very good as Madge Armstrong; and Miss Lillian Ramsdale is seen to advantage as Emeretta Noodle. The company also includes Mr. Fred Fulton Mr. Harry Hoyland, Miss Nellie Dyson, and the Four Sisters Godfrey, who are excellent dancers.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. Horace Stanley opened here on Monday with his company in the 10.30 Down Express. Mr. Andrew Money made a capital Jack O'Malley, being well supported by Miss Elsie Capell as Bessie Leigh; Mr. Chas. Burdon was successful as the malicious James Inderwick; the ex-gamekeeper was characteristically presented by Mr. Tom Roydon; Mr. Horace Stanley was the life of the piece as Sammy, being nicely aided by Miss Kate Kilpack as Peggy, and Miss Evelyn Walton as Letitia; Mr. Alaric Burton made a convincing Cuthbert Leigh; and Mr. Edwin Clarke did well as Huntley Mason; the Man in Possession being worthily represented by Mr. Arthur E. Francis.

Hippodrome.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Miss Lucy Weston, who tops this week's bill, is a lady with perfect enunciation, who sings a trio of songs in a charmingly demure way, eliciting much applause; Ford and Barras, street performers, provide an unique entertainment, in conjunction with which a competition is run nightly; Joe Nightingale and Stegant give a particularly fine low-comedy character-sketch, in which quaintness and natural fun predominate; Alec Kendall patters in racy fashion; Frances Drew sings popular songs; George Reeves has some bright parodies; Les Petite Diabolos dance in approved style; and good pictures conclude.

CONSETT.—New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Frank Ayrton and company are paying a welcome return visit here with The Power of Gold. Mr. Geo. Lyttleton is good as the Hadgi Zambra; and as Paul Judson Mr. R. F. Stacey is favourably received. Mr. Richard Harris as Mark Harley and Mr. Frank Holybake as Dr. Stephen Saunders do full justice to their respective parts; Peter Maguire is in the capable hands of Mr. W. Victor; whilst Mr. Wilson Whyte is very clever as Mark Antony. In the comedy parts of Sammy Smudge and Norah Donnelly Mr. Frank Ayrton and Miss Madge Seymour are very funny, their songs and dances being loudly applauded. A word of praise is due to Little Prudence, who appears as Paddy Blake; and as Meg Judson Miss Lily commendation are Miss Clara Greenhalgh, Miss Lucy Desmond, Miss Gladys Oliver, Miss Dorothy Crowther, Miss Grace Chester, and Mr. William Wilby. The play is elaborately staged.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Messrs. John B. Shinton and Alex. Greenwood's company is here this week in The Price of Her Soul, in which Mr. Shinton appears with great credit as Lord Mandeville, being excellently supported by Miss Ada M. Ryder as Countess Inez. Mr. Arthur E. Pringle (Major Skoboloff), Mr. Ernest Regeat (Captain Petruski), Mr. Geo. Marriott, jun. (the Hon. Algy Fraser), are all good in their respective parts; Lady Fraser is well played by Miss Grace Garside; Miss Maude Yorke is capable as Olga Lanovitz; Mr. Larry Clements (Pat Murphy) and Miss Ethel Rainforth (Polly Perkins) supply excellent comedy; while mention should be made of Little Mabel Ronald as Vera.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Langley Wyatt.—Charley's Aunt is being played by Mr. Brandon Thomas's company. Mr. Spencer Trevor, in the title-part, is the life and soul of the piece, and scores all through; and the Spettigue of Mr. Walter Beaumont is another outstanding feature of the performance. Sir Francis Chesney is exceedingly well played by Mr. Sidney Compton; and Jack Chesney and Charles Wykeham are very creditably presented by Mr. Hastings Lynn and Mr. Richard B. Mason; while Mr. M. A. Wetherell is capital as Brassett. Miss Ruth Nightingale is a charming Ela; Misses Bertha Northam and Ida Vynall are both praiseworthy in the rôles of Hetty and Amy; and the Donna Lucia is admirably enacted by Miss Lena MacNaughton. The Lancashire Sailor is the lever de rideau. Miss Nightingale, as the blind girl Alice, is in every way commendable; and Miss Mollie Robertson is good as Martha. Alfred is capably accounted for by Mr. Wetherell; Mr. Beaumont appears to advantage as a farmer; and Mr. Compton plays effectively as a solicitor.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—The Royal Tokio Troupe of Japanese equilibrists are paying a return visit here this week, and their exceptionally clever show is warmly appreciated; the Three Macdonalds, with a novelty musical act, are decidedly entertaining; George Grenville, comedian, soon makes himself popular; Cyclo, trick cyclist, provides a sensational turn, which is deserving of special mention; the Sisters Brooke are charming duettists and dancers; whilst Kendrick and Laura, society entertainers, add in no small measure to the harmony. Conway and Garland, in an absurdity, Left in Charge, cause roars of laughter; and the Bioscope, depicting the English Cup Final, concludes a well-varied bill.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Devonport is favoured with a visit from Mr. Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company, in the exciting drama, entitled For Her Sake, dealing with many stirring incidents of Russian life. Miss Mabel Mannering is delightfully sympathetic as the heroine; Mr. Henry Ford is a manly hero; and Mr. Arthur Elwyn makes a typical stage villain. Mr. Fred Beck proves himself a genuinely funny comedian as Lord Charmley Hargraves; and Miss Nellie Louraine capably plays the part of Princess Wolanoff.

DEWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—The "star" artists of the excellent variety company here this week are Mme. Ada Colley and Mr. Leo Dryden, whose popularity remains as effusively appreciated as their talent is undimmed; Miss Lillian Sivado proved herself an accomplished trapeze artist; Mr. Harry Plowden, with his humorous songs and patter, has a cordial reception; Globella, on the rolling globe, performs numerous difficult tricks; a sketch entitled The Rival Indians, makes a hit; the Dunlops deserve particularly to be eulogised for the excellence of their eccentric bicycle performance; Los Rupertos, in an equilibristic turn of an interesting nature, manifest skill and originality; and the humorous antics of Comical Walker and his bodyguard of juveniles keep everybody in a good humour.

DONCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—An excellent variety programme is being presented here twice nightly. Fred Tenby, comedian and dancer, pleases; the Brothers Devars, comedy bar performers, are clever; Madge Osmond is a dainty male impersonator; Pearce and Ward, boxers, provide a good turn; and Violi, lady instrumentalist, introduces some novel and interesting instruments; Tom Parker, comedian and dancer; Atroy, society juggler and hoop roller; and Will Onda's combination in the pantomime comedy sketch, Hotel Comfort, are other excellent attractions.

DOVER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Mr. Dudman Bromwich is here this week with Miss Katie Neville and, assisted by a capable company, is presenting a sensational sketch entitled In Old Madrid. Harry Merson is an amusing comedian; Ethel Wilson, an exceedingly well-dressed burlesque artist, contributes two good songs; a clever turn is given by the Idento Bros., smart jugglers; Wal Robbins is well received for his humorous and musical turn; a pretty and novel entertainment is given by Charles Banks, assisted by his highly intelligent little dog; and an exceedingly graceful little lady named La Belle Maie is responsible for a charming performance on the tight wire and afterwards on the rope. Raymond's Bio-tableaux show "Those Boys Again" and "A Venetian Love Tragedy."

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Chas. Hyland.—This week we have Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in Peter's Mother. Miss Ruth Mackay won the delight of all the audience by her dignified and effective portrayal of Lady Mary Crewys; Mr. Percy Hutchison displayed his abilities with considerable skill as Peter Crewys; and the part of Sir Timothy was in the clever hands of Mr. Charles Harley. Mr. Stanley Pringle acted with great dramatic power as John Crewys; and Canon Birch was well sustained by Mr. F. G. Thurstans. Miss May Griffiths as Lady Belstone and Miss Florence Harwood as Miss G. Crewys added greatly to the comedy by their clever and entertaining parts. Dr. Blundell had a capital representative in Mr. Townsend Whitling; Miss Violet Ley acted splendidly as Mrs. Hewell; and as her daughter, Sarah, Miss Hilda Honiss was most efficient. A farce, Her Dearest Friend, preceded.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—George Lashwood's songs were received with great applause here on Monday; Chris. Richards gave plenty of amusement with his tricky manipulations of his funny hat; the Three Amaranths in their clever and graceful dances gave a capital performance; the Eight Emeralds Girls have made many friends here, and their songs and dances are heartily enjoyed; the Two Bostons appeared in their well-known showman's performance with success. Goggin and Davis, acrobats, Marlo, juggler, Bessie Benson, comedienne; and the Sisters Neilson also contribute most successfully to an excellent programme, and the Empire pictures, exhibiting the Cup Final, Crystal Palace, are interesting.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Monillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Parrington.—The Belle of New York is being presented by Mr. George Musgrave's company. As the Salvation Army Lassie Miss Empsie Bowman charmed everyone with her pleasing and effective singing, and danced most gracefully; an old favourite is Mr. Frank Lawton, in his well-known part of Blinky Bill, and his whistling solos and clever dancing were heartily enjoyed; Mr. Joseph R. Tate as the Polite Lunatic was particularly good; Mr. Paddy Durpres fulfilled the character of Ichabod Bronson in capital style; and his son, Harry, was most successfully enacted by Mr. John Doran. Miss Lily Maxwell as Fifi sang "La Belle Parisienne" in a most taking manner, and danced very nicely; Cora Angelique was admirably played by Miss Winnie Browne; and Miss Florence Hersee as Kissie Fitzgarter received deserving applause for her coon song and dance. The amusing part of the Portuguese Twins was excellently sustained by Messrs. Lionel Yeoman and Ray L. Cody.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Rosini Casselli with her clever troupe of Mexican dogs, gives a very interesting show; Olms and Carbeth are remarkably smart and diverting as comedy jugglers; May Newall sings several ballads in taking style, and is deservedly applauded; the musical turn of Huline and May provokes much laughter; Harry Barker scores successfully as a character comedian, as also do Rappo and Ella, society gymnasts; Louie Harman is a fascinating comedienne and burlesque actress; and other acceptable turns are Vanola, Mexican antipodeste, Jack Foley, comedian, and the Bioscope, with new pictures.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The artists appearing this week are Ethel Mackey, soprano vocalist; Ted Warner, comedian and vocalist; Prof. and Madame Elba, second-sight artists; George Mack, comedian and dancer. The new cinematograph displays a capital series of pictures.

SAMUELS' EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Howard.—The company engaged here are the Raymonds, in their comedy act The Warrior's Return; Isa Bernard, vocalist and dancer; Harry May, eccentric comedian; Daisy Clowser, comedienne and dancer; Herbert Davis, eccentric patter comedian; and Halt and Lane, speciality artists, in their comedy act Courtship.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Miss Florence Glossop-Harris, supported by Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., and a London company, are giving a round of Shakespearean performances, opening on Monday with Twelfth Night. Miss Glossop-Harris's acting as Viola was particularly graceful and pleasing; Mr. Cellier as Feste had scarcely sufficient scope for his powers, but on Tuesday as Romeo he gave an excellent rendering. The principals are supported by a strong company of all-round excellence. Much Ado About Nothing, As You Like It, and The Taming of the Shrew are also billed.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. B. Piberdy.—Marguerite Ismay's White Coons are causing quite a furore here. Too much praise cannot be accorded The Gilberts, in their smart performance on the wire; Raynor and Reece have an enjoyable sketch, Early Closing Day; the Sisters Hypatia, duettists and dancers, are lively; a clever exhibition of step-dancing is given by Lily Gaston; Blarney and Kennard, comedians, are an amusing turn; and Alf Davis, comedian, and Viny Loftus, comedienne, are very good. The Empire Pictures complete.

DUNDEE.—PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—The Red Letter, a clever dramatic incident founded on the Thaw case, is proving a big draw here this week, and Miss Lily Pearl and company should feel pleased with their reception. An exceptionally good turn is supplied by those smart American comedy artists, Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor, while that of Vowles and Bryan is one of the most refined and enjoyable turns imaginable; Charles Ashdowne is a very amusing comedian, and his legmania dancing is marvellous; the Schiavonis Troupe of acrobats are decidedly clever; Ben Harris and his Nippers are deservedly popular; and Nelson and Thomas appear in a new act with great success; Hans and Lux, cross-talk comedians, score, and Jennie Evans, a chic serio, obtains a good hearing. A novel boxing competition and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope complete an attractive bill.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—The topliner here is Mr. A. J. Gamble, a versatile Scotch comedian and eccentric dancer; a very enjoyable combination of mirth and music is supplied by Fred Ramsdale's musical comedy company in a very laughable sketch entitled The Squire's Daughter; Staffo, the butcher boy juggler, is decidedly clever; Clark's Nippers are well received; the Two Daniels, negro entertainers; John E. Lennard, character comedian; Sam Morrison, male soprano; and the Electric Motorscope, with several new films, complete.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—After a short and successful variety season drama once more holds sway here. This week Mr. Carr Loates' company is appearing in At the World's Mercy. Miss Cissie Milford as Skittles, the stowaway, makes a big hit; and as Alice Lloyd Miss Maude Devereux acts most sympathetically; as the hero, Captain Frank Mannley, Mr. John Cecil plays with fine vigour; Mr. Jess Doxer as Charlie Smart supplies humour of an acceptable kind.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Devonshire Park and Baths Co.; Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—The enterprising managers this week introduce their own capital company in the ever-interesting drama, East Lynne. The staging is quite worthy of special mention, and the triumph of the production is the very fine work of Miss Lilias Waldegrave as Lady Isabel, which well deserves the full measure of applause obtained; Miss Evelyn Neilda is a natural and pleasing Barbara Hare; Miss Iris Hawkins gives a very sweet and youthful rendering of Willie Carlyle; Mrs. Stanislaus Calhaem realises to the utmost all the comedy possibilities of Cornelia Carlyle; and Miss Sepha Julian is a capital Joyce. Mr. John J. Daly plays carefully and well as Archibald Carlyle; Mr. Henry Watson is a keen and effective Captain Levison; Mr. Walter Russel does the excellent work expected of an experienced actor as Lord Mount Severn; Mr. Ardene Linden helps along the laughter in an able manner as the Gamekeeper; and other parts are in very good hands.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. H. A. Saintsbury and a small, but very fine, company are appearing here in Anna of the Plains. Mr. Saintsbury as Matthew Kerrins contributes an extremely artistic and impressive performance, which merits the highest praise; Mr. Hilliard Vox, as Michael O'Donoghan, is capitally placed, and his efforts are warmly appreciated; Mr. C. H. Croker-King fully realises the possibilities of the part of Piet Van Heller, and shows fine judgment; and Mr. Louis Scott is an amusing Widem Van Stern. Miss Dorothy Desmond is a gentle, appealing Anna, and scores a marked success in a difficult part; Miss V. Vivian is a strong and well-defined Sarah Kerrins; and Miss Grace Ryland does capitally as Steina. The play is followed by a comedy, Jocelyn the Jester, in which Mr. Saintsbury shows his versatility in the remarkably well-played part of Jocelyn.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sydney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. H. Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Smith.—At the head of the bill here is Raku, the Japanese athlete, but on Tuesday evening the wonderfully smart little wrestler was unable to appear owing to sudden and severe indisposition. In his absence a very clever exhibition was given by an able assistant and a prepossessing lady, who gave finished illustrations of Ju-Jitsu. The Paul Hesse Trio are acrobats and wire-performers of much ability; Elmore and Recco are a couple of fine tumblers and comedians; Mr. Jack Crawley is a clever singer and realistic imitator; the Sisters Belmont are capable singers and smart dancers; Mrs. Bennet and Mr. Edward Cranston appear successfully in a cleverly-written sketch, A Model Wife; Mr. Fred Dornan, a refined vocalist, is a great favourite; Miss Josie Hammersley is a dainty burlesque artist; and new pictures give great pleasure.

ECCLES.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. C. Hamilton Baines; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Messrs. E. H. Knight and Geo. Denham's company is here in The Grip of Iron. Chief honours go to Mr. Fred Powell, whose depiction of Jagon is very powerful. Mr. Wallace Gurnock sustains the character of Paul Blanchard excellently; and Mr. A. G. Polson Turner is clever as Lorentz de Ribas. Mr. W. T. Riley impersonates Alphonse de Coucou, a detective, capably; while as Dodet, Mr. John Brittain is amusing. Mr. George Denham in the rôle of Loustalot, the smiler, creates considerable fun; Miss Rosabel Dodd as Cora Simmonet plays in good style; Miss Frances Trevoir ably sustains the rôle of Sophie Blanchard; and Miss Maggie Stewart as Marie Guerin achieves considerable success.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton have drawn crowded houses here this week. The company opened on Monday with The Virgin Goddess. Mr. Asche's admirable qualities of virility and earnestness are displayed in his stirring performance of Haephestion; and the acting of Miss Lily Brayton as Althea was memorable for grace, tenderness, and passion. Mr. Alfred Brydone makes an outstanding figure of the vacillating King of Artis—the impersonation is a brilliant one, characterised by evident study, and remarkable for finished elocution; Miss Elsie Chester is powerful and pathetic as the blind Cleito; Mr. H. R. Hignett acts with much ability as Iphicles; and Mr. Reginald Ian Penny is impressive as the Leader of the Male Chorus. Miss Leila Norris is dramatic as a Priestess of Artemus; and amongst other parts that are ably played a special word of praise is due to the Herald of Mr. G. Kay Souper. In response to loud applause at the close of the play Mr. Asche thanked the audience for the warmth of their reception. Othello was given on Tuesday, Mr. Asche winning a triumph with his masterly impersonation of the Moor. Miss Brayton's Desdemona was a performance full of beauty, naturalness, and effective quietude. The Taming of the Shrew has also been played during the week.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndnam; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—The long programme provided this week proves to be again an exceptionally strong one. Miss Edna Seaton makes a promising appearance as a Dutch comedienne; Vandinoff paints beautiful pictures with extraordinary skill and rapidity; Miss Jeannie Hartley is a particularly pleasing coon vocalist and dancer in miniature; Mr. Will Driscoll entertains by his singing, and still more by his dancing; Burnetti shows some surprising novelty as a quick-change musician; Miss Lena Brunton displays great proficiency in her imitations of music-hall celebrities; and Mr. Barney Armstrong, the popular comedian, assisted by a small boy, gives a quaint turn. The most outstanding musical item is contributed by Miss Lelia Roze, whose scena, A Dressing-room Dream, merits to the full the hearty approval with which it is received. An episode of Parisian life, entitled A Daughter of Pleasure, is admirably acted by Mr. J. G. Grahame, jun., and Miss Zerlina Harrington; and the series of bas-reliefs and tableaux vivants, reproduced by Henriette de Serris's company of French models, is remarkable for the fidelity with which the subjects are presented. Very interesting films are exhibited by the cinematograph.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The leading item in an attractive bill is provided by Mme. De Vry's Three Golden Graces, in their poses as gold bronze works of art, which comprise wonderfully perfect simulations of classical subjects; Miss Gwennie Hasto pleases the audience by her singing and dancing; and dancing of a surprisingly eccentric kind also marks the successful Flipp and Flopp sketch of the Delevines. Mr. Mike S. Whallen reels off a fund of amusing patter stories, and his impromptu verses are clever; the Lupino Brothers appear with much acceptance in a comedy speciality act; Nipper Lupino Lane gives a bright turn in character songs; and Gaumont's Chronophone contributes an interesting series of songs and films. Dome, the well-known clay modeller; Miss Nellie Coleman, the popular "only lady comedian"; and the Brothers Lang, knockabout performers, are also in the bill.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Ventom Swift.—The strength of the programme here this week lies in its admirable variety. The Moncktons present a clever musical sketch, Are Wives Dummies? and Miss Nellie Nora's instrumental act evokes loud applause. Mr. Percy Maye is successful in his female impersonations; and Chorley and Connor, comedians and dancers, are unflagging in their efforts to please. The Orchids, comedy entertainers, are bright and amusing in their turn; while Rene and Smith's vigorous performance, and the up-to-date films shown by the Alhambrascope, add to the interest of the bill.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. Andrew Melville's powerful company is here this week in the well-known drama, Driven from Home, and is attracting large houses. Miss Rose Ralph as Laura Raybrook enlists the sympathies of the audience by her pathetic rendering of the part. Mr. Fred A. Marston as Laura's autocratic uncle is lifelike; while Mr. G. M. Montanini is good as Geoffrey Waring. Mr Percy Dawsome deserves a word of praise for his portrayal of Willie the outcast; and Mr. Francis Everard ably sustains the part of Laura's husband. Miss Amy Corelli and Mr. Fred C. Imbert are responsible for some very humorous scenes.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. E. St. Alban's Opera Company is here this week in Les Cloches de Corneville. Mr. William Everard is an excellent representative of Henri; Mr. E. St. Alban's impersonation of Gaspard evokes loud applause; Mr. Charles Ross as Grenicheaux displays considerable talent; Mr. Fred Dark is most amusing as the Bailie; and Mr. Richard Martin is equally good as Gobo. Miss Marion Ayling as Germaine plays with success; and Miss Madge Roberts makes a dainty and charming Serpolette.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager and Musical-Director, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton.—"The Gipsies and their Jester" are concluding their visit here this week, and have fully maintained their reputation. Mr. Eric Davidson's voice is heard to advantage in all his songs, but especially in "Lorraine"; Miss Muriel Fane is much applauded; Miss Florence Croft sings in a pleasing manner; Mr. Will Gane (the Jester) keeps the audience in continual merriment; and Mr. Robert Tattersall is a diverting conjurer and ventriloquist.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stear.—Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company appeared here for three nights last week in A Soldier of France. Mr. Hinton gave a powerful rendering of Corporal Jean, and the villainies of Judas de Lara were well brought out by Mr. Travis Green. Miss Lelia Gillwood played the difficult part of Pauline in a clever manner. The comedy element was safe in the hands of Mr. Wilton Drury and Miss Jennie Clare; Mr. Victor Millard played the dual part of Captain Lorraine and Lieut. Louis well, and Mr. Arthur Lowry gave a good rendering of the Duke de Laval.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Resident Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—The leading line here is occupied by Hackenschmidt, whose wrestling matches with worthy opponents have aroused much enthusiasm; Charles Frazer and company present an item entitled The Enchanted Iona, which comprises good singing and dancing, and is also a vehicle for the introduction of posing and illusionary business; Cliff Ryland, a genuine humorist with a quaint delivery, has pleased immensely; Ernest Montefiore and company in a dramatic and musical sketch, The Little Colonel, have accomplished a success on a return visit; Will Lytton, an original dancer and a capable comedian, makes a decided hit; Gold and Sterling, in a musical comedy scena, The Welsh Girl and the Artist, renew acquaintance with Gateshead people, and get a flattering reception; the Society Quartette of singers and dancers are successful; and pictures by Vernon's Imperial Bioscope conclude this excellent entertainment.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Coun. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company in The Sin of Her Childhood has attracted good audiences to this house during the week. Mr. James Duncan as the Rev. Alan Grey is responsible for a capital embodiment; Stephen Haysel receives the greatest attention from Mr. Wilson Summers; Mr. Frank Liston makes a manly John Thornton; Mr. Hugh Brady is very amusing as Barney O'Reilly; Miss Stanley Burt as Mary Haysel has a difficult task, but comes through the ordeal with distinct credit; Miss Clara Santley supplies an excellent portrayal of Maria Haysel; Miss Katie Lever is to the fore in the part of Eliza Muggins; and Miss Lissa Yound and Little Dorothy are successful in their respective parts.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Coun. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Miss Lydia Donovan's company in Her One Great Sin is appearing here this week. Miss Donovan is the central figure as Grace Warhurst. Mr. C. Quinton Fulford (Arnold Thornhill) and Mr. G. Edward Hall (Reuben Warhurst) lend valuable assistance.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Mr. Edmund Tearle and company are here in a répertoire of plays, the first presented being The Three Musketeers, with Mr. Tearle as D'Artagnan, of which character he gives a vigorous impersonation. Miss Kate Clinton is equally impressive as Miladi, the spy of Cardinal Richelieu; the part of that wily Statesman is suitably rendered by Mr. Bernhardt Turner; and Louis XIII. is well delineated by Mr. G. T. Greig. Miss May Campbell gives a tender, yet dignified, interpretation of the Queen, Anne of Austria; Miss Esther Tearle is very pleasing as Constance, the Queen's tire-woman; Mr. J. A. Keoch introduces some amusing broad comedy into his impersonation of Boniface; the Musketeers are powerfully played by Mr. A. D. Adams as Athos, Mr. Ernest Lodge as Porthos, and Mr. R. H. Lace as Aramis; while their Captain is forcibly portrayed by Mr. P. Kelsie. Mr. Clifford Marle is satisfactory as the Duke of Buckingham. Macbeth was played on Tuesday, with Mr. Tearle as the Thane and Miss Kate Clinton as Lady Macbeth, Jeanie Deans on Wednesday, and during the remaining nights It's Never Too Late to Mend.

ROYALTY, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—It is many years since the Ibsen boom was at its height, and yet Glasgow is only being given its second opportunity of seeing an Ibsen play. Mr. Harold V. Neilson is presenting An Enemy of the People here, and the audience, if not as large as it might have been, was most enthusiastic. As Dr. Stockmann, Mr. Neilson gives a very fine performance; and his timid wife is cleverly acted by Miss Lucy Sibley. The pompous Burgomaster is played with excellent effect by Mr. Claud Haviland; a specially good performance is the Hovstad of Mr. H. Gomer May; the part of the printer, Aslaksen, is played on amusing lines by Mr. Frank Lilliput; Mr. John Delliv as old Kiil, Miss Amy Sangster as Petra, Mr. W. Lemmon Warde as Billing, and Mr. Bernard Limpus as Captain Horster lend able and effective support, and the "rowdy" meeting in Act 3 is cleverly stage-managed.

KING'S, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—San Toy is this week being presented by Mr. John Hart's company. Miss Gertrude Gilliam's portrayal of San Toy is a most artistic performance; and the Bobby Preston of Mr. Edmund Sherras is most successful. Mr. Horace Mills as Li is very amusing; Mr. Colin Coop sings and acts well as Yen How; Mr. W. J. Manning gives an excellent account of Sir Bingo Preston; Miss Sylvia May is a dainty Poppy; and Miss Clive Crellin is worthy of high commendation as Dudley. Mr. Alfred Clark does good service as the Emperor; Mr. Frederick Hobbs as Fo Hop, and Mr. Jocelyn Hope as Sing Hi, lend able assistance.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch. — A special stock season commenced here on Monday, when a stirring performance was given of the American drama, The Unknown; or, A River Mystery. Mr. Phillip Darien was very successful in depicting the trials of the unfortunate hero, Harold Merrybright, who, through loss of reason and memory, becomes "the unknown." The heroine, Bessie Merrybright, had a winning and accomplished exponent in Miss Maud Linden; a splendid example of a bluff and hearty old sailor was seen in the Jack Salt of Mr. Felix Pitt; Mr. Clavering Craig's Tyson was a forcible and telling performance; the Dr. Brinckton of Mr. Thomas Barry showed careful study; as Albert Stormking, Mr. Herbert Young made a pleasing impression; good character work was done by Mr. Frederick Sandy as Jimmy; and amusing comedy scenes were supplied by Mr. David Phillips (Pat) and Miss Enid Wilde (Louise).

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Gordon Jefferson.—The Trail of the Serpent, played by Mr. A. Campbell-Kelly and company, is the attraction here. Of outstanding merit is Miss Nana Cameron in the part of Rachel, the gipsy; no less excellent are the dual parts of Gerald Kingston and Old Jack, played by Mr. A. Campbell-Kelly; Ralph Hammond has a strong exponent in Mr. Frank Lyndon; and the Gipsy Jake of Mr. John Cullen is equally good. Abundant humour lightens the piece considerably, thanks to Miss Jennie Risley as Rose and Mr. J. R. Tyrell as William; Miss Phyllis Elton as Ethel Maynard, the heroine, is a capable actress; and the remaining parts are impersonated acceptably. Between the acts, the phonograph selection and the bioscope pictures continue to add further to the evening's enjoyment.

LYCEUM. — Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company, in the stirring drama, The Female Swindler, has migrated here from the Princess's, and Govan playgoers seem highly appreciative of the merits of this strong play. Miss Grace Leslie in the title-rôle acts with exceptional ability.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—The centre of attraction this week is the one and only Wilkie Bard; as a comedian he has gained to an enormous extent in popularity with Glasgow audiences, and this week has proved no exception. An all-round excellent company includes Miss Nellie Stratton, another welcome comedienne; the Dayton Family give their accustomed clever exposition of tumbling, &c.; the Westwoods are a clever team of trick cyclists; the Cambrian Trio of lady vocalists provide an excellent turn; while another Glasgow favourite, Arthur Sutcliffe, is well received. Farley, Rennie, and Farley also serve up an amusing eccentric turn, entitled Fun at a Railway Station; the Three Cane Girls are a talented trio of dancers; Kitts and Windrum, in their farcical sketch The Cuckoo, are responsible for much merriment; and the Empire Bioscope terminates an enjoyable evening's entertainment.

ZOO-HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—A special attraction this week is Clive Darrell, "the jilted giant," who has had a flattering reception; a clever performance is given by the Piccolinis, Liliputian wonders, in a unique shooting and cycling act; the tricks performed by Belloni's Cockatoos border on the marvellous; O'Malley and Brown are seen to much advantage in a comedy sketch; other acceptable turns include Fanny Erris, comedienne; Robb Gilmore, comedian; Arthur Albert, vocalist; Olive Tree, in illustrated songs; the Jagos, in a clever sketch; and the Hippodrome Bioscope, with new pictures.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Miss Belle Davis and her piccaninnies head the list here, and the programme is strong in comedians, including Bert Brantford, Fred Cary, Roland Hill, and the Harvey Boys. The latter, as London messengers, have a new boxing act, entitled That Was Me, which is provocative of much mirth; the Burnells, a clever quartette, appear in their sketch, On the Links; the Mackweys, comedy acrobats, and Zarno and Arno, in a comedy act, win much applause; an outstanding turn is that of the Yiulians Family, who give a Risley performance that is both daring and skilful.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Those old Glasgow favourites, the Egbert Brothers, are as funny as ever in their sketch, The Happy Dustmen; Carlotta De Yonson's company, in a stirring detective drama, Sexton Blake, has proved a great attraction; Jack Hills, Scotch comedian, is a decided success; C. Randolph King is a clever impersonator of music hall artists; Mezetti and Mora are a smart pair of horizontal bar performers; very good turns are also given by the Sousloffs, whirlwind dancers; Beatrice Renee, comedienne and sand dancer; Billy Farrell, coon singer; and David Stewart, illustrated song vocalist.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Richard Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—An excellent company is billed here this week. Dan Crawley, comedian, has had a capital reception; another interesting item is the engagement of Miss Irma Lorraine, the fascinating Spanish artist, who is seen to great advantage in a series of tableaux vivants; other notable turns include Lillian Bishop, male impersonator; George D'Albert, comedian; Brothers Ashley, comedy boxers; Sable Fern, the clever young comedienne; Mlle. Ada Gatley, juggler and wire performer; Ivey Roze and Frank Calvert, comedy specialists; George Leonard, comedian; Bert Williams, ventriloquist; Harry Ray and Lillie Galden, transatlantic artists; and the Bioscope, with an interesting set of pictures.

GAIETY, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Rose Elliott, comedienne, always a strong favourite in Glasgow, is crowding this theatre twice nightly; Daisy Morrell is another artist with a taking style, and she proves a great hit; Chant and Chant are a clever comedy couple with smart songs and patter; Ella Duncanson's illustrated songs are well received; as also are the male impersonations of Flo Hilton. Jack Henri is a favourite Scotch comedian; and the songs of Jas. Merrilees, jun., go with a good swing. G. H. Furgus shows much ability as a step-dancer; and the Bioscope presents the latest films.

BRITANNIA.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—May Wallie, and Louie, the Royal trio, top the bill here; Norah Dey is a smart young comedienne with a good style; J. H. Harris has several taking songs; Charles H. Clivers, the coloured bass vocalist, is well received; Walter Gilbert, descriptive vocalist; the Chronophone, and the Bioscope, with all the latest novelties, complete an enjoyable programme.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company, in A Beautiful Fiend, is here this week. Mr. Beaudyn as Ivan Paulovitch gives a finished performance; Mr. Herbert Skardon is exceedingly good as Count Fedor Karateff; and Mr. Mat Russell does ample justice to the part of Sergius Strogoff. Mr. W. Robertson Foulis as Malachi and sergeant of police submits good readings; Mr. Lionel Cartaret is diverting as Olcholi Trolski; Miss Sidney Crowe portrays Wanda Lubinoff in a capable manner; Miss Irene Munroe acts artistically as Nadine; and Mr. Harry Oates as Christopher Crackles and Miss Annie Clunn as Patty Woodlands supply good comedy.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Maurin's Fountains, with kaleidoscopic effects, are well received; Harry Claff, in Nelson from His Monument, is much liked; The Maros contribute a good turn on the triple bars, while variety is added by McAskell, the comic conjurer. Mulvey and Miriam have a funny sketch entitled Fun in the Studio; the Two Roses are clever in a mélange, and the Ringling Trio do some good tumbling and stilt dancing. Daisy Aylmer scores with her dancing; Miss Nance Harder is a chic comedienne; and the Five M.P.'s bring down the house with their clever musical act. The bioscope concludes a pleasant evening.

GRAVESEND.—GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General Manager, Mr. David Hart.—Here for this week are Marie Santoi and her merry little Japs, in their scena, A Japanese Tea-Garden, who are voted extremely good; Allan and Hart, clever dancers; Gicardo, a juggler of no mean ability; the Three Sisters Thurban, whose vocal and instrumental selections gain much applause; Rita Rose, a good burlesque artist; Charles Russell, a pleasing vocalist; and Levarni, in a daring wire act.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Home, Sweet Home is the attraction here this week, and is well played by Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Henton's company. As Stephen Amitage, Mr. Hinton gives a capital representation, and David Armitage is well played by Mr. Frank Hudspeth. Mr. Travis Green effectively enacts the thankless part of Lucas Lyle. Joan is charmingly represented by Miss Le performance; the Masumas, comedians on wheels, provide a really clever and amusing turn; and the pictures are good and right up to date.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Smith.—The first three nights of this week Mr. Peacock has introduced variety at two houses a night. Mlle. Irma Clasen's Living Art Bronzes are both artistic and clever; Miss Dolly Denver is a clever dancer; and the Bros. Exlade proved themselves amusing comedians. Sandy and Carl are capital cross-talkers, and do some very good tumbling; T. W. Rawson and Lily Bertram present The Would-be Actors with great success; Harry Hayton, comedian, has a funny parody on "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree"; while Maston, a mimic, satisfactorily completes the bill. For the rest of the week Mr. Frank Lindo and his company present Home, Sweet Home.

HARTLEPOOL. — Empress. — Proprietors, Messrs. Everton and Cragg; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—The King's College Boys are pleasing all with the perfect harmony with which their vocal numbers are rendered; Henderson, the blind musician, manipulates the concertina in masterly style; the marvellous tumbling and headbalancing by the Fergana troupe evokes considerable applause; Harry Levaine is truly a quaint comedian, and has a splendid reception; Cedar and Elgar, in a novel and original act, Ye Dayes of Olde, sing well and introduce some side-splitting comedy patter; the D'Ostas, second sight seers, give an interesting exhibition of their skill. The Three Luna Girls, vocalists, and the Bioscope are also entertaining turns.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Messrs. Carey and Wantage's company is here with The Pick of the Bunch. Mr. Charles Carey presented the difficulties and embarrassments of Halliwell Menit very amusingly, and was well supported in the comedy scenes by Miss M. Sadie, with her excellent assumption of illiteracy in the rôle of Nancy, her songs being admirably sung. Mr. H. Buckstone Clair was amusingly irritable as Colonel Menit; Miss Madge Christopher gave a charming impersonation of Nellie Mather, and sang her songs very acceptably; Mr. Harold Wantage made a foppish Dick Seymour; Mr. Algernon W. Lee has a good voice, which was heard to advantage in his rôle as Martin; Miss Nellie James did well as Welhelmeina, and contributed a good Dutch song with clog dance; Miss Eva Ellis appeared as Ruth Gay very pleasingly, and sang her songs very effectively, and in a coon song, with dance, she was ably assisted by the Misses Gladys Glynn, Sybil Glynn, and Mabelle and Elsie May. Mr. Harry Bolton directed an augmented orchestra, and Mr. Buckstone Clair ably stage-managed.

Pier Pavilion.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. Harry Reynolds's coloured minstrels are occupying the boards here this week. These minstrels are always a favourite attraction. Their singing in their part songs and choruses is singularly sweet and tuneful, while the comedians are as funny as ever. A good Bioscope concludes the entertainment.

Hippodrome Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—A full and strong programme is opened by Mr. Roy Beavis, who is a proficient in the art of conjuring; a new musical comedy, entitled The Rehearsal, performed by Mr. Chas. D. Wright and Miss Katie Blair, is noticed in another column; Miss Mollie Doon is an attractive singer and dancer; the Bioscope gives some effective scenes in "True to His Trust," and an amusing series, "The Cabman's Dream"; a laughable comedy sketch is gone through by Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard, Coming Home; Miss Audrey Wykenham, a juvenile violinist, shows remarkable technical facility of touch; Hyde and Cody are clever eccentrics; the Sisters Charnley score a success as dancers; a skilful juggler is seen in Miss Rene, who is accorded a hearty reception; Mr. G. P. Newall, a society comedian, gains much applause; Wilton Heriot and company engage in a protean pleasantry, entitled An Anglo-American Alliance.

St. Leonards Pavilion Theatre.—Pier-Master and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Mr. W. G. B. Bell's company is appearing in a musical and pantomimical comedy, entitled Captain Blarney. Mr. Sam Wilford in the title-rôle takes the character of a breezy old salt, whose adopted son Frank is naturally played by Mr. Bernard Lovett, who introduces some capital songs; Frank's tutor, the Rev. Horatio Kneebone, finds a good representative in Mr. W. G. Bell; Mrs. Banks, a wealthy widow, has a dignified exponent in Miss Nora Coronne; Miss Ethel Lovett gives a charming rendering of Emily Banks; the two maids are well acted by Miss Vera Cooper and Miss Louie Lenora, and as the menservants Messrs. Frank Watson and F. Denvers are equally successful.

HORWICH.—Prince's.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Lewis.—The British Empire Talking Pictures and Variety company are paying a visit here this week, and have caught on thoroughly. The turns presented by Mr. Arthur Bright, comedian and Milanese pipe-player, Little Doris, ballad vocalist, and Mr. Harry Lamb, Scotch comedian, are of a high order.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Two Little Drummer Boys is being played by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company. The leading parts are in the hands of Mr. Fred Emery as Frank Carsdale, and Mr. Harley as Darrell; Miss Maggie English and Miss Douglas as the two drummer boys; Miss Mildred Eversleigh, a sympathetic Alma; Miss Kathleen Magee as Margaret Rivers; Miss Lizzie Chambers as Molly; Mr. J. Muldoon as O'Quirke; and Mr. Harry Lyndon as O'Trimmer.

Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The Courtiers, under the direction of Mr. Paul Mill, give a dainty and refined entertainment. Their reception has been terrific. In addition there are Ford and Hanson, a couple of clever and humorous musical experts; Frank Lincoln, comedian; Benno and Adele, in a smart acrobatic speciality; Little Don, comedian; Conan and Doyle, duettists; Walton and Lester, in their highly laughable burlesque as The World's Worst Wizards; and a change of film on the Bioscope.

HULL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—That very pretty play, Dr. Wake's Patient, is paying a return visit to Hull. As Gerania Miss Fyfe Alexander has a capital part, which she plays admirably. There is a spirit of true manhood in Mr. Laurence Grant's Dr. Wake, while the parents have excellent exponents in Mr. Alf. Ibberson and Miss Kate Osborne, whose work was highly commendable. As the Duke Mr. Paul Lovett shone, and Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald was a capable Harriet Bronson.

Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—That popular play, A Message from Mars, under the direction of Mr. John Hart, is here doing good business. The cast includes that sterling actor, Mr. Arthur Holmes-Gore, whose Horace Parker was good in every phase. As the Messenger Mr. W. H. Brougham was excellently cast. A charming Minnie Templas was Miss Joan Ellis. A notable piece of work was the Tramp as presented by Mr. Bruce Lindley.

Alexandra Theatre. — Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—An excellent play, The Little Bread Winner, is drawing good houses to this popular playhouse. The Kate of Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam is essentially praiseworthy, whilst Miss Emmie Thomas paints the picture of a natural child without the usual staginess or visible precocity.

HYDE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—This week we have Mr. Fred Karno's company in His Majesty's Guests, and large audiences have been highly entertained. Mr. George Hestor is a clever comedian, and his quaint patter and comic actions never fail to raise a laugh. Mr. Frank Morton makes an admirable Lord Easem, and sings several numbers with artistic effect; Mr. Charles Usher is a sufficiently pompous Mr. Miffin; Mr. Sid Kearns furnishes a capital character sketch as Mr. Minds; and Mr. M. Johnson is capital as Fritz. Some really clever knockabout business is introduced, principally by Mr. Tom Manardo as Selina and Mr. Harry Howe as Bunker. Miss Leonora Castel is a charming and vivacious lady Maud Easem; Miss Edith Ager is a winsome Dolly Miffin; and Miss Kitty Brunton hits off Miss Manley, one of the new woman type, to perfection.

Ohmy's Circus.—The bill is topped this week by the Szarvais Ferencz troupe of acrobats, whose marvellous feats are watched with keen interest. Souplessi's wonderful performance as a contortionist entitles him to be called the man-snake; Claude Ohmy is loudly applauded for his juggling and other feats on the globe, and for his equestrian scena, Dick Turpin Up to Date; Miss Ada Ohmy performs some graceful acts on horseback; Miss Lily Ohmy introduces two clever performing ponies and a dog; Handy Handy and his comic donkeys provide an interesting turn; August and September provide mirth in abundance; Pete Simple contributes to the hilarity; and the living pictures are greatly enjoyed. On Tuesday evening Mr. Ohmy had his benefit. The Mayor and Mayoress were in attendance, and the building was literally packed. In addition to an exceptionally attractive programme, Mr. Ohmy performed his daring acrobatic feat by which he established his name.

ILKESTON.—Queen's Palace of Varieties.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. T. Knightall.—Mons. Mozzetto is still attracting with his clever juggling act; Gale and Gale in My Beautiful Masterpiece are highly successful; Harry Raley, vocalist; Florrie Wright, serio; Les Blancs, with a smart horizontal bar performance; T. W. Lenner, eccentric comedian; and Will Platt, vocal comedian, are all deserving of mention.

IPSWICH.—Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The programme here this week is headed by Park's "Eton Boys," who contribute glees and part songs with such a pleasing manner as to gain general applause. Other turns include Mabel Osborne and Gordon Brooks, speciality artists, Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire singing girl, Marba and Verity, acrobatic dancers, the Hartley Wonder Jumping Acrobats, Amy Anderson and company in a knockabout sketch, and the Sisters Terry, lady mimics.

JARROW.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jerold E. Reed.—Mr. Jack Haddon's company is here this week with the drama entitled Under the Russian Flag. Mr. George Cecil Murray is well placed as General Romanoff; Mr. Jack Haddon plays with force and ability the part of Michael Romanoff; and Mr. Charles Stafford gives a manly portrayal of Ivan Romanoff. The part of Captain Demetrius is in the capable hands of Mr. Sydney Arnold, and Mr. Templer Ellis causes much amusement as Alexis Skopolopki. Miss Violet Lytton gives a charming rendering of Verga Vassiloff; Miss Marie Rayner submits an excellent reading of the part of Luka Marischla; and Miss Molly Hackett is well placed as Ogarita; while Mr. Hal Forde causes much fun as Peter Poulski. The part of Wolf Marischla is done justice to by Mr. Edward Avinal.

The Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Ernest Adrian.—This place of amusement has an excellent display of animated pictures, which are attracting appreciative audiences.

JERSEY.—Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Edward Marris.—Mr. Marris's company concluded its engagement here this week with The Girl from Kay's.—Miss Harriet Fawn scored an immense and well-deserved success in the title-rôle; Miss Ethel Ward was a delightfully dainty Norah Chalmers; Miss Norah Melton made a smart and vivacious Ellen; and Miss Beaumont Collins did ample justice to the part of Mrs. Chalmers. Mr. George Blunt has shown remarkable versatility during the present visit, and his Hoggenheimer was a particularly clever and amusing performance; Mr. Tom Payne made a screamingly funny Joseph Hall; Mr. Brunston Williams did well as Harry Gordon; Mr. W. Nugent was a capable Fitzthistle; Mr. Robert Rivers ably portrayed Quench, K.C.; and Mr. Mansell Fane was an effective Chalmers.

KETTERING.—Avenue Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—The attraction this week is Mlle. Florence's company, in a variety entertainment. Prominent in an excellent programme are Abex, the miniature Hercules; the Ottawas, musical cowboys; Erom and Charlotta, illusionists; Lomas, the man-monkey; and Mlle. Florence, globe walker.

Victoria Theatre.—Secretary, Captain W. Gray.—Mr. F. R. Benson's (North) company commenced a short engagement on Monday, opening with The Merchant of Venice. On Tuesday The Taming of the Shrew was presented. Mr. Henry Herbert gave a thoroughly artistic rendering of Petruchio; and the charming acting of Miss Dorothy Green as Katherina was highly appreciated. Mr. Ross Shore was most successful as Grumio.

KING'S LYNN.—New Royal Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—Mr. John Warren and his clever illusion, The Magic Carpet, is proving immensely popular; another turn received with the utmost enthusiasm is that of Percy Honri in his marvellous manipulation of the concertina; Rex Sugden is highly appreciated in his illustrated songs; Mr. John Warren also appears as a ventriloquist, and is highly applauded; and Mollie Lynder as a siffleuse is keenly appreciated. Jury's pictures are highly entertaining.

LANCASTER.—Athenæum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—Mr. Chas. Watson Mill's company, in A Wrecker of Men, drew a crowded house on Monday. Mr. Eric Campbell appeared with much success as Jim Murley; Miss Ruth Zilwood gave an excellent portrayal of Risca Mallison; and Mr. Felix Lawson worked hard in the rôle of Eric Melville.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—The management have this week initiated a new departure in the production of the musical comedy Mr. Popple of Ippleton, the company being organised by Mr. Chas. Macdona. Miss Millie Hylton made a fascinating La Bolero, singing her songs excellently, and dancing with much grace; Mr. Arthur Longley gave a clever impersonation of Mr. Popple; Mr. Robert Corray made a capital Norman Popple; and Platt, as enacted by Mr. Tom May, was a quaint study. Mr. Robert MacLachlan sang nicely as Jacques Kenyon; Messrs. Sydney Courtenay and James Stevenson did remarkably well as George Hennay and Henry Doring respectively; the disconsolate wives had admirable representatives in Miss Alice Rene and Miss Stella St. Andre; Miss Nellie Hodson gave a capital rendering of Louisa; and Miss Cora Lingard was an excellent Violet Brinton. The dresses are superb. Mr. Julian Rutt is the musical director.

LEAMINGTON. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—The attraction here this week is the musical comedy, The New Barmaid, which is being played with conspicuous success by Miss Violet Osmund's company. Mr. Alexander Loftus as Bertie White is excellent, and he is ably supported by Mr. Charles Adeson as Bonsor and Mr. James Grant as William, both of whose performances cause much amusement. The title-rôle is admirably sustained by Miss Maisie Gay, the possessor of a delightful voice. Other commendable performances are given by Mr. James Hawkes as Captain Lovebury and Mr. Harry Collier as Captain Claymore. There is an excellent chorus and augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. E. W. Vaughan.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—The theatre is occupied this week by the Leeds Amateur Operatic Society, who are making their annual effort on behalf of the local charities.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Mr. Harry Starr and his capable company are here. Mr. Starr plays in effective manner the heavy central parts in two plays, Otto the Outcast and The Unseen Power, his able work calling forth continual applause. His company are also well up to their work, special good assistance being given by Mr. William Miller, Mr. Edwin Firth, Miss Dolly Starr, and Miss Kate Norris.

Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—The extravaganza, Casey's Circus, is provocative of much hilarity nightly, being played with rare gusto by a clever company. Edwin Barwick, the popular character-comedian, adds laurels to an established reputation; Nellie Wallace has many admirers of her low comedy abilities; expert acrobatics by the well-known Trapnell Family are a much-applauded feature; Boy Glenn is above the average of juvenile entertainers; and the New Macs are favourite patter comedians. A dramatic sketch, Zululand, is well played by Leicester Cooke and Co.; and others are Ryder Slone, with song-scena; Dorrell Sisters, in song and dance; and Chas. Robinson, vocalist.

Palace. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—The popular comedian, Arthur Rigby, brings a capable company in the presentation of The Isle of Ooma; the veteran James Fawn is accorded a big reception for clever new items; another smart comedian is Frank Dunlop; and Fred Barnes is a clever character-vocalist of the Beau Brummel type. Rosie Lloyd finds great favour with some taking contributions; and Flo Cecil is another song and dance artist of merit; while Daniel Gillen, ventriloquist, does a novel and entertaining turn.

Hippodrome. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—Edwin Boyde and Tom Leamore are particularly high in public favour with smart new items cleverly rendered; whilst Tom E. Hughes and Dale and O'Malley also prove very popular. Wyndham and Waters submit an acceptable comedy episode in clever style; and some well-known characters from Dickens are well portrayed by Hope and Wayho; Woolmer Young is a capital actor-vocalist; and the Elvio Trio score well with comedy speciality; while Boden and Bell, juvenile vocalists, also contribute successfully.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—A cleverly-conceived and well-acted episode, entitled Life in the Slums, is a striking feature of the week's bill here, Will Vay's Juveniles distinguishing themselves in the presentation thereof. The Pasquali Brothers arouse interest with some marvellous acrobatic feats; Little Ganty, the diminutive eccentric, again proves vastly amusing; Alsop and Bekwith are an up-to-date and clever comedy duo; and the Obo Brothers are a clever pair, and stand high in public favour. Natalia and Diana are doing a very fine performance on the trapeze; and Madge May (charming comedienne) and Fred Lyndo (character-comedian) complete a good bill.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's excellent company in The Christian is here this week. Miss Grace Chalmers creates a favourable impression as Glory Quayle, and as John Storm Mr. E. Howard Templeton is to be complimented on a portrayal of great merit. Mr. Frederick Scarth is very good as Lord Robert Ure, and Mr. Frank Beresford as Horatio Drake is excellent. Mr. Charles E. Dering as Archdeacon Wealthy is a success. Both Miss Molly Hayden as Mrs. Callender and Miss Vashti Wellbone as Polly Love are deserving of much praise, and Mr. Edwin Ling as Father Lamplugh plays well. The play is admirably staged.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—A first visit is being paid here this week by Mr. Harry Foxwell's company in A Broken Heart, which is well staged and interpreted. Mr. Henry Wolston displays true histrionic ability as John Barnard, and as Mary Barnard Miss Lillian Herries is admirable. In the dual rôle of Miss Grace Fanshawe and Mrs. Kellet, Mrs. Harry Foxwell is seen to considerable advantage. Mr. Henry Earlesmere does well as Stephen Raylton, and Mr. Charles Vivian as Gash Gills is capital. Both Miss Nancy Pearce as Sally Tavner and Mr. Will Lindsay as Tony Tibbets are successful, and Miss Julia Calcraft as Mrs. Barnard, Mr. Charles Gallier as Rev. M. Staunton, and Mr. Geo. Addison as Skrimp are also meritorious.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—At the head of a good all-round programme here is Clarence C. Corri's company in Office Hours, which keeps the audience in continual merriment. A strong and clever cast includes Mr. Harry Monkhouse, Mr. Frank A. White, Miss Florence Lelgard, Mr. George Danvers, jun., Mr. Johnnie Schofield, jun., Miss Violet Hicks, and Mr. George Delaforce. There is also some smart dancing by the Coralie Troupe. A full chorus assists, and the dressing and staging is excellent. The Light in the Window is presented with the greatest success by Mr. Fred Winn's company; Mr. Ed. E. Ford, the Australian sundower, whose facial contortions are remarkable, is very popular; Mr. George Newburn, a master of mimicry, receives a flattering reception; Hall and Earl are a smart and clever duo of comedy acrobats; Topsey and Usher are most entertaining in plantation songs and dances; the Four Royal Welshmen, glee singers, make a good impression; and Speedwell, the lightning painter, gives a show that is much appreciated. An interesting appearance is being made here by Miss Daisy Pollock, a lady popular in local musical circles, who is meeting with a cordial reception with her illustrated song, "Won't you come over to my house?" The Bioscope is showing the final of the English Cup and the "Wreck of the Mary Jane."

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—Mr. Edward Ranier and his clever dramatic company are retained over another week, and are presenting the Russian episode, In Siberia, in which Mr. Ranier, Mr. Arnold Palmer, Mr. Arthur Barnes, Mr. George Knight, Miss Lilla Wilde, and Miss Alice Maude are seen to considerable advantage in the principal parts; a very smart show is provided by Chester and Lee's marionettes, which are quite up-to-date; Lade Henderson, actor vocalist, is meeting with a big reception; Bonnetti and Corri, both clever and amusing speciality artists and jugglers, are well received. Entertaining turns are also given by Harry Desmond, comedian, and Amy Correlli, vocalist. Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is depicting the final of the English Cup, and "The Beauties of California."

LEIGH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Mr. F. Marriott Watson's company is appearing here this week with the thrilling drama, A False Wife. Estelle De Lussan, the adventuress, affords Miss Florence E. Florence fine scope for her dramatic and emotional powers; and Jean Beraud is admirably depicted by Mr. F. Marriott Watson. Lieut. George Mansfield is excellently portrayed by Mr. Fred H. Constable; Miss Annie Hylton wins golden opinions as Agnes Weyland; and the comedy element is capably looked after by Mr. Elton Morgan as Ben Rattler, Miss Ivy Chandos as Bessie Blazer, and Mr. Allen Charles as Archibald Brown Tee.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The stirring military drama, The Trumpet Call, receives a spirited interpretation by Mr. Charles F. Cooke's company. Mr. Cooke cleverly impersonates the character of Sergeant-Major Milligan; Mr. Leonard is quite the hero. Cuthbert Cuthbertson, and is ably seconded by Miss Helena Millais in the rôle of Constance; while Astrea is effectively portrayed by Miss Doris Gilham; and the parts of Richard Featherstone and Sir William Barton find good representatives in Mr. John Dennys and Mr. J. Betterton. The comedy scenes are well developed by Mr. David Beattie's Ginnifer, Mr. Freddie Bentley's Tommy Dutton. Miss May Foster as Lavinia, and Miss Amy Wood as Mrs. Wicklow.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Mr. Edward Compton gave his 984th performance of Charles Surface in The School for Scandal on Monday, when the distinguished actor and his able supporters received a cordial welcome to the city on the Mersey. Everybody was delighted with Miss Mackenzie's treatment of Lady Teazle, and followed with interest and enjoyment her sprightly and playful passages with Sir Peter in the second act. Mr. Philip Gordon made a perfect Sir Oliver, playing with an ease and polish that was pleasing to witness; thanks are due to Mr. Henry Crocker for his Sir Peter—a capital picture; Mr. Dennis Cleugh handled the despicable Joseph Surface most skilfully; the rôle of Moses could scarcely have been in better keeping than that of Mr. G. W. Johnston; Miss Phyllis Relph brought out all the telling points of Lady Sneerwell; and among other strong supporters were Messrs. G. Wallace Johnston and Vernon O. Crabtree, Miss Marian Le Strange, and Miss Marie Hassell. The Rivals, Edmund Kean, Tragedian, The Gentleman in Grey (first time in Liverpool), She Stoops to Conquer, and Davy Garrick were also billed.

Shakespeare Theatre. — Managing Directors, Messrs. E. Stevens and R. C. Buchanan; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Peter Pan pays a second visit here, with the intention of remaining a fortnight. This time Miss Pauline Chase holds the title-rôle, and that charming artist has certainly earned the encomiums that have on all hands been bestowed upon her work. Another delightful figure in the story is Miss Hilda Trevelyan's Wendy, whose childish naturalness is pleasing to witness; Hook, piratical in make-up and movement, could not be mistaken, and for such a perfect picture Mr. Loring Fernie merits the utmost commendation; Mr. George Shelton afforded much support as his man Smee; and the remainder of the cast contributed satisfactorily towards a very fine production. Public support has been great, and the success of the visit is already assured.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Hardie and Von Leer's combination are here this week with Two Little Vagabonds. Miss Edie Martin and Miss Josie Beltram are cordially recognised for their work as Dick and Wally; Mr. Arthur E. Melbourne gives an excellent idea of George Thornton; Mr. Sidney Vautier brings out all the strong points of Captain Darville; very humorous is Mr. Lionel Ellis as Bill Mullins, receiving help in the comedy from Messrs. Frank Gordon (Bunce) and Dick Winslow (Cough Drop); Miss Evelyn Shaw presents a lively Biddy Mullins; and Miss Grace Heywood does well as Marion Thornton.

Lyric Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainment, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—A sensational turn is that of the Tom Davis Trio on motor bicycles in an aerial track; a most dramatic sketch is The Hypocrite, as presented by F. S. Peake and company; Cullen, Carthy, and Cluley make a delightfully amusing team; Craig, Rose, and Craig are clever gymnasts; Horace Jones causes a good deal of amusement with his Welsh mimicry; and Ray and Miles are laughable, as is Kisbey. The Three Sisters Kilner and Ada Spencer also appeared to advantage.

Star Theatre. Proprietor, and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The "Bullock" version of East Lynne, played by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's capital company, is a strong attraction here this week. Miss Julie Kennard exhibits high accomplishments as Lady Isabel and Mme. Vine; Mr. Alfred Beaumont makes a manly and forceful Carlyle; Mr. Frederick Harker shows a true appreciation of the rôle of Francis Levison; the Justice Hare of Mr. C. C. Gratton is marked by tact and discretion; Mr. Harry C. Rutland affords satisfaction as Richard Hare; Miss Ethel Savill proves a tender Barbara; a deal of humour emanates from Mr. Alfred Tate, as Bullock; and Miss Jessie Bayes is the little Willie.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Top of the bill here this week is a military episode entitled La Vivandière, introduced by Col. Denis Lorraine, which is watched with interest; Coram, with his capital ventriloquial show, proves an enjoyable turn; the Tally-ho Trio are loudly applauded; the Lavelle Bros. prove quaint comedy acrobats; to Blake and Granby credit is due for their funny duologue, The Man in Possession; some popular baritone songs are pleasingly rendered by Percy Hannan; Fred Hastings, comedian, keeps his audience in a good humour; and others who appear are Gladys Witton, juvenile contralto; and Goodfellow and Gregson, vaudeville artists. The Bioscope shows the Football Cup Final.

Royal Palace of Varieties. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The stock company here are this week giving Tricked by a Woman, the principal rôles being in the hands of Messrs. Percy Boucher, Harry Tresham, Sydney Grant, Robert Wilton, Cecil Ravenswood, Misses Evelyn Kington, Florence Cameron, Reryl Ravenswood, and Nellie Bonsor. The Football Cup Final is shown by the Bioscope.

Paddington Palace.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The Royal stock company here are this week producing Walter Howard's A Life's Revenge. Principals in the cast are Messrs. Wallace Campbell, Frank S. Strickland, Francis E. Wybert, Charles Herberte, H. Hesslegrave, and H. G. Brandon, and Misses Lina Nazeby, Florence Barnes, Emmie Kilner, and Gladys Hastings-Walton.

Haymarket.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Harry Calden and his sketch company are producing The Inventor, or Man against Man. The Bioscope shows some excellent pictures; Eric Graham is an extremely funny comedian; Ethel Liston has some popular songs; and O'Connor and Traynor's turn as comedians, dancers, and burlesque boxers arouses endless laughter.

Westminster. — Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—A smart couple of comedians, McDonald and Huntington, top the bill here this week; Ted Curtis, negro entertainer and dancer, with his piccaninnies, provides an acceptable turn; some popular songs are rendered by Bert Lytton; Jimmy Shields, the one-legged dancer, pays a return visit; Lila Lingard scores as a male impersonator; and Bob Best, eccentric comedian, also appears.

Olympia, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer.—The aquatic spectacle Tally-Ho is here again, the principal characters being undertaken by Colin Hazlewood, Charles Hanbury, Leonard Maitland, A. G. Leigh, Tom E. Conover, Rose E. Rovana, and Alice Maydue. The Howes (Rowland and Kitty), with their remarkable "thought-reading" turn, interest everybody; some smart illusions are produced by Mlle. Von Etta; Peggie Lennie and Walter Hast have a neat fantasia, The Sea Nymph; the Gothams are as funny as ever; some graceful work as gymnasts is performed by Helene and Emilon; funny and clever dancers are Stephens and Rennior; and Ada Martine, comedienne and dancer; and Millie Howell, comedienne, and the Bioscope are also in the bill.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—The Howards, with their "thought-transmission," head the programme here this week; Sinclair and Whiteford present an amusing duologue, Getting Even; May Glenn and Leonard Griffiths cause endless laughter with their farcical trifle, Opera Bouffe; a smart comedy act on the bars is given by the Vasilescue Troupe; Jack Monks, possessor of a strong tenor voice, renders several excellent illustrated songs; Allan Hanbury is amusing with the story of a spinster's troubles; Forest and King exhibit remarkable powers as contortionists; and Fred Frampton, burlesque actor, is also in the list. Messrs. Sidney Dooley and Charles Seymour's company submit a neat musical comedy in A King for a Day.

Tivoli.—Proprietors, Liverpool Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. James Marks.—Clark and Hamilton, a smart comedy duo, head the bill here this week; Athas and Collins provide some amusing comedy; Sylvia Du Barry sings several excellent songs in good style; Morny Cash, "The Lancashire Lad," is as funny as ever; some dainty dancing and pleasant singing come from the Sisters Wingrove; and others in the list are the Sivronis, burlesque artists; Alburtus and Millar, juggling eccentric and lady cornet player; and Rosie Revel, character comedienne.

LOUGHBOROUGH. — New Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company is here this week with a répertoire of plays. The Merchant of Venice was presented on Monday. As Shylock Mr. Henry Herbert was admirable; Miss Dorothy Green as Portio contributed a charming impersonation; Antonio was in the capable hands of Mr. Gerald Ames; Mr. Ross Shore as Launcelot Gobbo was quaint; Miss Louise Graeme gave a charming rendering of Jessica; and other parts were ably sustained by Mr. Reginald Owen as Lorenzo; Mr. Philip Merivale as the Prince of Morocco; and Miss Mary Webb as Nerissa. The Taming of the Shrew, As You Like It, and Hamlet are in the week's programme.

LOWESTOFT. — Hippodrome. — Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—Excellent business is being done here this week. The pictures are a powerful attraction, and the songs of Mr. Percy Curry have caught on immensely; the Bohemians are clever instrumentalists, and highly refined; Amurat, the musical athlete, is also appearing here.

LUTON.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. Fred J. Webb's company are here in The Hour of Her Triumph. Mr. Leslie Hawkins personifies Harold Clavering in perfect manner; and Mr. Webb as Eugene Harbury, Clavering's cousin, enacts this rôle successfully. Miss Danvers Smith is praiseworthy as Nellie Clavering, a flower girl; and Miss Price ably portrays the difficult character of Sal Soaker.

MACCLESFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—The Royal Star Pierrots and vaudeville company opened here on Monday on a return visit. Miss Eva Barlow, in illustrated songs, was accorded an enthusiastic reception; and James Mackenzie, coon singer and dancer, was very entertaining and clever. Taylor Snowball, as usual, delighted everybody with his amusing patter and songs; Miss Flo Varley is a pleasing vocalist; and Master Eugene Maccabe, boy vocalist, was greatly applauded. The Mills-Farren turn was neat; and Sid Walford, refined comedian, caused great amusement. The Four Verona Girls, vocalists and dancers, was a very entertaining turn. The programme concluded with the beautiful electric pictures.

MANCHESTER.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmonstone Shirra.—Mr. Leigh Lovel and Miss Octavia Kenmore appeared here on Monday in Ibsen's The Master Builder. Apart from the intrinsic interest of the play, it is due to the company to say that the interpretation was so serious and apt that the attention of the audience never strayed for a moment from the theme, and that the performance was therefore a source of pleasure from beginning to end. Mr. Leigh Lovel as Halvard Soiness and Miss Octavia Kenmore as Hilda Wangel both acted superbly, and they were admirably supported by Miss Carylion as Aline Soiness and the remainder of the cast.

Prince's Theatre, Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee. The comic opera, Amasis, attracted a crowded house here on Monday, and the expectation of a lively entertainment was not disappointed. Mr. Rutland Barrington plays Pharaoh in quite an amiable fashion; Mr. Roland Cunningham sings vigorously and well as the culprit Prince Auhotep; Mr. Whitworth Witton's interpretation of Cheiro, the scribe, is sufficiently imbued with the lugubrious sentiment of the part; bold and musical impersonation of Nebenchari is given by Mr. Norman Salmond; Miss Madge Vincent plays Natis, the maid, in a lively and agreeable style; and some fine vocalism is contributed by Miss Constance Drever, who figures gracefully and attractively in the title-rôle. Along with Mr. Rutland Barrington's successful Pharaoh, the splendid comic efforts of Mr. Lauri de Freece as Sebak, and Mr. Reginald White as Ptolemy are worthy of particular praise; and Miss Winifred Hart-Dyke's solo dance in Act 2 is a conspicuously pleasing introduction. The piece is finely put on, and an undoubted success.

Gaiety Theatre, Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Mr. Robert Crossman's company here this week in Sergeant Brue is a very capable combination, and includes Mr. Arthur Reynolds in the title-rôle, a capital impersonation. Mr. T. A. Shale as Crookie Scrubbs is also very successful, while an excellent piece of work is the Michael Brue of Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy. Miss Cissie Raymond acts cleverly as Lady Bickenhall; Mr. Chas. Sims gives a neat delineation of Mr. Crank; Miss Marion Hargrave is capital as Daisy; and other smart impersonations are added by Miss Mary Hay, Miss Ethel Ivimey, and Mr. Cecil Hood.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. M

Keiths, in an up-to-date speciality; and Adams and Rouse in a new style singing sketch. Harry Russon, the well-known comedian, did not appear on the occasion of our visit, his place being successfully taken by Juan and McQue, eccentric comedians and knockabouts.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—The principal turn here this week is that of the Napoli Sextette, including the well-known tenor, Mr. John Lloyd, in a pleasing vocal scena, An Evening at Home. Hauptmann Marquis Jtoyne does some marvellous feats in a clever equilibristic act; and the famous bounding Pattersons are seen to advantage in a sensational tumbling act. The Simpsons are excellent musicians; Veno, a capital ventriloquist, introduces "Ginger," the shoeblack, with success; Victor Courtney is clever at the piano; Baker and Lindsay are good singers; Taylor and May, coloured artists, whistle and dance in smart style; and Adey North is an amusing comedian. "The Jewel Robbers" is shown on the Bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Clito is again posing here artistically; John E. Coyle, one of the best eccentric comedians, is funnier (if possible) than ever, and makes a big hit; Daisy James, that first-rate comedienne, renders those catchy songs in excellent manner, and is enthusiastically received; Harry Mountford and Maude Welsh, Society entertainers, talk smartly in a taking fashion; and Lilian Boanas, a charming Austrian vocalist, sings exceedingly well. Others who figure with success in the programme are Lucy Coventry, comedienne and dancer; Mona McDonald, comedienne; George Hall, whistling comedian; and Ollie Burgoyne, Creole comedienne, assisted by Master Albert, who sings sweetly; and another. Raymond's Vivagraph completes.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—One of the most novel and pleasing scenas placed on the vaudeville stage is that of Hayley's presented here this week, and entitled The Garden of Girls, which includes some neat dancing and singing; W. T. Ellwanger and company are seen to advantage in a first-rate comedy sketch, entitled The Peacemaker; the Three Behans, quick-change artists, give a clever turn; and as banjoists, the Vequeys are exceedingly smart. Billy Richardson, as a stump orator of the old school, makes a decided hit; Mlle. Vanda juggles on a rolling globe in a surprising fashion; and amusing and well received turns are contributed by Joe Conway, Happy Attwood, and George Hyam, comedians. A sensational and interesting illusory cremation act is given as a deputy turn for Juan and McQue, comedians, who did not appear on the occasion of our visit. The animated pictures are very funny.

MANSFIELD. — HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Director, Mr. Tom Jennings; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company is here in the melodrama A Sister's Sin. Mr. H. Arnold Allen ably portrays the rôle of Harold Raymond; the part of George Oakley is safe in the hands of Mr. Edward Warden; Mr. Ernest Frere is well placed in the part of Ikey Moses; as Theophilus Hope Mr. Harry Lyndon is successful; Mr. Larry McGowers is a typical Irishman. In the two Gipsy parts Miss Augusta Franks (Charzel) and Miss Violet Langley (Redempta) do well; Miss Edie Macklen and Miss Effie Mackintosh play their respective parts of Floss Perks and Nell Stubbs (the rival lovers) admirably; Miss Violet Addison gives a natural interpretation to the rôle of Minnie Hastings.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD. — General-Manager, Capt. Cecil Clayton.—Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's company in The Still Alarm has proved a great attraction here this week. The rôle of Jack Manley is powerfully portrayed by Mr. Matthew Glenville; Mr. Fred Osmond is well placed as Doc Wilber; the part of John Bird is capably enacted by Mr. George Arthur; as Willie Manley Mr. Tom Beasley is successful, as also is Mr. Lewis Gordon in the rôle of Franklen Fordham. Miss Gertie Reed is a vivacious and entertaining Carrie Wilber; as Mrs. Manley Miss Mabel Veriton is capable; Miss Maud Warburton gives a very artistic portrayal of Elinor Fordham. The singing of the Lyric Comedy Quartette has met with warm approval.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Stage and Business Manager, Mr. A. Austin Leigh.—The Margate Stock Company this week produced Rip Van Winkle, arranged from the original dramatic version and from Washington Irving's story by A. Austin Leigh. The title-rôle was effectively sustained by Mr. Austin Leigh, who received capable support at the hands of Miss Emmie O'Reilly as Gretchen Van Winkle. Mr. Robert Grey made an excellent Hendrick Knickerbocker; Mr. Wallis Clark was good both as Nicholas and Hans Vedder; Miss May Saker, in the rôle of Elspeth, sang well; and dainty dances were contributed by Miss Belle Travers in the dual rôle of Katrina and Meenie. The remaining characters in a lengthy cast were satisfactorily sustained.

HIPPODROME. — Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Miss Peggy Pryde, the premier low comedy artist, heads the bill this week, and has at each appearance been vociferously encored. Dandy George, with his wonderfully trained dogs, Rosie and Nell, has a very cordial reception; Lena Verdi is a clever mimic, a pleasing singer, and a good dancer; Ada Parker, comedienne, also sings well and dances expertly; A. E. Clifford, descriptive vocalist, scores; Blanche Marion, comedienne and dancer, is a pleasing turn, and the Bioscope pictures are exceptionally good.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Miss Emma Litchfield's company is presenting A Clever Impostor. Mr. Stuart Cleveland gives a skilful interpretation of Manuel Teixeira, playing with rare dramatic intensity; Mr. A. Mervyn is capable as Captain Desmond; Jim Brightside has a capital exponent in Mr. Edward Swinton; Mr. Geo. Childers is well placed as Sir George Ashwell; Miss Emma Litchfield's versatility and high dramatic gifts are fully brought out in her delineation of the parts of Nora Grosvenor, Sarah Ellen (a Lancashire lass), Old Rebecca (a Jewess), and Molly O'Flynn; Miss Maud Steeple and Miss Isabel Singleton do well as Margaret and Maisie Grosvenor; and Miss Florence Gomer is well placed as Annie Pleasant.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Mr. Alfred Paumier and Mr. Walter Howard's company provides the entertainment here this week in The Midnight Wedding. An interesting feature of the production is the appearance of Mr. Ernest E. Imeson, nephew of the popular manager of the Royal. Mr. Imeson appears in the rôle of Captain Scarsbruck, and proves that he is an artist of no mean ability, his efforts being highly appreciated; in the dual part of Karl Heisburg and Princess Strelsburg Miss Annie Saker displays fine emotional powers; and Mr. Alfred Paumier greatly pleases as Paul Valmar. Mr. Frederick Freeman gives a fine impersonation of Prince Leopold; and for the part of Rozel a clever representative is found in Miss Marion Fawcett. Miss Ada Champion is pleasing as Kathie; and Mr. W. S. Hardy as Father Gerard, and Mr. Edward Fletcher as Lieut. Strelsburg, are all that can be desired. The part of Marie is in the capable hands of Miss Prudence Laurence; and Mr. Arthur Radford as Lieut. Kulman, Mr. J. Harringay as the Sergeant, and Mr. C. E. Dane as Conrad, do full justice to their respective rôles.

OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, The Middlesbrough Grand Opera House Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Florodora pays a welcome return visit here this week, and is produced by the members of J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company. Mr. Alf. Passmore is exceedingly funny in the character of Professor Tweedlepunch, and keeps the house in roars of laughter; the part of Dolores is taken by Miss Daisy Lake, a lady of attractive appearance, fascinating manner, and the possessor of a sweet voice; Mr. Edwin Oxlee is amusing as Leandor; and Mr. H. V. Crofton as Frank Abercoed is all that can be desired. Miss Lily Gullick as Angela, and Miss Kate Leicester as Lady Holyrood, both contribute very acceptable songs and dances; and Mr. Stanley White does full justice to the rôle of Cyrus Gilfain. Miss Sydney Penaryn is pleasing as Cynthia Belmont; and Mr. Harold Perry gives a clever impersonation of Captain Donegal.

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles Rembges.—Carl Hertz, the famous illusionist, pays a return visit here this week, and again succeeds in completely mystifying the audience with his clever work; the Great Northern troupe of dancers give a skilful display; and the Twin Sisters Melba are a pair of delightful vocalists. H. C. Lovell and company cause much laughter in their musical comedy, Pom-Pom; and Florence Yaymen gives some amusing impersonations. Lytton and Bland please in their comedy act, A Session in Love; and other turns are provided by Les Valdos and Kathleen Radford.

OXFORD.—Proprietor, Mr. Alf. Graham; Manager, Mr. R. L. Griffiths.—The star turn here this week is a remarkable gymnastic display by Abel and Welsh; Boyd and Gilfain are a popular pair of duettists; and Arthur Aldrige scores a great success for his rendering of some old ballads. Alf. Chester, comedian, causes much laughter; and Dot Hardy is an excellent vocalist. Maud and Sydney Wood, duettists and dancers, please; and Geo. Collins, comedian, and Laura Doone also contribute to the bill.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percy Hart.—Mr. Edward McLean's company is filling a three nights' engagement here in The Hero of the Flag. Mr. Vernon Lansbury is pre-eminently good in his portrayal of Captain Hilliard; a manly and convincing Jack Lawrence is found in Mr. Edward McLean; the iniquities of Paul Mansfield are well realised by Mr. Ernest Wingfield; Mr. Leslie Vyvien gives a careful study of Stephen Clifford; Miss Gladys Vernon is a charming Mabel; Miss Lillian Beaumont a pathetic Ruth; and abundance of effective comedy is provided by Mr. Johnny McElroy and Miss Amy Randolph as Johnny Truckle and Jenny Stubbs respectively. Miss Winifred Chalmers' company opened on Thursday in The Master Criminal.

NELSON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—Mr. Percy Norman's company is here in A Woman Worth Winning. Mr. Percy Norman himself depicts the character of General Borinski, the crafty and cruel Governor; whilst Fergus Novinsky is capitally played by the author of the piece, Mr. A. B. Mackay. Miss Maud Buchanan charmingly presents Roma Pauloff, Queen of the Nihlists; Mr. Charles R. Harris makes a striking "man with a past"; and the rest of the characters are in capable hands. The dresses and scenery are both effective.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—To the regret of Newcastle playgoers, with whom she is a great favourité, Miss Dorothea Baird is indisposed, and unable to take any part in the répertoire of plays Mr. H. B. Irving and company present at the Theatre Royal this week. On Monday evening, in The Lyons Mail, her place was taken by Miss Ada Mellon, who made a most efficient substitute; in the dual rôle of Lesurgues and Dubosc Mr. Irving played with a power that stirred the house to enthusiasm; Mr. Frank Tyars was touchingly effective as Jerome Lesurgues; and Mr. Harcourt Williams was good as Courriol; while the low-comedy element of the play is ably done by Mr. Charles Dodsworth.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Mr. Greet's company in The Earl and the Girl is here. Mr. William Stephens, who fills the rôle of the showman-dog trainer by droll methods, provides capital comedy, and proves quite a host in himself. He is ably aided and abetted in this respect by Miss Jennie Richards, who appears as Jim Cheese's cockney sweetheart. Miss Frances Earle plays very daintily as "the Girl" and the Earl is given manly and attractive representation by Mr. Arthur Harrold. Mr. Percy E. Wright, Mr. H. Courtin, Miss Beatrice Anderson, Miss Gertrude Melville, Miss Hilda Gray, and Miss Joan Clifford, lend capital support towards the successful performance.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, the American Indian actress and authoress, appears here this week in her own play, Wep-Ton-No-Mah, a piece redolent of life in the Far West of America. She ably plays the leading part; and others whose delineations, in a representation full of interest from start to finish, are worthy of mention, are Mr. C. W. Charles, Mr. Edward Leroy, Mr. Guy D. Hackney, Mr. Arthur Selwyn, Mr. Dan Ryan, Miss Bessie Frank, and Miss Jessie Hart.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton.—The Gems, a talented troupe of artists, under the direction of Mr. Wallace Kennedy, give a sparkling turn of singing and dancing; and Mr. Charles Norton's impersonations of music-hall stars prove very popular. Mendel, the blind musician, who displays marvellous dexterity as an instrumentalist, provides a turn quite out of the ordinary run; another great hit is Miss Lil Hawthorne, whose songs, with a catchy rhyme, are all well rendered; the Aurora Troupe of trick cyclists give a skilful display; and capital fun is provided by John Alexander and company in Brown in Paris. Other good turns are given by the Strolling Players; Miss Gladys Mavius, assisted by Dot; and the Jonghmann Sisters.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Acting Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Mr. Michael Welsh, who made his début a few weeks ago at this hall, gives a study of "a Tynesider spectator at a football match," which is distinctly clever and full of rare humour; Mr. Joseph Tiller's company present the musical extravaganza, A Trip to Paris, Mr. Bob Selvidge as Hiram P. Gibson, Miss Jessie Templeton, Mr. T. Gibbs, Miss Nellie Rodney, Miss Emmie Franks, Mr. B. Dixon, and Mr. Harold Wardroper being chiefly responsible for the success of the piece; Miss Lillie Soutter, character comedienne, presents a pleasing turn; and acceptable also are the efforts of Miss Ruby Bijou, dancer; Mr. Harry Conlin, comedian; Mr. Stan. Aubrey, "legmania" comedian; Miss Queenie May, a smart juvenile; and Cherry Lass, comedienne and dancer.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Wm. Maclaren's company are appearing in Claudian. Mr. Wm. Maclaren plays the title-rôle, and makes a very fine figure. Miss Lily C. Bondmann is a charming heroine, Almida; and Mr. Douglas Earle is a vigorous Agazil; Mr. F. Owen Chambers plays Thariogalus with much force; Mr. C. T. Chaloner is genuinely funny as Belos; while Miss Maud Garth, who is very amusing, does well as Edessor. Miss Violet Barclay sings prettily in the Palace scene just preceding the earthquake, which is very effective.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Major Gallagher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Page.—Lockhart's Elephants, under the management of Captain Tayler, are a great attraction here; May Evans, comedienne, sings a couple of successful songs; Mr. Dyfed Lewis's fine voice is heard to advantage in three songs illustrated with pictures; and the Bros. Horne present a very amusing turn, entitled The Biter Bit. Lady Fauntleroy shows exceptional powers of ventriloquism; the Boccaccio Minstrels (in which Signora Francia distinguishes herself with an excellent mandoline solo) are acceptable; and Allis and Cassati, in their song and dancing, are specially popular. Rosa Loader, the "Happy Slavey at the Piano," provides a turn that is both amusing and clever; and the Bioscope shows some interesting pictures.

NEWRY.—TOWN HALL.—Owners, Newry Urban Council.—On Monday Mr. George Robertson's company appeared here in the ever-popular Charley's Aunt. Mr. Tom MacFarlane as Lord Fancourt Babberley was a great success, and proved highly amusing; Miss Bianca Stewart figured smartly as Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez; some capital comedy was contributed by Mr. Henry Nelson in the rôle of Stephen Spettigue; Miss Sybil Grieg as Amy Spettigue, and Miss Edith King as Kitty Verdun, were pleasingly vivacious; Mr. Basil Lynn as Jack Chesney and Mr. Ralph Lynn as Charley Wykeham were excellent; and Mr. Theo. McCausland Stewart as Colonel Sir Francis Chesney, Miss Norah Johns as Ela Delahay, and Mr. W. A. Stoltuck as Brasset, were very effective in their respective parts.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—The Great Awakening is here this week. Miss Maud Hildyard puts plenty of vigorous work the part of Lola Selby; Mr. A. C. Hardie plays with effect as James Selby; Mr. Bernard Sopping successfully renders the dual characters of Sir Henry Merton and Jack Merton; Mr. Stephen Langton is excellent as Guy Rogan; Mr. Gordon McLeod makes a gallant Captain Harry Lambert; Mr. Willie Scott is a comical Billie Brass, Miss Doris Digby is a charming Molly Merton, and Miss Lilla Nordon an amusing Selina Worts.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—Heading the bill are the Seven Zerbinis, Continental musical speciality artists, who are well received in their electrical musical scena, The Enchanted Glen; the Celtics are a musical trio of accomplished vocalists, and their efforts are highly applauded; Anthony is an amusing and comical conjuror; Amy Elcock is a dashing burlesque artist; the Carney Bros. are clever comedy duettists; Tatten Hall, comedian, is accorded well-deserved applause. The Palace pictures by C. Vincent, military ventriloquism by Valvo, and Judge's cockatoos, presented by the Sisters Judge, complete the programme.

NORTH SHIELDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The boards here this week are occupied by Mr. Robert Perris's company, with A Fight for Millions, which has been cordially greeted. As Tom Manley, Mr. William Macready gives a good interpretation of the part; and Mr. J. Schofield is well placed as Hudson Rivers. Mr. Alec C. Grant renders due justice to the rôle of Richard Dudley; Mr. Harold Turner is funny as Solomon Moses; Mr. Nicholas Conway makes a hit as Harold Hobbs; Mr. Karl H. Edwards makes the most of William Neverwork; and Mr. Tom Jones is clever as Ciara Ap Morgan. Miss Winifred Symonds as Pearl Rivers is seen to advantage; Miss Elma C. Turner is an acceptable Helen Dudley; Miss Edith Hook is successful as Mrs. Hudson Rivers; Miss Dorothy Wilkinson is pleasing as Little Madge; and Miss Rosie Kearns, in the dual rôles of Betty and Mag Brady, is appreciated.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould. — The principal attraction here is Miss Daisy De Roy, the favourite comedienne, who has been warmly received; the Sisters Nella give a clever performance on the running globe; and Messrs. Cliff and Kean, comedians and dancers, are smart. Zenora, in his novelty act, meets with a hearty reception; Messrs. Madeline and Fedora present an enjoyable vocal scena; Mr. Jack McCann, comedian and skate-dancer, is loudly applauded; and the Bio-photoscope is still successful.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE. — Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Messrs. Ediscope and Barnum's electric animated pictures are here this week, and are both amusing and entertaining. The variety entertainment includes Lulu, lady instrumentalist, in her illuminated garden scene; Mlle. Pardoe, comedienne and speciality dancer; Loder Lyons, Irish entertainer and ventriloquist; Otto Ethardo, continental juggler; and M. Leon, guide and American song-illustrator.

NORWICH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Dance's company is here with Raffles. Mr. Reginald Dance as Raffles acted with ability, and is greeted with warm approbation throughout. As Curtis Bedford, Mr. Edward Irwin is very good; Mr. Brisco Owen as Harry Manders is successful, and the same may be said of Mr. C. Rivers Bertram as Crawshay; Mr. Percy Forster is appreciated as Lord Amersteth, and Mr. Edward Coutts as Lord Crowley is amusing. Miss Katee Yates gives a charming impersonation of Gwendoline Conran, and wins the sympathy of the audience; Miss May Brooke deserves every compliment as Mrs. Vidal; Marie is capably represented by Miss Rita Ward; Miss Constance Hamilton as Lady Ethel and Miss Mildred Orme as Lady Melrose are commendable.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—The Smythsons continue this week, and are well received in their sketch, Our Suite, and create great laughter; Duncan and Godfrey are also successful in their romance, Me and 'Er. Nelly Farrell is very pleasing with her Irish songs and dances; Fred Keeton, in song and patter, is appreciated; the Florodora Girls are also good singers and dancers; Talberto and Douglas are a good turn; while Big Ben Brown and Little George Le Clerq dispensing Black Justice evoke screams of laughter. The Elgars are very entertaining as Irish song singers; and the Hippo. Bioscope, with renewed fresh scenes, make up a capital programme.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—A large audience gave Mr. and Mrs. Kendal a warm greeting on Monday, when they appeared in The Elder Miss Blossom. Mr. Kendal plays Andrew Quick in the light and breezy way that so well fits him; Mrs. Kendal's acting in the title-rôle is a delightful piece of work, calling forth sympathetic interest by her tenderness and touch of true womanly feeling. Mr. Ernest Hendrie capitally supplies the geniality of Christopher Blossom; and Mr. Bassett Roe gives an acceptable portraiture of the testy Major Twentyman. Mr. C. W. Standing makes his points as the golf-loving clergyman; and Mr. Metcalfe Wood presents a comical interpretation of the stuttering valet. Miss Jessica Thorne is fresh and engaging as Sophia Blossom; and Mrs. A. B. Tapping gives prominence to the part of Cooper. Miss Kate Bishop (Mrs. Wells), Mr. W. M. Rutherfurd (Wells), and Mr. R. Burnett (Tyrel Jones) complete the cast. Other plays given during the week are A Tight Corner, The Housekeeper, The Melcombe Marriage, and The Ironmaster.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—Sherlock Holmes is being presented this week. Mr. Hamilton Stewart, who essays the title-rôle, gives a fine conception of the cool and calculating detective. Miss Gladys Harvey plays Alice Faulkner with a grace and sympathetic interest that are worthy of all praise; and Mr. James Skea evokes the heartiest repugnance for his representation of the villainous Moriarty. Mr. Henry Hare gives a powerful rendering of the part of James Larrabee, and is capably assisted by Miss Georgina Wynter as his wife. Mr. Allan Jeayes makes an effective study as Dr. Watson; and Mr. Henry Littlejohn is a dignified Sir Edward Leighton. There is some good acting, too, by Mr. Fred Bell (John Forman), Mr. Frank H. Moar (Count Stahlburgh), Miss Grace Howard (Mrs. Smedley), and Miss Dot Seilby (Mrs. Faulkner).

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—Chung Ling Soo is creating intense interest with his clever and bewildering tricks. The Mezzettis present an exceedingly smart act on the triple bars; Arthur Gill secures much applause for his rendering of several songs in different voices; the Musical Jees create genuine amusement by a comical speciality, entitled The Scarecrow; a decided novelty is introduced by Lilieth Leyton and John Spurling in their sketch The Order of the Bath; the songs and patter of J. W. Rickaby may always be counted upon as a source of merriment; Ethel Ra Leslie looks sweet and dainty as a gentleman of "the olden times," and also sings pleasantly; Ethel Dennis, a local celebrity, makes her début on the halls with great success. Appropriately costumed, she sings an Irish and Scotch song, evoking the heartiest plaudits. Ruby Dahl in a novelty, "The Merry Mannikins," and the American Bioscope complete the programme.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. Bert Coote's company is drawing good houses with The Fatal Wedding. Miss Katherine Clarke gives a capable study of Mabel Wilson; Mr. Ernest Owttrim is well placed as Howard Wilson; Mr. Guy Hastings makes a capital Robert Curtis; the part of Cora Williams is ably portrayed by Miss Leah Marlborough; and Miss Marie Wilson is a favourite as Jessie. Mr. Cyril Melton (Peter Schwartz), Mr. C. H. Hughes (Toto), and Miss Julie Temple (Bridget) supply an amount of fun. Miss Dolly McCall wins applause for her song, "Yankee Doodle Dandy"; and Miss Shirley Sparks, with her love song with chorus, is deservedly encored, as is Miss Dorothy Pain for her rendering of "Killarney." Messrs. Tom Grice and Walter Aubrey contribute some good dancing. The piece is well staged and dressed.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Mr. Lewis Waller's company, in Robin Hood, opened here on Monday evening to a large and appreciative audience. Mr. Robert Minster as Robin makes a gallant outlaw, acting in capital style; Miss Marie Polini as the Lady Marion is admirable; and Miss D. Moore-Lane as Adela is excellent; as also is Miss Lilian Lait as Alison Much. Miss Mabel Young and Miss Nora Clare as the Queen Dowager and Elspeth are very good; Mr. Bellenden Clarke does capital work as Prince John; and Mr. Arthur Willerby is adequate as Fitz Alwynne. Mr. Leslie Rea, Mr. Ben Lewin, Mr. Laurance Tessier, and Mr. Ethelbert Edwards assist in making the piece successful; and Mr. Augustus Wheatman as Friar Tuck supplies some broad comedy. Mr. E. C. Vaughan as King Richard, and Mr. C. Bruce Winston as the Abbot, appear to advantage.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is here in Second to None. Mr. Jerrold Heather as the hero, Harry Wilding, acts in manly fashion; Miss Ward plays Nell Greystone in her usual talented manner; Miss Violet Ennis Lawson appears as May with success; Mr. Louis Norman is fine as Sir Reginald; and Mr. James Stillwell as Captain Mannering is an excellent villain. Mr. Horace Booth and Mr. T. G. Vane, as Frank Wilding and Lieut. Archie Ballater, are capital; and Mr. J. G. Maine makes a good Sergeant Horseman. Miss Maudie Grayson as Norah causes much amusement, receiving considerable assistance from Mr. Tom Sinclair as Private Flutter, and Mr. Allan Carruthers as Joe Ruggles.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Miss Victoria Monks is fulfilling a most successful engagement with her capital songs; the Cee-Mee Family, in their aerial comedy act, win approbation; the Cymros, Welsh duettists, sing excellently; and Will Cornish does well in a musical bell act; Elsie Roby is a smart comedienne-pianiste; the Three Goodfellows have a good sketch in Watch the Chalk; and Ivey Aberdare is a good coon vocalist and sand dancer. A. G. Spry, comedian, and the Dottoscope, complete the bill.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Jimson's novelty sketch, a capital turn, introducing some well-trained dogs, is at the top of the bill; Whimsical Walker appears in Captain Hamilton, V.C., assisted by Miss Molly Moore, and wins much applause; Zaid, the Spanish Moor, gives a clever turn on the rings; F. W. Nash and T. H. Noel are a pair of smart comedians and dancers; Morimura and Miako have some clever illusions; J. P. Carrol is very good as a tambourine expert; and Percy Johnson, comedian, also appears. The Dottoscope is again showing some interesting pictures.

OXFORD. — EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, Miss Winifred Stuart and Mr. C. Watson Mill; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's company is fulfilling a six nights' engagement here with Sapho. As Jean Gaussin, Mr. Ernest R. Abbott acts with laudable restraint, and easily wins favour; while Mr. Charles Tring is well adapted for the part of Flamant. Capable exponents are found in Mr. W. H. Garbois as Henri Dechelette, Mr. John Lester as Caoudal, and Mr. W. H. Davis-Brown as Hettema. Mr. Douglas C. Phelps' performance as Uncle Cesaire is excellent, his refined humour and by-play causing roars of laughter; Mr. Weedon Ross is a typical cabman as Old Legrand; Miss Doris Dew is a very attractive Lucy; and Miss Marjorie Tennant is vivacious as Mme. Hettema. Miss Hetty Jones makes the most of Josaph; and as Fanny Legrand Miss Ada Abbott shows considerable power and ability, depicting the various phases of the character with distinct success.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile. — In Holy (!) Russia, presented by Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company, is in possession here this week. A very able and finished impersonation of Colonel Richard Forrest is furnished by Mr. Arthur Stratton; Mr. Frank Copeland makes Sir Harry Beresford an interesting study; Mr. J. Cuthbertson portrays Baron Von Pleve with effect; Michael Natolski is played in a telling manner by Mr. Frederick Loyd; intensely amusing and clever is the embodiment of Micky Nolan by Mr. J. Rice Cassidy; and the assumptions of Count Gregori Petrofski by Mr. Martin Sands, and Laurice Steragoff by Mr. Carl Rovinelli, are highly commendable. Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy plays the rôle of Renee Rubinoff with skill and charm; Miss Florence Creagh is to be commended for an admirable portrayal of Catska Lavotski; and other characters are well impersonated by Miss Alice Marsden as Mme. Natolski, Miss Agnes Durham as Natalie Natolski, and Miss Annie Dudley as Mrs. Richard Forrest.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Douglas F. Bostock.—A programme of exceptional merit is being presented here this week. Frank and Jen Latona, in a musical and comedy act, give a highly meritorious entertainment; Sammy Shields, Scotch comedian, is responsible for business that is intensely funny; Hess and Lisbon, comedy skaters, give a thoroughly enjoyable turn; Annie Nelson, soprano vocalist, is applauded; Alma O'Brien, soubrette, entertains; as also do Josh Dixon and Bob Baxter, comedians. Bernard and Weston, in an amusing comedy duo, are well received; and the Hippodrome Bioscope, as usual, contributes to the success of the programme.

PLYMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. Edward Marris's company, in Somebody's Sweetheart, is the attraction here. Mr. Percy Maitland as Stephen Leverton makes a fine stage villain of quite the conventional order; Mr. Cecil Parke as Stanton Ashleigh gives a capital rendering of a manly young Englishman; Miss May Norris as Freddie Ashleigh cleverly interprets a somewhat precocious youngster; Miss Elfie Vincent is graceful and fascinating as Lulu; and Miss Masie Gerrad makes an acceptable Zora. The programme includes no less than twenty-two vocal and instrumental numbers, the majority of which receive flattering applause.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—The top place on the bill is deservedly occupied by Mr. Nat Clifford, and the popular comedian has an unlimited supply of new wheezes and business; Newhouse and Ward provide a cycle turn distinctly clever; Prince Kokin, the Japanese juggler, is on a return visit; Lily Lena, comedienne, has an attractive and well-rendered répertoire; the Picquays have a refined item; and George Davis and company extract plenty of fun out of their sketch, entitled Jack's Uncle. Earle and Melville, comedians, and Vernon's pictures, are the remaining items.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross is here with The Manxman. Mr. Cross as Pete is magnificent; and Miss Minnie Watersford as Kate Cregeen wins all hearts. Mr. Frank Etheridge displays great ability as Cæsar Cregeen; and Mr. Sidney C. Kearns admirably portrays Philip Christian. Mr. Maurice Yorke capitally portrays the part of Ross Christian; and Mr. E. C. Howell is most amusing as Monty Missil; while Miss Nellie Freeland gives a clever portrayal of Nancy.

PORTH.—THE PALACE. — General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—The programme here, an exceptionally good one, includes the following turns:—Leo Lester's comedy burlesque pantomime, Monkeyland; Miss G. Haile, comedienne and dancer; the Prince and Milner Trio in a novel equilibristic act; Cavalli, the clever young ventriloquist; the Two Walonells, Continental triple bar performers; Frank Cumminger, sand-dancer; Zertho and his troupe of performing dogs; the Seves, in their interesting entertainment of second sight and mental telepathy. The Palace Bioscope this week depicts the films, "Foul Play" and "A Good Cigar."

PORTSMOUTH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. T. Arthur Jones and company are staging Life's Sweetest Sins. Mr. Jones taking the part of Captain Harold Marston effectively. Mr. Oswald Douglas, as the villainous Doctor Colbrooke, gives an exceedingly interesting impersonation; Miss Marie Daventry, as the much-harried Doreen Rivers, is conspicuously successful; Miss Marion Armitage as Bess Grayson, and Mr. Edgar Morgan as Bob Tanner do very well on the lighter side, and keep the house much amused.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. George Edwardes's able company, in The New Aladdin, is here. Mr. George Gregory in the part of Tippin causes much amusement; the Princess is played by Miss Ida Rene very cleverly and with much charm of manner; Lally is depicted very gracefully and with commendable dash by Miss Cressie Leonard; Miss Irene Verona is a very solid embodiment of the Spirit of the Ring. Miss Nellie Lonnen as a dancing girl, Miss Mary Fraser as the maid to the Princess, and Jessie Lonnen as the Charm of Paris all did good and careful work. Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., as the Genie of the Lamp is excellent; Mr. William Spray is diverting as the Cadi; and Uncle Ebenezer is capitally sustained by Mr. Frank Hector. General Ratz and the Lost Constable are admirably portrayed by Messrs. Ernest Maher and Harry Taylor.

EMPIRE PALACE. — Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Hardeen, handcuff manipulator, is here, and his successful efforts to free himself from his shackles gain him much applause. Brett and Orford cause much amusement with The Two Love Birds; and Arthur Ainston and company in sketch, Duck Hunting, meet with warm approval. Jack Pleasants, a comedian, scores with his extremely droll style; Moss and Son, vocal scenic artists, do a very pleasing and unconventional turn; and the Three Delaries, in speciality act, The Demon Grotto, present an able gymnastic display. Rachel Rowe, the singer of novelty songs, is distinctly good. Frank Boyce, eccentric vocal comedian; Lily O'Gorman, soubrette and danseuse; and Payne's Bioscope, with quite up-to-date pictures, fill an interesting programme.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late Mr. Wm. Johnson; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. Chalmers Mackey's company is appearing here this week in The Shaughraun.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—Mr. L. Austin Miliais introduces the late Lord Leighton's model in classical poses; as comedy acrobats the Rinaldo Trio are exceedingly good; Messrs. Phern and Phern, in their musical act, delight the audience; the Jollions acquit themselves well in refined songs and duets; Miss Mayne Cannon is recalled for her attractive trick-playing on the piano and her coon song; Messrs. Gilroy and Gross contribute to the amusement with humorous patter and a well-executed step-dance; Les Zelovas

Longden, and Livesey's company are here with The Village Blacksmith. Mr. Sam Livesey gives an excellent portrayal of the part of John Strong, and Mr. Joseph Carter scores as Captain Leo. Mr. Edwin Maydew is seen to advantage as Lucas Marler, and Mr. Thomas E. Marshall is interesting as Jeremiah Parkins. The part of Billy Twiggs is in the capable hands of Mr. George V. Campbell. Miss Maggie Edward's gives a pleasing and sympathetic rendering of a soul-stirring part of Kate Strong, and Miss Cassie Le Grande does well as Ruth Parkins. Miss Edith Giddens is smart as Martha Mopps, and Mrs. T. C. Livesey gives a capital representation of Sal Parkins. Little Miss Bertha Hanbury as Harry Strong speaks her lines with intelligence and gives evidence of careful training.

RUGBY. — Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geoffrey Fulton.—This week a variety company is here. Mr. Jabez White, light-weight champion of England, gives an excellent exhibition of scientific boxing; Miss Kittie Ere, soprano vocalist, is good; Miss Daisy Dashwood, comedienne, renders several songs in a piquant style; Mlle. Doro proves herself to be a musician of ability; the Danas are popular; and Vesto is seen in a clever exhibition of ball-punching; the Eltons, on the triple bars, are smart; Fred Lyndo, comedian, does well; Le Warren is an excellent ventriloquist; and Mlle. Sara's Trio submit clever and realistic tableaux.

RYDE.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Arkwright; Manager, Mr. F. B. Farrant.—W. F. Jury's Imperial animated pictures are here for a week. Among the many popular films shown are those representing the wreck of the ss. Berlin, and some remarkably effective photographs of a cruiser in a storm. Many amusing items also find a place in the programme. Mr. J. W. Hortin sings two songs in capital style; and Miss Vera Bateman accompanies efficiently.

SALFORD.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—As Good as Gold is the attraction this week, Mr. Samuel James's company on Monday being greeted by a good audience, who quite appreciated the performance. Mr. J. Hayes makes a thorough villain of Sir Richard Wharncliff, Bart., and Kate D'Arville, his unwilling tool, is well portrayed by Miss A. Collier. Mr. Fred Lloyd cleverly sustains the manly part of Lieut. Jack Stanton. Mr. Clinton Baddeley gives a good study of a country gentleman and selfish father as Mark Williams. The Kipper is a clever piece of work by Miss B. Baker, and a charming Norah Williams is presented by Miss Isla Garnet Vane. Mr. Herbert Fuller as Horatio Spanker, Mr. J. Rowlands as Timothy Nias, and Miss M. Merrick as Madge Merry keep the comedy well to the front.

Regent Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Kronan's American military spectacle, Our Boys in Blue, is a very smart exhibition of infantry and artillery drill, and receives due appreciation. A very pretty act is A-Ba-Bee's picture postcard album. The programme also includes excellent turns by the Sages, comedy burlesque artists and dancers; Robbie Roy, laughing patter comedian; the Gregson Comedy Trio, in a comic speciality, The Dummy; Little Bobby, the gallery boy; Eva Chadwick, vocalist; Harry Taylor, comic vocalist; and the Bouncing Dillons, in their unique acrobatic act.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth. — Nancy Sikes, an episode from "Oliver Twist," heads a good programme. The title-rôle is sustained by Miss Georgette Thierry, and she is supported by Mr. Bernard Liell, Mr. Will Black, Mr. Henry Deane, and Miss Florrie Sorsby. Other items are contributed by Marie Blyth, contralto; Hallam and Stanton (Henry and Josephine), in the musical comedy sketch A Broken Journey; Shavo, a smart juggler; Lilian Brothers, clever acrobats; Zanfretta and Napio, musical eccentrics; the Cheers, with their wonderful performing cats; the Spangelettis, with their dogs, pony, and baboon circus; George and Edwards, patter comedians and dancers; and J. H. Dundas, actor vocalist.

Stretford Pavilion.—Proprietor, Mr. Sidney Weatherhilt; Manager, Mr. Fred Erick.—Blanco J. White, droll comedian and buck dancer, heads another good programme; Stella Millar gets much applause; and clever turns are also provided by Walter Buxton, baritone vocalist; Bert Goldin, speciality dancer and comedian; Colwyn Thomas, tenor vocalist; and Fred Erick, comedian, with his eccentric songs and business.

SALISBURY.—County Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Whitehead; Business-Manager, Mr. T. Brinsmead.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's principal company has appeared here in La Poupée. As Alesia, Miss Mysie Devine was delightful, her dainty dancing and singing being greatly appreciated; Miss Edith Hunter made a capital Mme. Hilarius; Miss Doris Dickens was very smart and lively as Henri; Miss Adelina Burgon was good as the Maid; and as Guduline, Miss Alice Roche acted well. Mr. Arthur Cozens as Lancelot was clever; Mr. Fred Seymour scored as Hilarius; the Father Maxime of Mr. Walter Balfour was excellent, and his singing won for him unbounded praise; Baron Chanterelle was ably played by Mr. Fuller Allen.

SCARBOROUGH.—People's Palace and Aquarium.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—Harry Mars is the chief attraction here this week, his exhibition on the trapeze being both novel and daring; Little Dando, comedian, sings songs that suit him exactly; Chas. Kay, comedian, is well received; Harry Drew has a voice that he uses to great advantage; Letta and Minnie, handbalancers, are here for another week; Herman's feats of jugglery, and the Bioscope and the new pictures, complete a capital entertainment.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Zalva.—The Miltons are a great attraction here with their comic skating sketch; the Volbecque Sisters, comedy duettists and dancers, are very popular; Steve Cooke's songs keep the audience in capital humour; Clem Lisbon, comedian, and Stavert and Yondi, musicians, also appear. The animated pictures are as popular as ever.

SEACOMBE.—Irving Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Overflowing audiences testify to the popularity of Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company in Lucky Durham. The title-rôle is acted with conspicuous ability by Mr. Edmund Kennedy, repeated calls being given after each act. Mr. Robert Forsyth is an earnest and convincing Lord Mountfallon; the Hon. Reginald Steighton being cleverly depicted by Mr. Arthur Leigh. Mr. A. E. Walker gives a satisfactory performance of Mr. Vallerton; Ellen Vallerton receives a delightful rendering from Miss Alice Esther Belmore; Arthur Welcombe (Mr. W. Kingsford Pearce) and Ben Verstein (Mr. W. F. Clitheroe) are both good in their respective parts. Miss Francis Wolviston displays all the necessary dignity in her impersonation of Lady Mountfallon, and the Hon. Margaret Steighton is well depicted by Miss Florence Dulhunty.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison. — The Scottish Animated Picture Co. and Scottish artists are proving a capital draw here. Prince Bendon is a Scotch ventriloquial comedian of ability; the Lindsays, musical comedians, provide an enjoyable turn; Scotch Kriss, conjurer and comedian, delights the audience; Miss Margot Johnston, illustrated songstress, is an acknowledged favourite; and J. C. Lawrance a capable Scotch comedian.

SHEERNESS. — The Hippodrome. — General-Manager, Mr. F. Leighton.—The excellent programme of last week has been superseded by another of equal merit. J. Collinson's company, in the comedy act The Topsy-Turvy School, creates an abundance of amusement; the Falcons, comedy acrobats, submit a skilful performance; Vere and Royal, comedy duettists, get loudly applauded; and the Brontes, in a comedy duologue entitled Saucy Maud, are well received. Rita Resdan gains approbation for her successful impersonation of male characters. Harry Phillips, comedian, and Florrie Beck, comedienne, complete a most entertaining bill.

The Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Raymond.—The company engaged here this week is fully up to the standard of excellence. Miss Hilda Gordon charms all with her ballads; Will Thornhill is a clever instrumentalist; Miss Amy Cecil is a charming burlesque actress and dancer; Mr. Phil Raymond continues a big favourite; the Byrons' new act is highly relished; Miss Topsy Levane, the well-known burlesque actress and dancer, is adding to her popularity; and a screaming sketch concludes.

SHEFFIELD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. B. B. Beaumont.—The eagerly-anticipated visit of Mr. Charles Frohman's company, in Peter Pan; or, The Boy Who Wouldn't Grow Up, has resulted in a big financial success, as well as an artistic triumph. Miss Zena Dare in the title-rôle has charmed local playgoers, and many who do not exactly come under that category, by her dainty acting and winning manner; and those well-known artists, Mr. G. W. Anson, Mr. Stratton Mills, Mr. Lupino, and Mr. Lionel Mackinder, have thoroughly caught the whimsical spirit of the author.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—This is the Opera Festival Week here, the great event of the year to Sheffield musical enthusiasts, and the famous Moody-Manners "A" and "B" companies have been amalgamated for this engagement. The proceeds are to be devoted to the Sheffield medical charities, and though prices are trebled, the advance-booking and the crowded house on the opening night, point, in spite of the heavy expenses, to a handsome surplus being netted. The combined chorus provided by Mr. Manners has been further strengthened by the members of the Sheffield Amateur Grand Opera Company, which, together with a band of sixty, has lifted the performances up to a high standard of artistic excellence. The revival of Aida on Monday was a triumphant success, on account of the magnificence of the mise en scène. The cast of the opera was as follows:—Aïda, Mlle. De Vere-Sapio; Ramphis, Mr. Charles Manners; King of Egypt, Mr. Chas. Magrath; Amonasis, Mr. Lewys James; Amneris, Miss Toni Seiter; Radames, Mr. Joseph O'Mara. Mlle. De Vere-Sapio and Mr. Chas. Manners were recalled again and again at the end, and Signor Sapio, the conductor, was twice called in front of the curtain. On Tuesday Lohengrin was performed, with Mme. Fanny Moody as Elsa; and the operas billed for the rest of the week were The Flying Dutchman, Faust, Madama Butterfly, La Bohème, and Tannhäuser.

Alexandra Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—At Cripple Creek, a play redolent of the spirit of Bret Harte, was again acted here on Monday by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company. Mr. Stanley Bedwell made a manly and gallant hero as Joe Mayfield; Mr. Oscar Power as the villainous Dago earned the execrations of the gallery; and a full-blooded type of frontier rascality was Mr. Eric Hudson's Martin Mason. Mr. Harry Leander, an old Sheffield variety favourite, acted humorously as Ben White; and Mr. Will Hook was funny as Reggie Harwood. Miss Daisy Carlton was a pretty and talented representative of Maggie Mason; and the dramatic powers of Miss Agnes Verity were exerted to the full as Dynamite Ann.

Empire Palace.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—A screaming item of this week's programme is the cleverly-concocted "Casey Court Pantomime" of Mick Whittington, which gives scope for some right-down funny comic business and smart burlesque; Billy McClain's Troupe do a pretty and exhilarating sketch, called A Coon from Dixey; the Four Karnos are agile pantomimists and acrobats; the Sisters Geretie are pretty, shapely, and talented performers; and other successful artists are the Robertys, dancers; Hurley and Cole, vocalists; Miss Kate Traill, pianist; Miss Effie Stuart, comedienne; the Lukushima Troupe; and Mr. Ted E. Box, comedian.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, The Vaudeville Co.; Manager, Mr. David Warwick.—The company here this week includes Mr. Frank Hardie, in the Californian sketch, The Pedlar; Miss Tiny Arnold, a dainty and accomplished comedienne; Mr. Bert Danson, vocal comedian; Mr. J. H. Carney, vocalist; Miss Jessie Harper, comedienne; Mr. Joe Dale, variety entertainer; and Pallister's Bioscope, with the latest humorous and dramatic films.

Montgomery Hall.—The Modern Paris Theatre company, under the management of M. Gustav Gooes, opened to a good audience on Monday with the latest thing in animated coloured photography. Scenes from the "Arabian Nights," with a number of humorous and fantastic pictures, accompanied by appropriate incidental music and songs, made a programme full of instruction, humour, and dramatic interest.

SHREWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—The Shulamite is being played here this week. Mr. Algernon J. Hicks is powerful and artistic as the sanctimonious Boer farmer, Simeon Krillett; Mr. Chas. Fancourt is a manly Robert Waring; Mr. Geo. Rammell makes a vigorous and successful Jan Vanderberg; Miss Emily Levettez plays with conscientious effort and ability the part of Tante Anna Vanderberg; Miss Ruth Shepherd in the trying rôle of Deborah Krillett sustains the part throughout with power and feeling; Mr. Gus L. Rilings makes a capital Klaus; and Miss Chrissie Bickerstaff succeeds as Memke, a Kaffir slave girl.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—Empire Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—The Assassin is being presented here by Mr. Augustine Knight, who, as Prince Demetri, is most successful; Mr. Edward E. Ashby gives an interesting study of Ivan Ipanoff; Mr. Theo Balfour impersonates Duke Karl in a creditable manner; Mr. Cecil H. Raymond is a pleasing Baron Alfonse; Mr. Tom J. Taylor creates merriment as Peter; Miss Marie E. Robertson is well suited as Katrina; Miss Frances Waring ably impersonates Nita; and Miss Hettie Senior is sprightly as the Yankee girl. Miss Ella Vane takes the rôle of the assassin (Countess Wanda) in a very attractive and skilful manner.

The Kursaal.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon. — The highly-amusing musical comedy, H.M.S. Victory, is markedly successful here, and the clever company was given a hearty reception on Monday. Lord Teasum has a capital exponent in Mr. Bob Leardo, who makes a typical Admiral of the Fleet; Messrs. Arthur and Harry Watson provide merriment as Jack Marlinspike and Dick Hatchway; and Mr. Ted Shepperd makes a jovial Sam Mainmast. Trotter is in the capable hands of Mr. Joe Burnley; Miss Nellie Grant gives a capital impersonation of Lady Teasum; and Miss Flo Stanley is decidedly good as Polly. Specialities are contributed by Leardo, acrobat; H. Watson, who sings to the delight of all; Clivetto, a smart juggler; the Sisters Dudley, clever dancers; and Lord and Lady Watson, in pleasing duets.

Pier Pavilion.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—Mr. Harry Montague, with his well-known wandering minstrels, called "The Vagabonds," is providing a refined entertainment of humorous songs, sketches, dances, imitations, and burlesques.

SOUTHPORT.—Opera House, Winter Gardens.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—The attraction here is provided by Mr. Lawrence Brough and company, with The Lady of Ostend. Mr. Brough submits a clever and finished portraiture of the Baron; Dick Whortles is capitally enacted by Mr. Henry Hampson; Mr. Percy Marshall sustains the part of Joseph Carbury with great success; Mr. Watkin Wynne is highly commendable as the Prizefighter; Miss Bessie Harrison submits a praiseworthy character-sketch as Matilda; Miss Dorothea Svendson is a diverting Lady of Ostend; Miss Kate Milford a charming Dorothy; and Miss Eva Boyne a capital maid. As a curtain-raiser, At the Rising of the Moon is presented.

Albert Hall, Winter Gardens. — Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—The principal items in the well-selected programme presented here this week are supplied by the Six Æolians, in their refined vocal and dancing act; Signor and Mme. Borelli, society entertainers; and Harry Grey, novelty comedian, in his comic scena, entitled Chiming Bells. Other attractions are presented by Lopez, contortionist and dental athlete; Olive Armidale, comedienne; Carl Muller, speciality dancer; Jimmy Holland, the whistling collier; Selby and Myers, refined comedians; Marie Beresford, musical comedy artist; and the Bioscope, with the latest films.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Mr. Allan Wilkie and a strong company occupy the boards in a round of standard plays. On Monday Hamlet was produced to a crowded house. Mr. Wilkie thrilled the audience by his tragic rendering of the title-rôle; and Mr. G. Alexander Marsh was a capital Laertes. Claudius was well enacted by Mr. John Paley; and Mr. Herbert Morgan as the ghost was impressive. The Horatio of Mr. Ernest Digges was an excellent piece of acting; Miss Irene Cameron was seen to great advantage as Ophelia; the Queen of Denmark by Miss Carrie Baillie was a strong performance; Mr. Geo. Munro in the double rôle of Polonius and the First Gravedigger was all that could be desired; and he was ably supported by Mr. Charles W. Dockwray as the Second Gravedigger. Mr. Ian Fleming was a pleasing Marcellus. Romeo and Juliet, Garrick, The Bells, Othello, and The Two Orphans are also billed.

Empire Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Harry Tate's company in Motoring is well received, and proves as funny as ever; Herbert Sketch, in Dan the Outlaw, gave a good exhibition of quick-changing; good dancing is contributed by the O'Gorman Brothers; Drew and Alders are very humorous in The Coastguards; the remaining enjoyable items are Daisy Meyer, in coon stories, assisted by Paul Knox; Blanche Vincent, vocalist; May Fallowfield, comedienne; Hilda Playfair, vocalist; and the Bioscope.

Tivoli.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. K. Hall and Jos. Sweeney; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—Fanny Robina sings her songs in an appreciative and dashing style; some clever training is exhibited by the parrots and cockatoos introduced by the Montaldos; Florrie Bint renders her vocal selections in good fashion; the witty repartee of Messrs. Doyle and Gibson is much appreciated; Johnny Holland and company and the Three Coopers are responsible for good comedy work; and there are some attractive Bioscope pictures.

SPENNYMOOR.—Cambridge Theatre. — Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—Mr. Charles March, after a prolonged absence, is once more appearing here with his sensational play, The Gamester of Metz. In the rôle of Paul Baldot he acquits himself with distinction. As Henri Badaire, Mr. Wilfred Prothero gives a successful impersonation; Miss Una Lane appears to advantage as Lucia Baldot; and in the comedy rôles of Goliath Grow and Gwendoline Hastings, Mr. Thorpe Tracy and Miss Elsa Cole are lively and piquant.

STAFFORD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—We are visited by the United English Opera Co. On Monday night Maritana was presented, and had a very cordial reception. A capable interpretation of the title-rôle was given by Miss Elsa May; Miss Doris Gilbert as Lazarello sang in an excellent manner; Mr. Kreole Campbell as King of Spain scored a success; and as Don Cæsar de Bazan, Mr. F. S. Gilbert sang and acted in splendid style, and received a fine ovation for his rendering of "There is a Flower." The bill also includes Daughter of the Regiment, Il Trovatore, and The Bohemian Girl.

STALYBRIDGE.—Grand Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Fioni; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson.—The Waldrons, the favourite Lancashire comedians, head the bill, and their sketch, The Silly Burglar, is a capital laughter provoker. Carl Rosine, a dextrous conjurer, succeeds with a series of mystifying tricks; and the remaining portion of the programme is contributed by Miss Beattie Foster, comedienne; Arnetti, the musical Momus; Arthur Woodville, comedian and dancer; Rex and Ford, cross-talk comedians; the Wallys, expert jugglers; Wallace Whitney, comedian; Miss Lillian Payne, a beautiful soprano, who accompanies herself on the piano, &c.

ST. HELENS. — Theatre Royal and Opera House, Ltd. — General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Drama takes the place of grand opera this week, the boards being occupied by Mr. Hilliard Vox's company, in Alaska. Mr. Percy Ballard speedily wins favour as Skookum Jim, his performance being one of the most notable features of the piece; Mr. George H. Doyle strikingly portrays the rôle of Ned Larson; Mr. Stenson Liddard (late of Country Girl company) realises to the full the character of Baptiste; and Mr. James Fox plays the part of Father Bernard with ability. Miss Violet Crawford is excellent as Alaska; Miss Muriel Vox is sympathetic and natural as Jessie Dalton; and as the Widow Casey, Miss M. Palmer is capital.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Vic Carnell.—Mr. Tom Foy and company head the bill here with their laughable sketch, The Yorkshire Lad in London; the Emilions give an extremely smart acrobatic performance; and other good turns include Hulbert, ventriloquist; the Foy Brothers, in vocal scena, Pat in China; De Lil, illusionist; Miss Ida Ross, comedienne; Farrell and Miller, Irish comedians; and Starr and Jerome, vocalists and sand-dancers.

STOCKPORT. — Theatre Royal and Opera House. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun.—The exciting incidents and interesting situations in The Span of Life have been followed with marked pleasure by large audiences here. Mr. R. S. Trelawney gives a manly impersonation of Richard Blunt; Mr. Sanderson Moffat is thoroughly effective as Dunstan Leech; as Nutty Brown, Mr. Walter Dale is amusing; and a genuine comedienne is Miss Kitty Russell in the character of Shrove Tuesday. Miss Guinevere Shilton acts with feeling as Kate Heathcote, and the Stebbings Trio prove themselves to be exceedingly clever acrobats.

Empire. — Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—A sketch abounding in fun, entitled Rent, given by Harry Daniels and company, is the chief attraction here. Marvellously clever are the Pichel troupe of Risley acrobats. Another act of exceptional ability is that of Charles Matthews, the champion jumper; the success of the Wakeman quartette last week ensured their special engagement for this week; Little Rose Pink, in song and dance, is successful; Issa Steel, operatic vocalist, sings pleasingly; and Sam Shipley is a most amusing character comedian.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Hippodrome Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Geo. and Robt. Nicholson; Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—Auguste Van Biene and company provide a rich musical treat this week in the sketch, The Master Musician. Gracie Bard is a charming coon delineator; and Lottie De Abbey scores with her Tyrolean songs; Wartemberg Brothers, the foot experts, are both interesting and amusing in their entertainment; Les Uniques are a troupe of acrobats who exhibit great skill in mounting ladders; while Effie White as a serpentine dancer is unique, and is greatly appreciated. Ward and Davis are amusing in their sketch, The Type Writer; and another delightful turn is provided in the Japanese Love Story, a miniature musical comedy, which is highly appreciated. The Pictures complete an unusually good programme.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Councillor J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—W. J. Churchill, the popular comedian, heads the bill this week; Harry Friskey, comedy juggler, creates great amusement; the Three Rubys are exceedingly clever as tumblers and acrobats; Mark Merry is a quaint comedian; Ruby and Laws present a humorous sketch, In Old Madrid, combining comedy with good singing; Janet Reynolds is a delightful soprano vocalist; and G. W. Hunter, an old favourite here, causes great amusement with his local "hits." The Pictures are very interesting and amusing.

STOKE.—Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—Premier position here is held by the Three Merrills, comedy cyclists, whose turn is clever and amusing; Mr. Frank Elliston and company present a screamingly funny farce in Aunt Matilda; Sandes and Vincent in their burlesque speciality are capital; H. Pawson, necromancer and rag-painter, is successful; Lilian Rigby is good; the Katos, living marionettes, provide an interesting turn; Walter Wallis is a smart comedian; the Sisters Selwyn, vocalists and dancers, are well received; and the the pictures are capital.

STROUD.—Subscription Rooms.—Manager, Mr. H. J. Twitchett.—Mr. Chas. W. Poole is this week presenting his successful Royal Myriorama. The pictures are brought up to date and given with the usual grand dioramatic effect. The following talented artists also appear:—Miss Daisy Graham and trained birds, in a very neat show; Massons, a clever comedy juggler; Harry Stewart, actor-vocalist; Little Doretta, who dances well; Kitty Woodford's dogs, in a wonderful performance; and Leonard and Mac, patter comedians. The very latest of animated photos. brings the programme to a close.

SUNDERLAND.—King's Theatre.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry L. Carlo.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company is this week appearing here in Leah Kleschna. Mr. Paul Belmore is an admirable Kleschna, playing with much dramatic power; and the Leah Kleschna of Miss Bessie Rignold is excellent. Mr. William F. Grant plays Paul Sylvaine with considerable power; and Raoul Berton finds an apt exponent in Mr. Hamilton Deane. Other parts are capably filled by Messrs. Campbell Goldsmid, Roland Daniel, Bert Gunter, and Miss Violet Thorold.

Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company, in The Midnight Mail, is the attraction this week. Mr. George Harvard gives a strong impersonation of Harry Steyne; and as Billy Brewer Mr. Fred G. Evison could not well be improved upon. Mr. Magill Martyn scores as Hassan Padisha; and Mr. Harry Emmerson is a capital Donald Craig. Mr. J. Ingledew is well placed as the kind-hearted Policeman; Miss Ada Oakley is a pleasing Mary Steyne; and Miss Iris Love a lively Nancy Brewer.

Palace.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Alfred Browne and Syd B. Stringer.—The place of honour is this week held by Gunner Moir, boxer; the Sisters Sprightly, comediennes, contribute another excellent turn; Wee Mona, child vocalist and dancer, obtains a flattering reception; the Davis and Gledhill Trio score in their cycling and motor racing performance; the New York Nippers please in their scena, entitled Bedtime; Nellie Martell is a comedienne and dancer of considerable ability; Bob Stephenson, comedian; Brothers Zampah, billed as the one-legged marvels; and the Palace pictures complete an enjoyable entertainment.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—King's Theatre.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Captain Clayton; Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—Mr. James Hare and company are here in The Destroyer of Men. Mr. Hare, in the part of Karl Mischia, gives a fine performance; Mr. C. P. Wentworth makes a good Chief of Police; and the comedy element is in the capable hands of Mr. Ross Warren. Miss Irene Clifford figures to advantage as Olga Mischia; and Miss Alice Buckland makes a vivacious comedienne.

SWANSEA.—The Grand.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Brooks and Woodbridge; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks.—Mr. William Mollison and company, in The Bonnie Brier Bush, are here. Mr. Mollison's conception of the part of Lachlan Campbell is winning him enthusiastic recalls; Wee Postie was in the safe hands of Mr. Alec F. Thompson, who was excellent; the Earl of Kilspindle was ably enacted by Mr. Whitford Kane, as was also Lord Hay by Mr. Archie W. Chappell. William MacClure was cleverly taken by Mr. W. A. Mackersy; whilst equally successful was the Rev. John Carmichael of Mr. Henry Deas and the Tammas Mitchell of Mr. Kendal Chalmers. Coming to the ladies, Miss Evelyn McNay was winsome and natural in her impersonation of Flora Campbell; a great success also being scored by Miss Elsie Vron as Kate Carnegie; whilst Miss Josephine Woodward as the sympathetic Margaret Howe, and Miss Edith Blair Staples as Annie the dairy-maid, enhanced their reputations. Miss E. Herminia Black and Miss Joanne Fitzgerald, as Geordie and Jeannie, made the most of their opportunities.

The Empire.—Proprietors, Messrs. Moss, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. Mitchell; Assistant-Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe.—Through the unfortunate illness of Miss Vesta Tilley Swansea has had to go without their idol this week. The management were fortunate in securing an excellent military sketch by Mr. Wm. Bourne, which is well staged and admirably acted; Mr. Hymack, the chameleon comedian, provides an extraordinary turn, which is greatly liked; the Bros. Dean, dancers, give a typically clever exhibition; the Sisters Morgan are duettists with voices above the average; Cissie Curlette as a mimetic vocalist is smart; Collins and Rice, comedy artists, are thoroughly good; and the Strads, in The Night Before the Concert, provide very pleasing music. Some excellent bioscope pictures are also shown.

The Star.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts.—An excellent series of animated pictures, illustrated songs, and dramatic recitals by Mr. William Coutts are drawing big houses here this week.

TORQUAY. — Theatre Royal. — Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Sec., W. A. Pearse.—Mr. H. F. Maltby's company in The Youngest of Three, and Sir George, of Almack's visited Torquay this week, and played to highly-appreciative houses. In the former of the two plays named, Mr. Maltby appeared to great advantage as George Wendover; and Mr. Wyn Weaver was excellent as the younger Wendover; whilst the three sisters were admirably portrayed by Miss Janet Hodson, Miss Grace Richardson, and Miss Mora Maltby, the last-named making a most charming character study of "the youngest of three" sisters. Mr. W. Reginald Favell, Mr. Franc Stowey, and Mr. F. Stuart Willson ably supported.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS. — Opera House. — Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Business-Manager, Mr. L. J. Gunnell.—Tunbridge Wells is enjoying its first Shakespearean commemoration week, and a varied répertoire is being provided by Mr. Norman V. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson. Occasion has been taken to present Miss Wilson in two new Shakesperean rôles, in which it may at once be said that this clever and versatile actress has scored a triumph in what was undoubtedly a noteworthy feat for an actress even of Miss Wilson's versatility. That feat was in one evening to play Romeo to Miss Kathleen Bird's Juliet in the balcony scene, then to transform herself into Lady Macbeth to Mr. Norman V. Norman's Macbeth, and, finally, to become the mocking Beatrice to Mr. Norman's Benedick in Much Ado About Nothing. Miss Wilson's polished diction in the great love scene was one of her finest achievements, and the musical cadence of her voice in the wooing of Juliet simply charmed all hearers. A word of praise is also due to the emotional power displayed in Miss Rind's Juliet. A complete and tragic contrast was achieved by Miss Wilson as Lady Macbeth, and she gave a very interesting and human reading of this fascinating and complex character. As Macbeth Mr. Norman repeated a previous success in his study of the moody Thane. To crown her achievements Miss Wilson gave a rendition of Beatrice, which was as sprightly and charming as her Rosalind of the previous evening. For the week-end Miss Wilson is appearing in David Garrick and Robin Hood, and the festival week is proving a series of triumphs. Among other members of the company, Mr. Norman Leslie and Mr. Aubrey Mather were the other generals with Macbeth; and King Duncan was played by Mr. Brember Wills; while in Much Ado About Nothing Mr. Norman Leslie was Don Pedro, Mr. Brember Wills Don John, Mr. Aubrey Mather Claudio, and Mr. Kenneth Bruce Leonato, and each of these added their share of success to the garden scene. The ladies who took their share in the gentle conspiracy with equal vivacity were Miss Sybil Ruskin as Hero, Miss Dorothy West Symes as Margaret, and Miss Hilda Gregory as Ursula; while mention must also be made of Miss L. Rushforth, whose artistic singing of "Sigh no more, ladies" delighted everyone. In Romeo and Juliet Mr. Howard Brenan gave a spirited representation of the humours of Mercutio.

WALSALL.—Her Majesty's Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Henry Coutts gives a marvellous turn in his mystifying and lightning-change production, Outflanked; Cline and Clarke, black and white comedy artists; Harry Simms, light comedian, proves to be very popular; and Kioto, Japanese equilibrist, is well received. Kurios, in their curious concoction of comicalities, create great fun; Barton and Franklin's vocalism and instrumentalism are very enjoyable; and Tom Lloyd gives a capital turn. The American Bioscope presents interesting pictures.

Grand Theatre. — Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, Miss Lole Esmond's company are here with The Anarchist Terror and The Sorrows of Satan. Mr. Edward Neville, in The Anarchist Terror, takes the parts of Ravagoon, Count Grovini, the blind wanderer, Ephraim Oldroyd, and the Terror, and does ample justice to his arduous task, and proves himself to be a fine actor. Mr. Coleman Davies as Ishmael and Mr. Ben Brew as Nathan also score in their respective rôles; Mr. Fred Cherry makes a capital Silas Washington Goldstraw; as Lieut. Armstrong Mr. J. McCaigh found favour; Miss Lole Esmond as Kitty Malone was natural and charming; and with Mr. Herbert Carrington as Micky Doolan, creates the heartiest laughter. Miss Rosie Neville as Columbia Goldstraw gains much applause; Miss Pennie Croft is successful as Zara; and Miss Cecilia Dare is a capable Marita.

WEDNESBURY. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Batersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Kuner.—Mr. Leonard Dalrymple's No. 1 company is here this week in As Midnight Chimes. Mr. Herbert Belmore as Luke Dezzard, and Mr. Leonard Dalrymple as Dave Stannard, do excellent work in their respective parts; Mr. Herbert Pearce gives a very clever rendering of Ezra Gamble; Mr. James Salter makes up well as Tat Spavvin; an artistic portrayal of Mary Stannard is ably presented by Miss Maud Hastings; whilst the part of Zamora is cleverly enacted by Miss Alma Henson. Miss Madge Beresford is warmly appreciated for her capital impersonation of Suzette, the French maid.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Lessee, Mr Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—Messrs. J. M. Polini and L. Maitland and company present The Coal King on its return visit. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland's conception of the rôle of Tom Roberts is a masterly one, well studied in every way; Mr. Chas. Whitlock gives a capable rendition of the character of Sir Reginald Hartford; the heavy part of Walter Hartford is creditably played by Mr. Escot Robson; considerable humour is infused into the play by Mr. Alfred Terris in the rôle of Jim Williams and Miss Enid Ross as Araminta Green; a splendid piece of character-acting is done by Miss Sinna St. Clair as Mad Ann; and a brilliant success is achieved by Miss Gertrude Valentine as Grace Shirley.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The excellent array of talent submitted this week is resulting in capital business. Messrs. Fred Ginnett's equestrian spectacle, Turpin's Ride to York, is proving a strong attraction, and receiving considerable applause nightly. Mr. Fred Ginnett undertakes the principal rôle of Dick Turpin in his usual masterly style, and he is capably supported by such clever artists as Mr. George Jennings, Mr. Carl Barello, Mr. Alf. Burgess, Mrs. F. Ginnett, and Mrs. Jennings. Johnny Dwyer, comedian, gains considerable popularity; Salvino, boy instrumentalist, is a perfect master of his art; a pleasing turn by the juvenile Sisters Marion is well received; some clever feats in the juggling line are done by Wollan, the boy juggler; and admirable pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

WEST STANLEY.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

At a meeting of the "reform party" of the Actors' Association at the Trafalgar Studio, Chelsea, on Sunday, Mr. Lewis Casson took the chair, and among those present were Miss Wynne Matthison, Miss Alys Reece, Mr. Frederick Moreland, Miss Tita Brand, Mr. Robert Castleton, Mr. Kenyon Musgrave, and Miss Clare Greet.

Mr. MORELAND said it had been settled that a poll of the members of the Association should be taken regarding matters in dispute, and the voting papers would be issued to members, who are asked to vote for the reduction of the numbers on the council from forty-two to twenty-five; for an annual election of the council, for the election of the council by voting papers issued to all the members, which would give provincial actors their due weight; for the exclusion of managers, on the ground that the Actors' Association should consist of actors; for the making of the offices of president and vice-president honorary; and for the agency connected with the Association to decline to treat for appointments, so far as speaking parts are concerned, at less than £2 a week.

ACTORS' UNION MEETINGS.

LONDON.

Mr. Wm. Farren, jun., took the chair at Tuesday's meeting of the Actors' Union, held at 3, Bedford-street, W.C., and among others present were:—Mr. Cecil Raleigh, Mr. Charles Sugden, Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., Mr. and Mrs. Robson Paige, Mr. Arthur Bawtree, Miss Emily Polini, Miss Harriet Polini, Mr. Edwin J. Collins, Mr. George H. Child, Miss Beatrice Lloyd, Miss Gertrude Tate, Miss Dorothy Mackenzie, Mrs. Meek, Miss Adelaide Gracey, Mr. Frank Lennard, Mr. Alfred Bennett, Mr. Buchanan Wake, Mr. E. Johnstone, Miss Isa Patterson, Mr. William Allison, Mr. Robin Shiells, Miss Gladys Ffolliott, Mme. Rouir, Mr. Edwin Palmer, Miss Elsie Carew, Miss Nellie Dade, Miss Heron Brown, Mr. R. E. Warton, Mr. Robert M. Taylor, Miss Violet Sims, Mr. Edward Carlin, Miss Bull, Mr. W. H. G. Wynne, Miss Buckstone, Mr. Roy Barraclough, Mr. R. Ryder, Mr. Alfred Richards, Mr. Orland Barnett, Mr. Harold Cundall, Mr. William Lockhart, Mr. Tripp Edgar, Mr. Gifforde Reynolds, Miss Florence Mitchell, Miss Phyllis Manners, Mr. E. Y. Rae, Mr. F. W. Ford, Mr. Frederick James, Miss Evelyn Vaudray, Mr. Alec Crichton, Miss Norreys, Miss De Burgh, Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves, Miss May Dallas, Miss Paget, Mr. Douglas Munroe, Miss Sophie Lingwood, Mr. P. Sturgis, Miss Florence Tyrrell, Mr. Cecil Newton, Mr. Wilfrid Shine, Mr. T. Barriscale, Mr. J. Bentley, and Mr. Oswald Marshall (secretary).

Mr. ROBSON PAIGE read extracts from the very encouraging Glasgow report, which will be found below.

The CHAIRMAN remarked that were he to go back to the times of David Garrick he could find nothing that was more worthy of support than the Actors' Union. It was the only association of actors that would keep them on their feet. Sooner or later it would bring together a solid body of actors who would stand together, and not allow it to be knocked down. The objects of the Union were fairplay and self-help. There were a good many young people who came on the stage and who did not play the game fairly because they happened to possess friends or relatives with money. And it was nonsense to imagine that a competent actor could be turned out by a dramatic academy after a few months' training. Acting was only to be learned by hard work. The old stock system might have had its disadvantages, but it gave work to a large number of people and provided the English stage with our greatest players. Could better names in instance of this be given than those of Mrs. Siddons, Mrs. Kendal, Miss Ellen Terry, and the late Sir Henry Irving? Of course, the young people to-day might retort that there was no stock system. Well, there were plenty of travelling companies, and youthful actors could work their way up in them. In his (the Chairman's) early days, beginners had to be content with small parts; now the salary-cutting or premium-paying amateur would be given an important part owing to the fact that a certain class of manager had entered the dramatic field. But it was not to be thought that because a man or a woman had money he or she should be debarred a stage career. Nothing of the sort was intended by the Union, the idea being to give everybody a chance. They ought to have the co-operation of all the actors and actresses, and the touring managers would then support the Union. The economic conditions of the stage were such that the Actors' Union had become a necessity. They owed a great debt of gratitude to Mr. Cecil Raleigh for the way in which he had come forward to support their cause, and everything now depended upon actors pulling together properly.

Mr. CHARLES SUGDEN spoke on the subject of a loan fund, warned the meeting of the uses to which such a fund might be put, and remarked that they would have to deal constantly with a begging class.

Mr. CECIL RALEIGH said that the profession was overrun by incompetent amateurs. He read several advertisements from various newspapers in which "ladies and gentlemen without any experience" were offered engagements. He would tell them of one case where the agency was in the same hands as the management of the theatre. A company of amateurs rehearsed a piece for a fortnight, and it was tried at an experimental matinée. The production proved moderately successful, and it was continued. The first lot of paying amateurs were then dismissed, and a new lot taken on who paid a fresh 10 per cent. The minimum wage of £2 a week must be established to abolish the paying amateur. No man or woman could live decently in the theatrical profession under that sum. At a later date he (Mr. Raleigh) would explain a very simple scheme he had for guaranteeing to their sick and aged the sum of £10,000 a year.

Miss GLADYS FFOLLIOTT suggested that the Union should appoint a reader of plays for the purpose of protecting its members against fraud. The duty of this official would be to keep a copy of each play sent to a manager, and to endorse the script with the name of the Union, so that the person to whom it was sent would know that it was protected.

A letter from Mr. Harry Armitage, speaking from the managerial side, in favour of the Actors' Union, was read amidst considerable enthusiasm; and Mr. Buckley's scheme for a provident fund was also brought before the meeting.

Mr. ARTHUR BAWTREE, in proposing a vote of thanks to Mr. Farren for presiding, mentioned that there were now forty-seven centres of the Union.

The announcement that a meeting, for members of the Union only, was convened for Sunday evening at eight o'clock at 3, Bedford-street, brought the proceedings to a close.

GLASGOW.

By kind permission of Messrs. Howard and Wyndham and Messrs. Armitage and Leigh, an Actors' Union meeting was held on the 19th on the stage of the Theatre Royal, Glasgow. The following were present:—Paul Belmore, Arthur Leigh, Bernard Hishin, Jos. B. Montague, Hamilton Deane, Frances Wolviston, Florence Dulhunty, Fredk. Loyd, Arthur Stratton, Frank Copeland, Carl Rovinelli, John Clyde, Alice E. Belmore, Hilda Blanch, Joseph Millane, J. W. Stewart, Lillian Clare Cassidy, Wm. S. Palmer, Edmund Kennedy, Dare Austin, Florence Creagh, Louisa Gourlay, W. Kingsford Pearce, Wyn Hanley, W. F. Clitherow, Alice Marsden, Robert Forsyth, A. E. Walker, Harry Glenny, G. Mitchell, John Hartt, Katie Evelyn, and H. Wolston.

Mr. LOYD, in opening the proceedings, touched on the fact that the Actors' Union did not wish to fight managers. He for one fully recognised the good feeling that ought, and did, exist between many managers and their artists. In touching the ever-present question of the stage-door beggar, he said it was a crying shame and a disgrace to our profession, which the A.U. when in full working order would materially be able to deal with. He then drew the attention of the meeting to the phenomenally successful gathering of last Friday on the stage of the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, when out of all the artists who were then present only five failed to sign on as wishful to become members of the A.U. He had great pleasure in proposing Mr. Hamilton Deane as chairman at this meeting. This was seconded by Mr. Edmund Kennedy.

Mr. DEANE, on coming to the chair, was greeted with hearty applause. He commenced by reading telegrams wishing all possible success and good wishes from the following:—John Ryder, Campbell Goldsmid, Harry Armitage, Oswald Marshell (Provisional Committee), Robson Paige, William Farren, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sugden, Arthur Bawtree, and Ben Webster. In his speech which followed Mr. Deane touched on the absolute necessity of trades unionism to such a body of workers as actors and actresses. Collectively, he said, we are bound to make a firm stand, and he asked those present to pin their faith entirely on the new Union, and to believe that, judging by the numbers who are pouring in, that actors and actresses, for the first time in the history of their profession, would be a well-governed body of workers at no very distant date. He then gave a brief résumé of how the Union came to be formed and how things had fared with it up to the present date. He was more than pleased to be able to state that, of all the meetings held since the inauguration, that of last Friday on the same stage was the most successful of any; out of fifty-three actors and actresses who were present forty-eight signed on to join the Union. He thought that in taking the clauses one by one and inviting discussion on each they would be better able both to give a clear idea of the Union and to gauge the popular feeling. Cohesion and loyalty, he said, were the two great things needed. To all of you who recognise that a Federation or Union was necessary to the welfare of the stage he would say, put scruples aside and put your name down to join. He concluded by saying he hoped on leaving the meeting to be able to wire to the Provisional Committee that they had had the most successful meeting on record yet, and that the Actors' Union had received a big impetus on the road to solid and financial success.

Mr. KENNEDY, speaking on Object No. 2, "to abolish the premium-paying amateur," said: We are all too well acquainted with the amateur; we ought to wipe him out. These people are, to a great extent, the reason of bad business in the theatre of to-day; the raw amateur is not worth 2s. 6d. per week.

Mr. LOYD, supporting Mr. Kennedy, said that it was absurd that an amateur with no experience should be on a par with the professional actor and be entitled to demand £2 per week.

The CHAIRMAN replied that the gentlemen would have a grave difficulty in getting admission to the Union.

Mrs. CASSIDY said that very often amateurs were good, clever artists.

The CHAIRMAN replied that did not matter; that in every other profession or calling a novitiate had to be served, and that we had on the stage to-day a plentiful supply of the genuine article without going to the ranks of amateurs to find more—sufficient material, he would say, to last the next ten years.

Mr. CLITHEROW said that amateurs must be kept out. He agreed with Mr. Kennedy that they were a serious bar to people coming to the theatre nowadays.

Mr. PAUL BELMORE said that, in his opinion, a certain amount of tuition was both necessary and essential to all. A man or woman may be born clever, but a certain amount of hard study was necessary in order to "get there." Our greatest actors and actresses had to learn. We must have a standard of a minimum wage, or we should get no further advanced. He knew of managers who had engaged artists at 15s. a week, and also received a premium.

Object No. 2 was therefore passed unanimously; also No. 3.

On No. 4, the CHAIRMAN said a few words on the acceptability of a loan fund and old-age pension fund to all ranks of the theatrical community, and urged that these measures should be pushed forward as rapidly as possible. This was passed unanimously. Nos. 5 and 6 were also passed.

With regard to No. 7, Mr. PALMER suggested that, instead of having a sixpenny death levy, it would be more advisable to have a further penny or twopence added to the weekly subscription, this money to go to form an insurance fund which could be drawn upon in the event of a death or deaths among the members of the community.

Mr. KENNEDY seconded Mr. Palmer's motion, and, on its being put to the vote, twenty-one were for and four against. The eighth and last object of the Union was passed.

The CHAIRMAN then read excerpts from letters received by him from members of the Provisional Committee dealing with the minimum clause, how and where to pay subscriptions, and where necessary stamps were to be obtained; and called attention to the advisability of all members attending the weekly meetings and keeping as up to date in the matter of subscriptions as possible for the benefit of the funds. He concluded by exhorting all present who had not done so to join the Union, and, having once joined, to put as much thought and care into the selection of the fellows who were to represent them on the Council as they possibly could, remembering that so much depended on this first year, and on the governing body during that year.

Votes of thanks having been passed to Mr. Hamilton Deane, Mr. Fredk. Loyd, Mr. Arthur Leigh, and Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, the proceedings terminated.

Twenty new names were added to the roll of members.

MANCHESTER.

A meeting of actors took place on Tuesday at the Salisbury Hotel, Manchester, to discuss the current situation and take new opinions and suggestions upon the same. Mr. William Matthews occupied the chair, and opened the meeting by reading the rules and objects of the Union. Afterwards a long discussion took place on the subject of the minimum salary.

MR. JERROLD HEATHER suggested that the £2 minimum might wisely, in present circumstances, be reduced to 30s. for ladies, and that a further alteration be made in the qualifying period of five years in their case, three years being perhaps desirable.

This led to some dissension, in the midst of which MR. MOUNTFORD, who had entered the room quietly during the course of the argument, begged leave to offer the meeting the benefit of his experience and advice. Mr. Mountford lost no time in hammering home the principle that Unionism must adhere without compromise to one minimum figure, or the entire efforts of the organisation which actors are trying to establish for the general benefit of bonâ-fide members of the profession will be of no avail. To establish a sliding-scale among themselves would be subversive of the good that could be done by adhering to the £2 minimum for all who are qualified to take up a line of business. No reason appeared to exist why ladies should be paid less than their brother actors, and Mr. Mountford suggested that to put Mr. Jerrold Heather's proposal seriously before the profession would have the immediate effect of alienating actresses in a body from the Union.

MISS DAISY HALLING spoke to the same effect, adding that ladies—apart from their abilities—are frequently called upon to provide more in the way of costumes than actors are. Miss Halling showed her sincerity in the cause of the Union by a very neat and fervent speech.

Among other suggestion was one that probationers — i.e., those having less than five years' experience — should be at liberty to play utility parts at any rate of pay they chose to accept; but this was based upon a misconception of the meaning of the five years' rule. A further suggestion that the actors' year should commence in August, so missing the evil conditions of the two months preceding, was generally accepted as increasing the chance of enrolling new members. Among those present, in addition to those already mentioned, were Mr. J. G. Maine, Mr. Horace Booth, Mr. Edward Beecher, and Mrs. Sidney Halling.

HULL.

The Actors' Union held a meeting in the Wheatsheaf Hotel, Hull, on Wednesday. MR. PAUL LOVETT, who presided, said there were now about 400 members. He thought much good would be done by holding meetings week by week in various places, and laying before prospective members of the Union its advantages.

MR. BRUCE LINDLEY said some fancied the Union was a London institution. He entirely repudiated that suggestion. A discussion followed.

LEICESTER.

A meeting under the auspices of the Actors' Union was held at the Cricket Players' Hotel, Church-gate, Leicester, on Thursday afternoon, the chair being taken by Mr. Edward S. Petley. Amongst others present were Mr. E. Howard Templeton, Mr. W. S. Hartford, Mr. Edward Ranier, Mr. J. Collinson, Mr. Arnold Palmer, and Mr. Fred Elvin.

The CHAIRMAN at the outset explained the rules and objects of the Union seriatim, which met with the approbation of the meeting.

Mr. EDWARD RANIER remarked that he understood that practically sketch artists were considered as music-hall artists. He might say that he always secured recognised actors and actresses for his sketches.

Mr. W. S. HARTFORD, in explanation, said that an alteration of the rules which had been made now admitted recognised sketch artists to join the Actors' Union.

In a discussion which ensued as to the minimum wage of £2 per week, Mr. HARTFORD remarked that an actor rarely worked more than 36 to 40 weeks in a year, and that £2 per week was not a living wage. A manager who paid £2 for small parts got value for his money.

Mr. ARNOLD PALMER said that he knew of men who had been offered 50s. per week who would rather starve than accept less.

The CHAIRMAN, in reply to some remarks by Mr. Ranier, said that in his opinion it was only a question of Unionism that sketch managers should receive sufficient money for their productions to pay their artists the minimum of £2. The number of members of the Actors' Union now exceeded 400, who had joined within the past five weeks.

Mr. FRED ELVIN: There seems to be an opinion that actors could not form a Union.

Mr. TEMPLETON: We are now giving the lie to them.

The meeting, which was of a most harmonious character, then terminated, after Mr. Edward Ranier, Mr. Arnold Palmer, and Mr. Fred Elvin had signed forms of application for membership.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Those interested in this movement are constantly being asked: If the minimum wage is established, how are the touring managers going to pay it without being at a loss? The general answer is that the resident manager will give better terms for a better company. May I respectfully suggest another way? Is all the pictorial printing put out in provincial towns necessary? Has it not played its part and ceased to attract the public? Have not the managers, in competing against each other in this matter somewhat cut their own throats? Further, is not the so-called "special week" a cruel injustice to the legitimate touring manager? Does it not place him absolutely in the hands of the resident-manager? As I am told I am to be boycotted by some managers for helping to form the Union, they may as well hang me for a sheep as a lamb. I may, however, point out to the timid that many managers at the now famous meeting approved strongly of the Union. We have now enlisted the sympathy of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Sugden, who are setting an admirable example to other "top branches" in unselfishness.

The Council will shortly be elected, and will, of course, in years to come undergo many changes; but should this Union ever become a real power in the land, I hope they will always bear in mind that it is the wish of the three founders not to be unfair to the managers. But wrongs must be righted, the amateur kept back, and those who are in considered before those who want to come in. The letter below from Mr. H. Armitage speaks for itself.—Yours faithfully ROBSON PAIGE.

10, Ospringe-road, N.W., April 25.

"DEAR MR. ROBSON PAIGE.—I am getting ready to organise a monster meeting in Liverpool in two weeks' time. Our Leah Kleschna company will be in Seacombe, and Mr. Deane will again preside. I hope to have ten signatures to-morrow from our East Lynne company, which is in Devonport. The Lucky Durham company will join en masse, as I have it clearly understood that Union men will stand a better chance of re-engagement with us in the autumn.—Yours sincerely,

"H. ARMITAGE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The varied nature of the scenes and incidents and the wide range of character in this drama make it a most interesting production. It is the work of Miss Augusta Tulloch, who shows the hand of experience by deft craftmanship in the arrangement of many effective scenes. It is a romance of the arena that the authoress presents to us, and the first act opens "behind the scenes" of Jubbs's Circus, where we find Edwin Romaine, acrobat, and Ivan Spava, a lion-tamer of Slav descent, gambling. The former, losing his money, hands Spava a locket belonging to his daughter Enid, which contains the portrait of her mother, Vera Romaine. Vera had left the acrobat on account of his drunken habits, and had placed Enid in a convent. The girl is taken away by her father, who trains her for the arena. The beauty of Enid inflames the passion of the lion-tamer, who attempts to kiss her, but is foiled by her would-be lover, Dr. Clifford Barrington. The locket, which plays a conspicuous part in the development of the plot, is purchased from Ivan Spava by Prince Borinsky, who is associated with him in an Anarchist conspiracy.

Edwin Romaine, who loses his reason through an accident at the circus, claims Vera as his wife, but is looked upon as demented. She marries Lord Lyndhurst, a union that much incenses the Prince, who admires her very much, and is determined to expose her as a bigamist. To carry out his purpose he immures Enid in his mansion, and entrusts her to the care of a Russian spy, Lola Ivanwitch. Spava comes to the mansion and accuses Borinsky of hiding Enid, and at a masked ball given by the latter hands to Lord Lyndhurst by mistake some incriminating Anarchist papers. Vera—now Lady Lyndhurst—recognises Enid as her daughter and faints, the curtain falling on a highly interesting situation.

Lady Lyndhurst, through the aid of Clifford Barrington, endeavours to see her child; but Borinsky prevents the meeting, and, thrusting his unwelcome attentions on the girl, she finds an unexpected defender in Boris, an old Russian in his employ. The old man has lost a son in exile in Siberia, and though the secret has been kept from him by the Prince, it is disclosed to him by Lola. By the aid of Boris Enid eventually escapes. She meets Spava, who overhears her give the circus proprietor Lola's address. Meanwhile Prince Borinsky proceeds with his plot of unmasking the supposed bigamist, Lady Lyndhurst (Vera Romaine). By sending him a false telegram he secures the departure of Lord Lyndhurst and then calls on the lady. She summonses the servants, and the return of my lord coincides with her exposure as the wife of a drunken madman. Lord Lyndhurst strikes the Prince, and is challenged to a duel. Lord Lyndhurst's life is afterwards attempted, but he is saved by Boris and Spava—now exposed as an Anarchist by Lola—is hoist with his own petard. He leaves the lions' cage open in order that they may attack Lola, whom he has induced to visit the circus; but his scheme gangs agley, and the beasts attack him. Prince Borinsky is exiled to Siberia; Vera's innocence of the charge of bigamy is proved, and the curtain falls on the reunion of herself and Lord Lyndhurst and the happiness of Enid with Barrington.

Prince Borinsky had a good exponent in Mr. Roy Milton; and the Vera Romaine of Miss Augusta Tulloch was worthy of the highest praise. Ivan Spava was in the capable hands of Mr. Arthur Plummer and Miss Amber Wyville did justice to Lola Ivanwitch. Mr. Max Coutts was decidedly good as Lord Lyndhurst; Miss Cora Linda was responsible for a feeling portrayal of Enid Romaine; and Mr. Edward Vivian as Clifford Barrington, Mr. Hugh W. Travers as Edwin Romaine, and Mr. Chas. Robinson as Boris were all most effective. The comic relief of Mr. Wm. de Lacey and Miss Nellie Fern was refreshing. Mr. Geo. Byrne and Miss Rosie Watson also contributed to the fun.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, April 22, the Tragedy in Five Acts, by William Shakespeare, entitled

"ROMEO AND JULIET."

The Messrs. Melville afford us a great treat this week in presenting Romeo and Juliet. The great success here of the previous production of Hamlet aroused eager anticipation of the next Shakespearean production, and expectation has been amply fulfilled. The talented stock company give a very able representation of the sweetest love story that ever was told. Miss Marion Denvil made a splendid Juliet, girlish and full of the joy of living in the earlier scenes, and rising to a very high level of tragic acting in the potion scene at the end of the fourth act. Miss Denvil was very impressive in the final scene, when, wounded unto death, she has just sufficient strength to crawl to her husband's body and clasp his neck in a last embrace. Mr. Ashley Page is almost an ideal Romeo, young, handsome, and passionate. He was at his best in the fight with Tybalt and Paris. Mr. Wilson Gunning was a light-hearted Mercutio, and gave the famous Queen Mab speech excellently. Mr. Weldon Atherstone was an impressive and kind-hearted Friar Laurence; and Miss Maggie Lindsay a benevolent Nurse. Mr. John Sargent made the part of the obstinate Capulet stand out prominently by his sterling acting; Peter was played with abundant humour by Mr. Johnny Chippendale; Mr. David Noble was an admirable Paris; Mr. Cyril Vernon did well as the fiery Tybalt; and Miss Lulu Bowes was good as Balthasar. Miss East Robertson was a dignified Lady Capulet. The applause was frequent throughout, and the whole production was received with much enthusiasm. The scenery was very appropriate, the balcony scene and the Capulets' garden being especially pretty sets. Not the least attractive feature of the evening was the incidental music, composed by the musical director, Mr. Alexander Humphreys, which fitted the Shakespearean theme admirably. Mr. Will T. Tayler, the acting-manager, is assiduous in looking after the comfort of his numerous patrons in the front of the house.

"WHEN THERE'S LOVE AT HOME," a drama, with a prologue and four acts, by Maud Hildyard and Russell Vaun, was produced for copyright purposes at the Opera House, Northampton, on Thursday, April 25.

THE costumes for the production of Tales of Hoffmann at the Adelphi Theatre, which have excited unanimous and enthusiastic praise on account of their originality and artistic design, were supplied by the Vienna Theatrical Costume Studio.

"THE COPING STONE."

A Play, in Four Acts, by Gerald Lawrence, played for the first time at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, on Friday, April 19.

John Babbington ..... MR. STANLEY HARRISON
Lucien Bobbington .. MR. CHARLES CARTWRIGHT
Henry Babbington ..... MR. CHARLES COLLETTE

Mary ..... MISS BEATRICE GROSVENOR
Brown ..... MISS LILLIE CAVENAGH

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

All the world loves a lover, and a most acceptable one is presented in the new play by Mr. Gerald Lawrence which saw the light on the 19th inst., when the audience showed their delight and appreciation in a very marked manner. Marjory Graham is a charming young lady of nineteen, who has been brought up on unconventional lines by her eccentric guardian, Mr. Dwyer, her father having died when she was six years of age. While in her guardian's charge Marjory was never allowed to venture beyond the boundary of the house in which she lived. Her guardian, too, had original ideas of education: he talked with his ward on art, literature, and poetry, but she was not allowed to learn to read or write until such time as the accomplishments would do neither harm to herself nor to anyone else. The outcome of this rigid training is the production of an unsophisticated young lady, delightfully frank, and quite free from any of the ordinary social restrictions. The eccentric Mr. Dwyer dies, leaving his wealth to Marjory, but the last chapter of the will is missing, and without it the remainder is invalid and the property will be diverted into Chancery. Marjory is first seen in the house of John Babbington, a solicitor, who for a few days is taking charge of her pending the arrival of her other guardian, Lawrence Allington. Meanwhile Marjory is introduced to a handsome young fellow, the Hon. Jack Lancing, whom she immediately calls by his Christian name and invites him to lunch. Marjory's new guardian arrives from abroad, and he is soon visited by Mrs. Courtley, a designing lady to whom Allington in years previous has written a compromising letter in mistaken kindness. Mrs. Courtley attempts to revive the old attachment, but Allington honourably refuses, and Mrs. Courtley threatens to be revenged. Marjory has overheard the conversation and her remarkable memory enables her to retain every word. Mrs. Courtley shows the compromising letter to her husband, who at once accuses Allington of being a false friend and of trying to lure his wife from him. Marjory is able to disprove the false charges brought against Allington by Mrs. Courtley, and repeats the interview word for word as she overheard it.

In an unfortunate speculation Allington loses the £50,000 left to Marjory by her father, and the young girl is obliged to live in a riverside cottage, where she sells her sketches to obtain pocket-money. Jack now reappears on the scene, and declares his love for Marjory, which she reciprocates in full. At the back of one of Marjory's sketches Jack detects the missing chapter of the will—the coping-stone—which provides that all the wealth of the eccentric guardian is to go to Marjory when she is wedded to the man of her choice.

As Jack Lancing Mr. Gerald Lawrence was an ideal lover. His work was earnest and convincing, and loud applause marked his performance throughout. In Mr. Charles Collette and Mr. Charles Cartwright, we have two fine, experienced actors, and as twin brothers, Henry and Lucien, who make desperate love to Marjory in the hope of sharing her fortune, were extremely droll. Mr. Stanley Harrison was a brisk and definite exponent of John Babbington; Mr. Lionel Belmore did complete justice to the part of Lawrence Allington; Mr. A. B. Tapping was a highly amusing Rev. Piggott of the ordinary stage type; and Mr. D. Bryan was an excellent help as Geoffrey Courtley. Mr. Lawrence was fortunate in having the assistance of Miss Fay Davis for the part of Marjory. She displayed all the charm and ingenuousness that properly attaches to the rôle, and captivated all by her dainty grace and her effective delivery. Miss Clarissa Selwynne was a distinctive and attractive Helena Courtley; Miss Helen Vicary gave a pleasing and womanly performance as Agnes Gray; and as Mary and Brown Miss Beatrice Grosvenor and Miss Lillie Cavenagh were all that could be wished. The scenery was pretty and appropriate, and deserves a special word of praise.

"FOR HER SAKE."

A Drama, in Four Acts, by William Roberts and Ben Landeck, produced for the first time in England at the Opera House, Cheltenham, on Friday, April 19.

Prince Vladimir Walanoff .. MR. HERBERT FORD
Gregorovitch ..... MR. ARTHUR ELWYN
Nicholas Nicholoff ..... MR. ROBERT FAULKNER
General Pauloff ..... MR. CHARLES WILLIAMS
Lieut. Rostow ..... MR. DERMOT FITZGIBBON
Lord Chumley Hargreaves ..... MR. FRED BECK
Ivan ..... MR. FRED HILLIARD
Patrick ..... MR. HARRY BENSON
Rensenski ..... MR. HENRY RUSSELL
Paulanoff ..... MR. T. SHARP

Sergius ..... MR. C. STEVENS
Princess Natacha Walanoff ..... MISS NELLIE LAURAINE
Miss Phyllis Gray ..... MISS ELLA DIXON
Amelia Jane ..... MISS AMY MAITLAND
Olga ..... MISS MABEL MANNERING

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

For Her Sake, which has already achieved considerable success in America, was played by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company. St. Petersburg is the opening scene, and the plot turns on the love of the hero, Prince Vladimir Walanoff (a captain in the Russian Army), for a beautiful serf girl, Olga, who has incurred the hatred of a former serf, Gregorovitch, a Nihilist, police spy, and fugitive slave. The play lends itself to effective situations and staging. The best scenes are those of a Barrack Room in Poland and the interior of a Siberian prison, wherein are realistically depicted flogging, bullying, and other tortures typical of Russian prison life. The latter scene leads to an exciting climax of virtue triumphant over baffled villainy.

The producers are to be congratulated on an excellent first performance, and the stage-management in particular was good.

Miss Mabel Mannering as the much-oppressed Olga, and Mr. Herbert Ford, her princely lover, gave convincing studies of the two principal parts, and were heartily applauded. Miss Nellie Lauraine was quite at her ease as the treacherous Russian Dowager; and Mr. Arthur Elwyn was all that could be desired as the villainous spy and traitor, Gregorovitch. Mr. Robert Faulkner played with great power the part of Nicholas Nicholoff, an imprisoned serf, his acting being very effective in the torture chamber, where the oppressors attempt to extract his valuable secrets. The essential comic relief as supplied by Mr. Fred Beck (Lord Chumley Hargreaves) and Mr. Harry Benson (Patrick, an Irish coachman) was excellent, and both were well received; Miss Ella Dixon as the American heiress helped the comic business; and Miss Amy Maitland (maid to the heiress) had a part which fitted her like a glove, and of which she took full advantage. Minor parts were ably filled by Messrs. Williams, Gibbon, Hilliard, Russell, and others.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, April 22, the Drama, entitled
"THE SILVER KING."

That playgoers still retain an undiminished affection for "the greatest drama of the present century" was fully borne out by the enthusiasm displayed by the crowded house on Monday evening, when Messrs. Polini and Melford's company entered upon a week's engagement therein. Wilfred Denver has had many representatives since the days of Wilson Barrett, but Mr. Austin Melford scores a conspicuous success as the unfortunate hero, the audience rewarding his efforts with every praise. Mr. Edward J. George retains his old part of Daniel Jaikes—a part which he has embodied from the first provincial tour of the play. He is the faithful and attached family servant one delights to see. Mr. L. St. John Lowther makes a characteristic and cool Captain Herbert Skinner, otherwise "The Spider." As Henry Corkett Mr. George Belmore is light and amusing, and Mr. Warris Lindon as Cripps plays capitally. Mr. Arthur Wright, in make-up and acting, is extremely clever as Elijah Coombe, and Mr. Arthur H. Rooke is an efficient Geoffrey Ware. Mr. Byron Pedley is an incisive and smart Samuel Baxter, the detective. The small part of Frank Selwyn is well rendered by Mr. P. Redmayne, and the parish clerk, Mr. Parkyn, played by Mr. Henry Watts, is a humorous creation. Messrs. Bingham and Hatchway are a couple of comical villagers, Binks and Bronson. Mr. Leslie Parker is successful as Tubbs, the publican; and Mr. John Pollard's Gaffer Pottle causes laughter. Miss Daisy Scudamore is an earnest and painstaking Nellie Denver, winning much sympathy by her very sincere acting. A really clever little girl, Miss Flossie Hale Daviss, undertakes Cissie Denver most naturally and without any suggestion of artifice. Miss Viola Holland represents Olive Skinner with great ability, and Miss Louie Hale makes a pleasant Tabitha Durden. The scenery and effects are very effective.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

When the Carl Rosa Opera Company visited this theatre in October, 1903, the opening week of this handsome North London playhouse, it furnished a very strong attraction, and on each of its return visits proves to be even a greater draw. On Monday evening, when Tannhäuser was presented, the customary cordial welcome was extended by a large and appreciative audience. The performance reached the artistic standard for which this carefully-selected and efficient company is noted, the principals being all in excellent form, and the adequately-trained chorus doing most effective work. On Tuesday an entirely new production of Carmen was produced at a cost of about £1,000. The new production is on a lavish scale, the scenery and dresses being charming in their brilliant colouring. Miss Doris Woodhall makes an ideal Carmen, and her charming acting and singing received due recognition from an overflowing audience, which literally overflowed the large auditorium. Mr. Edward Davis's well-trained voice was heard to advantage in the rôle of Jose, and he was happy in having such a delightful colleague in Miss Woodhall. Mr. Charles Victor acted and sung with irresistible effect as Escamillo, playing the part with unflagging fervour throughout, and showing perfect control of his excellent voice. Miss Elizabeth Burgess was effective, both in vocalisation and acting in the part of Micaela, her clear and well-trained voice being at its best. Miss Ina Hill and Miss Dorothy Mayfield displayed their vocal and dramatic skill with excellent effect in their portrayals of Frasquita and Mercedes respectively, and are to be congratulated on their performances. Mr. Alec Richard, Mr. Arthur Thomas, and Mr. A. Felton showed considerable ability all round in the parts of Zuniga, Morales, and Lillas Pastia; whilst Messrs. Frederick Clendon and Arthur Hyde pleasingly depicted the smugglers, Dancairo and Remendado. The work of the whole company, principals and chorus alike, was especially good. The Marlborough orchestra, considerably augmented and numbering forty in all, did praiseworthy service under the bâton of Mr. Walter Van Noorden, and the artistic scenery formed a fitting background to an excellent performance. The other attractions billed for the week include Lohengrin, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Othello, Faust, and Trovatore.

Thursday evening saw the presentation before a very large audience of The Merry Wives of Windsor, the opera by Otto Nicolai, which has held a high place in the esteem of musical audiences in all parts of the Continent for many years. As it was a special revival of the work after many years, it was interesting to note the attitude of the lovers of opera in Holloway, who were not only absorbed by the amusing incidents of Shakespeare's story, which excited continual laughter, but evinced the pleasure they derived from the singing of many charming numbers by enthusiastic applause. Repetitions, however, were very wisely banned by the conductor, Mr. Walter Van Noorden, who controlled an excellent orchestra, capable of doing complete justice to the instrumental beauties of the composer's sprightly score. It seems strange that no native composer ever undertook to set to music a Shakespearean play so thoroughly English in its atmosphere, and that it was left to a foreigner; but Continental masters of music have always recognised the fitness for lyrical treatment of the plays of the Bard. Ambroise, Thomas, Rossini, Gounod, and Verdi are among those who found inspiration for their lyre in his tragedies, and the music by Mendelssohn to A Midsummer Night's Dream is immortal. The fat Knight in love was represented with a fine sense of fun by Mr. Arthur Winkworth, whose profondo tones are of beautiful quality. He was the bon vivant, the jolly toper whose fealty was divided between woman and wine to the life. At the Garter Inn Falstaff has a drinking song, which Mr. Winkworth gave with rare spirit. The jealous Ford, as represented by Mr. Charles Victor, shared the success of the famous duet in the same scene, and added to the fun in Ford's dwelling when the husband is outwitted a second time by the pretty jades who love to excite his fierce jealousy. Miss Elizabeth Burgess, in the florid music given to Mrs. Ford, displayed a charming voice, and was altogether delightful, looking exceedingly pretty in the simple dress of the period. Miss Ina Hill was a sweet Ann Page, and scored in the love duet with Master Fenton, who found a sweet-voiced exponent in Mr. Edward Davies. Mr. Davies gave proof of his fine quality as a vocalist in the serenade, "Sing for ever, sweet bird." Mr. Charles Le Sueur emphasised in amusing fashion the ridiculous traits of Master Slender; Mr. Frederick Clendon was heard to advantage as Mr. Page; Mr. John Ebbeler made an eccentric Dr. Caius; and Mr. Alec Richard was the Bardolph, Mr. Albert Felton being mine host of the Garter Inn. Mr. Ernest Ch. Gittins is the acting-manager of the company.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, April 22, the Musical Play,
"THE DAIRYMAIDS."

Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company appearing here this week in The Dairymaids is attracting crowded houses, the visit being most successful in every way. It is, indeed, a bright and merry show, with an interesting plot, comic incidents, and an endless flow of melody. The company includes many first-class artists, at the head being that great favourite, Miss Violet Lloyd. She is seen to the greatest advantage as Peggy, being most vivacious and captivating, and winning all hearts by her delightful and dainty manner. Her Sandow Girl song must be written down as quite the hit of the piece. As Joe Mivens, the sailor, Mr. Harry Dent, a first-class comedian, is a host in himself, and whether punching the ball or driving a motor, he is equally diverting. Mr. Harry Dent's efforts to amuse are aided by Mr. E. Hatham Staples, another diverting joker, who finds scope for his talents in the part of Sam Brudenell. As a girl he is very funny, and in his number, "In Dover-street," with its topical verses, he scores heavily. The two comedians join in a duet on the subject of poaching, entitled "Not a word," which has some very funny business, and is quite among the best things in the piece. Mr. Forbes Dawson as the genial Irish doctor, O'Byrne, finds a character which suits him admirably, and plays it in a breezy style, which is quite exhilarating. Miss Cissie Sephton's Eliza, the maid, is a capital piece of work, for she greatly aids the lighter scenes, and scores in her "Grumbling" ditty. Miss Edith Blanche fills the rôle of Lady Brudenell in a dignified and finished manner; Miss Beryl Vaudrey is a very sweet Helene, Lady Brudenell's niece; and Miss Rhoda Gordon, a winsome Winifred, makes a hit in her song, "Hullo, Little Stranger." Mr. George Desmond is a dashing Lieutenant Brudenell, and Mr. Alec Fraser is seen to advantage as Fred Leverton. The head of the Schoolastic Seminary, Miss Penelope Pyechase is admirably depicted by Miss Madge Avery. An excellent chorus works with inexhaustible energy, and the Sandow Girls are six very graceful ladies, who are the cynosure of all eyes. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Albert Bartlett. The comedy is beautifully mounted.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, April 22, Alfred Sutro's Play,
"THE WALLS OF JERICHO."

During this week Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux's company is presenting Alfred Sutro's highly successful tirade against the members of the smart set. Well written, vigorously acted, and capitally staged, Mr. Bourchier's Garrick success is ever welcome and interesting. Mr. A. E. Anson enacts the part of the leonine Queenslander, Jack Frobisher, who is tamed into the lamb of Mayfair. Roused from his lethargy, this rough farmer blows a stirring blast, and the jerry-built walls of smart society which had encompassed his wife totter and fall to the ground. His scathing denunciation of the manners of the smart set, with its unsexed women and foppish, philandering men, is delivered in most stirring and impressive fashion. He enacts the part on the lines of stern repression and latent strength, except for the final flare-up against the artificial methods of smart society. Miss Florence Jackson is a very charming and well-gowned Lady Alethea, and she particularly excels in the scenes of light comedy. Miss Nora Wynne has the good fortune to be cast for the pretty and taking part of Lady Lucy Derenham, an enigma in her way, and she does good work in the part. Miss Edith Cuthbert is a smart and attractive Miss Mornington; and Miss Marguerite Cellier a refined, sweet, and gentle Lady Westerby. Mr. George A. Brandram, who stage-manages the show, is a great favourite as Hankey Bannister, and causes much amusement by his quaint gaucherie as the rough miner who has "struck lucky." Mr. Cyril Baleine gives a capital character-sketch of the heartless old exquisite, the Marquis of Steventon; and Mr. A. W. Tyrer does well in the somewhat thankless part of Harry Dallas. Other members of well-dressed wickedness who haunt the purlieus of the smart set and poke fun at dowdy duty as championed by Jack Frobisher, are pleasantly and intelligently represented. Mr. Ernest F. Mehrer acts as general-manager to the company, with Mr. Jas. Leslie as advance representative.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, April 22,
the Drama, by M. D. Hermalin, entitled
"LOVE AND POVERTY."

Mr. M. D. Hermalin's play, Love and Poverty, is a simple domestic story, strongly melodramatic, and by no means lacking in exciting incidents; while the humour is of a fertile description, which appeals to a very large section of Yiddish playgoers. As acted by the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company at the Pavilion on Monday evening, it is not surprising that the play scored an immediate success. Mr. Sigmund Feinman makes excellent use of his opportunities as Bernard Rabinowitz, and gives a most intelligent and vivid portrayal of the character, his assumption of madness in the final scene being in every way admirable. Mr. Isaacowitch sustains the rôle of Hirsch Waldman with ability and discretion, his whole performance being an even rendering of a difficult and arduous part; at the same time Mr. Isaacowitch must be commended for the great care he exhibits as regards his "make-up," which in this particular instance is perfect. Mme. Goldstein successfully interprets Sarah; and Mme. Bloom is a competent Chaye. Mme. J. Kayzer amply proves the possession of uncommon mental power and qualification in her exposition of Feigele, the death scene being an artistic triumph. Mme. Josephson displays capability and versatility in her impersonations of Anuta and Dora; while Miss Lubritski is a graceful Freidele; Mr. Goldsmith is thoroughly efficient as Solomon Edelman; and Mr. S. Schilling causes amusement as Berel; Miss Weinberg being an acceptable Jane. The scenery and mounting are in the best possible taste. During the week The Brothers, Journalists and Actors, The Jew in Roumania, The Savage Woman, and David's Violin have been played.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, April 22, the Drama, entitled
"A WOMAN'S PAST."

This is a drama of a thoroughly domestic character, and has many telling situations. As David Heath Mr. Beresford Lovett, although at times somewhat indistinct, nevertheless put in some good work; Mr. Charles V. Sandford vigorously portrayed Frank Dellannoy; Mr. A. Hamilton Warden imparted plenty of energy into his delineation of Clement Harper; and Mr. G. Moreton-Williams was satisfactory as Uriah Craven. Miss Mary Mallalieu played in an intelligent and pleasing way as Dorothy Heath, Miss Phyllis Moncton did well as Kate, Miss Eva Bertram portrayed the scheming Clara Darrell with much coolness and skill, and Miss Maisie Hanbury made many friends because of her winning impersonation of the sorely-tried Bessie. The play was carefully mounted and staged.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, April 22, the Play, entitled
"MONTE CRISTO."

The American actor, Mr. Junius Booth, supported by his own company, is attracting fairly full houses this week to the Dalston Theatre, where he is appearing in the play entitled Monte Cristo. Mr. Booth takes the part of Edmond Dantes, subsequently the Count of Monte Cristo. It takes the audience but a very short time to discover that Mr. Booth is an actor of experience and resource. He has a great deal to do, and not a single opportunity for securing the best effect is missed. Mr. Augustin Bowerman also plays well as Baron Danglers, and so does Mr. C. W. Crowe as General Fernand Mondego, who first makes his appearance as a fisherman, but afterwards becomes a Count. Mr. Walter Huron is M. Morel, the King's Attorney; and Mr. Beckett Bould is M. Nortier, brother to this high official. Mr. Finn Doyle is Lieut. Albert de Morcef; Mr. Walter Martin as Abbé Faria, Prisoner 23 in the dismal dungeon prison, plays effectively, especially in the death scene; and Mr. Percy Braithwaite as a bibulous old innkeeper, who afterwards becomes a servant, creates a good deal of amusement in the first-named rôle. Miss Alice West plays remarkably well as the wife of the innkeeper, her portrayal of a thoroughly avaricious woman being very true to life. Miss M. E. Ellis appears as Sophie Danglers, the Baron's daughter. Miss B. Doyle as the heroine, Mercedes, who subsequently becomes Countess de Morcef, has a somewhat trying part, but she enacts it with considerable credit to herself, and fully interests the audience. Mr. Walter Smith, Mr. Sydney White, Mr. J. Yoxall, Mr. Sam Elton, and Mr. W. A. Hillyer are also in the cast.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, April 22, the Play, entitled
"THE ETERNAL CITY."

This absorbing and powerful play comes as an agreeable variant to the musical comedies and lighter plays of the last few weeks, and has had a gratifying reception. The chief interest is of course centred in the doings of Baron Bonelli and the Donna Roma. Mr. E. Stanton Sharp made the Italian diplomatist a very real impersonation, and his appearance and acting were alike good. Miss Eva Moss had the sympathies of all in her troubles as the young Italian adventuress, Donna Roma Volonna, who sees the error of her ways, her elocution and facial expression being excellent. The part of David Rossi, in the hands of Mr. Oswald Cray, was full of interest and romance; Mr. C. McCann as Bruno Rocco was excellent, his acting in the trial scene receiving especial recognition from the audience. The spy, Minghelli, was effectively played by Mr. Cecil Warde; and Mr. L. Hunter was good in the small part of Felice, Bonelli's creature. Mr. E. L. Hocking made a venerable and convincing Pope Pius XI., playing with dignity and reserved force. The Commendatore Angelelli of Mr. Wernham Ryott was all that could be desired; and Mr. Arthur Gordon gave a manly representation of the old Garibaldian soldier. A word of praise must be given to Mr. John Haines's Father Pifferi, the Capuchin confessor. Miss Kate Sydney was the Princess Bellini in the first act; and the many officers and officials in the prison trial scene were represented by Messrs. Court, Percy, K. Ackroyd, and T. Rilings. The British and American Ambassadors were appropriately rendered by Messrs. A. Jefferson and G. Roberts respectively; and the minor parts were also satisfactorily filled. The play entails special scenery for each scene, the short waits being agreeably relieved by Mascagni's specially-written music, and the several songs and choruses were artistically rendered by Miss Phyllis Castleton and a special choir. The same company, which is quite up to Mr. J. Bannister Howard's usual high standard, gave two performances of The Four Just Men.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, April 22, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled
"THE GIRL WHO LOST HER CHARACTER."

Islington has this week an opportunity of renewing acquaintance with Mr. Walter Melville's drama of the above title, and a good house on Monday indicated the interest that is manifested locally in the production. Mr. Douglas Bruce, who is touring the play, has secured a good company, and much praise must be accorded them for their collective efforts. Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle as the Rev. Robert Everton acted with sincerity and power, particularly in the closing scenes, and is to be congratulated. Mr. Stanley S. Gordon as Jack England is manly, and acts with force and effect; Mr. George H. Asquin as Dick Punch is a capital comedian, and provides abundant opportunities for laughter during the evening. Mr. Frank Adair as Captain Caversham succeeds in making that altogether objectionable character about as obnoxious to the audience as is possible, his portrayal being very complete and convincing. Mr. James George Mitchell as Sutton is effective in a part of small opportunity. Miss Ethel Bracewell as Molly Vernon is responsible for a very successful character-study of an exacting nature, her depiction of the girl through all the stages of her unfortunate career being cleverly conceived; the scene in which she wrecks her betrayer's rooms was excellently acted, and altogether her efforts call for cordial praise. Miss Emmie Barton as Rose Seymour was attractive and natural, making a good impression. Miss Lydia Mannington as Marion Franklyn acted with power, and made much of the rôle. Miss Daisy Meynard was alert and bright in the comedy rôle, and supported Mr. Asquin capitally. Many smaller parts all received adequate treatment from the remaining members of the company, and the dressing and mounting were on Mr. Melville's usual lavish scale. Mr. Edward Reeve's incidental music is appropriate, and of assistance to the production. Mr. Frederick Carr is the manager for Mr. Douglas Bruce.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, April 22, the play entitled
"THE SOLDIER'S WEDDING."

Mr. Walter Melville's company is appearing this week in this favourite drama, which contains more of the domestic and less of the sensational element than is usually to be found in Mr. Melville's plays. The piece has not been seen before at the Crown, and is obtaining a hearty reception from good audiences. Mr. Wingold Lawrence makes a manly and dashing soldier hero as Jack Brown; Miss Marie Maculay gives a clever reading of the part of the foreign adventuress, Julie de Beauvais, and looks very handsome in some pretty gowns; a charming heroine is found in Miss Jessie Winter, who soon becomes a popular favourite as Nancy Lee; Mr. A. Gambier Melford is a comical Tommy Spratt; and Teddy Munroe is played to the life by little Albert. Mr. Frederick Biron gives a good study of the wronged husband, David Munroe; and Miss Georgie de Lara does well as the erring, but repentant, wife. Mr. Raymond Wood plays cleverly as the polished scoundrel, Charles Courtenay; Mr. Beresford Whitcomb makes a dignified and kind-hearted Colonel Graham; Miss Ettie Carlisle is amusing as the frivolous and irresponsible Lizzie Walker; and Mr. Fred Yarnold affords an effective sketch of the old rustic, Nathaniel Lee. The scenery is very picturesque, especially the sets representing the sale of the farmhouse and the interior at the old farm.

LYRIC OPERA HOUSE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, April 22, the Drama, by Edward Thane,
"EVERY INCH A MAN."

This drama first saw the light in the early weeks of 1906, when, in a somewhat shortened form, it was played on the two-performances-a-night system at the King's, Hoxton. There is nothing particularly new about the plot, but the dialogue is smart and the comedy scenes very well written. There is a wealthy old architect of old-fashioned, stubborn ideas, who tries to make his son follow in his footsteps, while the son longs to join the Army, and through this desire is paid £50 and told to go. Then there is the nephew who forges a cheque for £125 and substitutes it for the £50 one, with the result that the son is sent to prison. He escapes and seeks his father's house. His father refuses him help and he leaves, only to return a few minutes later to find the old man stabbed, but, fortunately, not dead. This is the nephew's work. Vera Maxwell, whom the son has previously saved from a bicycle accident, has been robbed of some money by the nephew, and the father overheard him bragging of his cleverness and power from behind the curtain. He orders him out of the house, and is accordingly stabbed. The father recovers, and the nephew departs. In the last act the nephew has lured Vera out on to the open sea in a small boat, to which he sets fire; but the son arrives at the right moment and saves his sweetheart. The play closes on the nephew being run to earth at Deadman's Rocks. The part of Alderman Barnet in the hands of Mr. H. H. Barington is all that could be desired. He looks every inch the successful provincial professional man. Mr. C. F. Collings makes a manly Dick Barnet; and as the nephew, Daniel Barnet, Mr. Herbert Hewetson is the personification of a cool, calculating villain. Mr. Morley as Ben Brown, an old soldier, is well made up and acts capably, and Miss Lena Pierpoint is a very attractive Vera Maxwell, the staunch sweetheart of Dick. As we have said, the fun is good. First and foremost comes Teddy Edwards, excellently played by Mr. Victor Rowlands. Teddy is a schoolboy who eventually gets articled to Alderman Barnet, and he is always playing practical jokes on anyone. His mother is seeking for a second father for Teddy and her suitors are the particular butts for his jokes. Miss Winnie White as his mother, Mrs. Edwards, proves herself a clever and humorous actress. Mr. Edward Thane, the author, plays the part of Marmaduke Pool Martin, described on the programme as "a silly old fop," and is another large contributor to the fun in the play. Another excellent study is that of Miss Florence Lovell as Martha, the deaf housekeeper, and the way in which she misinterprets everyone's remarks causes much laughter. Other parts were well filled by Mr. James Edwards, Mr. Ashton Winslow, and Mr. Arthur Malone, and the play is well staged.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, April 22, the Drama entitled
"THE GIRL WHO TOOK THE WRONG TURNING."

Notwithstanding the fact that there has been a long sequence of dramas at the Shakespeare Theatre, their popularity with local playgoers has in no wise diminished, and this week crowded houses have welcomed Mr. Walter Melville's company in the successful play, The Girl Who Took The Wrong Turning. An excellent company has been engaged, and their interpretation of the piece was in every way so successful that the interest of the audience was fully sustained throughout the performance, and at the final fall of the curtain the applause was very pronounced. The fine presence of Mr. Roy Redgrave was well suited to the rôle of the British Tar, Willie Mason, and he acted throughout with earnestness and in the most finished manner. Mr. Sidney Sarl was very successful as Bill Slater, his delineation of the rôle being in every respect admirable; Mr. Frank Robertson played in manly and straightforward style as Jack Fenton; and Mr. Kenneth Black did all that was necessary in the part of Richard Fenton. James Harcourt, the villain of the piece, was carefully played by Mr. Walter Thornton; and Mr. Willie Reid kept the house in roars of laughter by his clever presentation of Johnny Walker. In the title-rôle, Miss Frances Ruttledge is provided with a strong part to which she does full justice, and the intensity of her acting held the audience throughout. Miss Hilda Baynton made an attractive appearance as Lucy Coventry, and acquitted herself with success; Miss Nannie Meade as Vesta le Clere was seen to advantage in a trying rôle: and Miss Marie Kildare was admirably placed as Poppy Slater. Mr. Bert E. Hammond is business-manager for Mr. Walter Melville, and Mr. E. de Hague Body acting-manager for Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, April 22, the Drama, in Prologue and Four Acts, by J. A. Campbell, entitled
"THE SIN OF HER CHILDHOOD."

A play of intense heart interest in found in The Sin of Her Childhood, and the production is meeting with well-deserved success at the Standard this week. The piece is lavishly mounted, and the staging leaves nothing to be desired. Mr. Ernest Norris enacts the part of the Rev. Allen Grey with sincerity and feeling. He supplies an intelligent and well-defined reading throughout, and is very successful. Mr. J. C. Aubrey plays with callous indifference and heartless cruelty as Stephen Haysel, and must be congratulated on his excellent performance. Mr. Jack Denton suitably portrays Captain John Thornton; and Mr. John Brooks is well to the front as Thomas Haysel. A capable impersonation of the Irishman Barney O'Reilly is given by Mr. C. Harvey White. He is suitably and very ably assisted in the lighter scenes by Miss Lena Delphine as Eliza Muggins, and the combined efforts of the two are productive of much mirth during the evening. Mr. Wagner is well placed as James. Miss Grace Lester supplies a powerful embodiment of Maria Haysel, and wins well-deserved applause. She presents a capital picture of a woman fallen through drink, and her interpretation all through reflects much credit upon her. Little Miss Elsie Jezzard proves of considerable value as Eric Dugdale; whilst Miss Elsie Forster, another accomplished child-actress, displays ability as Hannah Spry, and sings a song in good style, afterwards contributing a neatly-executed dance. The rôle of Mary Haysel is played with pathos and feeling by Miss Maude Stewart Drewery. Her acting shows the result of careful study, and her whole interpretation is the essence of sincerity and power. The orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. A. Sommerlad, dispenses some good music during the evening.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, April 22, the Drama entitled
"A WOMAN OF PLEASURE."

Melodrama again fills the bill at the Fulham Theatre, where Mr. Morice Prendergast's company is appearing in A Woman of Pleasure. Mr. Ernest F. Wallace sustains the leading part as the Earl of Carlingforth with vigour and success. Mr. Arthur Gilroy is a powerful villain as Major Burrows, and finds an effective counterpoise in the Rev. Luke Goddard, played with much quiet sincerity by Mr. Noel H. Lewis. Mr. F. G. Kay enacts the part of Jim Dench, subsequently appearing as a Boer commandant; Mr. Edmund Baker is very entertaining as a weedy American youth; and Mr. A. E. Maskell raises many a laugh as Joe Ploughman, albeit his Devonshire dialect would not escape criticism in the south-west of England. Mr. Fred Laws is a satisfactory representative of Michael Issitt; and Mr. Sid Vincent ably depicts another unpleasant type, Zoratoff, of the Boer Foreign Legion. The child's part of Lord Arthur Selwood is taken by Silvia Eaton; and Mrs. Charles Eaton is humorous as an American widow, Mrs. Bumpwell, of Chicago. Miss Dorothy Gilroy is charming and piquant as Dolly Dimple; and Miss Grace Chesterfield sustains with skill and power the important part of Alice Dane, at one time village schoolmistress and subsequently Countess of Carlingforth. There are some striking and sensational incidents in the play well staged, notably the escape in the balloon and its collapse in the sea.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, April 22, the Play, entitled
"CAPTAIN SWIFT."

Captain Swift, as played so successfully by Mr. Beerbohm Tree at the Haymarket Theatre, has been secured by Mr. R. W. Allum to fill the programme here this week. The brilliant comedy-drama by C. Haddon Chambers is successfully presented by Mr. M. Russell Rosse's company, and on Monday night the play and the acting were much appreciated. The title-rôle is taken by Mr. James Gelderd, who gives a careful reading of the adventurer, Wilding, his excellent elocution and intense earnestness both tend to make the character interesting and convincing. Miss E. Nolan O'Connor as Mrs. Seabrook supplies a pathetic and moving picture of a mother's love, her portraiture being replete with charm and expression. Mr. Charles Boult gives a delightfully breezy rendering of the Colonial, Gardiner, and Mr. Albert Bernard as Mr. Seabrook plays the elderly husband to the life. As the impetuous Harry Seabrook Mr. George Mudie, jun., is throughout full of life and spirits. Mr. Norman Clark as Marshall gives a clever study of the butler who, when he learns his power, quickly changes from the humble domestic to a scheming villain. Mr. Charles H. Kenny furnishes a smart detective as Ryan from Queensland. Miss Rachel de Travis as Lady Staunton gives an expressive rendering. Miss L. Kingston is very dainty and charming as Mabel Seabrook. Miss Ida Phillips as Stella Darbyshire is responsible for a graceful and well-marked performance, and secures the sympathies of all by her sincerity and conviction. The piece is preceded by a dramatic episode in one act, entitled The Setting of the Sun, in which Messrs. Norman Clark and George Mudie, jun., together with the Misses Ida Phillips and L. Kingston, are seen to advantage. Both plays are carefully staged. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. George Carter, very ably supplies the incidental music and enlivens the intervals.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, April 22,
the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, by Frank Pixley, Music by Gustave Luders, entitled
"THE PRINCE OF PILSEN."

Few of the more recently produced musical plays have received a heartier reception than that accorded to The Prince of Pilsen by audiences at the Royal County Theatre, where it is being produced this week by Baron H. Harris in conjunction with George Musgrove. Not only is the company one of the most numerous and most capable that has ever appeared in a musical play at Kingston, but the music abounds in catchy airs, and the costumes and scenic effects are first class. Mr. Harry Kilburn appears as the Cincinnati brewer, Hans Wagner, who masquerades as the Prince of Pilsen, and succeeds in investing the part with a drollery that is irresistibly mirth-provoking. Miss Sophie Harris plays Mrs. Maddison Crocker with great success, which is enhanced by a fine presence and the possession of a remarkably fine voice. Mr. Frank Crimp makes a very good Prince of Pilsen, and his companions from Heidelberg are ably impersonated by Messrs. C. Frances, A. Chester, R. Webster, F. Dawson, A. Pennington, V. Llewellyn, R. Valiance, and F. Marshall. The part of the invertebrate Earl of Shrimpton is in the able hands of Mr. Bernard Russell; Mr. Roy Sydney acquits himself well as Lieutenant Wagner; Miss Alice Nixon makes a charming Nellie Wagner; and others in the company deserving of particular notice are Mr. Ernest Gifford as François and Miss Connie Leon as the French maid, the dancing of the latter being particularly well received. The chorus, which worked together admirably, and an augmented orchestra are under the direction of Mr. Albert Vernon.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, April 22, the Chinese Comic Opera, entitled
"SEE-SEE."

See-See is a brilliant comic opera, and as sent on the road by Mr. George Edwardes is one of the gayest and brightest productions of the day. The story is ingenious, and it is delightfully told to the accompaniment of pretty, tuneful music, and picturesque costumes and scenery. Mr. Robert Arthur and his business-manager, the genial Mr. Harry Brandreth, are to be congratulated on the enterprise they have shown in securing this first-class attraction, which has filled the Kennington Theatre to overflowing point each night, and sent the audiences away in the highest of humours. The company engaged is strong and talented, the vocalisation of the chorus is admirable, and the principals put their best work into their tasks. In the title-rôle Miss Lily Elsie looks sweet, acts with charming naïvete, and sings admirably. Her chief song, "What do I want?" never fails to win an encore, and she is easily first favourite. Mr. Leonard Mackay is a dashing, manly hero as Yen, and his splendid baritone voice is heard to great advantage in "I am in love with you" and "I am the man of the moment," the rattling chorus of the latter number winning an enthusiastic recall. The honours on the comedy side fall in the main to Mr. Frank Danby, who gives an intensely humorous interpretation of the part of Hang-Kee. Mr. Danby simply bubbles over with mirth, and keeps the house in roars, and his topical songs, especially "The happy Chinee," go with tremendous swing. Mr. W. H. Rawlins makes a very good Cheoo, scoring heavily in his duet with Hang-Kee, "Some people never take a hint." Miss Amy Augarde acts the part of Mai-Yai with great spirit, and her superb vocalisation finds ample scope in several fine numbers and duets. Another brilliant singer is Miss Octavia Barry (Miao-Yoo), whose striking rendering of "Your promises are like pie-crust" earned a double encore on Monday. Miss Barry also posseses great histrionic powers. Miss Alice Hatton makes an artless and attractive Lee; and as Humming Bird, Miss Daisy Wallace is very effective. Mr. E. Freshwater (Hoang-Wang) and Miss Adeline Lester (Mrs. Hoang-Wang) support their respective rôles with considerable credit; while Miss Sybil Grey and Miss Lilian Hewitson do well as two of Cheoo's wives. The smaller characters are ably taken, but an especial word of praise is due to Miss Topsy Sinden, whose dancing furnishes one of the best features of the opera.

PRINCE'S, POPLAR.

On Monday, April 22, the Play entitled
"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

For the first time at this theatre, Mr. Charles Harrington's capable and hard-working company is appearing in Uncle Tom's Cabin, which, owing to its specialities and the inclusion of a full real negro chorus, forms a combination which is certain to provide a good entertainment. Mr. J. Carr makes an ideal Uncle Tom, fully realising Mrs. Beecher Stowe's conception of the loyal slave; while the brutal and revengeful Legree was vigorously personified by Mr. J. Henry Rogers; Mr. James Jackson being well in the picture as the callous Dan Haley. The brave and manly freedom-seeking George Harris is capitally rendered by Mr. Leslie Beaufort; and an excellent representative of his wife Eliza is seen in Miss Hero Hathaway, who gives evidence of much dramatic power. The impossible lawyer Marks is made the most of by Mr. Walter Langford; and the audience keenly relish the easy and successful treatment of Phineas Fletcher by Mr. J. H. Renney; while Mr. Charles Harrington is seen to good effect as Mr. St. Clair. Some good comedy is presented by Miss Sylvia Stella as Topsy; and Miss Jenny Malcolm is a prim Aunt Ophelia; while Miss Hettie Johnson makes the Creole Cassy extremely picturesque. Little Eva is pathetically performed by Miss Holly Haselwood; and Aunt Chloe is well represented by Mrs. Carr. Creditable representatives of Emmeline, Mrs. St. Clair, and Dina are found in Miss Annie Watson, Miss May Turner, and Miss Mabel Bowman; and good support is given by Mr. John Gibson as Mr. Wilson, Mr. W. Eversleigh as Loker, Mr. Eddie Roberts as Adolphe, Mr. Jack Black as Sambo, Mr. Tom Miles as Quimbo, and Mr. Jack Kavala as Walter. An entertainment is interpolated in the fourth act, in which enjoyable turns are presented by the Tennesseeans, Mr. W. H. Mott, Mr. Walter Langford (banjoist), Rowe and Holden, Ben Rowe (bone soloist), Rich and Moore, and Miss Sylvia Stella; numerous songs and choruses are also given in well-trained style by the negro choir. The scenery and mounting are all that could be desired.

Maidie Scott tops the bill at the Royal Court, Warrington, this week, and has scored well with a capital budget of songs. Barney Vox is an amusing ventriloquist; the Brothers Adderley are rare comedians and dancers; Fay and Fay are experts in the art of self-defence; and Emmie Ames is a dainty comedienne. Harry Bancroft is a smart actor-vocalist; and Newco and Sullo are grotesque dancers. The Bioscope pictures are up to date.

THE SHAKESPEARE ANNIVERSARY.

The anniversary of the birthday of William Shakespeare has, as usual, been celebrated in various places and in various ways, but there have been a thorough unity of spirit and complete earnestness of intention in doing honour to the memory of one of the greatest of Englishmen. At Stratford-on-Avon the festivities have been carried out with a heartiness which is in itself sufficient evidence that the inhabitants of the poet's birthplace are determined that no charge of any lack of enthusiasm on the occasion of this annual celebration shall be brought against them. The ancient town's time-worn, half-timbered gables have never been so bedecked with flowers and flags, not even in the tercentenary year. Several novel features were introduced into the proceedings, and all were in harmony with the central idea—that of doing homage to the man whose genius has cast a glamour over the scene of his birth and death.

On Tuesday the Mayor (Mr. J. A. Priest) and the members of the Shakespeare Club mustered outside the Birthplace, and they were joined by over a hundred visitors, four abreast. Each carried some floral tribute—an elaborate wreath or a simple posy, a bouquet of orchids or a single daffodil. All kinds of spring flowers were carried, but the favourite buttonhole was the English rose, which symbolised the association of the Shakespeare celebration with St. George's Day, the national poet with the national saint.

As the procession marched towards the church it was augmented by many who had hitherto lined the route. There was much to beguile the pilgrims by the way. They passed under many a Shakespearean motto and saw banners depicting favourite characters from the plays, In Henley-street were also shields bearing the arms of Stratford worthies, and the Market Hall was appropriately emblazoned with the arms of the craft guilds. Festoons and garlands predominated in the High-street. The Seven Ages of Man were depicted in cartoons outside the Town Hall. The history of New Place, where Shakespeare died, was illustrated by heraldic devices and embroidered portraits.

At the entrance to Shakespeare's School the master and boys joined the procession and took their privileged position at the head. Mason Croft, the residence of Miss Marie Corelli, was conspicuous for its profuse display of yellow flowers in window-boxes, while St. George's ensign fluttered in the breeze. A novel feature in the Old Town was a long line of Venetian masts, from which hung the flags of all countries where Shakespeare is read in the native tongue.

As the procession neared the Parish Church the sky, which had threatened rain, began to clear, and from that time the weather was delightful. The grand old fane soon filled, and some pilgrims were kept outside when the doors were closed. The service opened with a welcome innovation. Miss Marie Brema sang with dramatic effect "Through the grave and gate of death" (Bach), then gave an expressive rendering of Schubert's solemn Litany, and finally made the church echo with the glad strains of an Elizabethan Easter song. The Rev. G. Arbuthnot (vicar) recited the ancient bidding prayer, in which he included the names of St. George and William Shakespeare, and then he delivered the customary address.

An augmented choir sang the anthem, "There's none, none that can resist thy voice" (Ivor Atkins). The organist played a minuet by Handel and Tschaikowsky's "Marche Militaire" while the pilgrims were taking their floral tributes to the shrine. The Vicar and curates stood within the altar rails for an hour receiving the flowers and arranging them around the "brass" which marks the poet's grave. The fragrant carpet almost covered the chancel floor, and the stream of votaries seemed unending. Among them were Lord Ronald Gower and the Rev. de Courcy Laffan. Miss Genevieve Ward accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Benson, and brought with her a sheaf of arum lilies. Miss Marie Corelli brought her offering after the official ceremony had concluded. Wreaths were also sent by the Society of St. George, the Shakespeare Society, Weimar, Professor Koler and teachers and students of the Royal Institute in Sardinia, and the Stratford-on-Avon Shakespeare Club.

The performances in the Memorial Theatre, Stratford, opened on Monday evening, when Coriolanus was played by Mr. Benson and company. Mr. Benson himself, as the Roman General, gave a very scholarly embodiment of the character, and was particularly impressive in the later stages of the play. Miss Genevieve Ward's Volumnia was a performance that fully upheld her reputation as a fine actress. In the great pleading scene in the last act she played with remarkable power and effect. Sharing with her the honours of the evening was Mr. H. O. Nicholson, who, in the difficult rôle of Menenius, was excellent. He had thoroughly gripped the character in all its various phases. Virgilia was capitally depicted by Miss Helen Haye. Aufidius was carefully portrayed by Mr. George Buchanan.

On Tuesday night, before a distinguished audience, Mr. Benson gave a representation of Love's Labour's Lost. Mr. Benson himself took the part of the satirical Biron and Mrs. Benson that of Rosaline. Mr. Weir appeared as Costard, Mr. Hannam Clarke as Holofernes, Mr. Percy Owen as Sir Nathaniel, and Mr. Warburton as Don Adriano.

After the fall of the curtain the Mayor of Stratford-on-Avon appeared on the stage and extended a warm welcome to Mr. Benson and his company.

Mr. Benson, in reply, said it was with infinite pleasure they again found themselves in Shakespeare's town.

The curtain finally fell amid great enthusiasm.

The annual meeting of the subscribers to the Birmingham Shakespeare Memorial Library was held on Tuesday under the chairmanship of Professor Churton Collins. There were also present Alderman Martineau, Mr. Maurice Pollack, Mr. G. J. Johnson, and the Chief Librarian, Mr. Capel Shaw, who is the hon. secretary and treasurer to the subscribers. Mr. Shaw reported that 226 volumes had been added during the year at a cost of £36, and that the total number of books now in the library was 12,829. These were valued at £2,970. The most important gift to the library since the last meeting was the Garrick Shakespeare, consisting of twelve volumes, with an introduction by G. Brandes. This was obtained through the Mullin's bequest, and "The Bible in Shakespeare," by W. Burgess, was added in the same way. Altogether 2,317 volumes had been issued to 1,192 readers. Many of the books were in foreign languages, including Dutch, Finnish, French, German, Italian, Polish, Russian, Spanish, and Swedish.

There was now a balance in hand of £87, and Mr. Shaw suggested that possibly the subscribers would think it a good opportunity to acquire, at a cost of £75, a 1637 edition of "The Merchant of Venice." After some discussion, the subscribers present decided that the balance might be expended more advantageously at some future date. The Chairman mentioned that there had recently been founded at the University a society to encourage the serious study of Shakespeare and also Shakespearean research.

The annual meeting of the Memorial Governors attracted a larger attendance than usual. Mr. A. D. Flower presided, supported by Lord Ronald Gower, Lord Leigh, the Rev. R. S. de Courcy Laffan, Mr. Howard Pearson (Birmingham), Mr. Arthur Flower, and the resident governors. The report was of a satisfactory nature, and thirty-four out of a total of thirty-seven plays usually accepted as Shakespeare's had been acted in twenty-eight years; some of the more popular plays had been produced many times, and the less-appreciated plays, seldom seen elsewhere, had been presented at the Memorial Theatre on at least one occasion. Mr. Brassington reported that they had secured an important picture, which was formerly in Sir Henry Irving's collection, representing the trial scene in Henry VIII., with Mrs. Siddons as Queen Katherine, and the portraits of all the members of the Kemble family in their various parts.

Alderman Pearce presided at the annual meeting of members of the Shakespeare Club on Tuesday, when the hon. secretary (Mr. S. F. Ellis) reported that the membership had largely increased. A very interesting presentation was made by Mr. Gathorne Ashfield, of the banner of the Royal Shakespearean Club, established at the Falcon Tavern on April 23, 1824. The Mayor (Councillor J. A. Priest) was elected as president for the ensuing year, with Mr. G. M. Bird as vice-president, the latter observing that he was looking forward to the time when they would ask permission of the King to put the prefix "Royal" before the name of the club. A similar favour was granted to a former Shakespeare Club by George IV.

In the afternoon the Mayor held a reception, and the Morris dancers performed in various parts of the town.

The Birmingham Central Literary Association held its nineteenth annual dinner on Monday night to commemorate Shakespeare's Day. Mr. Richard Steenbock presided. Mr. J. C. Frith proposed "The Immortal Memory of William Shakespeare," and said that those who desired to convert Shakespeare into Bacon must realise that what cannot be cured must be endured. The toast was drunk in silence.

Mr. Fred Giles proposed the toast of "Art and Letters."

Professor Masterman, whose name was coupled with the toast, claimed that Shakespeare stood for the great democratic idea that true government depends upon realising every man's point of view and that great English quality freedom of speech. No greater guarantee existed for peace than a wider diffusion throughout the world of that appreciation of the great masters of letters and arts in which we were fundamentally one.

The annual Shakespeare dinner of the Birmingham Dramatic and Literary Club was held at the Grand Hotel on Tuesday. The guest of the evening was Mr. Arthur Bingham Walkley. The gathering numbered about 130 ladies and gentlemen. Mr. Frank Roscoe presided, and those present included the Rev. Jos. Wood, Mr. A. B. Walkley, Messrs. Alfred Hayes, Max Mossell, Grenoble Bantock, W. W. Jordan, G. W. Hubbard, E. L. Tyndall, Charles E. Innes (hon. sec.), E. Newman, and the Rev. J. Reader Smith.

In proposing "The Immortal Memory of Shakespeare," Mr. Roscoe said they were met to honour Shakespeare as a master of literary craft, and as the supreme interpreter of the genius of his race.

Mr. R. W. Reynolds proposed "Literature, the Drama, and Music."

Mr. Walkley responded for the drama and Mr. Ernest Newman for music.

A dinner in celebration of the birthday anniversary was held on Tuesday by the members of the Birmingham and Midland Institute Shakespeare Society. The gathering, which took place at Fletcher's Café, was presided over by Mr. F. Cowper, who proposed "The Immortal Memory." During the evening a number of Shakespearean scenes were acted.

Mr. Edward Compton, who is this week appearing in The Rivals at the Royal Court Theatre, Liverpool, came before the curtain on Tuesday evening and said:—

"I don't think that you and I, as theatre-lovers, and especially as lovers of all that makes for the best in theatrical representation, should let this evening pass without alluding, however briefly, to the fact that to-day is Shakespeare's birthday. I don't believe in mixing the quality of my entertainment, any more than I do in mixing my liquors, being a strict teetotaler, but I do wish once a year when this day comes round that my company was a Shakespearean as well as an Old English comedy one. That, however, does not come within the range of practical theatrical politics; but, at least, I may lay the flattering unction to my soul that in the past I have produced numbers of our immortal bard's plays, in London, in Stratford-on-Avon, and all over the country, and I will yield to no man in my admiration, my appreciation, my adoration of the greatest genius that the world ever knew or ever will know. Shakespeare died young. As a matter of fact, he was the same age at his death as I am to-day, and I am a particularly young man, and bearing that fact in mind I don't think I can better conclude these few informal remarks, intended to be an humble tribute to his glorious memory, than by quoting a few lines from a lecture delivered in America by Jerrold Massey:—'He went from us with his energies unsubdued, his sympathies undimmed; there was no returning flow of an ebbing manhood, but the great ocean of his life, that had gathered its wealth from a myriad springs, rose to the perfect height—touched the complete circle, and in its spacious fulness was divinely still.'"

On Thursday evening the programme at the Memorial Theatre consisted of The School for Scandal, preceded by The Peacemaker. M. E. Bryant, the author of the last-mentioned piece, is an ex-Bensonian and the wife of an ex-Bensonian, and her stage name is Ella Tarrant. Her husband is Alfred Brydone, and out of the two surnames her pen name is fashioned. Miss Tarrant played very cleverly the part of a blundering maid-servant. To sustain the other four parts old Bensonians had travelled far. Mr. Otho Stuart, of the Adelphi and the Royalty, who played in the first Bensonian Commemoration at Stratford twenty-one years ago, and has not appeared on the stage since he was the Horatio to Mr. Tree's Hamlet in 1897, scored all through as the doctor. Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Mr. Walter Hampden, and his wife, Miss Mabel Moore, who in a few days leave for America, also gave complete satisfaction. The house was crowded in every part, and there was great enthusiasm at the end, the curtain having to be raised times without number. Then came The School for Scandal, with an excellent cast, the admirable performance of Sheridan's comedy evoking renewed enthusiasm.

THE URBAN CLUB.

The forty-eighth annual festival in celebration of Shakespeare's birthday by the members of the Urban Club took place at Covent Garden Hotel, Southampton-street, on Tuesday evening. Mr. Bram Stoker presided, and there were also present Messrs. G. B. Burgin, Thomas Catling, W. E. Church (hon. secretary), T. Thurgood Catling (hon. treasurer), G. J. Dawson, E. J. Odell, C. J. Davies (secretary Royal General Theatrical Fund), C. J. Coltson (secretary Actors' Benevolent Fund), Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary Actors' Association), Geo. Spencer Edwards, Walter Grace, E. C. Fache, Arthur Millward, Jas Perfect, J. Hancox, H. Haes, Essex, Jennings, Pratt, and others.

The Chairman opened the toast-list by proposing "The King, Queen, and other members of the Royal Family," concluding by reciting some verses appropriate to the toast, which was received with musical honours, the solo portion of "God Save the King" being sung by Mr. Walter Grace.

The Chairman, in proposing the toast of the evening, "The Memory of William Shakespeare," referred in the first place to the forty-six dinners which the club had held on this occasion, this being the [illegible] to commemorate the had the privilege of being present. In the three centuries that have passed since Shakespeare's time he had grown so much in public favour, and his memory had become so great a part of the national possessions, that it became almost necessary now and then to go back to fact. Though he did not feel qualified to deal with any part of the poet's work, those present, no doubt, shared with him a desire to know something of the identity of the man, Shakespeare, though there was very little new to be said on the matter. Physical appearance was a very important part of the method by which we formed our personal judgment of a man; and with regard to Shakespeare they had two things to refer to. One was the effigy in the church at Stratford-on-Avon by Gerald Johnson, a contemporary of the poet, and the other was the engraving of the poet by Martin Droeshout, prefixed to the folio edition of 1623. Ben Jonson bore testimony to the likeness of the effigy, though he somewhat qualified it by another passage. However, there was the fact that Droeshout's engraving was distinctly like the effigy in the church, and looking at the two carefully, one was able, he thought, to form some idea of the physical identity of the man. Judging by the effigy, the poet was a full-blooded man; and, further, that he was a strong, thoughtful, lovable man. These qualities were illustrated in his life and work. The full-bloodedness was manifested in his youth. The deer-stealing episode, no doubt, had some foundation in fact, and there was also the episode of the too hasty marriage with Anne Hathaway. It had often occurred to him, what was Shakespeare's life between the years of 1586 and 1592? In the year 1588 occurred that memorable historical event, the defeat of the Spanish Armada; and it hardly seemed likely that this full-blooded, passionate young man would have held back at a time when the greater part of the nation was in arms. It would be interesting to search any old records of the London-trained bands of 1586-88 that might be in existence to ascertain whether, in the muster-rolls appeared the name of William Shakespeare. A study of the forehead and lines in the face showed that he was a careful man of business in later years, and it was on record that he sued in the courts for a small sum which was due to him. That he was methodical and exact was shown by his will, which was apparently drawn up by himself. He (the Chairman) thought his own handwriting was very bad, but judging by his signature, that of Shakespeare was far worse. The speaker next made reference to the poet's practice of taking the stories of other authors for the foundation of his plays, and pointed out that he never wasted any material. Within the inner room of the Mermaid Tavern Shakespeare must have met a good many seamen and adventurers from all parts of the world—this winning, genial, silent, thoughtful man, always receptive, always sympathetic, must have been the recipient of a good many confidences. With regard to Shakespeare's lovableness, he did not think there could be any doubt. He was beyond question beloved by his friend, Ben Jonson, who wrote touching lines to his memory. The Chairman proceeded to quote passages from Henry Irving, Gabriel Rossetti, Gerald Massey, and Tennyson in praise of Shakespeare and his work, and finally called upon the company to drink to the great poet's memory.

Mr. W. E. Church then gave, in admirable style, an eulogy of Shakespeare by Milton (1630), Dr. Johnson (1747), and Matthew Arnold (1864).

The toast of "The Chairman" was submitted by Mr. Thomas Catling, who congratulated Mr. Stoker on having so clearly and vividly brought before the gathering Shakespeare as a man.

The Chairman briefly responded; and Mr. W. E. Church then proposed "The Visitors," coupling with it the names of Mr. G. B. Burgin, the well-known novelist and journalist, and Mr. Jenner.

Mr. Burgin responded in a humorous speech, and Mr. Jenner also returned thanks.

In the course of the evening Mr. E. J. Odell gave, as a recital, Launce and his dog Crab from The Two Gentlemen of Verona. Mr. E. Charles Fache gave "The Sway of Love" (Love's Labours Lost). Songs were also excellently rendered by Mr. Walter Grace and Mr. Arthur Millward.

At the Mansion House on Monday evening the Lord Mayor received a number of guests at a conversazione to meet the London Shakespeare League. In the Long Parlour a selection of manuscripts and books from the Guildhall Library were exhibited during the evening by Mr. E. M. Borrajo, the librarian, to illustrate Shakespeare's London. The exhibits included the signature of William Shakespeare to the deed of purchase of a house in Blackfriars, dated March 10, 1612-13, and also Ralph Agas's map of London in the time of Queen Elizabeth.

The feast spread by Mr. Beerbohm Tree in honour of the National Poet has been worthily attended, and a crowded audience assembled in His Majesty's Theatre on Monday for the opening play, that of The Tempest. A demonstrative welcome awaited Mr. Tree on his appearance in his remarkable embodiment of Caliban, and throughout the performance the cheers were constantly renewed. The Prospero of Mr. Lyn Harding was as impressive a performance as could be imagined, and Miss Viola Tree was a winsome Ariel, and acted with agreeable artlessness. Miss Alice Crawford and Mr. Basil Gill gave pleasing distinction to the parts of Miranda and Ferdinand, and the rest of the cast did their work with their accustomed effectiveness. In response to persistent demands, the principals appeared again and again before the curtain, and at length Mr. Tree was induced to make a speech. He said:—"Ladies and gentlemen, we have had a very splendid reception during the last week, but this home-coming welcome is none the less touching to us all. We are delighted to be back with you once more, although I am pleased to say we have met with nothing but kindness in Germany, and we hope to return there next year. During our absence it is not improbable that I may present to you some of the great German plays, and I am sure that when the stranger arrives within our gates he will be received with the same acclamation that we ourselves have been accorded on the other side. It was, indeed, I may say, a long-cherished ambition with me to play in the land of my father, and that ambition has been splendidly fulfilled. We are all, believe me, very happy at the result. We return to you to-night to begin our third Shakespearean festival, and I am glad to find that there is every prospect of our having a splendid week. Your enthusiasm can but spur us to still greater efforts in the future. After this week we shall produce The Red Lamp again, together with the little one-act play, The Vandyck. After that, as it is my pleasure to announce to you this evening, we shall revive what I conceive to be a great modern play—I refer to A Woman of No Importance. I thank you once more on behalf of all for you gracious welcome home. Be assured we shall always try to deserve your kindness."

Tuesday was devoted to A Winter's Tale, the performance of which was notable by the inclusion in the cast of Mrs. Russ Whytal, who followed Miss Ellen Terry in the part of Hermione. Mrs. Whytal has the queenly grace necessary for the role, to which she gave dignity and sweetness combined, while her mellifluous voice gave added grace to the charming lines. Mr. Lyn Harding's talents were fully employed as Leontes, the passion of the part being brought out with striking effectiveness. Miss Viola Tree's prettiness as Perdita was again an agreeable feature of the performance, and Mr. Basil Gill gave to Florizel a commendable air of youth and buoyancy. Miss Alice Crawford added greatly to her laurels as Paulina, and Mr. C. W. Somerset caused laughter unlimited by the quaintness of his Autolycus.

Two performances marked Wednesday's contribution to the Festival, Hamlet, which formed one of Mr. Tree's series in Berlin, being given in the morning, when the audience was large and appreciative. Mr. Tree exercised his customary influence in the part of the melancholy Prince; Mrs. Russ-Whytal as Gertrude won cordial appreciation; and Miss Viola Tree acted Ophelia with a care and intelligence that cannot be over-praised. The Horatio of Mr. Basil Gill and the Polonius of Mr. Fisher White were perfect performances; and Mr. Lyn Harding as the Ghost and Mr. Julian L'Estrange as Laertes contributed valuably to the artistic whole. The desire to see Mr. Tree in one of his most happily inspired impersonations was evidenced on Wednesday evening, when an audience occupying every available space in the magnificent theatre welcomed the raising of the curtain on Twelfth Night. An overwhelming reception was again lavished upon Mr. Tree as Malvolio picked his fantastic way down the steps of Olivia's garden. So many artistic touches of whimsicality are crowded into the impersonation of the vainglorious steward, from the play of the weazened features to the fantastic flicking of the wand, that the attention is kept constantly on the alert for fresh specimens of eccentricity, and Mr. Tree's performance was followed throughout with delighted interest. A palpable success was again made by Miss Viola Tree in the part of her namesake. Miss Tree's youth and comeliness make her an ideal Viola, and the naturalness of her acting and the intelligence displayed in the study of one of Shakespeare's most engaging heroines give added promise for the future of a career already well begun. Miss Alice Crawford's Countess Olivia was an embodiment of beauty, graciousness, and power, and the delicacy and refinement of the difficult passages in which the Countess expresses her love for Sebastian had a particular charm. The grandeur of Mr. Basil Gill's method was admirably displayed in his acting of Orsino, whose chivalry and devotion were depicted in admirably impressive fashion. Mr. Courtice Pounds, who received a warm welcome, made his first appearance in the Festival Week as Feste, the clown, and carried the audience entirely with him. They hung upon each merry jest and encored every song, all of which were rendered in Mr. Pounds' best and most tuneful style. The mellow richness of Mr. Fred Lewis's drollery had abundant opportunities for expansion in the boisterous mirth of Sir Toby Belch; Mr. Charles Quartermaine reproduced with added effect the airs and fopperies of Sir Andrew Ague-cheek, and maintained laughter at high pressure; and the merry trio was completed by Miss Cicely Richards, who revelled in the roguishness of Maria, and acted with a spontaneous gaiety that was infectious. Mr. Hugh C. Buckler's Sebastian, besides having the merit of a close resemblance to Miss Tree, had qualities of manly grace and earnestness that well became the part, and his lines gained in effect by his sympathetic delivery. Mr. J. Fisher White was a rugged and picturesque Antonio, and employed his elocutionary powers with effect; and Mr. Robert Atkins bore himself with infinite credit both in speech and action as the Sea Captain. Mr. J. Cooke Beresford was a bright and alert Fabian; Mr. Edward Ouston's demeanour as the Priest was properly grave and ascetic; and the superb cast was completed by Mr. Cyril H. Sworder and Mr. Alfred Goddard as Valentine and Curio, and by Mr. Harry C. Hewitt and Mr. Clive Currie as First and Second Officer. Calls were frequent at every curtain, and at the close Mr. Tree had twice to lead his daughter forward before the cheers would subside.

Julius Cæsar furnished the Festival attraction for both Thursday and Friday evenings, when Mr. Tree, as Antony, commanded on each occasion the admiration of a huge house. Mr. Lyn Harding and Mr. Basil Gill were the Cassius and Brutus respectively, and Miss Constance Collier and Miss Alice Crawford appeared in the rôles of Portia and Calphurnia. Mr. Henry Neville repeated his fine embodiment of the title-rôle. At to-day's matinée Twelfth Night will be repeated, and the Festival will be brought to a conclusion this evening by the reproduction of The Merry Wives of Windsor.

THE GERMAN THEATRE.

Hans Huckebein, the farce by Oskar Blumenthal and Gustav Kadelburg, with which Herr Hans Andresen regaled his supporters on Tuesday, is familiar to English playgoers, as it was the source from which Sir (then Mr.) F. C. Burnand took his piece The Lady of Ostend, produced at Terry's Theatre in the summer of 1899. The incidents arising out of the public presentment of a cinematographic picture, in which a young husband figures flirtatiously with a lady not his wife, are very comic, and were treated in a suitably mirthful spirit by the members of the company now appearing at the Great Queen-street Theatre. The title-rôle was ably sustained by Herr Paul Breitfeld, who invested Martin, the young husband, with an amusing air of perturbation, and maintained the spirit of the rôle throughout. Herr Andresen, who has supplied in his present short season abundant proof of his versatility, gave added testimony of his capacity in the part of a prize-fighter, the husband of the lady with whom Martin's flirtation was conducted. Herr Andresen put on successfully all the characteristics of a pugilistic pet, and his ferocity was most comically assumed. Much of the laughter that was aroused on Tuesday was caused by Herr Hans Stock, whose impersonation of the young Russian, who is also implicated in the incriminating series of pictures, had quaintness which was irresistible. Fräulein Elsa Gädemann gave a charming rendering of the injured wife, whose emotions she depicted realistically. Fräulein Hadwig Mahr was a prepossessing Martha Wendel, the object of the young Russian's affections, and acted gracefully; and a quaint contribution to the performance was made by Fräulein Elsa Steele, a comedienne of droll methods, who played the part of a housemaid.

"THE LANCASHIRE SAILOR."

A Play, in One Act, by Brandon Thomas,
Produced at the Theatre Royal, York, on April 20.

Alice ..... Miss Ruth Nightingale
Martha ..... Miss Mollie Robertson
Alfred ..... Mr. M. Wetherell
Mr. Erasmus Ellerby ..... Mr. Edward Compton
Ralph Ormerod ..... Mr. Walter Beaumont

This pretty little playlet deals with the fortunes of Alfred, who in infancy was left in the care of Ralph Ormerod by an unknown female. Ralph, an honest Lancashire farmer, brings the lad up as his son, and has him taught a trade. However, he leaves home at the age of about eighteen for the sea as a ship's carpenter, after a quarrel with Ormerod's daughter Alice, to whom he expresses the wish that she may never look upon his face again. During the three years Alfred is absent things have gone badly with those he left behind. Ormerod has had misfortunes through the grasping demands of an avaricious landlord, and is on the verge of bankruptcy. Alice, who has severely felt Alfred's continued absence, has become blind through overwork in nursing the sick people of the village during an epidemic, and things look pretty black when the play opens and the characters are introduced. All, however, comes right in the end. Alfred is found to be the heir to a baronetcy and great wealth, and of course marries Alice. The acting was excellent. Miss Ruth Nightingale was particularly successful as Alice; she looked and played charmingly. A strong character-part, that of Ralph Ormerod, was taken by Mr. Walter Beaumont, who gave a most convincing performance; Miss Mollie Robertson was quaintly amusing as Martha; Mr. Edward Compton was an eminently satisfactory lawyer; and as Alfred Mr. M. Wetherell gave a thoroughly realistic rendition of the bluff Lancashire sailor.

PINERO ON STEVENSON.

Mr. A. W. Pinero, who is president of the Wednesbury Institute, gave an address at the Town Hall there on the 18th inst. on the subject of "Robert Louis Stevenson." He observed that some who might even be called ardent Stevensonians were perhaps scarcely aware that Stevenson was a dramatist at all, or that he ever essayed the dramatic forte. It was a fact, however, that he wrote, or, at any rate, actively collaborated in, three plays, which were actually published, though none made any great mark on or off the stage, and one enjoyed only a single performance. The question why should Stevenson the dramatist take such a back seat in comparison with Stevenson the novelist, the essayist, the poet, was all the more worth asking because his case was by no means an exceptional one. There was, in fact, hardly a poet or novelist of the whole nineteenth century who did not stand in exactly the same position. They had one and all attempted to write for the stage, and it was scarcely too much to say they had, one and all, failed, not only to achieve theatrical success, but even in any appreciable degree to enrich our dramatic literature. Some people might perhaps claim Shelley and Browning as exceptions. He would not attempt to argue the point, but would content himself with asking what position Shelley would have held among the poets if his reputation had depended on his dramatic essays. Wordsworth and others produced dramas of a more or less abortive kind, and though some of Byron's plays were forced into a kind of success, how low a place they held among his poetic works to-day!

Dickens and Thackeray both loved the theatre, and wrote for it without the smallest success. Lord Tennyson's plays were so admirably mounted and rendered by Sir Henry Irving that they enjoyed considerable prosperity in the theatre, but no critic ever dreamt of assigning to any of Tennyson's dramas a place co-equal with his non-dramatic poems. Mr. Swinburne had written many plays, but had any one of them the smallest chance of being remembered along with his poems and ballads? There was only one exception to the rule that during the nineteenth century no poet or novelist made any success upon the stage, and that was the obvious one of Bulwer Lytton. The non-success of Stevenson was due to his failure to realise that the art of the drama was not stationary, but always progressive. By this he did not mean that it was always improving, but that its conditions were always changing, and that every dramatist whose ambition it was to produce live plays was bound to study with respect, and not with contempt, the conditions which held good for his own age and generation. Stevenson, like Tennyson, Browning, Shelley, and others, made the mistake of imitating outward models instead of discovering for themselves and, if necessary, ennobling the style of the drama. One great rule, perhaps the only universal rule, of the drama was that one could not pour new wine into old skins, and when a dramatist imitated the Chinese and made a character tell the whole story of his life in a soliloquy failure only could ensue. Dramatic talent Stevenson undoubtedly had, and in proof of this Mr. Pinero delighted his audience by reciting with much effect selections from the plays to which he alluded, Deacon Brodie, Admiral Guinea, and Beau Austin.

Unfortunately, the plays abounded with other passages which were wearisome and ineffective. Stevenson's failure enforced the lesson that a dramatist must adhere to his own particular form of technique, and must not jumble up two styles. In the case of Stevenson and others like him, their technique was neither ancient nor modern, their language neither poetry nor prose.

"THE RISIN' O' THE MOON."

A Four-Act Melodrama, by H. Gerald Ransley,
Produced for the first time on any stage in the College Hall, Liverpool, Thursday, April 18.

Shaun O'Farrell ..... Mr. Gerald Ransley
Dennis O'Hara ..... Mr. Herbert Lawrence
Mr. O'Sullivan, J.P. ..... Mr. Chas. Robinson
Matt Plunket ..... Mr. Chas. W. Diamond
Father Keogh ..... Mr. Clarke
Jock McIntyre ..... Mr. J. Sidney Gorrie
Corporal Williams ..... Mr. Wm. Burrows
Dan O'Halloran ..... Mr. Leon D'oyle
Phelim O'Rourke ..... Mr. Frank Pearson
Molly O'Halloran ..... Miss Ethel Caine
Bridget O'Halloran ..... Miss Annie Fell
Lady Cynthia Hamilton .. Miss Winnie Bromley

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This new work, which treats of the uprising in Ireland at the close of the eighteenth century, travels along somewhat familiar lines, although the manner in which old material is handled reflects every credit upon the writer, who exhibits a deal of praiseworthy ingenuity in formulating a plot which maintains the interest of an audience. Briefly, the story sets forth that on the death of Squire O'Hara his estates are seized by Mr. O'Sullivan, J.P., his agent, who claims to have a heavy mortgage on them. The deceased man's son, Dennis, on returning from France, learns with surprise that he is without a home, and, having allied himself with certain Irish rebels who are engaged in raising forces to aid the impending French invasion of Ireland, finds himself, through the machinations of O'Sullivan, a marked man, for whom the English soldiers are hunting. He is captured, and sentenced to death; but, through the efforts of his lady love, Miss Hamilton, whose father commands the King's army, is pardoned. Matt Plunkett, being mortally wounded in a quarrel with O'Sullivan, confesses that the latter poisoned the Squire and forged the mortgage deeds. O'Sullivan is consequently arrested, and Dennis gains the hand of Lady Hamilton and obtains his estates.

There is a large amount of real Irish humour permeating the drama. Mr. Gerald Ransley makes an admirable Shaun O'Farrell, a happy-go-lucky but kind-hearted Irishman, whose yarns concerning his adventures in France, along with his young master O'Hara, are exceedingly funny. Their style reminds one very much of Bill Adams's account of the Battle of Waterloo. Mr. Lawrence infused a deal of earnestness and feeling into the rôle of Dennis; the despicable O'Sullivan was ably played by Mr. Robinson; thanks are due to Mr. Diamond for his Plunket, a character of the Harvey Duff type; a naturally portrayed priest came from Mr. Clarke; Mr. Gorrie caused merriment as the Scotch steward, as did also Mr. D'oyle as Dan; Miss Bromley in the rôle of the faithful and good-hearted Lady Hamilton showed a deal of care and discretion; Miss Ethel Caine pleased as Molly; and Miss Fell afforded satisfaction as the grumbling Bridget. A large audience showed that they derived a deal of pleasure from the play.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

At the Guildhall School of Music on Wednesday afternoon Mr. Charles J. C. Boddington gave an organ recital in the concert-room. The programme, which was varied and interesting, commenced with "Fantasia and Fugue" by Best. Mr. Boddington also played a charming "Intermezzo" by Tours and an Offertoire in D Flat by Salome, both of which were rendered with great delicacy by the organist. Bach's fine Prelude and Fugue in C Minor, No. 3, gave the professor ample opportunity of showing his command of the instrument. Other items in the recital were Handel's characteristic Organ Concerto, No. 5, a very pleasing Andante of Dubris, and Mailly's "Marche Solennelle." Although the audience was not large, it was very appreciative, and warmly greeted the professor at the close of his excellent recital.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles and Lady Wyndham called together the leading representatives of the drama at the Hyde Park Hotel on Thursday in order to honour the Colonial Premiers in the name of the English stage. The Ministers present were Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Deakin, Sir Joseph Ward, Dr. Jameson, and Mr. Moor. Sir Charles Wyndham had on his immediate right Lady Laurier, and on his left Mrs. Deakin, while Lady Wyndham had on her right Sir Wilfrid Laurier, with Mr. Deakin on her left. Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, Mr. Hubert Henry Davis, Mr. George Grossmith, Mr. Weedon Grossmith, Mr. Willard, Mr. Laurence Irving, Mr. S. Brough, and Mr. Brandon Thomas, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Miss Edna May, Miss Granville, Miss Mary Moore, Miss Marion Terry, Mrs. Lionel Monckton, Miss Violet Tree, and Miss Constance Collier were among the distinguished assembly.

Mr. George Edwardes has also shown hospitality towards our Colonial visitors, and on Saturday invited several of the Premiers of Britain Overseas to a special performance of The Lady Dandies at Daly's. All the boxes were placed at the disposal of the visitors, the Royal box being occupied by Lady Laurier; and a specially printed programme in gold lettering, emblazoned with the arms of the Colonies, was presented to each member of the audience. Several references to the Colonies were made by the comedians, and at the end of the entertainment Mr. Robert Evett sang "Motherland."

Mr. Tree's reception by Berlin audiences is well described by Mr. J. T. Grein in an article in the Sunday Times:—"It was not only that they clapped their hands and stamped their feet, they had to shout at the top of their voices until their wish was gratified and the actor addressed them as a man. And when he had spoken, and when there had been a summons to meet the heir-presumptive of the German empire and his spouse the storm continued unabated. 'Speech!' they thundered, alternated with a chaos of names until the young son of Kaiser William himself urged Mr. Tree to pour the oil of grateful eloquence on the waters troubled by enthusiasm. And then we had the most remarkable spectacle of all. The English theatrical manager harangued the German crowd from the precincts of the Royal box with the future Emperor and Empress as listeners by his side. But the public were insatiable. Watch in hand, more than twenty minutes passed before, at length, the house emptied, and even then many stormed the stage to shake hands and pour forth congratulations."

Mr. George Alexander's work on the L.C.C. has not obliged him to relinquish his social duties, a fact which was pleasantly proved by his taking the chair at the ladies' dinner of the Vaudeville A.D.C., of which he is president, at the Hotel Metropole on Sunday. In proposing the toast of "The Club," Mr. Alexander said amateurs of to-day compared very favourably with those of fifteen or twenty years ago. He recalled that the Vaudeville Club had ventured to produce one of Mr. J. L. Toole's plays without permission. There was talk of legal proceedings, but finally the punishment which Mr. Toole imposed was to invite the whole of the club members to a performance at his theatre. Looking through their list of former members, Mr. Alexander found the names of some who had afterwards become famous players. Among these were Miss Fanny Brough, Mr. J. Raymond, and Miss Patty Bell, and some others who were, or had been, members of his own company.

Mr. Alexander told his hearers that he had himself been in his time an amateur actor. One of the first pieces in which he ever appeared was Whitebait at Greenwich, in which he took the part of Sally, a servant. As the ladies were afterwards being taken in to supper a practical joker asked a young officer who was present, but had not seen the performance, to take "Sally" in with the rest. During the supper the soldier whispered sweet nothings into his ear; but when told of the joke that had been played on him he took it in good part. Incidentally he (Mr. Alexander) told the officer that he intended to be a doctor. "Well," said the latter, "if you do become a doctor and should happen to join the Army, don't forget the name of Wood." Years afterwards, at a dinner-party in London, he realised that his partner at the supper-party had become Field-Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood.

The toast of "The President" was proposed by Mr. C. H. E. Rea, who incidentally referred to the practice of arriving late at the theatre. In reply, Mr. Alexander said he had especially suffered from late comers at his theatre, and recalled the première of Paolo and Francesca, when he had intended to shut the doors of the St. James's at 8.15. His efforts, however, were in vain, for half an hour before the rising of the curtain a dense fog descended. Playgoers, he continued, had many definite grievances, amongst them being the much-debated one of the matinée hat. He had tried all in his power to get ladies to take off their hats. But a playgoer had complained to him, saying, "What is the use of asking ladies to take off their hats in your theatre. I sat behind Mrs. Alexander the other day, and did not see a thing," from which they might conclude that a manager might manage his theatre, but he could not be expected to manage his wife.

Mr. E. S. Willard gave a special matinée in the week of his farewell engagement in Cleveland, Ohio, for the benefit of the Babies' Dispensary and Hospital of that city, the net receipts exceeding £250. In recognition of his generosity Mr. Willard was elected an honorary member of the Babies' Hospital Association, and was presented with a beautiful set of jewelled cuff-buttons. A gold plate on the case containing the links was inscribed, "To Mr. E. S. Willard, in grateful appreciation of his gift to the Babies' Dispensary and Hospital of Cleveland. A Pair of Spectacles, April 5, 1907."

Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh will impersonate Shylock and Portia respectively on Monday afternoon and evening next, at the Shakespeare Memorial Performances of The Merchant of Venice at Stratford-on-Avon. No performance will therefore be given at the Garrick Theatre on that evening.

The Shakespeare Festival next week will also affect the Lyric Theatre, which will be closed on Tuesday evening to enable Mr. Lewis Waller to fulfil his promise to play Othello at Stratford-on-Avon. Miss Evelyn Millard, Miss Wynne Matthison, Mr. Lyall Swete (as Iago), Mr. A. E. George, Mr. Owen Roughwood, and the members of Mr. F. R. Benson's company will complete the powerful cast.

"Brewster's Millions" will be brought to the Hicks Theatre on Wednesday next. In the chief part in the successful American piece Mr. Gerald Du Maurier will be supported by Messrs. J. L. Mackay, Louis Goodrich, Percival E. Stevens, George Lestocq, Courtenay Foote, Vernon Davidson, Arthur Minton, Edward Sass, Clarence Blakiston, Arthur B. Murray, George Bellamy, W. Farran, and Webb Darleigh, and Misses Mollie Lowell, Evelyn D'Alroy, Hazel Thompson, Kitty Melrose, Jane May, and Beatrice Agnew.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree's welcome back to His Majesty's on Monday, when he opened his Shakespeare Festival Week, was worthy of the eminent actor, and vividly reflected the satisfaction of his admirers at his recent achievements in Berlin. Mr. Tree's return is to be celebrated by a dinner given by the Playgoers' Club at the Hotel Cecil, on Sunday, May 12, when he will be the honoured guest. Meanwhile the representations of The Red Lamp and The Vandyck will be resumed at His Majesty's on Monday next, and in a few weeks time Oscar Wilde's play, A Woman of No Importance, will be revived.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal's only visit to the Metropolis this season will be paid next week, during which the eminent players appear at the Coronet in Herbert Swears' three-act farcical comedy, A Tight Corner, which thus makes its first appearance in London. In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, the cast of A Tight Corner consists of Mr. Ernest Hendrie, Mr. Metcalf Wood, Mr. F. Charles Pool, Mr. Arrowsmith, Miss Dora Fellowes, and Miss Marie Lohr. The Elder Miss Blossom, at the Wednesday matinée, and The Ironmaster on Saturday evening complete the week's programme.

A public performance by the students of the Academy of Dramatic Art will be given on Monday afternoon, May 6, at the St. James's Theatre, lent for the occasion by Mr. George Alexander. The programme will comprise the casket scene from The Merchant of Venice, arranged from the text for this purpose by Sir Squire Bancroft; the first act of As You Like It; a scene from Macbeth; the first act of Mrs. Craigie's comedy, The Ambassador; and, for the first time in this country, L'Ideal, a "pantomime" by Lieut.-Col. Newnham Davis, with music by André Wormser. A fencing display and dances will also be given. The performers in the various items have received tuition from Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, Mr. Pinero, Mr. Geo. Alexander, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, Mr. Lyall Swete, Mr. Fisher White, Mme. Cavallazzi, Mr. d'Egville, and M. Bertrand.

A serious driving accident occurred on the 19th inst. at Wetheral, a picturesque village near Carlisle, by which Mr. Godfrey Tearle, Miss Molly Malone (Mrs. Godfrey Tearle), and Miss Ethel Matthews, all members of A Soldier of Fortune company, were injured. Mr. and Mrs. Tearle, who were severely cut about their heads and faces and sustained several bad bruises, were taken to their apartments and are now progressing favourably, but Miss Matthews sustained a bad injury to her back, and had to be removed to the Carlisle Infirmary. The leading rôles in A Soldier of Fortune, which were filled by Mr. and Mrs. Tearle, were ably taken up at very short notice by Mr. Baliol Holloway and Miss Violet Barnett.

Mr. Bannister Howard has secured Messrs. Leonard Pagden and G. P. Coppin's principal company in the powerful play Jim the Penman for next week's attraction at the Crystal Palace Theatre. Mr. Leonard Pagden will impersonate the character of Jim Ralston, the forger, and Miss Alice Farleigh will appear as Mrs. Ralston. Other members of the cast include Messrs. Orlando Barnett, Will Lockhart, E. A. Douglas, Arthur Vezin, Max Montesole, Cecil Yapp, Gerald Lenlon, and Thomas Dixon, and Miss Muriel Pope and Miss Rosalind Ross. There will be matinées on Wednesday and Saturday, and Friday morning will be devoted to the flying visit of Madame Jane Hading with Frou Frou.

Miss Kitty Loftus was the defendant in an action in the King's Bench Division on Tuesday and Wednesday. The plaintiff was Mr. Charles Sturt, a Bow barge-owner, who sought to recover £300, which he alleged he lent to Miss Loftus in 1904 to assist in the production at Terry's Theatre of A Maid from School. The defence was that the money was put into the piece as a speculation on the understanding that it was only to be repaid if the venture was a success. The jury found in favour of defendant, for whom judgment was given, with costs.

The Playhouse Cricket Club has been established, with Mr. Cyril Maude as president. The latest combination of wielders of the willow are open for matches from Sunday, May 5, onwards, and communications in reference to the same should be made to Mr. H. Chiswell Billing, the secretary, at the Playhouse.

Mr. Martin Harvey, who is playing to immense audiences this week at Bristol, opened a Café Chantant in aid of the Bristol Guild of Handicraft on Tuesday last. Addressing a very large assembly, Mr. Harvey said that Art is the expression of a man's joy in his work, and added that the mere practice of any beautifying art brought its own reward. While recommending all who could afford to spend at all to buy the work of the craftsmen in preference to machine-made imitations, he begged the craftsmen to remember that utility should always go hand-in-hand with decoration—a fact sometimes lost sight of nowadays, though never lacking in the handiwork of the past. Mr. Harvey's tour concludes at Portsmouth on May 11, and his reappearance in London is being eagerly awaited.

A trio of capital hockey matches were played at South Shore, Blackpool, last week. On Wednesday the South Shore Club entertained Mr. Norman V. Norman's company, and a very good and fast game resulted. In the first half S. Blane scored twice for the home club and W. H. Ashley (the able manager for the company) scored for Norman's. After the interval Blane added two more for the club, and Mr. Norman scored for the company. The scores were: South Shore 4, Norman V. Norman's company 2.

Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company (North) met South Shore on Thursday, the 18th inst. The game was much more even than the score indicated. The home team, however, were smarter in front of goal, and scoring three in the first half and four in the second ran out winners by 7 to nil. On Friday the Norman V. Norman company played F. R. Benson's company, and a really capital game was contested. Norman's had slightly the better of the exchanges, but the Benson defence worked hard, and a very fast game ended in a goalless draw. Mr. Norman's company, it may be added, have, during the winter, played twenty-nine hockey matches against various clubs, and have scored 99 goals to 116 of their opponents.

Mr. Nugent Monck has secured a strong cast for his play, The Hour, which is to be produced by the English Drama Society at the Bijou Theatre, Bayswater, on May 6. Miss Lucy Wilson will be seen in a principal part, and Mr. Frederick Morland, Mr. Arthur Goodsall, Mr. Gordon Bailey, Mr. Edward Lander, Miss Clare Greet, and Miss Annie Hill will also appear. During Mr. Monck's season Miss Esme Beringer, who will make her first appearance since her return from America, will create the part of Cleopatra in Mr. Arthur Symon's play, Cleopatra in Judea.

The numerous admirers of Mr. Alfred Lester will be sorry to learn that he is not in the cast of the new piece at the Gaiety. He has been secured by Mr. Alfred Butt for a further period at the Palace in his new skit, A Restaurant Episode. At the conclusion of his engagement there Mr. Lester will take a short holiday.

A mass meeting of members of the Actors' Union is to be held in Liverpool next week, when Mr. Hamilton Deane will preside, and Mr. Cecil Raleigh will probably be among the speakers. A meeting will also be held at the Cricket Players' Hotel, Church-gate, Leicester, every Tuesday at 12.30.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Actors' Union was held at 3, Bedford-street, Strand, W.C., on Tuesday afternoon, under the chairmanship of Mr. William Farren, jun., speakers including Mr. Cecil Raleigh, Mr. Charles Sugden, Miss Gladys Ffolliott, Mr. Arthur Bawtree, and Mr. Robson Paige. Progress was reported, and the report of the Glasgow meeting read. A list of provincial agencies where meetings are held every Tuesday at noon, and where members may be enrolled and stamps may be bought, appears in another column.

Mr. Seymour Hicks and his representatives are busily engaged forming the company that will sail shortly for South America under the joint management of Mr. Hicks and the South American Theatrical Syndicate, which is represented here by Mr. Edouard José, its managing-director. The company, which will comprise many well known artists, a very strong chorus, and all the latest London successes in musical comedy, will visit the principal cities in the Argentine and Uruguay Republics, and are expected eagerly by the British community in Buenos Aires, where Mr. José is the lessee of the Odeon Theatre, the house of musical comedy. Mr. José has already contracted with several big attractions to follow the Seymour Hicks company in South America.

At the Pier Pavilion, Clacton-on-Sea, on the 13th inst., Mr. Harold Montague produced for the first time a nondescript vaudeville entertainment entitled A Vagabond's Life, written by W. Mann Mayne and Harold Montague, and composed by H. Montague. Of the many songs sung mention may be made of a pretty little duet, "Two Little Robins," a capital baritone song, "A Vagabond's Life," a good topical ditty, "The Soothsayer," and an amusing little trifle, "Three Little Monkeys."

Mr. T. P. O'Connor's widespread circle of friends in the profession will sympathise with him on the bereavement he has sustained by the loss of his mother, who passed away peacefully at her home in Athlone, co. West Meath, on Sunday last, at the ripe old age of eighty-four. Mrs. O'Connor, who had been seriously ill for little more than a week, was much beloved in Athlone for her gentle and charitable disposition. Her last hours were soothed by the presence of her two daughters and her son, Mr. O'Connor having been in Athlone since Wednesday of last week.

Mr. George Norman-Burt, who is brother to Mr. Norman V. Norman, and has gone to reside in Gloucestershire, gave a highly successful performance of The Arabian Nights, in which he played the part of Arthur Hummingtop, on Tuesday, April 16, at the Subscription Rooms, Stonehouse. He was assisted by several well-known amateurs and professionals, including Mr. Herbert Duberly, who was for three years with Sir Charles Wyndham, and he had a representative audience of all the surrounding leading families. Mr. Norman-Burt has been engaged to play the Governor in His Excellency the Governor at the Opera House, Cheltenham, on May 7 and 8, in aid of the local hospital.

The production of Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, announced at Terry's Theatre for Thursday, has been postponed till this evening. All tickets issued for the first-named date will be available for to-night.

Mr. and Mrs. Greville are returning to England in May at the conclusion of a most successful engagement of over twelve months with Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler in South Africa. The talented couple hope soon to be at work again in the old country.

A new musical comedy, entitled Lady Selina of "K," the book and lyrics by E. C. Mabel Leeds and the music by Claude Blakesley Yearsley, will be produced at a special matinée at the County Theatre, Kingston, on Saturday next. The scene is laid in Wales on the coast of Carmarthen Bay, and picturesque local colour is being provided.

A pleasant surprise awaited Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's Still Alarm company at the fall of the curtain at the Prince's Theatre, Preston, on the 15th inst., when Mr. Allan Wilkie, who was appearing at the Theatre Royal, in a neat speech, presented, on behalf of Mr. Will True and Mr. George Dornan, a handsome Dutch pipe to Mr. Fred Osmond and a pair of leather driving gloves to Mr. Matthew Glenville as a token of the esteem in which they are held by men who have had the pleasure of serving under their banner for many years. A supper was afterwards given at the Victoria Hotel, Mr. Allan Wilkie ably presiding.

Mr. J. Wellesley Lynn, the well-known entertainer, has been specially engaged by Mr. Arthur Hare for his season at the Opera House, Wakefield, to play Dick in A Pair of Spectacles, Phil in A Fool's Paradise, and Tom in Priscilla and the President. Mr. Lynn gives selections from his entertainment of "Mirth, Music, and Mystery," as a baritone with a charming voice.

Mr. Edward Cooper Willis accomplished a very smart thing last Saturday in The Gipsy Girl at the Waldorf. He went on in the last act for Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald and played Freddie at a moment's notice, giving a very creditable performance.

Mr. Gerrard Grant Allen is about to inaugurate in London an enterprise on the lines of the Kammer Theater in Berlin, and the much older institution of the Théâtre Bodinère in Paris. Following the example of both these successful institutions, Mr. Allen will not take an existing theatre for this purpose, but will occupy a small hall so as to preserve the intimate and informal character of the enterprise. It is proposed that the run of each play shall be limited to three weeks of seven performances each, for which purpose a stock company will be engaged. In his direction of this undertaking Mr. Allen has been fortunate in enlisting the active interest of Miss Gertrude Kingston, who will co-operate with him in the management of the stage.

"Prunella"; or, Love in a Dutch Garden, which will be revived at the Court for a series of Tuesday and Friday matinées, beginning on May 7, will have Mr. W. Graham Browne and Miss Dorothy Minto in the chief parts. Mr. Louis Casson will again be the Statue of Love, and the other characters will be taken by Messrs. James Hearn, Trevor Lowe, Allan Wade, Edmund Gwenn, Kenelm Foss, Jules Shaw, F. Cremlin, Edmund Gurney, and Norman Page, and Mr. Charles Maltby, Misses Dorothy Marsdin, Margaret Busse, Mary Hamilton, Hazel Thompson, Amy Lambo, Agnes Hill, Clare Greet, and Agnes Thomas.

Mr. Henry Austen has been invited to play his original part of Foulcher in Terence, the comedy by Mrs. B. M. Croker, upon its reproduction at the Winter Gardens, Folkestone, on May 23.—Miss Lucy Sibley has been engaged by Mr. H. V. Neilson to play Mrs. Stockmann in Ibsen's An Enemy of the People at the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday last, when there were present:—Mr. A. E. Drinkwater in the chair, Mr. Henry W. Mote (solicitor), Misses Clare Greet, Georgina Hamilton, and Kate Phillips, and Messrs. J. Cooke Beresford, Acton Bond, W. Graham Browne, C. F. Collings, Burton Cooke, H. Athol Forde, Frederick Morland, Kenyon Musgrave, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). Miss Cicely Hamilton was nominated for election to the Association, and eight former members were reinstated.

The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members, and were requested to take such steps as they deemed advisable to recover damages for breach of contract by a management. Mr. William Devereux was elected to fill a vacancy on the Council. The secretary reported that the next bi-monthly meeting of the members would be held on Thursday, the 9th prox., in the Saloon at King-street. A question of alleged insanitation at a provincial theatre was under discussion, and the secretary received instructions. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was given, and certain rules for the governance of committees, formulated by them and submitted to the Council, were approved and adopted. The suggestion book was considered and entries made. Questions to be submitted to members in connection with the forthcoming extraordinary general meetings of the 6th and 27th prox. were considered and referred again to the gentlemen who had framed them, and the arguments for and against.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday last, when there were present:—Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), J. Cooke Beresford, H. Athol Forde, A. E. Drinkwater, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). The committee were engaged for some time framing a further rule for the governance of committees.

An additional and local attraction is provided at the Coronet Theatre this week in the shape of a ten minutes' orchestral selection from the first act of The Fairy Princess, a musical extravangaza (the words and lyrics by Wynne Penwyn, the treasurer of the theatre, and the music by W. Meyer, the resident musical director) during the interval between the first and second acts.

Messrs. Lionel Glenister and J. W. Wood Ingram have secured the rights of the play entitled The Blackmailers, by Mrs. T. P. O'Connor and R. Henderson Bland, which will be produced in London late in June. The services of several well-known artists have been retained for the production.

Mr. Robert Pateman now plays Scum Goodman in Clancarty at the Lyric Theatre, Mr. Herbert Jarman being compelled to relinquish the part so as to be able to devote his time to managing the forthcoming pageant at St. Albans. In the hands of so able and experienced a player as Mr. Pateman the part is absolutely safe.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Homewood (Miss Joan Blair) arrived at Dover on Tuesday last after a comfortable voyage in the Vaderland of the Red Star Line. They are now settled at their flat in town after an absence from England of thirteen months.

At the invitation of the directors of the Grand Theatre, Nottingham, about fifty members of the local Crimea and Indian Mutiny veterans witnessed Napoleon the Great on the 18th inst., and were supplied with refreshments and tobacco between the acts. In one of the intervals all went on the stage, their uniforms and decorations making a picturesque array. Mr. Hugh Montgomery stood in their midst and recited "The Charge of the Light Brigade" amidst wild enthusiasm.

Amongst the pupils who have been studying for some time with Mme. Kate Flinn, the well-known teacher of singing and elocution, is a clever little lady—Mlle. Sowinska—who has a remarkably flexible voice well adapted to light opera or concert work. The young vocalist is being introduced by Mme. Flinn at her concert on May 9, at Steinway Hall. Miss Ruby Cobbett, one of our most promising contraltos, who achieved such a success last year at Mme. Flinn's concert, hopes to make her début at one of the musical festivals next year. Another of Mme. Flinn's protégés—Miss Xenia Greville, an accomplished dancer—will shortly appear in some of Mr. Lionel Monckton's songs.

The first tour of Shakespearean plays presented by the able company headed by Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., terminates to-day at the Opera House, Dudley. The undertaking has met with unqualified success, the last three weeks being numbered among the most pleasant and profitable of the tour. After a most successful fortnight's season at the West Pier, Brighton, where Miss Harris won unstinted praise for her performances of Katherine, Beatrice, Viola, and Carmen, the company have fulfilled a special engagement at the Opera House, Dudley, for the festival in commemoration of the great poet's birthday. Six Shakespearean plays have been presented, including Romeo and Juliet, which was the piece chosen for birthday night, April 23. Several more plays are to be added to the répertoire in the autumn, after the summer vacation, which will allow time for their proper mounting and dressing.

Mr. J. Maurice Clement, of the Opera House, Dudley, commemorated the birthday of the Immortal Bard by engaging that talented actress, Miss Florence Glossop-Harris (daughter of the late Sir Augustus Harris) and her well-known Shakespearean Répertoire Company for this week, the performances being under the patronage of the Mayor and Mayoress and the élite of the town and neighbourhood. Lovers of Shakespeare have had a rare treat during the Festival week, Mr. Clement's efforts being highly appreciated. A special souvenir was given out to patrons on birthday night.

"Iolanthe" has headed the po'l in Mrs. D'Oyly Carte's plebiscite, H.M.S. Pinafore, Princess Ida, The Pirates of Penzance, and The Sorcerer being next in order. Nearly 2,000 postcards were sent in by lovers of Savoy opera, some of them breaking out into rhyme for the occasion.

Miss Vyvyan Montgomery, who has unfortunately developed signs of lung trouble, is going to California in search of health, and will have the best wishes of all for a speedy recovery. Miss Montgomery hopes eventually to be able to take an engagement out there. Her excellent work in leading parts in the English provinces will be well remembered, and her accomplishments should ensure her equal success in the States.

Mr. Wm. Fraser-Brunner, by special arrangement with Mr. Cyril Maude, will open his tour of the charming three-act comedy, by Sidney Bowkett, entitled The Superior Miss Pellender, at the Brixton Theatre on Monday. A strong company has been chosen, including Miss Marie Ault, Miss May Staples, Miss Nana Flensburg, Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh, Mr. St. John Stuart, Mr. Ellis D. Carlyle, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fraser-Brunner, &c. Many of the most popular seaside resorts are included in the bookings, which also embrace a number of important inland towns. A new curtain-raiser, entitled Violets, written by Miss May Staples, will precede the comedy.

The costumes in The Judgment of Pharaoh, the new play at the Scala Theatre, are handsome, bizarre, and of every colour imaginable. In the first act, where the scene is laid in the Valley of Rephaim, there is a troop of harvesters closely swathed in white and pale tints of pink and blue; and Miss Nora Lancaster, who plays the much-persecuted heroine, Miriam, appears in a clinging dress of soft crêpe-de-Chine, with heavy white tassels. The costume worn by Miss Cecil Cromwell is, as befits the character of the wicked Mione, of gaudy splendour, the old gold and russet brown of the wide Egyptian belt toning well with huge turquoise ornaments and a vivid green satin cloak lined with purple.

Towards the end of the play Miss Cromwell is seen in the most effective dress of the whole production—a beautiful arrangement of blue silk, tightly drawn round the figure, over a very long under-robe of white, with a golden wreath on her dark hair. The Mystic Three, whose spells are supposed to enchain the weak heart of the Jewish lover, Jevan, are clothed in many colours, with long white chiffon scarves; and half a dozen slaves, in the Palace of Pharus, show the value in their scarlet costumes of a definite splash of colour in the midst of a scene that is best described as kaleidoscopic.

Miss Violet Vanbrugh is the only lady, with the exception of the small part of a housekeeper, in the cast of The Duel, produced at the Garrick Theatre on Tuesday night, but a lack of quantity in the way of costumes is more than atoned for by their quality. In the first act, with its fresh and delightful suggestion of spring in flowering trees, bowls of lilac, and distant green lawns, Miss Vanbrugh appears in a filmy dress of striped white silk net, the skirt falling in long folds from a folded belt of the palest tint of blue-grey, the same colour being used round the square yoke, filled in with lace; the sleeves are very short, like big puffs of thistle-down, and the cloak worn is shimmering silver-grey, a darker shade being seen in the wide-brimmed hat with its shaded ostrich plumes.

As a forecast of the fashions of the coming season, it may be noted that Miss Vanbrugh, as the Duchess of Severn, wears long white gloves, pearl earrings, and floating veils with all her costumes. In the second act, as befits the occasion of a visit to a priest's house, her Grace is dressed in a more sombre manner; her black gown, elaborately embroidered with a design in black silk, is cut with a V-shaped bodice, filled in with lace and finished off by a very high collar, the sleeves again being well above the elbow, and the big black hat, draped in what the priest's housekeeper calls "a spidery veil," is only adorned by a couple of dull red roses. Miss Vanbrugh's dress at the end of the play is of fine cloth, the colour of pale lilac—almost white—with a broad flounce of a deeper shade, trimmed with narrow bands of dark velvet, the bodice being pouched, with a touch of black at the throat, and the hat, with its gauze veil of mingled green and purple, trimmed with pale chiffon and loops of violet velvet ribbon.

Additional subscriptions for the Celli Fund have been received from Miss Olga Birrell £1 1s., Mr. Anthony Hope Hawkins £1 1s., Mr. S. Heilbut £1 1s., Mr. H. B. Irving £1 1s., and Capt. Robert Marshall £1 1s.

Mr. Russell Norrie has obtained from Mr. Walter Reynolds the rights for the United Kingdom of his very successful play, Mr. Smith, and will begin a tour with it in the autumn. Mr. Norrie will carry the entire production recently travelled by Mr. Reynolds, which was the admiration of every town visited. An excellent tour has been booked, including a large number of return dates. In the meantime, Mr. Russell Norrie is appearing at the Vaudeville Theatre as Robert Sampson in Mr. Louis N. Parker's delightful comedy, Mr. George.

Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart has arranged with Mr. Hugh Moss for the rights of that charming play, Bootle's Baby. The tour will commence about Whit-week, at the finish of the Sherlock Holmes run, which concludes on Saturday next at the Borough Theatre, Stratford. Mr. Stewart intends to tour Bootle's Baby during the summer, taking out Sherlock Holmes again in September. As Bootle's Baby will be staged in the same excellent style as Sherlock Holmes a successful tour is assured.

Mr. Norman V. Norman has made a great success with the first Shakespearean Commemoration Festival that has been given in Tunbridge Wells. Miss Beatrice Wilson's performance as Romeo and Lady Macbeth is alluded to in the local Press as one of the most remarkable achievements that has been seen in recent years in the provinces.

Compliments are due to Mr. Edward Wynn, who on Thursday, at the Savoy Theatre, played the part of Marco in The Gondoliers at an hour's notice with great success.

Mr. J. D. Beveridge, who is just finishing a successful tour of the United States with Man and Superman, will be welcomed home this month. During his tour, North, South, East, and West, the popular actor has visited ninety-eight towns in eight months; but, although the travelling was at times very hard, his reception, both on and off the stage, has amply compensated for all the fatigue endured. Granted, as everyone hopes that Mr. Beveridge will reach England in safety, he will have covered considerably over 20,000 miles since he left us in August last. Mr. Beveridge has naturally seen a great deal of the New World, and carries away many happy memories; but he yearns for the sight of old friends—not, as he adds, that he likes America less, but that he loves London more.

Mr. Monckton Hoffe has booked a first-class tour for Oscar Wilde's brilliant comedy, The Importance of Being Earnest, in conjunction with Mr. J. Græme Campbell. A remarkably good cast has been secured.

The large audience that on Monday welcomed Mr. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe at the Waldorf Theatre included Mr. Whitelaw Reid, the American Ambassador.

Miss Louisa Peach has been engaged by Mr. Ernest Norris for a special week to appear as Lady Isabel at the Dalston Theatre on Monday.

Mr. Allan Wilkie's first visit to the Theatre Royal, Preston, resulted in the biggest business done at this theatre by any Shakespearean company during the past ten years, and Mr. Stephen Pritt has arranged for Mr. Wilkie to pay an annual visit. On three evenings during the week every available seat was taken before the commencement of the performance. Similar success has attended the visit during the present week to the Theatre Royal, South Shields. On Wednesday the building was packed from floor to ceiling before the rise of the curtain, hundreds being unable to obtain admission. Mr. Wilkie is further strengthening his cast from Whit week onwards, and has made several important engagements for his autumn tour, which commences on July 29.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Mr. Tree and the Kaiser.

"THE German Emperor," said Mr. Tree to a Tribune representative last Saturday, "struck me as being unlike the popular conception of him. Like all truly great men, he has a natural simplicity of manner that makes one feel perfectly at ease in addressing him. I saw him only on one occasion. The second time he came to the theatre he had to catch a train immediately after the performance, so I saw the Empress and the Crown Prince. The Emperor speaks English perfectly, although it would not be true to say that he has not a slight German accent. He talks with great knowledge and in a most interesting way about Shakespeare."

Biblical and Bibulous.

A YOUNG actor, who was travelling with a Sign of the Cross company, had the other day for his companion in a railway carriage a dear old lady, who knew the play well and was warm in her praise of it. "What a fine thing it must be," she said, "to represent so many noble characters!" "It is, ma'am," said the actor; "and I am sure we feel it so." "And I hope it does not end with the acting," said the old lady; "I trust you endeavour to carry into private life the qualities you represent on the stage." "I can't answer for my companions," was the reply; "but I know I do—as much as I can, at any rate." He did not mention that he played the bloated and intemperate noble who is so conspicuous in the banqueting scene.

Othello's Apology.

WHEN dear old Morris Abrahams was in management at the East End, he once consented to rehearse a company of amateurs who wanted to play Othello. Mr. Abrahams took great pains with his task; and was horrified, on the night of the performance, to meet the representative of the Moor of Venice returning from a visit to a neighbouring "pub." in a state of hopeless intoxication. "Great heavens!" cried Abrahams; "what's to become of the show? Why, you're drunk, sir—absolutely drunk!" "Drunk, am I?" answered the intemperate amateur with a leer of boozy wisdom, "Drunk? Wait till you see Iago!"

Actors and Income Tax.

MR. STANLEY PALMER gives a friendly warning to artists respecting the new income tax collection. "It is imperative," says Mr. Palmer, "that artists generally should protect themselves from overcharge and penalties by engaging the services of an income tax expert, as, owing to the nature of the expenses being peculiar to the profession, they can only be arrived at and satisfactorily proved to the authorities by one well-versed in income tax laws. With the tax reduced to 9d. will come greater official stringency. It therefore behoves all members of the profession to make sure that the yearly buff-coloured form is duly and correctly prepared and deposited." If what we hear of salaries in the provinces be correct, a great many actors will be exempted from income tax by natural causes.

Masks and "Mustapha."

A CORRESPONDENT writes:—"In the article entitled 'Puritans and the Playhouse,' which recently appeared in your paper, it was mentioned that female performers first acted in England in the reign of Charles I.; also that, in 1660, there were only two theatres in London, the King's and the Duke of York's, and that ladies wore masks at the play, probably because of the coarse nature of the performances, which gradually improved with the advent of actresses. It may interest you to know that an ancestor of my wife's family, named Sacheverell, has left on record, in an autograph notebook written mostly at Oxford between the years 1651 and 1665, now in the British Museum, the draft of a letter, dated May 9, 1665, written to a lady, which contains not only a criticism of a play entitled Mustapha, but also a reference to the mask she wore while there. 'You were pleased,' says the writer of the letter, 'to impeach ye beautys under ye restraints of ye mask as if you meant only to attaigne us with a single parley or two, without bringing up ye main forces to yé onsett. But, madam, I beseech you have a care how you often put such experiments in practice, least you enrage nature by inheriting too much upon her prerogative and dimming those perfections for which she never intended a coverture.' The writer was one George Sacheverell, High Sheriff of Derbyshire in 1709. It would be interesting to know if any of your numerous readers possess any record of this play Mustapha, or know at which of the two theatres then in existence it was presented."

Made by Americans.

MR. ARTHUR H. WOOLF, who is to conduct the Shakespearean Ramble to-day in connection with the London Shakespeare League's Commemoration, was recently, says the Daily Chronicle, spending a few days in Stratford-on-Avon, and lodged in one of the old-world houses of the town. The landlady was as old-fashioned and antiquated as the house itself, and held her own views about things in general, and Shakespeare in particular. One day, "feigning Cockney ignorance," says Mr. Woolf, "I said to her in the course of conversation, 'Tell me, Mrs. ——, who is this Shakespeare of whom one hears so much down here? Was he a very great man?' To which she replied, 'Lor', sir, he warn't thought nothing on a few years ago. It's the Americans as 'as made him what he is.'"

General Utility.

IN these days of long runs and travelling companies few young actors obtain the "experience" which fell to the lot of the stock company artists of the last generation. Wybert Reeve gives an example of this, when he was engaged at the Ryde Theatre, under the management of Mrs. Barnett. "A star, Mr. Henry Betty, son of the Young Roscius, came to play a week, and amongst other pieces Macbeth was put up. I found myself cast for Ross, Banquo, and the First Murderer, which necessitated my murdering myself, and reporting to Macbeth I had done so. Macduff and Malcolm mixed up Ross's lines in the first two acts, and I was all right as Banquo up to the front scene, when I appeared in a cloak, slouch hat, and beard as the Murderer, and undertook my own murder; then in the murder scene I crossed as Banquo with Fleance, threw cloak and hat on, bobbed round the wing, and entered as First Murderer, followed myself off and committed the sanguinary act, entered at the banquet scene, reported I had done the deed, off with cloak, some chalk on face, and a huge red gash across my throat, and I was Banquo's ghost. I afterwards came to life for the rest of the piece as Ross."

Something Coming In.

THE Ryde Theatre, except on special occasions, was poorly attended, and the roof was not in first-rate repair. On one occasion, on an off-night, some half-dozen people were in the pit, and had put their umbrellas up to keep off the rain that was pouring in from the roof—it was a very severe thunderstorm. When not acting, Mrs. Barnett was playing cards with friends who were always dropping in to her little house attached to the theatre. One of the company ran down to her in great excitement at seeing the umbrellas up, and said—"Mrs. Barnett, the rain's coming in dreadfully on the heads of the audience." "Well, my dear," replied Mrs. Barnett, not looking up from her cards; "I am glad there is something coming in. Trump; my dear, that's my trick," and on she went playing.

"THE DUEL."

A Play, in Three Acts, adapted by Arthur Bourchier from the drama by Henri Lavedan, produced at the Garrick Theatre on Tuesday, April 23.

Father Daniel ..... MR. BOURCHIER
Monsignor Boleyn ..... MR. SYDNEY VALENTINE
Sir Paul Forester ..... MR. CYRIL KEIGHTLEY
Lord Charles Townley .. MR. CHARLES GOODHART

The Duchess of Severn .. MISS VIOLET VANBRUGH
Martha ..... MRS. HERBERT BENNETT
A Nurse ..... MISS EVA KILLICK

The task of adapting a "modern" French play for performance before an ordinary English audience is not an easy one. Le Duel was written for a philosophical public, ready to be—indeed, demanding to be—made to think, and enduring of ethical discussion, if impatient of the obvious. The British version had to be made to please an entirely different clientèle, avid of action and averse from analysis. M. Henri Lavedan, the author of Le Duel, which was produced at the Comédie Française Théâtre in the April of 1906, with M. Le Bargy and Mlle. Bartet as the Priest and the Countess, may be termed a mitigated modern; that is to say, there is a good deal of natural fun in him. Being Parisian fun, of course it is improper, but still it is humanising in effect. Beginning with Le Prince d'Aurec, a kindly admonition to the French noblesse, he continued to preach the political extinction of the class in Les Deux Noblesses. Then he wrote Viveurs, a piece of the "smart" and "fast" order, in which Mme. Réjane was wildly comical, and Le Nouveau Jeu, another cynically lively work; ultimately adding to his fame with Catherine at the Français. Mr. Arthur Bourchier, immediately after the production of Le Duel, made arrangements for securing the English rights of the play, and himself undertook the work of adaptation, retaining the main features of the plot, and making certain reductions, alterations, and additions.

At the opening of The Duel we are introduced to Sir Paul Forester, a celebrated physician, and to Lord Charles Townley, an almost offensively healthy Major in the 1st Life Guards. Sir Paul is at the top of his profession, and keeps a private hospital in the country with a staff of doctors and nurses. One of his patients is the Duke of Severn, who, after a youth of dissipation, has nearly killed himself by the morphia habit. His wife, the Duchess, a young and attractive woman, is reduced to the condition of a "grass-widow. She finds it a painful one, for she constantly combats a passion for Sir Paul, which he returns with equal ardour. The Duchess, who is a Roman Cathôlic, flies for support in her struggle with temptation to her confessor, a certain Father Daniel, who is none other than Sir Paul's brother William, who, after a course of debauchery, has entered the priesthood under an assumed name. The "duel" of the play is between Daniel, who is determined to keep the Duchess in the straight path, and Sir Paul, who is resolved to possess her. The poor lady is torn by conflicting emotions. As the music-hall song says, first she will and then she will not. She goes to the very verge of collapsing in Sir Paul's arms; and then, remembering religion, she repulses him and goes off to her confessor for help. At the end of the first act her fate hangs in the balance.

In the second, she repairs to Father Daniel's rooms in the East End, but the physician still pursues her. There is more attempted embracing, and more semi-yielding on the part of the lady; then remembrance, revulsion of feeling, and escape. Then comes a passionate argument between the two men. Sir Paul derides the pretensions of the priesthood and the rules of conventional morality; Daniel tells him he is an enemy of society, who would bring the Duchess to ruin. Stung by this taunt, Sir Paul accuses the priest of being himself influenced by a subtle sexual feeling as regards the lady; and Daniel, horrified beyond measure at recognising a grain of truth in the accusation, indignantly turns his brother out.

In the last act the priest lays his self-reproach before a kindly old bishop, who soothes his fears and sends him off to a leper settlement. The morphia-ised Duke dies, and the Duchess, with the Bishop's fullest approval, marries the doctor. Though a great deal of the psychology of Le Duel has been omitted, Mr. Bourchier's adaptation retains enough intellectual matter to make it memorable. The questions of faith and scepticism are freely dealt with; as when the physician objects to being connected with a religious charity because his cures will be put down to the "priests' doctor—God." The sensual—or perhaps we ought rather to say sensuous—side of the Duchess's character is freely emphasised; and the fact that the hero early indicated the direction of his mind by vivisecting a college cat with a razor and a pair of tweezers is quite in harmony with the "atmosphere" of the play.

Condensed as Mr. Bourchier's version is, its dramatic interest is sufficient to hold an audience tightly throughout. It was acted on Tuesday with great alertness and intensity, an agreeable surprise being the very fine performance given by Mr. Cyril Keightley as Sir Paul Forester. Mr. Keightley was artisticaly made-up for the part and played it admirably from first to last. He was careful to graduate the emphasis of his reading; and, beginning with excellent self-restraint, through which a flash of force was occasionally allowed to penetrate, he revealed by degrees the fiery passion of Sir Paul's nature, culminating in the powerful scene between the two men in the priest's garret. The incisive and intellectual quality of Forester's character was capitally suggested; and, altogether, Mr. Keightley may be congratulated on having immensely increased his position and reputation. Mr. Bourchier, as was only to have been expected from previous achievements, gave the needed touch of clericalism to Father Daniel very skilfully; and in the more dramatic scenes rose to the occasion grandly, and acted with a power and energy which were deeply impressive. Mr. Sydney Valentine gave a polished performance as the benign old Bishop who makes so light of the terrible tortures which he endured in China, and played the part with his wonted unction, ease, and finish; and Mr. Charles Goodhart revelled in the exuberant heartiness of Major Lord Charles Townley, Mr. Alfred Bristowe, by his eloquent dumb show, making important the little rôle of the Bishop's devoted Chinese attendant. Mr. G. Harrison Carter and Mr. Douglas Imbert were excellent as servants; and Miss Eva Killick did useful and careful work as Nurse, Mrs. Herbert Bennett being highly commendable as the priest's housekeeper. Miss Violet Vanbrugh acted with impassioned earnestness as the Duchess, her representation of the fluctuating emotions of the unhappy woman, magnetised by passion but restrained by religion, being touchingly natural and thrillingly intense. The refinement and delicacy of her treatment of details were exquisite. Mr. Walter Hann and Mr. R. C. McCleery had supplied some really fine scenery; and, under Mr. Alexander Stuart's stage-management, the piece went with the agreeable smoothness to which we are accustomed at the Garrick. It was preceded by Doctor Johnson, Mr. Bourchier repeating his famous impersonation of the lexicographer, Mr. Arthur Whitby being good as Boswell, and Mr. Walter Pearce and Miss Pamela Gaythorne displaying ability as Captain McKenzie and Mrs. B.

"MR. GEORGE."

A Comedy, in Three Acts, by Louis N. Parker, produced at the Vaudeville Theatre on Thursday, April 25.

John March ..... MR. CHARLES HAWTREY
Timothy Finny ..... MR. O. B. CLARENCE
Godfrey Burdon ..... MR. HUBERT HARBEN
Harry Fryer ..... MR. CHARLES TROODE
Robert Sampson ..... MR. RUSSELL NORRIE
Peter ..... MR. HENRI LAURENT
Miss Judith ..... MISS ALICE BEET
Miss Tabitha ..... MISS GWYNNE HERBERT
Miss Fanny Patton ..... MISS ALICE RUSSON
Mr. Charles Vulliamy .... MR. ARTHUR PLAYFAIR
Miss Perceval ..... MISS BILLIE BURKE

Delightfully dainty and choice is the comedy which Mr. Louis N. Parker has written to follow The Belle of Mayfair at the Vaudeville Theatre. Slight in story, delicate in treatment, and finished in every detail, it wins by its sweet simplicity, and charms by its comedy and its cleverness. Its reception on Thursday evening supported the theory that the pleasure of an audience lies not in its curiosity, but in its anticipation. From the time when John March, of the firm of Perceval and March, merchant adventurers, of London and Boston, "sets eyes upon" pretty Miss Perceval, we have complete confidence that the result will be the union of the pair. The author's skill is shown in the way in which he has placed obstacles in the way of their coming to an understanding. The time of the play is 1773, when, as everyone knows, the Bostonians, indignant at the attempt of the English to tax them, threw overboard into Boston harbour a cargo of tea which the Governor tried to land by force. This commencement of the great national struggle does not play an important part in Mr. Parker's piece; we merely hear the muttering of rebellion in the background. John March is the Boston partner of the firm, and, when the action opens, he and his household, consisting of his senior clerk, Timothy Finny, and his two elderly sisters, Judith and Tabitha, are eagerly expecting the arrival from England of a certain "Mr. George," the present senior partner of the firm. "He" turns out to be Miss Perceval, the daughter of the late senior partner, who has brought his daughter up to business, and left her his share in the firm. John falls in love with her on the spot; but her late father's wish, conveyed to March in a sealed letter, is that she shall marry a clownish English gentleman named Charles Vulliamy. On the other hand, John's sisters are anxious that he shall make a match with a certain Miss Fanny Patton, a lively and facetious young lady, for whom the merchant feels no inclination. He writes a copy of amatory verses to Miss Perceval, and leaves them on her desk. They are found by one of the sisters, who sends them to Fanny. Vulliamy disgusts Miss Perceval by his bad manners, and March pleases her by his obvious devotion, and by the disinterestedness with which he—as in duty bound by his late partner's wishes—pleads Vulliamy's cause with her. There is a cleverly written and amusing scene here, full of the quaintest and most agreeable comedy. But Fanny Paton comes to thank March for the verses; and Miss Perceval's jealousy is excited. However, after more manœuvrings and misunderstandings, she is thrown into John's arms by the appearance of some of the Boston rioters disguised as Mohawk Indians; and, the ice once being broken, and the Fanny Paton incident being explained, the piece ends with the union of the "partners," the head clerk eloping with one of the comic spinsters.

The success of the play was greatly due to the performance of Miss Billie Burke as Miss Perceval. From the moment of her first entrance in a curious but becoming costume of furs, Miss Burke captured the audience completely, and by her pretty and piquant performance of the part quite confirmed their prepossession. Especially to be praised was Miss Burke's facial play, and the way in which she pointed every phrase by a glance or a gesture. Composed and at her ease throughout, she never under-acted; and the brightness and piquancy of her comedy were irresistible. Her burst of weeping in the last act was most naturally done; and the dashes of delicate coquetry which she introduced were immensely effective. She realised exactly the self-willed, intensely feminine, and entirely amiable personage suggested by the text. Mr. Charles Hawtrey, at first obviously nervous, became more confident as the play proceeded, and indicated the solicitous anxiety, the hesitation, and the intense affection of John March very ably indeed. In the scene already alluded to Mr. Hawtrey was at his best; and his performance throughout left, to use the hackneyed phrase, but little to be desired. The two elderly sisters had excellent representatives in Miss Alice Beet and Miss Gwynne Herbert, whose differentiation of the characters was clever and complete, and full of humour and keen perception. Miss Alice Russon contributed a neat and pleasant performance as Fanny Patton; and Mr. Arthur Playfair's blatant boorishness as Charles Vulliamy could hardly have been improved upon. Mr. O. B. Clarence as Timothy Finny gave one of the finished and appreciative embodiments of old men for which he is famous, and mingled with his quaint characterisation some nice touches of feeling; and Mr. Hubert Harben, Mr. Charles Troode, and Mr. Russell Norrie supplied conscientious, careful, and altogether effective impersonations of the three clerks; Mr. Henri Laurent adding a useful and carefully-studied reading of the little rôle of Peter. Mr. George was preceded by a play in one act, by Louis N. Parker, performed for the first time, and entitled

"JEMMY."

Mr. Bates ..... MR. O. B. CLARENCE
Jack Fennimore ..... MR. HUBERT HARBEN
Mrs. Bates ..... MRS. CAMPBELL BRADLEY
Jane Emily ..... MISS FRANCES WETHERALL

This was a rather serious little play, with a good deal of passionate emotion in it considering its brevity. Jane Emily, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bates, two poor country folk, has been seduced by a gentleman named Jack Fennimore. She loves him so dearly that she will not allow him to marry her for fear of offending his relations and spoiling his career. She returns to her parents' cottage; and they gradually discover the state of things. Much sorrow and grieving follows; but Fennimore turns up at the conclusion, and puts matters right by insisting on wedding Jane Emily, and taking her away with him to the Colonies. Jemmy had adequate interpretation from a liberal cast, Mr. O. B. Clarence playing the working-man father admirably, Mr. Hubert Harben being a satisfactory Jack Fennimore, Mrs. Campbell Bradley doing bold and steady work as Mrs. Bates, and Miss Frances Wetherall enacting Jane Emily with much depth of feeling and emotional expression.

"NOAH'S ARK," a musical extravaganza in two acts, words and music by Clare Kummer, was produced for copyright purposes at the Victoria Hall, Bayswater, on Monday.

PRESENTATION.—During the performance of Alfonso the Noble by the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile End, Mr. and Mme. Charles Natansohn were presented last week with solid gold medals by the Benevolent Society of the Lubline, as a slight recognition for their efforts on behalf of that association.

BY permission of the management of the Pavilion Theatre, Mile End, Mr. Joseph Fineberg, the esteemed and popular stage-manager of the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company, is to be accorded a well-deserved benefit on May 6 next, when the exciting play, The Wild Man, will be produced.

"The same old game"; from one generation to another! Mr. Cyril Maude's system of booking was anticipated by entrepreneurs at Pompeii, and the odours which pervaded the Scala Theatre on Saturday evening, when The Judgment of Pharaoh was performed, were doubtless used by Helen and her handmaidens in Troy. And here, in Egypt, in the time of the Pharaohs, we have the quartette of the villain and the villainess, in love respectively with the heroine and the hero, and working together to deprave and ruin both. We have the young man who wants to see the world, and who buys his experience of it dearly; and we have the inevitable triumph, after sore trial and trouble, of virtue over vice. The youth who yearns for a trip to "foreign parts" is Jevan, the son of the old Hebrew patriarch Neziah, who leads a pastoral life in the peaceful valley of Rephaim. The poison has been infused into Jevan's system by two baleful Egyptian sojourners, Pharus, cousin to the King of Egypt, and Mione, his concubine. Pharus has grown tired of Mione, and has cast his lustful eye on the sweet and modest Rachel, Jevan's betrothed; and the youth, fired by the concubine's descriptions of Heliopolis, burns to see its splendours. His father gives him his portion, and sends him off on his travels with a blessing.

Neziah little knew what life at Heliopolis was like. In the next act Pharus gives a dinner-party, at which the sparse provision for the hunger of the guests is only equalled by the liberal catering for their basest passions. Having secured a large gathering of the choicest concubines, Pharus anounces to his male guests that they can pick and choose, and they pair off with the loose ladies accordingly. Then Jevan appears, richly attired, and Mione charms him with fair words and crafty caresses. Pharus, who burns with unquenchable fire for Rachel, has sent her a message that Jevan is seriously ill, and hopes that the falsehood will lure her to Heliopolis. Jevan is led on to drink and gamble, the result being that Pharus wins all the young Hebrew's money, with the aid of loaded dice supplied by Mione. Jevan discovers how he has been cheated, and in the midst of his distress Rachel arrives. Pharus seizes her, and is grappled with by Jevan, the result being that the maiden and her lover are overpowered and arrested.

The next scene is the Temple of Osiris, with a gilded statue of the Ox-god standing on a pedestal. The land is suffering from a great drought, and Osiris is prayed to to send down rain. Pharaoh arrives to add his supplications; and Pharus alleges that the god has appeared to him in a dream and has demanded the sacrifice of an Israelite on the altar. Jevan being, so to speak, "under remand," is suggested as a suitable victim; and Pharaoh decides that he shall be exposed, bound hand and foot, in the Haunt of the Lions, while Rachel shall remain in the care of Pharus. The libertine, while attempting the virtue of the Hebrew maiden, is stabbed by a slave called Canopus, and Miriam flies to the lions' haunt. Here she is preceded by Mione, who asks Jevan to escape with her on a camel. He refuses; and the lions, prowling about, devour the imprudent concubine, while Miriam, arriving, loosens Jevan's bonds, and the pair return to Rephaim, where the prodigal is welcomed and forgiven by his venerable parent.

It may easily be imagined how effective with a popular audience are these scenes of simple elementary passion, played by such able artists as Dr. Distin Maddick has assembled at the Scala. Mr. Brandon Thomas made a most impressive Pharaoh, bearing himself with regal dignity, and well suggesting the astute and imperturbable character of the Egyptian king. Mr. Edmund Gurney enacted Pharus with all the energy and vigour for which he is noted, his fine voice and admirable elocution having full effect. Mr. James Fernandez was a most patriarchal Neziah; he looked the character superbly, and the genial grandeur of his style was most impressive. Mr. Vincent Clive acted with freshness, vivacity, and feeling in the part of Jevan, and quite succeeded in suggesting the ingenuous and impulsive nature of the young Hebrew. Mr. Edward Sorley was entirely efficient in the little rôle of Jethro; Mr. Cecil Fowler did useful work as Diomedes; and Mr. Henry Worrall gave a praiseworthy performance as Canopus, Mr. Selwyn Seymour doing well as Rames. Mr. Austin Milroy must be warmly praised for his sonorous delivery of the long prayer allotted to the High Priest; and Mr. Frank Collins supplied a neat rendering of Simeon. Miss Norah Lancaster played Miriam very sweetly and tenderly, rising to fine emotional expression in the deeper passages; and Miss Cecil Cromwell contributed a powerful and graphic embodiment of Mione, her picturesque appearance uniting very effectively with the fire and intensity of her acting. Miss Rachel Warre and Miss Shelly Calton were commendable as the Attendants; and Miss Betty Castle was a pleasing representative of Rachel. Praise is due to Miss Ida Calver, Miss Marjorie Day, and Miss Vivian Stafford for their painstaking performances as the Sybils; and Miss Kitty Carew, Miss Ethel Verdi, and Miss Jennings were satisfactory as Egyptians.

Special notice is deserved by the mounting, with which great pains had evidently been taken. Mr. W. T. Hemsley's Home of Neziah and Temple of Osiris were fine examples of the scenic artists' skill in different lines; and Mr. Bruce Smith's elaborately built-up Court of Concubines and mysteriously gloomy Haunt of the Lions displayed his varied talent in great contrast. Expense was not spared in the mounting, live camels being introduced in the first act; and a whole host of well-drilled supernumeraries and a capable chorus were employed in the Court and Temple acts, under the able stage-management of Mr. W. Palmer. Mr. Napoleon Lambelet's orchestra, adroitly conducted, did its duty well, and the costumes designed by Mr. W. Palmer were gorgeously effective, Mr. Richard Flanagan, of Manchester, having supplied valuable assistance in many of the details of the production. The Judgment of Pharaoh, which was first performed at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, on Oct. 30, 1905, was very favourably received at the Scala, and at the close Mr. Calmour and Dr. Distin Maddick were called before the curtain and warmly applauded.

MESSRS. SMITH AND CO., of 117, Borough, S.E., have made a speciality in preparations for the voice and throat. A few of their preparations are pastilles composed of the finest honey and glycerine; other pastilles are made of eucalyptus, menthol, and pino. For actors and speakers nothing could be more acceptable than these pastilles.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"LA FRANCAISE."

Comedy, in Three Acts, by M. Brieux, produced at the Odéon on April 18.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, April 25.—La Française is not, as the title implies, the trade-mark of a bicycle or a sauce. It is a play written by M. Brieux to vindicate the Frenchwoman's character, which, the author thinks, is not held in sufficiently high esteem by the stranger. There can be no doubt that some foolish people still believe that every Frenchwoman has necessarily a lover, that every Frenchman has at least one mistress, and that the café is the home of the average French family. And, in order to develop his views on his countrywoman's moral virtues, M. Brieux introduces us to the Gontier family. Pierre Gontier was a widower with a charming eighteen-year-old daughter called Geneviève. But Pierre married again, and the second Mme. Gontier is certainly what the Americans would call "an agreeable person." Pierre's brother, an eccentric man, went out to America, and had his son brought up there in the typical American manner. When the story opens twenty years are supposed to have elapsed, and Pierre is expecting the visit of Charles Gontier, the Franco-American boy. The youth makes his appearance, accompanied by Bartett, his American friend and foster-father. Charles takes his relative somewhat by surprise. He is close-shaven, chilly in demeanour—in fact, the reverse of a Frenchman. Moreover, he despises everything French. Gontier is not sorry to meet Bartett. His business requires fresh capital, and Bartett, active and wealthy, would prove an ideal partner. Anxious to further her husband's plans, Mme. Gontier makes herself as pleasant as she can to Bartett. But the latter, who has formed his ideas of Frenchwomen from the cheap novels he has read, at once starts making love to her. He is surprised to see that she resists him, and his astonishment grows when he discovers that she is actually virtuous. A virtuous Frenchwoman seemed an anomaly to him. Virtue among women, he thought, only existed in America! And before he has recovered from his surprise he finds himself interested in Gontier's business; while Charles, also cured of his prejudices, falls in love with his pretty cousin, Geneviève, and marries her. The story is interlarded with lectures on the superiority of Frenchwomen which do not tend to enliven the play. The work was well acted, especially by Mlle. Lélu (a charming Geneviève) and M. Decorè, who succeeded in making Bartett an interesting personage.

THE Bouffes Parisiens have given us Papillon, a comedy by MM. René Peter and Robert Darceny. The story would have done well for a libretto of an operette, but for a three-act play it is far too flimsy. Papillon is the nickname of a young and pretty modiste, who, in an evil hour, became the wife of Carolus Fignolas, a second-rate musician. Deeply devoted to him, she is his faithful companion; but although her husband treats her cruelly she does not complain, and does not even notice that Chaumette, a painter, and Le Bonnel, a rich banker, have both fallen in love with her. Carolus at last becomes so brutal that Papillon runs away from him and opens a millinery shop with the money lent her by Le Bonnel. Carolus discovers her retreat, and Papillon, afraid of him, applies for protection to Le Bonnel, for Chaumette, whom she now secretly loves, is not there to defend her. She now becomes Le Bonnel's mistress, but not for long. Chaumette turns up unexpectedly and offers her his name, a proposal she gladly accepts. A poor production, but fairly well acted.

"LA MARJOLAINE,"

Play, in Three Acts, in Verse, by M. Jacques Richepin, produced at the Porte-Saint-Martin on April 20.

Marjolaine ..... MME. CORA LAPARCERIE
Marquise de Sabran ..... MLLE. FERIEL
Duchesse de Phalaris ..... MME. FABER
Mme. Thibaut ..... MLLE. CANTI

The scene of La Marjolaine is laid in the dissolute days of the Regency, and the managers of the Porte-Saint-Martin had a fine opportunity of making a gorgeous display of scenery and costumes. As regards stage-craft, the piece proved a decided success, but the same cannot be said of the work itself. It is too disconnected, and the initial idea is not sufficiently well carried out. La Marjolaine, the heroine, is the daughter of a peasant woman and of a nobleman. Plebeian and aristocratic blood flows in her veins, with the result that the girl is alternately swayed by pity for the down-trodden masses and hankering after the revelries of the Regent's Court. She has fallen in love with François, a lawyer imbued with revolutionary principles, who makes her espouse the cause he represents. On the other hand, her godfather, the Marquis de St. Léger, poisons her mind with glowing descriptions of the Court. She hesitates, and is lost, for she follows the aristocratic tempter, and at a supper given by the Regent is presented to him by St. Léger. The champagne and the excitement prove too much for her young brain, and after supper the Regent carries her off in his Royal arms. The awakening is less pleasant. La Marjolaine bitterly repents what she has done. She loathes her Royal lover, and pines after the honest François. The latter manages to gain access to her, and at his bidding she consents to go away with him to the old home. But this little idyll is not to the taste of the Regent, who refuses to part with her on any account. This leads to a rather violent scene between them, and the Regent vents his anger on François by having him taken at once to the Bastille. Whilst the guards drag him away he curses La Marjolaine, and she falls down, crying "Tout est fini!" This would have proved a good ending to the piece; but the author apparently did not consider it sufficiently dramatic, and has added a superfluous act, where we see La Marjolaine at her villa in Meudon indulging in a final revel, in the midst of which she dies. As regards the acting, nothing could have been finer than M. Castellan's impersonation of Philippe d'Orleans—a difficult rôle, but admirably acted. Mme. Laparcerie seemed strangely unsuited for the part of La Marjolaine in her husband's play. But we all know that love is blind, and M. Jacques Richepin possibly saw in her qualities she does not possess. M. Jean Coquelin, although the manager, only took a small part, which, however, he played very creditably.

B) -OPERATORS' ASSOCIATION.

A well-attended meeting of the provisional committee forming this Association took place on Wednesday at 29, Wellington-street, Strand. Mr. Catling, of the Surrey Theatre, presided.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and adopted, the Secretary (pro tem.) read a large number of letters from various parts of the United Kingdom, many of which contained applications for membership and suggestions as to the objects of the Association and the qualifications for membership, &c.

The following resolutions, among others, were agreed to:—

That the title of the Society be "The Bioscope Operators' Association," and that it consist of qualified operators of animated picture machines.

That the entrance fee be 2s. 6d., for the next three months, and the question of fixing a larger amount dealt with after the expiration of that period.

That the contribution, for trade purposes and management be 1s. per month, payable in advance.

That applications submitted to this meeting be granted and balance of entrance fee paid with first contribution on or before May 1.

That all members in London on the date of the committee meetings be invited to join the provisional committee and attend its meetings.

That any person in sympathy with the objects of the Association and acceptable to the committee may join as an honorary member on payment of an annual subscription of not less than 10s. 6d.

The questions of establishing Sick, Funeral, and Benevolent Funds, and of arranging for examinations of operators, &c., were deferred. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, May 7, at 29, Wellington-street. Full particulars from the honorary secretaries may be had on application.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your issue of the 13th inst. you kindly gave a notice of our meeting for the formation of a Bioscope Operators' Association. As I had the honour of being elected chairman on that occasion, perhaps a word or two in explanation of the objects of the society will not be out of place. Our aim is to form a society of good, experienced operators, both London and provincial. I am pleased to say we have the support of several London managers, and from the North we have letters from proprietors wishing to become honorary members, whom we will be very pleased to accept.

The bioscope operator has a twofold duty; he has to do justice to the firm he represents and at the same time give every assistance to the manager of the theatre where he is placed, by being ready in good time in case a turn drops out, giving a long show if required, making a slide for a future announcement, &c., and keeping his machine and electrical plant in good condition ready for any unexpected visit from the L.C.C. inspector, so that no complaints can be made inflicting more work on his manager. When a manager knows he has a practical man in charge of the picture-box he must feel more at ease than when he sees a so-called operator run in at the last moment to turn the handle, and get through his show more by luck than judgment. As pictures are now practically permanent, I think you will see the benefit of an association of this description both to managers and operators, the association only having good experienced men as members. Trusting the masters and managers will fall in with our views.—I am, yours faithfully,

E. CATLIN,

Surrey Theatre, April 25, 1907.

BRITISH SINGERS' BERLIN FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Will you be so kind as to announce our final list of contributions? The committee has now closed the fund with the gratifying total of £212 13s. 6d., an amount which is made up of contributions from 150 singers. A cheque for this amount has been sent to Sir Frank Lascelles, the British Ambassador in Berlin, who has most kindly consented to hand it over to the special committee which has been formed in Berlin to distribute the money in the proper quarters.

It now only remains to me, on behalf of the committee, to express our thanks to all those artists who have so generously responded to our appeal, and also to you personally for your courtesy and most valuable help.—Yours faithfully,

JOHN COATES.

DEATH OF WILLIAM MORGAN.

We regret to announce the death, which took place on Monday at his residence, Fairholme, The Valley, Scarborough, of Mr. William Morgan, the noted entrepreneur, after a long and trying illness. Mr. Morgan was a native of Staffordshire, and was born in 1829. At nineteen he had charge of a Post Office Receiving House in Fenchurch-street. He subsequently returned to Bradford, where he opened a wholesale newsagent's business. His first theatrical speculation was in 1857. Those were the days of the stock companies, and Mr. Morgan made arrangements for the visit of a company to Bradford with Still Waters Run Deep. He hired the theatre from the then tenant, and the visit was so successful that he arranged for other visits, and practically put an end to the old stock company system.

Mr. Morgan was the first in the provinces to introduce Saturday night concerts. Amongst those who took part in them were Mme. Patey, Nelson Varley, Sims Reeves, Chevalier Lemmens, Edward Lloyd, Mme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Joseph Maas, Charles Santley, and Signor Foli. Mme. Patey was engaged to sing twice one winter, but she was so shocked at appearing before a threepenny gallery that she positively refused to appear a second time. The law-suit which followed brought Mr. Morgan's work prominently before the public. In 1864 Mr. Morgan was at the head of a syndicate running the old Alexandra Theatre (now the Royal), Bradford. In 1875 he and several friends built the Princess's Theatre, Bradford, and three years later he had the misfortune to lose all his savings, as the house was burnt down.

Later on, he was appointed manager of the Morecambe Winter Gardens, and next became manager of the Winter Gardens, Blackpool. At

THE LATE MR. WILLIAM MORGAN,
Thrice Mayor of Scarborough.

Blackpool Mr. Morgan arranged ten hours' continuous programmes; and during his management the shares rose from 11s. to £3 15s.. He remained at Blackpool as manager of the Winter Gardens for seven years.

In 1886 he and others bought the Scarborough Aquarium, which had been constructed at a cost of £120,000. They paid £4,082 for the property, and, including fixtures, the Aquarium only cost them £5,150. Mr. Morgan became two-thirds proprietor of the establishment, and five years later it was turned into a limited company, with a capital of £30,000, and, until about 1900, never paid less than 10 per cent. Mr. Morgan was also the managing-director of the People's Palace, Bridlington.

In 1904 he bought the North Promenade Pier, Scarborough, at auction, and in January of the following year it was washed down by a great storm and tidal wave. He rebuilt the entrance portion, bordering on the Clarence Drive, which was afterwards carried on as a place of entertainment under his proprietorship. In 1885, Mr. Morgan married the second daughter of Mr. James Firth (brother of Sir Charles), of Heckmondwike, whose mother was Octavia, a daughter of the late Captain Samuel Hood, of Greenwich, a member of the well-known naval family. Mrs. Morgan was very popular, and was Mayoress of Scarborough for three years. She also had a seat on the Board of Guardians, and sat as a member of the local Education Committee. In 1902 the Town Council invited Mr. Morgan to accept nomination as Mayor, and he was elected to the chief magistracy. He was nominated as the Conservative candidate for the East Ward at the municipal election of Nov. 1, 1903, and was returned to the Town Council as the representative of that ward. He again consented to nomination for the Mayoralty, which office he filled for the municipal year 1903-4, and again in 1904-5. On the termination of his three years' term of office as the representative of the East Ward on Nov. 1, 1906, he did not seek re-election, on account of his health. He still, however, retained his seat as one of the representatives of the East Ward on the Board of Guardians, to which he had first been elected by the East Ward at a bye-election on Jan. 24, 1903, and his term expiring the following year, he was returned without a contest for another period of three years.

Mr. Morgan was created, in 1902, a Justice of the Peace for the borough. He was also President of the Scarborough Hospital, and president of the Cricket Club. On Nov. 30, 1906, his jubilee as an entertainment caterer was celebrated at a banquet at the Grand Hotel.

A splendid funeral took place at Scarborough on Wednesday, the burial being in the new cemetery. The procession was led by thirty-two members of the Scarborough police force, under the command of the chief constable (Mr. W. Basham). The chief mourners were Sir Charles Firth, Mr. John Morgan (Bradford), Mr. Jack Morgan (Birmingham), Mr. W. Sayner (executor), Mr. W. Kitchingman (executor), Alderman Valentine Fowler, Mr. J. Overend, Mr. J. Burnley (London), Mr. J. L. Smith (Blackpool), and Mr. J. Thompson (Scarborough). The body was borne to the Unitarian Church, Westborough, where a special service was held by the pastor, the Rev. Ottwell Binns, who, in his address, said that if they would have Mr. Morgan's epitaph, they would find one fitting in the line of Gray's: "Large was his bounty and his soul sincere."

THE annual Ladies' Concert of the Playgoers' Club drew a large audience to the New Theatre, on Sunday last. An admirable programme had been provided, among the contributors being Miss Marie Dainton, Miss Margaret Cooper, Mr. Harry Lauder, Mr. Malcolm Scott, Mr. Murray Carson, Mr. R. H. Douglas, Mr. George Mozart, Francis (the cannon-ball juggler), Hill and Whittaker, and several other popular artists. Mr. A. Bond Sayers conducted the London Pavilion orchestra. Supper at the Hotel Cecil, at which many of the audience were present, brought the evening to a pleasant conclusion.

HIPPODROME.

When one looks around the gorgeously-decorated house in Cranbourn-street, it is impossible to repress a feeling of curiosity as to what an ancient Greek would have thought of the modern conception of a hippodrome. In one particular he would observe some similarity—that is in the tier upon tier of gaily-dressed spectators; the rigid classic beauty of the marble benches, from which he was in the habit of protecting the angularities and his person by a self-provided cushion or carpet, has given place to the most luxuriously upholstered easy-chairs, while there have been introduced into the working of the whole house mechanical devices of which Archimedes never dreamed. The environment would be an even more striking contrast. The sooty pall of London smoke and the garish hustle of Leicester-square would present a weird change from the verdant groves of Attica, with the ultramarine of the Ægean shimmering in the distance. But we must do the best we can, and the best of Mr. Stoll is, in the words of a song, "Very, very good."

To the programme. In Mr. A. D. Robbins one must believe that the ne plus ultra of trick cycling has been reached. He seems to possess an absolute control over his machine, and it is a matter of indifference to him whether he is riding backwards or forwards, on one wheel or on two. His evolutions on a tandem are even more perfect. Gaumont's chrono-megaphone grows in popularity. The operators seemed to have arrived at perfection in the matter of attuning the megaphone to the moving scene on the screen. The coon song "Every little helps" excites genuine merriment, while the troubles which a French statesman newly-elected to office suffers from the energetic persecutions of reporters and photographers make one thank one's stars that one is only a humble taxpayer. Alfred Agoust is a comedy juggler who combines a wonderful amount of manual dexterity with no little histrionic humour. Mariedl, the tallest woman in the world, continues to delight the audience by her condescension in stooping to shake hands with numbers of them. Tina Clementina is a graceful equestrienne, whose figure is seen to advantage in the saddle of a beautiful mare which she has trained to a wonderful degree of dexterity. She also introduces a number of deerhounds, fox-terriers, and dachshunds, which she has succeeded in training with remarkable results. De Gracia's performing elephants are mightily appreciated by the juvenile section of the audience, as well as by their elders; and the Schenk Brothers distinguish themselves as head-and-hand balancers. Payen, the mysterious gymnast and auto-pierrot, introduced by Miss Lucie, arouses interest and wonderment; and the Moulier Sisters take part in skilful fashion in an attractive bar-act.

Speedy, the high diver, extorts breathless attention while he plunges from some point far above the auditorium into the flooded arena. The liability to injury in such feats can only be countenanced on the ground that the almost certain exactitude of the performer nullifies the risk. The Clement Trio consist of two ladies and a gentleman, who give a clever trapeze and gymnastic display. The feat of one of the ladies supporting her two companions by her teeth is one of marvellous strength, skill, and endurance. The Stein Erretto Family are a talented troupe of table jumpers and vaulters, and into their act they introduce a considerable element of humour. The popularity of the American Bioscope is perennial, due to the fact that it is constantly presenting new scenes. The pictures showing the escapades of two tomboys are really very funny. Browning and Wally give an excellent account of themselves as acrobats. The Hippodrome's dramatic spectacle, The Typhoon, continues to elicit the admiration of visitors to that house; indeed, it is not too much to say that it is to see this production that the greater part of the audience visits the house. The mechanical details of this wonderful scene appear to work even more perfectly than ever, and there is a hush over the house when the elements combine with the bursting of the ship's boilers to plunge the doomed ship and its passengers into eternity. Mr. Cecil Morton Yorke continues to act the part of a British skipper with a considerable degree of fidelity; and Mr. Harrison Brockbank is sufficiently gallant as the rescuer of beauty in distress. Mr. Bert Gilbert as the bibulous Scots engineer has a considerable sense of dry humour. By his accent we should imagine that he hails from the "dark, sea-born city" on the banks of the Clutha, which is, of course, in keeping with the part he plays. Mr. J. G. Grahame as the wicked old Mandarin exhibits an amount of histrionic talent which should speak well for some future work on the legitimate stage. A visit cannot be paid to the Hippodrome without remarking the able efforts of Herr H. Erborn and his orchestra, whose performances enhance the attractiveness of the various turns.

MASONS AT WORK.

The regular meeting of the Chelsea Lodge of Freemasons was held at the Town Hall, Chelsea, on Friday last, Mr. Albert Le Fre, W.M., in the chair, supported by James W. Matthews, I.P.M., Serpentello, S.W., F. Clay, acting J.W., H. Heriot Hill (chaplain), Wolfe S. Lyon (treasurer), C. J. Doughty (secretary), Douglas White (acting S.D.), Harry Bawn, J.D.W., F. K. Walton, J.G., Angelo Asher (organist), and Messrs. E. Lester, G. Dyball, L. G. Sharpe, H. Mayville, W. Permane, F. Neiman, E. Brett, R. Duce, Burnetti, Geo. Graham, Herbert Austin, Atlas, G. H. Hill, Frank Hardie, A. Nicklen, Geo. Mozart. The visitors included Messrs. Chenery, Hofem, Benenith, Phillips, Brown, and Robertson.

The W.M. initiated Messrs. Wilding, Graydon, Dan Lipton, and Parker, advanced Messrs. Collinson, Dix, Fred Keeton, and Andie Cane, and completed the ceremony with Mr. B. Whiteley.

Mr. W. G. Moseley was elected a joining member; Serpentello was unanimously elected Master for the ensuing year; Mr. Wolfe S. Lyon was again elected treasurer; and Mr. McNaughton Tyler. The Benevolent Committee, and Trustees were also re-elected. A Pastmaster's jewel and a silver-gilt loving cup were voted to Mr. Albert Le Fre in recognition of his services as W.M. during the past year. A proposition by Mr. Wolfe S. Lyon to raise the entrance fee two guineas and the joining fee one guinea, such extra amounts to be devoted to Masonic charities, was unanimously adopted. At the conclusion of business the members adjourned to the neighbouring hotel for refreshment.

MR. CHAS. FISHER'S pocket opera company has never been heard or seen to greater advantage than this week at the Empress, Brixton, where delighted audiences have insisted upon a reappearance of the famous combination in front of the drop-curtain to repeat the grand finale to "The Music Master."

SHOWMEN will have unexcelled opportunities for their enterprise at the 700th anniversary of the Foundation of Liverpool, which will be celebrated under the presidency of the Lord Mayor of that city from Saturday, Aug. 3, to 10 (inclusive). The committee of the Festival invite tenders for spaces in Sefton Park Review Ground, Wavertree Playground, Recreation Ground in Rice-lane, Walton, the land forming portion of Walton Hall Estate, the land on north side of Lister Drive, and land on the Edge-lane Hall Estate, where the pageant will be held. Tenders must be sent to Edward R. Pickmere and Ramsay Muir, hon. secretaries, at the Town Hall, Liverpool, W.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

DEATH OF MR. H. J. CURRY.

After over a quarter of a century of theatrical management in the town of Grimsby, Mr. Henry James Curry died early on Monday morning at the age of 61. He was the founder of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Grimsby, and also of the Tivoli Variety Theatre, and held the position of chairman of directors of both houses. Mr. Curry was well known and widely respected among provincial theatrical circles, and a few years ago was presented with a handsome service of silver plate, to which all the leading touring managers subscribed.

The deceased gentleman had not been in robust health for the past few years, but still maintained an active part in the conduct of his business, and his demise was entirely unlooked for. Only as late as a week before his death he was in attendance at both his houses, but a chill, contracted during a visit to Manchester a few days previously, developed serious symptoms. As the week went on his condition became rapidly worse, congestion of the lungs set in, and he died, as stated, on Monday morning.

Mr. Curry first came to Grimsby in 1879, though prior to that he had been connected with the stage in a variety of ways. In his early days he was a member of a party of amateur players at Hull, and also gained prominence as one of the troupe of White Star Minstrels. He became associated with Mr. Sefton Parry, under whose management he played in stock companies. However, on settling in Grimsby he took possession of the Corporation Hotel, and conducted a concert room there. Encouraged by his success, he converted the Hall of Science into a variety theatre, and further prosperity led him to branch out on still more ambitious lines. He acquired a brick structure, used as a circus, which stood upon the site of the present Prince of Wales's Theatre, and ran music-hall programmes there. A year later he transformed it into a dramatic theatre, and then, in 1886, he laid the foundation of the present building. Into this venture he put all the energy at his command, and possessing, as he did, a keen appreciation of the requirements of the public of the day, success was established from the very beginning, and it was Mr. Curry's boast that the Prince of Wales's Theatre had never been closed for a single week since the day it was opened.

However, although the dramatic business established his reputation as a theatrical manager, Mr. Curry never lost his love for the variety stage. For years he entertained a scheme of building a variety theatre in Grimsby, and the idea materialised in June, 1905, when, exactly nineteen years after the founding of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, he commenced building the Tivoli, within a stone's throw of the Prince of Wales's. The Tivoli was opened the following Christmas, and has become an extremely popular house of entertainment.

Mr. Curry, it should be added, at one time took a prominent part in civic life. For several years he was a member of the Grimsby Town Council, and he also served on the School Board and Board of Guardians.

The funeral took place on Wednesday, and was attended by an exceptionally large number of the deceased's friends, including representatives of all the leading public and business institutions in the town. Tributes to his memory were sent by the staffs of the theatres, by local friends, and also by professional acquaintances from all parts of the country.

The deceased gentleman left a widow, four sons and a daughter, to whom many expressions of condolence have been tendered. His eldest son, Mr. J. H. Curry, who has been for some time the managing director, will continue to hold the reins of government of the Prince of Wales's and the Tivoli.

THE Moody-Manners Opera Company are giving a concert of operatic numbers, consisting of solos, duets, and choruses from the various operas in their répertoire, at the Royal Albert Hall, on Sunday evening, May 5, when the principals of the company will be supported by a chorus of 100 voices and an orchestra of fifty, made up of the two companies of the organisation. A programme of similar kind, it may be remembered, was given under the auspices of the National Sunday League at the Queen's Hall and the Alhambra Theatre some time ago with much success.

"THE GREEN-ROOM BOOK" for 1907, which was published on Monday, is a most valuable work of reference for all who are interested in any way with the drama. The bulk of the volume consists of biographies of all the leading actors, dramatists, and critics of the day brought down to the most recent times, with numerous full-page portraits of the "stars" of the stage. The appendices comprise an editorial review of the dramatic year; also a special review of the Vedrenne-Barker régime at the Court; a full account of the Ellen Terry jubilee celebrations; a synopsis of London playbills for 1906; the French and German theatres in London; new plays in New York, Paris, and Berlin; thirty-eight genealogical tables of well-known theatrical families; interesting articles; "Dramatic Critics and Criticisms," by J. T. Grein and the managing-editor; green-room gleanings in the Law Courts, comprising leading theatrical law cases and judgments of the year; a full list of the theatrical clubs, institutions, and charities of London and New York; a special article by a member of the London Stock Exchange, with table showing capital, dividends for five years, and prices of shares of thirty theatre and music-hall companies; lists of London and provincial theatres and halls; theatrical variety and concert agents, with practical advice to stage aspirants; box-plans of forty London theatres; and obituary for the year. The theatrical library is certainly incomplete without this carefully-compiled year-book. The publishers are Messrs. T. Sealey Clark and Co., Ltd., 1, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Mr Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

MISS VIOLET FULTON is producing on Monday, at the Empress, Brixton, a new sketch, entitled Varna's Revenge, written by Mr. Fred S. Jennings, who will support this able actress in a part that is specially suited to her gifts. Miss Fulton, it will be remembered, played the interesting, but complex character of Zaza with great success, and her acting at the Théâtre des Capucines, Paris, met with marked favour.

DUCHESS PALACE.

Newly papered throughout with a paper of bright red hue, the Duchess has now quite a gala appearance, and small wonder is it that Manager Ross's face is fairly wreathed in smiles. The ball is started rolling in no half-hearted fashion by Charles Vincent, who sings a capital song, the chorus of which is made up of the names of several songs which are very cleverly strung together. Fun of the right sort is being provided by the Six Brothers Luck, who are presenting their amusing farce, Blazes; or, The Lightning Fire Brigade. From the moment that these comedians appear the fun waxes fast and furious, and they fairly make the audience shriek with laughter. The Three Prestons are making one of their periodical visits here with their laughable sketch, entitled The Liftman's Rise, which is certainly going as well as ever. The comicalities of the supposed liftman are the cause of endless laughter, and he proves himself to be a comedian of considerable merit.

A prominent place in the bill is this week taken by Miss Maud Odell, better known as Galatea or La Statue Humaine. She is presenting a number of beautiful poses, which are most artistic. Amongst others, she is giving Sapho, "Le Miroir de Bacchus," "La Vérité," Yugent, Artemis, "The Dancer" after Tadolini, Helen of Troy, "La Fortune," and Galatée. One of the most interesting items on the programme this week is the Bioscope, which is giving a series of pictures depicting last Saturday's great football match at the Crystal Palace. These have a most enthusiastic reception, and are eagerly followed from start to finish. Jordan and Harvey, the Hebrew comedians, are again delighting Balhamites with their most amusing patter. They start their performance by singing an excellent parody on "Moving Day," Victoria Monks's successful song, and conclude with a splendid number, entitled "Every little bit helps." The Australian twin sisters Anderson start their performance with an amusing song, entitled "Oh, Mister, let me tell you when the music starts." Afterwards they treat us to some very clever and original dancing, their skipping-rope dance especially being quite out of the ordinary. Elton and Edwin show themselves to be banjoists well above the average, and delight all by the clever manner in which they perform on these instruments. Harry Clifford, a comedian, is singing a sympathetic song about "My Little Missus is worth her weight in gold," which gains for him much applause. Fred Spencer, an expressionist, sings a couple of songs, that entitled "This way" being most interesting. He then gives a couple of capital imitations. The first is how a boy received a pennyworth of electricity. The second is the same boy who has been sent by his mother to buy a couple of eggs. Throughout both of these his facial expressions are excellent, which shows that he must have spent some considerable period of time to get them to this pitch. Mr. Ross, the popular manager, continues to increase the number of his friends in the front of the house by his careful study of their requirements, and is now being assisted by Mr. Blight, of Islington fame. One thing that is noticeable at this popular theatre of varieties is the splendid manner in which the stage-manager, Mr. Saunders, discharges his duties.

FRIENDS of Mr. Walter T. Clifford may be interested to know that he is now manager of a typewriting company at Bradford. During the last twelve months he has been especially successful with the profession, Messrs. Paul Cinquevalli, Harry Tate, George Gray, Bates Maddison, Ryder Slone, Glenville and Osmond, Watson Mill, Carthage, Calcleugh, Percy Norman, Ivan Goré, and many others being numbered amongst his customers.

X. BAZIN'S
is the result of much study of the cause and problem of destroying these growths without injury to the skin, or leaving a scar or the slightest disfigurement.
There is no necessity for any woman whose refinement and good breeding have made her sensitive about these unfortunate marks to be subjected to the pain of electrical treatment and the consequent eruptions.
X. Bazin's Depilatory Powder is absolutely safe, and destroys the hair without pain—a simple dainty way of effecting a cure.
The great skill and science employed in the compounding of X. Bazin's Depilatory Powder make it absolutely safe and reliable.
If some former remedy has been tried without success, it is because the right powder was not applied.

THE SCALA LIONS.

DR. DISTIN MADDICK raises a curious question in a letter which he has sent us about the "lions" in the production of The Judgment of Pharoah at the Scala Theatre last Saturday. There is no doubt that these interesting animals were, to many present, of the nature of a disappointment. The very ability of the author contributed to this result. When we learnt, at the end of the second act, that the hero was to be exposed to almost certain death in the "Haunt of Lions," expectation was on tip-toe all through the "interval." The reputation of the King of Beasts for untameable ferocity has, it is true, a little declined of late. We have seen him dealt with wholesale at the Hippodrome, slapped ignominiously, and put to bed in revolving boats; and in "another place" ladies have carried him off the stage wrapped round their necks like a fulvous "boa." It seemed only another step to his being trained to "savage" an actor without really hurting him. Certainly at the Scala on Saturday the growling "off" was done admirably. It was just the sort of uneasy, dissatisfied noise that a lion might make when kept waiting for his dinner. Then came on two "shadowy beings," as Doctor JOHNSON called the Cock Lane ghost. They were all right about the heads, which were magnificent; it was the legs and the walk that "gave them away." The legs of the lion are thick and ponderous, his fore-limbs being almost "bolstery." The Scala lions' legs are thin, and they walk with a brisk and casual air. We found absolutely nothing to object to in the tails, which were, in truth, most illusive.

Dr. MADDICK, in his remonstrance, says:

"The fact that the Scala lions are not 'real' seems to have given great offence to some critics. Did anyone seriously expect our lions to be 'real?' Did they suppose that Mr. Brandon Thomas was a real Pharaoh, or Mr. Fernandez a real Hebrew patriarch? Was Sir Henry Irving ever a real Becket, or Mr. Tree a real Nero. The very essence of acting is unreality. The moment it becomes real it ceases to be acting. The valley of Rephaim, the Palace of Pharus, the Temple of Osiris, and, last but by no means least, our beautiful Sphinx are not real. Everything connected with The Judgment of Pharaoh is, and is intended to be, acting. Why raise such a hullabaloo over the two handsome canine members of our company?"

We submit that Dr. MADDICK misses the point here entirely. Take one of the examples which he gives—that of Mr. FERNANDEZ as the venerable Hebrew. Everybody knew it was Mr. FERNANDEZ; but what a splendid wig and beard he had! Dr. MADDICK may say, "So had the 'lions.'" Exactly, but Mr. FERNANDEZ'S legs were not visible, being concealed by flowing garments; whereas the legs of the lions were patently canine. Could not the boardhounds be clad in complete suits of lion skin, or some imitation thereof? This would impede their movements, and give them something of the massive deliberation with which the real lion moves his limbs.

The reception given to the "lions" on Saturday was painful to us, as well-wishers to the enterprise; and we say nothing about it in our notice. But, now that the thing has been brought into the sphere of public discussion, we feel free to speak. Dr. MADDICK, in the same letter from which we have quoted, says:

"Another note struck by some of the critics is the apparent remissness of the lions in that they pass by the prostrate figure of Jevan, and devour the Assyrian woman Mione. The young Hebrew is under the protection of the God of Israel, who shows his power by protecting him from the jaws of the hungry beasts; Mione, on the other hand, in spite of the imaginary powers of her god Osiris, is devoured. It will thus be seen how very unjustly our lions have been treated by some of our friends."

Of course, it is open to those who prefer to accept the supernatural explanation offered by the proprietor of the Scala to do so; but there is a much more obvious one—i.e., that the lions had become epicures from the number of criminals of both sexes who had been exposed in their "haunt," and knew well the difference between a plump, though mature, concubine and a wiry and athletic young Hebrew. There is nothing stranger in their action than there is in that of an elderly gentleman who neglects a tough fowl for the sake of a spring chicken.

We feel certain that there is "money in" this lion incident. In the last generation, a Monsieur MARTIN appeared at Drury Lane Theatre in a piece called Hyder Ali; or, The Lions of Mysore. In one scene, M. MARTIN, who played a Hindoo fighting on the side of the English, was attacked by Hyder Ali's troops. Two great lions stood at bay on either side of him; and, as the men advanced with spears, flew at them like fiends. The applause was deafening, as much for the soldiers as the lions, the audience wondering what could make the "supers" so marvellously valiant. The explanation was simple. There was a network of wire, fine but very strong, between the brutes and the soldiers, the lighting being so well arranged that the "screen" was invisible from the auditorium. When the spears went through, the lions were taught to seize them and shiver them to splinters, to the intense excitement of the audience.

Another ingenious expedient was adopted by Mr. GEORGE—now "Lord"—SANGER in a production of The Forest of Bondy at the Folies-Bergère, Paris, some years since. An elaborate scene of tropical forestry, with trees, creepers, lianes, &c., had been painted on "profile." The apertures between the foliage, made too small to admit a lion's body, were cut out; and, at the back of the scene, was constructed, out of iron gas-piping, an elaborate framework, hidden, of course, by the apparent foliage. The hero and the heroine came on, wandering in the forest. Then the growling of the lions was heard, near at hand. Anxiety and terror on the part of the lady; defiance on that of her champion. She begs to be assisted up into a tree; he obeys, but scorns to take such ignominious refuge. On come the lions, ravening for his blood. "Back, back, brutes!" exclaims the hero, aweing them by the power of the human eye. The onward rush of the animals is stayed. The lions can come no "forrarder." They are spellbound; and so is the audience.

We do not presume to dictate to the management of the Scala as to the solution of this great lion difficulty. We merely throw out a few suggestions, hoping that an "effect" which now leaves, perhaps, a little to be desired, may be turned into what the French call the clou of the picturesque and interesting play.

"THE BAILIFF."

Sketch, by Messrs. Karno, Kitchen, and Durell, produced at the Hippodrome, Wigan, on Friday, April 19.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

In connection with the visit of Mr. Fred Karno and company to the Hippodrome, Wigan, last week a new sketch, which seems to be an elaboration of the popular Moses and Son, was produced. The highly diverting little play had a most welcome reception. The story illustrates the Shylock-like instincts of a moneylender, who persists in extracting the uttermost farthing from his victim. Just at the time he is straining the process of the law to the farthest limit, his chief clerk and lady typist are leaving for their honeymoon with the blessing of their employer and a cheque for £2 2s. as a wedding present. The couple leave their furnished house in charge of a caretaker, and soon after their departure the wife of the debtor vainly pleads for lenience. The bailiffs are instructed to take possession, but the clerks in the office, pitying the distressed woman, make her a money present, and, it is presumed, alter on the face of the warrant the number of the house to be entered to correspond with that of the bride and bridegroom who reside in the same street. The consequent mix-up and its effects can be "better imagined than described." The futile attempts to enter the house owing to the careful instructions given to the wide-awake caretaker by the bride are most entertaining, various disguises are assumed all to no purpose, until Meredith, the assistant bailiff, who prides himself on his genteel appearance and "good looks," making a "clean breast" of his intention, at once captivates the "slavey," and the three of them have a high old time of it. In due course the "things" are gathered together in the drawing-room and sold by auction by the chief bailiff. This scene is very realistic, and a very satisfactory "sale" is portrayed. The climax is reached on the arrival, towards the close of the proceedings, of the bride and bridegroom, who thus find their new home broken up.

It will be seen that there is plenty of scope for such clever comedians as Mr. Fred Kitchen as Perkins (chief bailiff) and Mr. Albert Bruno as Meredith (assistant bailiff), and as the sketch bristles with most laughable incidents these are made the most of. Mr. H. Landeck takes the part of Moses; and Miss Aggie Morris is a very astute caretaker. The bride and bridegroom are ably represented by Mr. T. Ellis Buxton and Miss Jessie Crammond, and Mrs. Pendlebury, the wife of the debtor, is pathetically portrayed by Miss Madge Rockingham.

THE SOTHERN-MARLOWE SEASON.

"THE SUNKEN BELL,
A Fairy Play, in Five Acts, from Gerhart Hauptmann, freely rendered into English verse by Charles Henry Meltzer, Original Music, including the Preludes and Intermezzos, by Aimé Lachaume, produced at the Waldorf Theatre, on Monday, April 22.

Mr. E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe come to us with high credentials from across the sea, and the welcome extended to them at the Waldorf on Monday evening was typical of the cordial feeling that is always shown by London playgoers to distinguished artists. Both of them have earned high reputations in productions of the Bard. It was therefore a matter of surprise that they did not open in this, the week devoted to Shakespearean celebrations, with one of his plays. They chose, however, to make their début in the fairy play The Sunken Bell, an English version of Gerhart Hauptmann's Die Versunkene Glocke, freely translated by Charles Henry Meltzer. The play-poem, which is mostly in rhymed couplets, presents a most interesting phase of the German playwright's philosophy; it possesses a subtle symbolism that would perhaps be more definitely fathomed in the study; anyhow, its dreaminess and mystic beauty appeal rather to the æsthetic and highly-cultured section of an audience than to the ordinary playgoer. We are in the realms of elves, pixies, wood sprites, and witches; we move in a romantic atmosphere; our senses are captured by impressive music, beautiful scenery, and occasionally powerful imagery; but the dramatic moments do not come until nearly the end of the play—somewhat too late, it seemed on Monday, to revive the interest that had been languidly stimulated in the earlier portions of the piece. In a foreword to his translation of the play Mr. Metzler writes:—

"Look at the story of The Sunken Bell with the eye of an artist, and you may take it as a parable showing the eternal effort of all artists (typified in Heinrich) to attain their æsthetic ideals. View the play from the standpoint of the reformer, and you may interpret it as the tale of the dreamer who, hampered by inevitable conditions, strives to remodel human society. For my own part I incline to regard Heinrich, the bell-founder, as a symbol of Humanity struggling painfully towards the realisation of its dream of the ideal truth and joy of light and justice. Rautendelein in this reading stands for Nature, or, rather, for the freedom and sincerity of Nature, missing a reunion with which Humanity can never hope to reach the supreme truth and the supreme bliss of which the Sun is the emblem. In Magda, the poor, faithful, patient wife, whose dead hand, in the tragical fourth act, tolls the bell that arouses Heinrich from his dream, we have a symbol of the domestic loves, the earthly ties, from which no man, however noble and far-reaching be his aims, can be released. Old Wittikin embodies the eternal, passionless, philosophy of Life. The Vicar, the Barber, and the Schoolmaster stand for the conventions—the half-dead, half-living creeds, theories, and superstitions of society, which stand in the way of the idealist. Heinrich makes the attempt to break with them. Filled with despair at the failure of his old ideals (symbolised in the lost bell), and enlightened by communion with Rautendelein, he turns his back on all the shams, and alas! on some of the realities, which bind him to earth. The kiss of the fair elf who heals him when he lies upon his sick-bed broadens his vision, steels his hand, puts youth into his soul. Only by a mystical union with the Nature which society, as it is now constituted, has disowned, can he 'work wonders with the power on high' and fashion the grand peal of bells which is to ring out a new, glad, and merciful Gospel through the world."

Rautendelein, an elfin creature round whom the tragedy of the play revolves, queens it in a fir-clad glade in the mountains. The very soul of fairy fantasy sighs through the woods. Other inhabitants of this haunted region are the Nickelmann—a water sprite, who finds his home truths, apparently, at the bottom of a well—a wood-sprite or faun, and a beldame named Wittikin. To this fairy fastness comes the bell-founder, Heinrich, sorely hurt and sorrow-stricken. He had cast the most perfectly-toned bell in the world, and the master-work of his life has been hurled by the baleful influence of evil spirits into the mere, and he himself has fallen into an abyss, death being avoided by his grasp of a wild cherry tree growing from the rocks. Rautendelein is strangely human. Her woman's heart goes out to the wounded man in his distress, and something more than sympathy is enkindled in her bosom by the sound of his voice and the flattery of his tongue. He is borne away on a litter by the vicar, the schoolmaster, and the barber of his native village, and with his departure Rautendelein expresses her determination to go among the world of men.

Heinrich's is a sad home-coming. He no longer clings to life, and in a tender interview with his wife, Magda, he takes a last farewell. As she departs to secure the aid of one who is credited with miraculous cures there enters a young girl, who is mistaken by the good vicar for Anna, the dumb daughter of a neighbouring farmer. The girl speaks not until left alone with Heinrich. It is Rautendelein, who exercises potent spells, and by a kiss wakens the bell-founder to new life and new love. He forsakes Magda and his two children to pursue new ideals with his fairy mistress in the mountains. Here he works to 'make a chime "such as no minster in the world has seen." He answers the admonitions of his pastor with specious arguments, urged with kindliness. Since he lives anew, and loves her who did give him life, he has no resentment for the preacher's accusation that he is steeped to the neck in sin; but to his highly-wrought imagination there is something ominous in the warning to beware when he hears the sound of the sunken bell. In the fourth act, the most interesting and dramatic in the play, the phantoms of Heinrich's two children appear to him, and between them they carry an urn in which are enshrined the tears of their mother, "who is with the water lilies." Remorse now possesses the soul of the father, and as he hears the reverberation of the bell he realises that it is the hands of his dead wife who is sounding the knell of his hopes—the death-peal. In an agony of despair he casts from him Rautendelein. Sorrowfully she returns to the hill-tops, and sinks into the well to dwell with the water sprite. She is followed by Heinrich, who would see her once more. His wish is gratified, but the kiss of his loved one is now the kiss of death.

Miss Julia Marlowe plays with great charm and tenderness the elf-like Rautendelein, sounding a pathetic note in the touching farewell in the last act. The part, too, is one in which her beauty and sweet sensibility are found in delightful harmony with the creation of the poet, and she probes both the untrammelled joy and the agony of sorrow that poor Rautendelein feels when she seeks the world of men. Mr. E. A. Sothern is a scholarly and intellectual actor, and he shows a real understanding of the soaring ambition of Heinrich. He reaches the depths of tragedy in the final moments of the fourth act, when the crescendo of doom is symbolised by the clanging of the sunken bell. Here the music adds very materially and powerfully to the dramatic effect. Mr. Crompton is responsible for a dignified and virile sketch of the good Vicar; and the sorrow of Magda, the wife, is most heart-searching as limned by Miss Kruger. Miss Clifton is dramatically uncanny as Wittikin; Mr. Buckstone is effective as the Nickelmann; and Mr. Eric is an able and agile wood-sprite. Miss Alexander distinguishes herself in the small part of the neighbour; and the children are adequately played by Misses Betty and Freda Green. Mr. Aspland and Mr. Anderson, with the Misses Clement, Lamison, Sanford, and Hammond, add to the effectiveness of the production in minor characters.

On Wednesday was presented for the first time in this country Percy Mackaye's play, in five acts, "JEANNE D'ARC."

The story of the Maid of Domrémy—surely the most marvellous historical figure for all time—has not been seriously treated on the English stage since Tom Taylor, with the ostensible purpose of providing a picturesque part for the beautiful Mrs. Rousby, wrote Joan of Arc, which was produced at the Queen's Theatre on April 10, 1871. The piece was superbly mounted, and the portrait of Mrs. Rousby in "casque and tasses" exhibited everywhere. England has been more respectful to the memory of the militant maid than France, for did not Boileau satirise her? and—worse still—Voltaire treated her career with revolting coarseness. Southey, however, raved about her, and Schiller made her life a really interesting study. Mr. Percy Mackaye, the author of Jeanne D'Arc, the second play of the Sothern-Marlowe répertoire to be produced at the Waldorf, has treated the subject with considerable dramatic effect, and with the true feeling of a poet has disdained to rely on mere theatrical display. Thus the crowning of Charles VII. in the Cathedral of Rheim, which was a superb spectacle at the Queen's in 1871, is an event merely indicated by a procession across the stage; and the deliverance of Orleans is suggested only by alarums and excursions.

The opening scene is the ladies' tree at Domrémy, where the villagers are rejoicing. We hear the old legend of the Maid who is to save France, and Jeanne, who has had visions of St. Margaret and St. Catherine, is asked by her father to favour the suit of Colin, a shepherd, and to signify her acceptance of him by touching his shepherd's crook. She is about to do so when in its place appears a flaming sword. The author, it will be seen, emphasises very impressively the mystic element of the story. The high purpose of the heroine set forth with such simple directness thus early in the play, carries her to the court of Charles VII., the utterly weak and irresolute monarch, who is surrounded by a dissolute court, and is bankrupt in pocket. He is given up to luxury, and is very much under the domination of the Seigneur de la Trémouille. A better influence is that of Jean, Duke d'Alençon. At the instigation of Trémouille, a ruse is played upon Jeanne. The King changes places with D'Alençon, but the inspired Maid from among the crowd of nobles selects her beloved Dauphin, who recognises her claim to be the future saviour of France by the miraculous voice of the figure of the Emperor in the stained-glass window, who says:—"This is the Maid whom God hath sent to bring thy land and thee deliverance." The devotion of D'Alençon is suggested in the next scene—a meadow before the walls of Orleans, May 7, 1429. Jeanne leads her fighting men to the attack, and is wounded by an arrow. That the Maid cannot yield to an earthly love is shown in the next act, where D'Alençon, in one of the best passages in the play, watches the pucelle asleep, and hears her murmur his name. He is about to kiss her hand, when the winged form of St. Michael, holding a flaming sword, intervenes.

In the next act Jeanne enters Rheims in triumph, and a natural touch is given to the play by the expression of her joy as she kisses her father. Having kept her vow to God, she would return to Domrémy, but she must go to serve her good friends at Compiégne. The fifth act shows her in prison in Rouen, where D'Alençon, disguised as a monk, confesses his love. The Maid is again sustained by the murmuring voices of the saints, and as she goes forth to the stake the curtain falls.

There were but few acting opportunities for any of the cast except Miss Marlowe, whose simple dignity as the peasant maid made a deep impression on the house. The actress made it very clear by the quiet strength and restraint of her acting that Jeanne D'Arc was possessed with an abiding faith in her mission, and that her only ambition was to obey the voices that had filled her soul with the holiest fervour of patriotism. The more human side of Jeanne's nature was beautifully suggested in the last interview with D'Alençon in the dungeon, when her heart sinks at the thought of the terrible trial she is to undergo. Mr. Sothern's D'Alençon, the sceptic, whose soul is awakened to belief and love by the heroism of Jeanne, is cast in a minor key, and there was something of the ascetic in the actor's rendering of the part in the earlier acts. But the romance of the love of the noble for the peasant—a most interesting variation in the story as told by Mr. MacKaye—is very beautifully emphasised in the last act. Mr. Mawson as Trémouille, Mr. Buckstone as the rugged and faithful Gascon, La Hire, Mr. Lewis as Charles VII., Mr. Eric as Gerard, and Miss Kruger as Catherine de la Rochelle all showed conspicuous ability.

THE LATE DICK MANSELL.

Mr. Edward Compton, in sending a contribution to the "Dick Mansell Widow Fund," writes:—"I send you my cheque for one guinea. I only knew Mansell slightly, but I read with much regret of the straits to which he was reduced at the last, and the sad position in which the widow has been left. In regard to his meteoric career, and the many things he has been connected with, I have been surprised that no one has mentioned the fact that some thirty-five years ago (or it may be thirty-six or thirty-seven), he and (I think) his brother produced at the old Holborn Theatre a very literal, bald translation of the play of Kean, by Alexandre Dumas the elder. I was one of a very thin house on one night of its brief career, having, as a mere boy, stolen out and gone to the play; and, although there was very little to recommend the piece to English audiences, it yet lived in my memory so vividly that some dozen years ago I commissioned the late T. Edgar Pemberton to do me a very free adaptation of the piece, which he and I practically wrote together, though only his name appears. This I have been playing continuously in my répertoire since then, and am nearing the 300th performance.

"I may mention that in Mr. Mansell's cast the late Tom Swinburne played the part of Kean, and E. J. O'Dell—now still alive, and nearly ninety, I suppose—played the part of the old Prompter, created in my version by the late Lewis Ball. It is also interesting to note that in the original French play the part of Anna Danby was sustained by Mme. Sarah Bernhardt; she thus, I believe, making her first appearance on the regular stage. Both Salvini and Rossi played the piece in Italy a great deal, but, I believe, with the exception of the disastrous production of the Mansells which I have alluded to, I am the only English actor who has produced the work and played the part. I may say it is a great favourite with my audiences."

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.
On Monday, April 22, an adaptation of Charles Dickens'
"DAVID COPPERFIELD."

A highly interesting week's engagement was commenced here on Monday, when David Copperfield was played to a large and appreciative audience. Mr. Charles Cartwright appeared as Dan'l Peggotty, and once more proved himself an artist of exceptional ability, finished and unexaggerated. Mr. Lionel Belmore was good as Ham; Mr. Gerald Lawrence presented an excellent picture of Steerforth; Mr. Stanley Harrison was an earnest and capable David Copperfield; Mr. Charles Collette as Micawber exactly realises the hopeful head of the Micawber family; and Mr. A. B. Tapping was remarkably good as Uriah Heep. Miss Clarissa Selwynne made an effective Rosa Dartle; Miss Helen Vicary was an amusing Aunt Betsy Trotwood; Miss Gordon Walker was interesting as Agnes; and Miss Lillie Cavenagh played Martha well; Miss Lorna Lawrence was a delightful Little Emily, and must be congratulated on a charming performance. There are two matinées this week of David Garrick. Mr. Gerald Lawrence plays the title-rôle admirably. He is well suited by nature to characters of this type, as he possesses an attractive personality and a pleasing and well-managed voice; his impersonation of this famous part was very satisfactory, and won the enthusiastic applause of the audience. Mr. Charles Cartwright gave a sound and natural rendering of Simon Ingot, which added greatly to the success of the performance. Mr. Charles Collette was very good indeed as Squire Chivy, his drunken scene being particularly well acted; Mr. A. B. Tapping presented a capital character-sketch as Mr. Jones; Mr. Lionel Belmore was very good as Mr. Smith; Mr. D. Bryan was well placed as Mr. Browne; Miss Beatrice Grosvenor was capital as Mrs. Smith; and Miss Helen Vicary was as amusing Miss Araminta Browne. Miss Valerie Salsberg furnished a charming Ada Ingot—sympathetic and graceful. David Garrick was preceded by a farce, entitled Vandyke Brown, in which Miss Lorna Lawrence appeared to advantage as Rebecca; other parts being well played by Mr. Charles Collette and members of the company.

AT a special matinée at the Margate Hippodrome, on Tuesday, a new play, in four acts, entitled Needles and Pins, by Mr. Justin Huntly McCarthy, was produced for copyright purposes.

THE artists appearing at the Victoria Theatre, West Stanley, this week are giving a benefit performance in aid of Mrs. John Cassidy, widow of Mr. John Cassidy, late manager of the above place of amusement.

THE Prince and Princess of Wales visited the Comedy Theatre on Saturday evening and witnessed the performance of The Truth. The following evening the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, with Prince Arthur and Princess Patricia and suite, were present at the representation of The Lady Dandies, at Daly's Theatre; and on Thursday the Playhouse received a visit from the Prince and Princess Christian and Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, whose appreciation of Toddles was frequently manifested.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

The arbitration proceedings were adjourned on Thursday until Thursday next at 10.30, which, it is expected, will be the last day. At the sitting on Thursday the Managers concluded their reply to the Artists' case, and it was practically agreed that the award, so far as it affects the artists, shall be observed for a period of five years with one year's notice, on either side, making the period one of six years.

The Musicians and Stage Employees' representatives will submit their views on this matter to the arbitrators at the next sitting. It is understood they take the view that the question is outside the terms of reference and one for agreement, by consent, between the parties. The consent of the managers to reinstate the men not yet absorbed would considerably influence the action of the representatives of the Musicians and Stage Employees.

The matinée at the Palace on Tuesday on behalf of the widow and daughters of the late Mr. Charles Bertram was in every way a great success, over £1,000 being realised. We are requested to state that the subscription list is still open, and the hon. secretaries—Messrs. J. A. Harrison and R. E. Peacock—will be pleased to receive any small sums which may be sent to them at 33, Old Bond-street, W.

"The most palatial and up-to-date house of entertainment in the Metropolis" was the description given by the auctioneers of the Coliseum, which was offered at the Mart on Thursday by Messrs. Farebrother, Ellis, and Co. The room in which the property was offered is the largest in the building, but it did not suffice to hold the crowd.

Tied hand and foot as he was by the Chancery Court, the auctioneer was unable to start the bidding, or to divulge the reserve price until some offers had been made; but he had in his pocket a sealed envelope within which was written the price at which he could let the property go. The Coliseum had cost nearly £300,000. Would anyone start it at £200,000? At £100,000? At £50,000? After lingering awhile in the attempt to get a bid, the auctioneer said, "Well, gentlemen, I am sorry to say that I must report to the Court that there was no bid for the property. Thank you."

Mr. Maskelyne will shortly produce at St. George's Hall a spiritualistic sketch, up to date and far beyond it, entitled Spectres of the Sanctum. A series of extraordinary manifestations will be presented, including the £1,000 ghost, and human beings will be apparently disintegrated and passed through solid objects in view of the audience and in full light.

The jury, at the suggestion of the counsel engaged in the libel action brought by Archdeacon Colley against Mr. Maskelyne, turned up in force at St. George's Hall, on Wednesday evening, to see Mr. Maskelyne produce the lady from his side. Most of them came early, and it was well, for seats were at a premium. When Mr. Maskelyne himself appeared, a generous burst of applause greeted him. In his introductory speech Mr. Maskelyne told how thirty-five years ago he assisted to expose Miss Florence Cooke, and how he had never known any spirits to be produced which did not turn out to be either the medium himself or some confederate. The illusion was then performed. Although their duty was accomplished, the jury stayed to listen to Mr. Barclay Gammon and to witness the "Enchanted Hive."

Mr. Alfred Lester has not any part, as stated, in the new play at the Gaiety, where he has been amusing audiences as the Lost Policeman in The New Aladdin, and he has therefore been secured by Mr. Alfred Butt for a further period at the Palace in his new skit, A Restaurant Episode, which is a great hit. At the conclusion of his engagement there he will take a short and well-earned holiday.

The Cape to Cairo variety circuit should be a possibility in the near future. The Hyman Family have started in the south of the great continent, and now we understand that the Khedive is about to supply his capital with a palatial establishment, including a variety theatre to seat 2000 people, a smaller theatre for cinematograph displays, a concert-hall, a suite of club rooms, and a café restaurant to be conducted by the famous "Henri," of the Place Gaillon, Paris. His Highness has not yet entered into a working agreement with the Moss and Stoll Empires, though such an arrangement, we are certain, would be distinctly favourable to the new enterprise.

Miss Agnes Fraser and Mr. M. R. Morand, who were associated together in the original cast of The Earl and the Girl at the Adelphi and Lyric in 1904—the lady as Elphin Haye and the gentleman as the American solicitor Downham—are about to exploit a new musical comedy sketch, entitled When the Clock Strikes One. It will be played by them, supported by a special company, at the Granville, Walham Green.

In reply to a memorial from variety artists praying for a modification of the regulations of the Board as regards performing dogs which are landed in Great Britain in pursuance of licenses granted under the Importation of Dogs Order of 1901, the Board of Agriculture has expressed its regret that it is unable to accede to the memorialists' prayer, and does not consider that any useful purpose would be served by the reception of a deputation.

At the Empire on Monday two new turns will be introduced. These are the Perezoffs and Margit and Lehner. The Perezoffs (seven in number) come to us with a great Continental reputation. All are brilliant comedy jugglers, their turn being on the lines of the famous Agoust family. Margit and Lehner are a pair of droll knockabout eccentrics, whose turn is packed with really clever fooling. The beautiful "Living Pictures" have only another week to run previous to their transference to the American variety theatres.

The great esteem in which both Miss Vesta Victoria and Miss Alice Lloyd are being held by the American public, and the widespread interest in their performances just now, could not be better exemplified than by quoting from a foremost New York authority, who writes as follows in a leading organ:—"Speaking of Miss Vesta Victoria and Miss Alice Lloyd, it is an impossibility, after hearing both singers, not to make a comparison between them. The primary reason for this is because they are the most entertaining singers of comic songs ever imported from London, and because they represent a type new to Americans. Their methods as to diction, distinctness, and proper emphasis are largely similar. Miss Victoria goes in for the eccentric in make-up and song, and doesn't care what liberties she takes with her good looks, while Miss Lloyd, on the other hand, wears beautiful gowns, and, with perhaps one exception, selects only dainty songs that do not require a Cockney trick-out."

"Sir Roger de Coverley," it has now been definitely decided, will be produced on Monday, May 6. The scenario of the new ballet is by Adrian Ross, the music by Dr. Osmond Carr. Rehearsals are now rapidly proceeding, and the final scene at Vauxhall promises to be a most interesting feature of the Empire new productions.

Chappell's Promenade Concerts at Great Yarmouth (three shows daily) will commence on Monday, June 17, under the management of Mr. Harry Barker. The proprietress is Mrs. S. Lawton, daughter of the late Mr. James Chappell.

Mr. Edward Foster, of the Bordesley Palace, has just received marked preferment for his substantial merits and deserts, Mr. Oswald Stoll having promoted him to the resident-managership of the newly-acquired Grand Theatre, Birmingham. Mr. Foster is the son of the late Major Foster, Royal Marine Artillery (Crimean veteran), is a public school man, and speaks French and Italian fluently. He has travelled through India and the Far East with theatrical répertoire companies, playing in Florodora, The French Maid, The Gay Parisienne, The Geisha, San Toy, The Belle of New York, and The Runaway Girl, &c.

Mr. Foster joined Moss' Empires six years ago as assistant-manager for Mr. Stoll, who placed him at the Holloway and Stratford Empires, and latterly and since September, 1903, at Bordesley Palace, where by "strict attention to business" and by his many other excellent and pleasant qualities, he has made many friends, who are rejoiced at his promotion.

The entertainment world has lost two striking figures by the deaths of Mr. William Morgan, of the Scarborough Aquarium, and Mr. H. J. Curry, of Grimsby. The former started life in a very humble capacity, and then became bookstall attendant at Bradford. By dint of hard work he became part proprietor of the local theatre, but all his savings were lost when the place was destroyed by fire. He persevered, however, and ended in making a fortune out of his theatrical ventures, spread over a period of fifty years.

Mr. Leo Dryden has been caused intense annoyance and put to great inconvenience by a swindler, named George Rogers, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment on Tuesday for fraud practised on Mrs. Asquith, a theatrical landlady of Dewsbury. Prisoner represented himself as Mr. Leo Dryden, who was announced to appear at the Theatre Royal, Dewsbury, with a variety company. Mrs. Asquith agreed to take him on terms as a lodger, and when he returned at night he brought a lady with him, who, he said, was the sister of Miss Ada Colley, another artist "billed" with this week's company, and she remained at the house. The next day he borrowed a half-sovereign, saying he would give a cheque for it, but failed to do so. The prisoner, who had an exceptionally bad record, had rendered himself liable for conviction for failing to report himself as a ticket-of-leave man.

It seems surprising that such a fraud should have been possible; and had more discernment and discretion been shown by the landlady, Mr. Dryden would have been saved the intense irritation he must have felt in having to deny the outrageous imputations of a rank impostor.

The directors of the Pavilion, Glasgow, on Friday, the 19th, declared an interim dividend of 15 per cent. payable on May 1.

Some important alterations and improvements recently carried out at the Palace Theatre, Aberdeen, have considerably increased the seating capacity of that fine hall. During the summer further improvements will be effected at great cost by the United County Theatres Co., whose patrons in the Granite City will have nothing to desire in the way of comfort.

An "extra turn" of great interest to Sheffielders was seen at the Empire, Sheffield, at the second house on Monday, when the Wednesday football team, the winners of the Association Cup on Saturday last at the Crystal Palace, came on to the Empire stage to display the much-prized trophy. The players had previously been entertained to dinner at the Town Hall by the Lord Mayor. Mr. Alan D. Dunbar had made excellent arrangements, and the players and their well-known supporters were received with uproarious enthusiasm. Mr. Alan Dunbar was also loudly cheered.

Mr. Leoni Clarke (the Cat King), mine host of The Two Brewers Hotel, Northampton, having made important contracts for touring America with his Royal Cat Show, has sold his lease of the above premises.

Mr. P. D. Elbourne, resident-manager of the Birmingham Hippodrome, has again been doing good work in the cause of charity. It is only a few weeks ago—on Good Friday—that he succeeded in gaining £40 for the Railwaymen's Orphan and Benevolent Fund, and on Sunday last he eclipsed all the Hippodrome's previous efforts for charity by gathering in nearly £80. The present occasion was a sacred concert promoted by Mr. Elbourne and arranged by Mr. W. Crabtree, the Hippodrome's chef d'orchestra, in aid of the local charities, and which received assistance from much of the musical talent of the town.

"When the Cat's Away," a new and original sketch by Nita Rae, was produced on the 19th with great success at the Tivoli, Manchester. It was capitally and brightly played by Messrs. Fred Little, Sydney Russell, William Matthews, and Misses Bertha St. Ruth and Nita Langdon.

"Jedovka," a new sensational sketch, was produced at a matinée on April 17 at the Palace Theatre, Manchester. The plot revolves round Moshka, a Jew soldier in the Russian army, who saves the life of Evanknoff, his commanding officer, who is under the ban of Anarchists. To reward Moshka for his devotion, Evanknoff invites the soldier and his wife to spend an evening at his house. Rachel is beautiful, and inflames the passion of the officer, who makes attempts to induce her to surrender her honour, and has her husband arrested. Moshka eventually escapes, and kills the libertine in a duel. Mr. John Clempert, the author, played Moshka.

Mr. Julius Simpson, manager of the Palace, West Hartlepool, who was recently entertained at a banquet at the Grand Hotel in that town, was incidentally presented with a gold watch in recognition of his efforts on behalf of local charity.

Owing to the enormous success last week at the Grand Theatre, Brighton, Mr. Ernest Carpenter made arrangements at great expense to retain Dr. Walford Bodie for another week. The Grand has been packed nightly with the élite of Brighton, and the local Press have spoken highly in praise of the Doctor, who has been daily inundated with letters of congratulation. Miss Jenie Jacobs, the well-known American variety agent, has just offered the doctor forty-one weeks' tour in the States at the biggest salary ever paid to any artist who has yet visited America.

At the Central Hall, Sheffield, excellent business is being done under the able and experienced direction of Mr. Jasper Redfern, whose vaudeville and animated picture entertainments draw crowded houses nightly. This week's programme, in addition to realistic pictures of Sheffield Wednesday winning the Football Cup at the Crystal Palace, is contributed to by Miss Mavis in a pleasing musical act, Mr. James Elyo (descriptive vocalist), and Mr. N. C. Bostock, comedian.

The L.C.C. have objected to the plans for the proposed reseating of the Putney Hippodrome.

Mr. Dick Knowles, as we foreshadowed in these columns last week, is to return to London, and will fulfil an engagement at the Palace in June.

The London Pavilion Cricket Club hopes to commence its season at Tufnell Park on Wednesday, May 1, when the Pavilion orchestra will play the "front of the house" staff.

A special matinée at the Bedford was given on Thursday in aid of the Children's Seaside Holiday Home. Mr. B. Pearce Lucas, who is interesting himself in the charity, hopes to hand over a goodly sum.

Mr. Frank Macnaghten was presented with a handsome solid silver tea and coffee service and tray on the 18th in the Board-room of the Palace, Halifax. The presentation was made on behalf of the directors and friends by Mr. R. W. Evans.

Miss Lelia Roze has had a great reception at the Edinburgh Theatre Royal during the week in her beautiful scena, A Dressing-room Dream. This fascinating actress is to be congratulated on having something original and up to date to place before the public.

My Fancy is unable to answer to her number at the Syndicate halls this week, being prostrated with a severe attack of influenza, contracted while she was on tour. We wish the popular lady a speedy recovery.

Miss A. Lucas, the daughter of Mr. B. Pearce Lucas, the proprietor of the Hastings Hippodrome as well as the Empire, Bristol, and the Bedford, has been celebrating her twenty-first birthday. She was much gratified at the gift of a beautiful umbrella from the staff of the south-coast house.

The Oxford announces for Monday the special engagement of Radford and Valentine, American grotesques, in their novelty juggling act; and De Vry's famous living statuary. Little Tich continues to convulse huge Oxford audiences with "The park-keeper."

Mr. John Lawson, who has specially engaged Miss Buena Bent to create the leading rôle in The Unwritten Law on May 6 at the Holborn Empire, has secured a cast of exceptional strength for that production, including two well-known members of the "legitimate" stage. The scenery is in the able hands of Mr. Francis Bull.

Mrs. John Lawson will be found next week at the Canterbury and Euston, with The Devil's Sunday. This strong episode has been on the halls for the past five months, and its drawing powers are such that it is well booked into 1908. Mrs. Lawson's rendering of the faithless wife remains as perfect as ever.

The annual general meeting of the Terriers' Association was held on Thursday at the Three Stags, Kennington-road, Mr. Jesse Sparrow, the president of the fraternity, occupying the chair. There was a good attendance of members, and Mr. Harry Lester, the secretary, was highly complimented on the successful balance-sheet presented.

Miss Julie Mackey was the appellant in an action brought by her against Mr. George Edwardes, which affected her right to sing in public "Under the bamboo tree." The appeal was from a refusal of Mr. Justice Bigham to grant a declaration that the plaintiff was entitled to sing the song in question. The case was part heard on Wednesday, and is proceeding at the time we are going to press.

Mr. Jack Woolf will present at the Queen's, Poplar, next week, Mr. Henry Herne and company (including Miss Ida Millais) in A Dark Secret, the water sketch written and invented by Mr. John Douglass. It will be elaborately mounted.

Mr. John Kurkamp, who is known as the singing conductor, is producing at the Metropolitan on Monday an artistic musical act, entitled The Harmonious Fairy Shell. In this will be introduced four 'cellos, one harp, flute, and double bass. The novelty will be under the direction of Mlle. Strebelli.

Vasco, who is now in America, is delighted with the success that he has met with there, and the originality of his show with its quaint setting has appealed very strongly to the Yanks. He was recently made a member of the "White Rats" fraternity, the most powerful organisation of variety artists on the other side. He leaves for England on June 12 to fulfil his Continental engagements.

Mr. Leslie Holland is for the nonce deserting musical comedy, and is making his first appearance on the variety stage. With Miss Vera Vere he is producing a new comedy duologue, A Side-Slip, by Herbert C. Sargent, at the Richmond Theatre on Monday.

Mr. Ben Nathan (late of Ashton's Royal Agency) has joined forces with Day's Agency, Effingham House, Arundel-street, Strand.

Among the many eminent artists who will appear this (Saturday) evening at the fourth annual Café Chantant given by Miss Kathleen Mayer, the well-known Society entertainer, at the Wharncliffe Rooms, Hotel Great Central, are Mesdames Alice Esty, Gertrude Lonsdale, Alice Hollander, and Margaret Holloway, and Messrs. MacKenzie Fairfax, Charles Copland, Walter Wheatley, Barclay Gammon, and Dr. Lulek.

Carl Lynn, the king of animal imitators, owing to his enormous success, has been retained at the Alhambra, for which theatre he has also received offers for next year.

Mr. Howard L. Tracy is the latest recruit to the halls. At the termination of Are You a Mason? tour he joined Mr. Syd. Cotterell in his sketch The Substitute, which is appearing at the principal suburban halls for the next five weeks.

The Mr. Zeitz, of Croydon, who met with a regrettable accident whilst engineering cinematograph films, is not one of the Brothers Zietz, nor is he a relative of that well-known professional family.

Mr. A. S. Harris, who had to resign his position at the Empire, Swansea, through ill-health, has just returned to England after a three months' sojourn in the South of France and Italy, having greatly benefited by the change.

Mons. Slippere, the well-known blind entertainer, has been receiving quite an ovation at the Belfast Empire. On several occasions the stalls audience broke through their usual reserve, and actually asked for more.

The latest quotations for music hall shares are as follows:—Alhambra, 1½; Canterbury, ½; Empire (15s. paid), 1⅛; Empire (10s. paid), 1⅛; London Pavilion Ord., 4⅛; London Pavilion Pref., 5; London Coliseum, ½; Metropolitan, ⅝; Moss Empire, 4⅞; Moss Empire 5 per cent. Pref., 4½; Oxford, 6⅛; Palace, 12s.; Tivoli, 5½; Variettes Consolidated Theatres, 12s. 6d.

Miss Florence Elliott and Chicklets, whose success at the Bedford last week was so pronounced, open on Monday at the Duchess, Balham.

Mr. Adolph Tressidder, the stage-manager of the London Pavilion, whose wife died recently, has been deeply touched by the sympathy shown him in his great trouble, and he feels sure all will forgive his inability to reply individually.

Datas was asked by Mr. Joseph Wilson to deputise on Tuesday evening for Mr. Harry Randall at the Tivoli, where the famous memory man was warmly welcomed.

Mr. Tom Evans, one of the Four Royal Welshmen, who were appearing at the Nottingham Empire last week, gallantly rescued a little boy of three years from drowning in the River Trent.

Mr. G. Dezmonti, of Dezmonti and Mora, the well-known bar performer, is retiring from the profession in consequence of an illness from which he has lately been suffering. Mora, the comedy man of the team, is therefore at liberty to join another partner.

Miss Rachel Lowe and her "Lucky Duck" "Hoppy" are making their first appearance at the Empire, Portsmouth, this week, and scoring a decided success with the crowded audiences. Miss Lowe has been spending some time in Paris, where she will shortly present another of her novelty songs in French. The "Lucky Duck" has also been adapted, and will be one of the items of her Parisian répertoire.

Mr. Alfred Butt will reintroduce, on May 6, at the Palace Mr. Horace Goldin, who is now preparing a number of new "ideas" for the delectation of the public, with whom he is so popular. Spissel Brothers and Mack will, on the same evening, make their début in this country with a novel comedy acrobatic act.

Miss Carlotta de Yonson was presented on Saturday with a silver-mounted toilet set on the occasion of the termination of a very successful three weeks' engagement at the Grand, Sheffield. The presentation was made by Mr. David Warwick, on behalf of a few friends and admirers.

Miss Dolly Harmer, having recovered from her serious throat trouble, has resumed business, and this week is appearing at the Metropolitan and Chelsea Palace. She sails for South Africa under contract with Mr. Sydney Hyman on May 4.

Sydney Baker and Co. have produced an original musical romance, entitled Visions of the Past, which is now running its second week successfully at the Grand Theatre, Brighton. With Dr. Bodie's company the romance will shortly be seen in London.

Bert Olrac, who is touring with Sanger's Hippodrome, and Ted Milton, now with the Barnum show, have agreed to join forces at the termination of their respective engagements, and to work a high-class novel gymnastic turn for the halls.

The magnificent New York premises of Messrs. Francis and Day are now the recognised rendezvous of the cognoscenti, and the high lights of the theatrical and variety worlds foregather there daily to learn the latest news from Europe. The Anglo-American firm, as was ever their wont, extending a hearty welcome to all professionals and entertainment managers visiting America, and Mr. Fred Day cordially invites visitors to make use of the offices at 15, West Thirtieth-street as a temporary address for their letters, telegrams, and cables, "Playtime, New York" being a telegraphic and cable address that should be made a note of.

Harry Roxbury and Paul Knox's humorous skit, The Prince of Monte Carlo, will be seen at the Hackney Empire next week. As Archibald Longfellow—a modern Sherlock Holmes, summoned from Scotland Yard by Lady Carr, and on his arrival is taken for the Prince of Monte Carlo—Harry Roxbury presents quite an inimitable performance.

Mr. Roxbury has had many years experience, commencing when he was fifteen with the Warwick Gray Opera Company. For over two years he appeared with Les Cloches de Corneville and La Fille de Madame Angot companies. At this time John Lawson was touring drama, and with him Mr. Roxbury appeared in Humanity, upon many occasions playing Mr. Lawson's part of the Jew. For five years Harry Roxbury ran his own pantomimes, playing the principal comedy parts. Miss Vashti Wynne, who plays the part of Lady Carr in The Prince of Monte Carlo, is, in private life, Mrs. Roxbury.

The Terriers will have their annual summer river outing on Sunday, June 16. Early application for tickets is necessary, as the number is strictly limited. For particulars application should be made to Harry Lester, secretary, 4, Kennington-road, S.E.

In The Era of last week Mrs. Barnard was mentioned as having sent clothing to the secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild. It should have been Mr. Frank Barnard. Miss De Grey also desires to thank Mrs. Geo. Smythson, Miss Edna Rainforth, Atlas (of Atlas and Vulcana), Miss Lizzie Collins (of Athas and Collins), Miss Bertha M. Graham, Mrs. Collins, Anonymous, and Mrs. Douglas Stuart for gifts of clothing; and Miss Agnes Molteno for her donation of 5s.

Mr. Charles Goold was awarded, on Wednesday, at the Westminster County Court, £18 balance of salary against Mr. Arthur Roberts, the well-known comedian. Mr. Goold had been engaged for ten weeks to play in Robin Hood, a sketch which was stopped on Jan. 22 last by the music-hall strike. He refused to join the strikers, but held himself in readiness to go on with his part if the sketch was played. Mr. Roberts made beautiful speeches at the Surrey Theatre and elsewhere, and promised all their salaries. Mr. Roberts, denying the agreement, told the Court that he lost over £800 on the strike.

"Mother's Consent," a new musical sketch, in which Herr Leon de Swarte's exquisite violin playing was a big feature, was tried successfully at a matinée on Thursday, last week, at the Birmingham Empire.

Miss Queenie Leighton, the Drury Lane pantomime favourite, started when she was eight years of age at the old Oxford, and appeared on the halls a little later. Then, of course, she was sent back to school. After that she drifted into drama with her brother-in-law, taking chambermaid parts. Then she went with Mr. Greet into the No. 1 Gay Parisienne company, taking the singing part. Next she worked with the Gattis, and took parts in The Night Out and The Lady Slavey, eventually playing Flo Honeydew. She then graduated at the Gaiety to create the part of Donna Teresa in The Toreador. She was there for eighteen months, and Mr. George Edwardes only released her to play Kitty Grey. Miss Leighton loves animals, and they love her. In one Drury Lane pantomime were twenty-four small ponies, and she tells how one, of its own accord, came to her dressing-room every performance for sugar.

PARIS MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

Decidedly the chief event in Paris music-hall circles this month has been the opening of the Apollo. The rumours which have been circulating for the last two or three weeks regarding certain novelties in its construction piqued everyone's curiosity, and in consequence everybody who could turned up at the première.

Certainly, as far as tastefulness goes, everything has been done to make the house as cosy and comfortable as anyone could desire. The stalls are on a beautiful incline, allowing for a full view of the stage from any part. Behind this is the spacious prominoir, fitted up with dainty little tables where supper may be taken after the show. There is only one circle, but from here a good view is also obtained. But the "clou" of the construction, and that which raised the greatest curiosity, is the basculo. This is an apparatus for turning the floor of the theatre completely over, and replacing the sloping line of stalls by a beautiful level dancing floor. The change on the opening night took rather a long time, but by now it is done in the specified time of five minutes.

There is one weak point, and the weak point is that which should be the strongest—namely, the company. There are, however, several very good acts indeed. The Wynne Bros. do one of the best balancing acts. Hal and Francis are excellent hoop and globe manipulators; and the great reputation of the Kaufmanns is, of course, well known; but on the whole it could have been better. With this defect remedied, the Apollo should have a very long and prosperous career. A new attraction has now been added. On Saturday nights a special grand costume ball will be given after the show, in which all the audience will take part.

Bert Coote's Marigny Girls are busy rehearsing for the new Revue which will open on the 22nd inst. This is not his first venture over here. Last year his troupe at the Scala met with very gratifying success. Here's the same to the Marigny Girls.

The Revue of the Ambassadeurs this summer should be a big success. Amongst others in the cast will be Gaby Deslys, from The New Aladdin at the Gaiety, who brings over a big number from London; Max Dearly and Miss Lawler, who are both at present doing big things at the Variétés.

Hirchmann's operette, The Vine Leaf, which has had quite a long run at the Moulin Rouge, has just finished, and a wrestling competition now holds the chief position on the bill, which also includes Tiller's Sherry Girls in a couple of dances which go exceedingly well. Another of Tiller's troupes is now playing at the Scala.

At Barrasford's Alhambra a very good show is running. Topping the bill are the Black Hussars. These dusky musicians treat us to a regular feast of music on many instruments. Their playing is fine, but they might cut out the singing part of their act. The Bros. Kuno do an excellent balancing act, with some marvellous displays of strength; Susie and Protti give a nice dancing act, as also, in quite another style, do Cairns and Lynch. Tom Burrows gives a fine display of sword and club swinging, introducing several neat tricks with the sabre; Picett et Lizette, illusionists, have a very good act; and some fine acrobatic work is done by Lanos and Montes; Larola has a good juggling show, mixed with a good sprinkling of comedy; Ergotti and King Louis give their fine Risley act, and Barrington does some good trick piano playing.

The 50th performance of the Centenaire Revue at the Variétés has been registered; and there seems to be no change in the fine business the house is doing. This is certainly the biggest success seen there for a long time. Unfortunately it cannot run longer than June, as a new piece has to be produced in that month.

The Marigny will open on Saturday, and should be in for a very successful season. We hear very good reports of the Revue, and a lot of big English and American acts have been booked. One of the first of the English shows will be Chris Richards with his eccentric dancing act.

Another novelty will be given at the Folies-Bergère on Thursday matinées. This is the Children's Theatre. When tried last year this was such a success that it has been decided to revive it again this year. Everything is done by the children. The actors and actresses are children, and the band of thirty-five musicians is under the direction of M. Lepage, aged 12. The first performance is to be played before an audience of school children.

Lena Barrison, who was well known as one of the Barrison Sisters, is now appearing at the Théâtre des Mathurins. Wizard Stone will open on Friday night at the Folies-Bergère in his sensational cycling act.

"THE TALE OF A TIGRESS."

Comedy Sketch, by Mark Melford, produced at the Grand, Clapham, on Monday, April 22.

Jim Barker ..... Mr. Mark Melford
Samuel Bunce ..... Mr. L. Shepherd
Adriana Worsall ..... Mrs. Mark Melford

The success of this amusing trifle—which, we are informed, was written as recently as a week ago—is mainly due to Mr. Mark Melford's masterly acting and his wonderful facial expressions. There is very little story to tell. Jim Barker and Samuel Bunce are partners in business. Jim is overcome by the acts and wiles of Sam's wife, and he elopes with her—or, rather, that romantic little episode in their lives must be chiefly laid to the account of the strong-minded Amanda Bunce. But a very short space of time elapses before Jim sickens of her, and he takes the first opportunity to return. He eventually arrives at his office, in a very nervous state as to the reception that will be accorded him by his partner. He leaves a note on the table expressing his sorrow at having "taken away" the charming Amanda from her husband's keeping. Sam comes in and reads the note. He is quite overjoyed that he has been, temporarily, at least, released from the clutches of his vixenish wife, and he is prepared to show Jim how grateful he is for the service which has been rendered him. Jim, who has been standing behind the door to watch the course of events, is agreeably surprised that Sam should actually refer to him in affectionate terms, and that he regards the loss of his wife as a blessing. Thereupon Jim feels no compunction in facing the man he had believed he had wronged. They fall on each other's shoulders like brothers who have been long separated, and Sam listens with sympathetic interest to the recital of Jim's unhappy experiences with Amanda Bunce, whose death is reported. So greatly are the two men in fear of Amanda that even when a picture of the unlovely dead is placed before them they fall on their knees with terror.

The playlet is capitally acted. Nothing could be more funny than Mr. Melford's lugubriousness as Jim; it is simply irresistibly laughable. The aspect of gloomy dejectedness which he assumes as he relates his adventures with the vigorous Amanda convulses the audience. Mr. L. Shepherd ably supports Mr. Melford in the rôle of Sam; and Mrs. Melford plays with easy grace the quiet part of Sam's stepdaughter.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THE visit of the Colonial Premiers to the Mother Country has been marked by the advent of a new Imperial anthem, entitled "King and Sireland," written and composed by Edward Montagu. It has been secured by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

MR. ALEC HURLEY'S strikingly quaint song, "I ain't nobody in particular," is in the press, and will be issued immediately by Mr. David Day's firm. It is the joint handiwork of Scott Mackenzie and F. W. Leigh.

RECENT purchases made by Mr. David Day's firm include the following songs:—"The tonic-sol-fa courtship" and "Cherry lips," by Barnes and Weston; "The only bit of English" (sung by Billy Williams), by Harry Castling and Fred Godfrey; "Have you ever looked in the glass?" by Frank Leo; and a striking barn dance, by Luke Cavendish Everett, entitled "The Merry Clown."

MR. BERT H. DELMAR, whose song, "Iona," is likely to prove one of the hits of the summer season, has the following numbers ready for artists who require catchy items for the seaside:—"It's the band," fine concerted number, now being sung by the Six Aeolians; "Flirting" and "Barney" for soubrettes; "It's a girl" and "Carrie Carrie" for comedians; and "Moon girl," "Iona," and "Garden of my heart" for vocalists. These are all published by Price and Reynolds.

MISS WINNIE STANHOPE has just purchased the entire rights of a very clever song, "Beautiful stories of love," from J. F. Lambe, which has been written to suit her own particular style.

MISS BARBARA BABBINGTON is meeting with great favour at the Empire, Holloway, where she is singing the popular number, "Will you love me in December as you do in May?" This song was predicted to be one of the season's hits, and the prophecy has been fully realised.

THAT charming little artist, Gertie Gitana, whose popularity is nightly increasing, has two enormous song successes in "Seems to me I've always loved you" and "The song-bird."

AMONG the American song hits just now popular in the United States first place must be given to a number entitled "Love me, and the world is mine." It will be sung at all the English seaside resorts this summer. Witmarks are the publishers.

MR. G. H. ELLIOTT has made a terrific hit, as has also that charming comedienne, Miss May Moore-Duprez, with Messrs. Francis and Day's new song, "If the man in the moon were a coon," by Fred Fischer.

MISS ADA REEVE'S new song, "Musical dreams," which is spoken of as a real gem, is, it is understood, from the pen of a new writer named Fred Hopkins, a "find" of Maurice Scott, who has composed the melody.

MR. HARRY FORD'S successful songs, "I wonder" and "If I were you," both composed by himself and written by Mr. Harry Boden, will shortly be added to the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Co.'s catalogue of sixpenny editions.

MISS FLORRIE FORDE has produced a new song, by T. R. Robson and Fred Warwick, entitled "There's a dear little girl that I know," which has proved an instantaneous success. The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., are the publishers.

THE Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have accepted a new song from Messrs. Gilbert Wells and Geo. Everard, "I'll take her to Jamaica," which Miss Florrie Ford intends to feature shortly. This number has a bright, tuneful melody, and looks like being one of Miss Forde's biggest successes.

A NEW firm of song-writers, Messrs. George Asaf (author) and Felix Powell (composer) have supplied Mr. Harry Russon with a comedy number which proved, on its production, an immense success. During the past few days these writers have been fortunate in adding Miss Ada Reeve, Miss Millie Lindon, and Mr. Mark Sheridan to their rapidly-growing list of clients.

THAT charming young comedienne, Miss José Collins will specially produce two of the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s songs—viz., "You don't miss de water," by Harrington and Tate, and "Don't go back to Carolina," by Mellor, Lawrence, and Gifford—when she opens at her London engagements, commencing with the London Pavilion, shortly.

A SONG in universal demand among pierrot troupes just now is Messrs. Mellor, Lawrence, and Gifford's "I'm going back to the Fatherland," which all the principal combinations of seaside entertainers are featuring, or about to feature. This favourite number is published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. in their "Sixpenny Successes" series, and is already enjoying a remarkably brisk and satisfactory sale.

LITTLE TICH is now engaged in actively rehearsing Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate's specially-written new comedy "creation," "The General," and will produce it in the West End in the course of a week or so. This eminent comedian considers this song one of the finest comedy mediums he has ever had written for him.

LITTLE CLIFF has been scoring heavily at the Camberwell Palace this week with Messrs. R. P. Weston and F. J. Barnes's humorous song "The Coon's Conscience," which has been going great guns, and will be issued at an early date by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. in their "Sixpenny Successes" series.

THE success of Paul Pelham and Herbert Rule's military march song, "Don't be afraid, my little soldier," in the hands of Miss Barbara Babbington in town, and Miss Kitty Marion in the provinces on the Stoll tour, has been phenomenal, and this song promises to be one of this year's biggest "winners" for its enterprising publishers, the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.

MISS LENA VERDI, on the Stoll tour, is securing nightly acclamations for her renderings of two of the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s songs, "When, when, when is your ship coming home?" by Pelham and Rule, and "I'm going back to the Fatherland," by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford, which latter number Miss Lilian Lea is also specially featuring at all her engagements in town.

OUR readers will learn with regret of the recent death, at the age of seventy-six, of Mr. Row, pianist. For the last forty years the deceased had written melodies and arranged band parts for many of the profession, but as he invariably omitted to sign his work he was not so well advertised as many with less claim. In the old days he played the piano at the old Surrey Light Horse Concert Hall, Bermondsey, long since abolished. The aged widow, who is quite unprovided for, has been very kindly helped by Miss Kate Carney. If other artists who knew the deceased and benefited by his services will do likewise it would be greatly valued. Mrs. Row's address is 43, St. Paul's-road, Kennington, S.E.

THE BERTRAM MATINEE.

The Bertram benefit found the right pioneers and the right environment. Hence its welcome success and a goodly sum for the widow and daughters of the genial entertainer who never refused his services in the cause of charity. Mr. George Ashton, an excellent chairman, had upon his committee of management such men as Alfred Butt, Tom Catling, Joe Lyons, and Dick Warner. Tom Fraser and Tom Honey were the hon. treasurers, and Jack Harrison and E. E. Peacock the hon. secretaries. These names mean much in the world of Bohemia, and it was not surprising therefore that the best artists both on the legitimate and lesser stages came along to give their services in the cause of the fatherless and the widow. That dark-eyed beauty of the Sierras, La Tortajada, writhed and pirouetted in a dance of Mauresque origin. Then we had the purely English art of Margaret Cooper, who poured out pathos at the piano when she sang "Visitors." Earlier in the afternoon came Marie Tempest, the queen of comedy, to take us captive by her rendering of "Speak but one word"; the Follies sounded the note of drollery in their burlesque of Wagner, with special reference to Lohengrin; Little Tich convulsed the house with his "Major" song; Mr. George Robey expatiated drolly on the arrogant pretensions of "Good Queen Bess"; Mr. Harry Fragson gave his popular item, "Statues on the spree"; Miss Sybil Arundale in red hessians danced the Slav dance from The Gipsy Girl; and Mr. Lewis Waller recited the weird poem by Owen Meredith, "The Portrait," with his wonted dramatic fire. Mr. Fred Wright, jun., brought with him the suffragettes from Nelly Neil at the Aldwych to sing "Jane is a suffragette," and was not allowed to depart until he had sung a multitude of verses. Mr. Bransby Williams imitated Sir Charles Wyndham in David Garrick, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. R. G. Knowles, and the late Dan Leno with all his old skill. Dr. Byrd-Page (the only conjurer in the programme) was very clever and entertaining; Miss Annie Mars brought her Alhambra girls along, and sang her pretty Japanese song scena, Cherry Blossom; Mr. Wilson James and Miss Ruby Wilson presented a quaint coon version of Romeo and Juliet; and Mr. Alfred Lester, assisted by Miss Lily Mills, provoked the greatest merriment by his sketch of the melancholy waiter in A Restaurant Episode. Kindly aid was also given by Les Trombetta; by Fred Niblo, the American humourist; Mr. Frank Haskoll; Miss Kitty Gordon, with her "Cigarette" song; and Miss Evie Greene, who sang Frank Tours' setting of Rudyard Kipling's verses, "Mother o' Mine," with her customary charm of voice. An impromptu was presented by Messrs. Farren Soutar, Charles Angelo, and Sam Walsh, who mimicked various of the theatrical stars between them, including Sir Charles Wyndham, Beerbohm Tree, Seymour Hicks, and G. P. Huntley. It was vastly amusing to see two Mr. Trees—one as Svengali and the other as the Russian police spy in The Red Lamp—looking upon a figure of Napoleon, which was greeted with the cry "There's Hare!"

Mr. Jack Harrison came forward during an interval to thank the directors of the Palace for the loan of their beautiful house, the staff before and behind the curtain, the large number of artists who had contributed such a splendid entertainment, and the audience. He spoke of Mr. George Ashton's modesty, and without enlarging on his own, announced that the financial result of the matinée would be close upon £1000. The hon. acting-manager was Mr. E. A. Pickering; the hon. musical director, Mr. Herman Finck; the hon. stage-manager, Mr. Frank Damer; and the hon. accompanist Mr. F. R. Kinkee. The following ladies sold programmes: Mrs. Jack Harrison, Miss Hilda Cohen, Miss M. Hodgkinson, Miss Cressie Bell, Miss May Gates, Miss Elsie Kay, Miss Gladys Carrington, Miss Kitty Harold, Miss Nora Megone, Miss Dorothy Monkman, and Miss Amy Webster.

THE BEDFORD.

Crowded houses twice nightly are the rule at this comfortable hall in Camden Town, where Mr. B. P. Lucas has always got together a first-class programme, which is so varied that it cannot fail to please all classes of frequenters. The current bill includes several interesting turns. At the head is that amusing dramatic sketch My Pal Jerry, which is being played by Lew Lake and company. It is described as a comedy drama, and is a sequel to another sketch of the same type, The Bloomsbury Burglars. In the Court scene there are some lively proceedings at the trial of Nobbler and Jerry, the fun being fast and furious. But there is a pathetic side to the story which is not missed. The devotion of the Nobbler to his pal Jerry and the subsequent escape from Portland are keenly enjoyed. The sketch is accorded a rousing reception, and Messrs. Lew Lake and Bob Morris as Nobbler and Jerry, who bear the brunt of the work, play with marked success. They are ably supported by a talented company, and the sketch is admirably staged.

Mr. Frank Seeley, a diverting comedian, is a prime favourite here, and keeps the audience in the best of spirits with his lively songs and witty gags. His first song is entitled "Cinderella," in which he appears dressed as a dame. He has a lot of funny patter, and scores a hit. His second item is a distinctly amusing parody on "The Old Apple Tree," which finds great favour. Other People's Babies is the title of a bright little sketch which is presented by Marlow and Manton. It deals with the troubles of a young husband whose wife is seized with the idea of starting a crèche, much to his discomfort. It is a light and breezy trifle, which is smartly played and well received; the vocal numbers introduced add materially to its attractiveness. A striking turn is that presented by Mahatma, described as the Queen of Second Sight, a title she certainly earns by her clever and bewildering exhibition. On the night of our visit one of a committee chosen from among the audience wrote down a column of figures which Mahatma, though blindfolded, added up correctly. She also called out instantly any number pointed to on the board. Another clever thing was the telling the value of any card taken from a pack, and in a game of nap played on the stage the Mahatma told the players what cards to play. An astounding performance indeed! Milner Verren, with a sweet voice, sings "Only a Message" with great feeling; Miss Joan Deering's charming voice is heard to advantage in "Whisper and I shall hear," in which she accompanies herself on the violin; Will Newby, an eccentric comedian, goes well; and Mr. Dave Laird scores with his songs. Early in the evening Miss Ida Katherina, "The Dolly Girl," makes a successful appearance. The Bioscope pictures are always keenly appreciated here, and the film of the Cup Tie Final at the Crystal Palace is highly popular. Mr. A. F. Lovesey is the genial manager here.

THE LATE M. ZAMPI.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Many artists of the variety and circus professions will remember Zampi, the once popular one-legged gymnast, a steady, good-principled man and a good performer, and who, in his prosperous days, was always ready to give a helping hand to those in distress. During his ten years' illness all his savings went, and his widow now appeals to those who knew her late husband for a little help to enable her to get a bit more furniture together and take a house suitable for professional apartments. This is a thoroughly deserving case. Any small sums forwarded to Mrs. Zampi, 74, Georgelane, London-road, Sheffield, will be gratefully acknowledged.—Yours truly,

G. HARRISON.

MR. ALFRED BUTT LIBELLED.

In the King's Bench Division on Tuesday, before Mr. Justice Lawrence and a special jury, Mr. Alfred Butt, managing-director of the Palace Theatre (Limited), brought an action to recover damages for libel from Mr. C. C. Bartram in a paper called Variety.

The defence was a denial by Mr. Bartram that he wrote, printed, or published any of the words complained of, that the words did not mean what was alleged, or that they were defamatory. Mr. Bartram admitted that he was employed by the proprietors of the paper to write for it, but he denied that he wrote or authorised the words in question to be written.

Mr. Shearman, K.C., and Mr. Kisch appeared for plaintiff, and defendants were represented by Mr. Marshall Hall, K.C., and Mr. Cannot.

Mr. Shearman, in opening the case, said that the paper known as the Variety was published in America, and dealt with the music hall stage. Mr. Bartram was the English agent, and also a contributor to the paper. On Sept. 1, 1906, under the heading of "London News," followed by the name of "C. C. Bartram," the following article appeared:—

"Following the shift at the Oxford come indefinite rumours of a change in Palace management. No hint of this has reached the London papers, but we hear from private sources that manager Pickering, of the Tivoli, Cape Town, will be the man to assume the guiding reins in the fall. One would think the position of the present incumbent rather strong, as he married the daughter of Count Hollander, the lately deceased chairman of the Palace directorate, who left nearly half a million dollars. Perhaps this has caused a slackening of ambition, and will account for the rumoured retirement. Since manager he has been quite persistent with agents about percentage splitting."

This last, explained the counsel, was a phrase well known in the profession, and was a most offensive, serious, and grave charge, as it meant that unless he received half the charges he would not do business with the agents. It was not until some time afterwards that it came to the knowledge of the plaintiff, and he immediately took steps to vindicate his character. After the issue of the writ the plaintiff was approached, and stated that he was prepared to accept a satisfactory apology, but the so-called apology in the issue of Oct. 27 could not be so described. It said:—

"I regret to learn that manager Butt, of the Palace Theatre, has taken exception to my paragraph in the issue of Sept. 1 with reference to the rumoured change at the Palace. Nothing to the detriment of Mr. Butt's good name was intended. When I spoke of percentage splitting I meant that all knew that Mr. Butt had been strenuously opposed to this nefarious practice."

In the circumstances, he asked the jury to give such a reasonable amount as would stop this sort of attack.

Mr. Alfred Butt, managing-director of the Palace Theatre (Limited), was called, and said that he had held the position since May or June, 1906. He was previously manager, and succeeded Mr. Morton, a gentleman well known in the music hall profession. The engagement of artists came within his duty, and from time to time he had to go all over Europe and America to engage them. He had known the paper called Variety for about two years, and believed that it had a very large circulation. It was well known amongst music hall people. He did not marry the daughter of Count Hollander, and he had never asked an agent to "split a percentage" with him. He was strongly against the practice, which was carried on in certain houses, but he did not think that any West End house of repute would do such a thing, and during the music hall strike this practice was one of the complaints made.

The article of which he complained was shown to him by Mr. Graydon, the son of one of the directors, by Mr. Polden, the chairman of the Palace Theatre, and Mr. Cremetti, a director, who stated that the article was very serious and notice should be taken of it. He also saw other copies of the paper which contained articles more or less objectionable. The interpretation he put upon the phrase "percentage splitting" was that he was sharing the agents' commission. He could not see what other interpretation could be placed upon it.

In cross-examination, the witness said that he was still managing-director of the Palace Theatre. He did not read the article with jaundiced eyes, but he could not see that any other construction was possible than the one he put on the article. He knew nothing of the actual circulation of the paper.

Do you know that the maximum circulation in England is seven copies a week?—Then it is only a continuance of their policy of lying.

In further cross-examination the witness said that he saw in all two or three copies of the paper containing the article in question. The paper had been sent over from America to a rival management, and it was circulated in a place called the Cavour, which was widely frequented by agents and music hall managers. For the last year he had bought issues of the paper at Mr. Bartram's office in Lisle-street. On the issue of the writ he was told that Mr. Bartram had not written the article himself, but that he accepted responsibility, and was desirous of settling. The witness was willing to settle on the publication of a sufficient apology. The whole matter was incomprehensible to him, but he thought that Mr. Bartram, being a clever American correspondent, wanted to go "one better." Since the issue of the writ the defendant had written in Das Programm a statement to the effect that if the action was tried the revelations would be "both lovely and lively."

Mr. T. Ernest Polden, chairman of the Palace Theatre, said that he read the article in question and was acquainted with the expression "percentage splitting" which appeared in it. After seeing the article he called the plaintiff's attention to it, and it was with his sanction and encouragement that this action was brought.

In cross-examination the witness said that the directors of the Palace Theatre were not responsible for the costs of the action, as the action was brought by Mr. Butt to clear his character. He had known Mr. Butt for a long time, and was absolutely certain he would never stoop to share a five per cent. commission with an agent.

Mr. Shearman said that he anticipated that, as it was usual in what was really an undefended action. Even assuming that the paper had only a small circulation in England, it was a paper that circulated largely amongst members of the music hall profession, and such a statement was therefore calculated to do the plaintiff very considerable damage. In these circumstances, though he did not ask for vindictive or excessive damages, he did ask for such a verdict as would teach the defendants that they must not make such statements about the plaintiff.

Mr. Marshall Hall submitted that the defendant Bartram was entitled to a verdict, as there had been no evidence that the defendant either wrote, authorised to be written, printed, or published the article in question. The plaintiff had obtained a judgment against the American owners and publishers of the paper, which might or might not be fruitful, but in spite of that they dragged in Mr. Bartram because the judgment they had got did not give the Palace Theatre enough advertisement. It was an abuse of the process of the Court, and he hoped that the jury would mark their sense of the whole matter by giving a verdict to the defendants.

His lordship having summed up,

The jury, without leaving the box, gave a verdict for the plaintiff for £100.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES

THE ALHAMBRA.

Fresh arrivals this week at the Alhambra are Mr. Carl Lynn and some Urbanora pictures. The former, who hails from the land of the Soaring Eagle, is an animal imitator, and as such he is possessed of extraordinary powers. Indeed, considering the vocal gymnastics which Mr. Lynn performs, one is almost inclined to credit him with some abnormal physical development. He contrives to introduce his various feats of mimicry in an interesting and amusing description he gives of a trip to the country. The friendly and the unfriendly neighing of a horse, the grunting of a sow and the squealing of its litter, the midnight love passages of an amorous feline couple, the roaring of a lion, with the variations in the sound noticeable before and during mealtime, and the braying of a donkey are all similated with wonderful fidelity. The turn is one that is greatly appreciated. As to Urbanora, there is a realistic representation of Saturday's great football match at the Crystal Palace. It is quite evident from the clearness and precision of these pictures that an almost perfect degree of accuracy is being attained in the manipulation of the photographic apparatus. It is hard to say whether the introduction of photo-micrography into such displays is calculated at all to reassure the feelings of some of the audience who propose to partake of supper shortly after. Of the instructional effect, however, there can be no doubt whatever. One has to bear in mind the fact that the hydrozoa in stagnant water or the mites in a ripe piece of cheese are not necessarily of a pernicious character in order that one may proceed to eat one's supper with perfect equanimity. Another novel idea is the representation of the titles of several popular newspapers by scenes suggesting such titles. Altogether, the Urbanora people are justified in their claim, "We set the world before you."

In these days, when such stupendous efforts are being made by our legislators and others to minimise, if not altogether to eradicate, the gambling mania, no doubt those puritans who may possibly visit the Alhambra will view with satisfaction the moral inculcated in the ballet Queen of Spades. Of course, it must be at once acknowledged that the grace of Mlle. Alexia is a very strong excuse for the madness of that very attractive young sculptor, Miss Julia Seale. Perhaps one of the most beautifully-blended displays of colour in this ballet is the Valse des Liqueurs, the hues of the dancers' garments suggesting the various wines represented. Even more gorgeous is the Grand March of Playing Cards. The idea of enlisting the assistance of the Urban Bioscope in producing certain realistic scenic effects continues to meet with the approval of the audience. Coming back to those items on the programme which are of somewhat shorter duration, we have the really marvellous performances on the aerial tight wire of the famous Millman Trio, including Miss Birdie Millman, whose feats arouse a sensation of astonishment in the minds of the spectators. International music and songs are delightfully brought to our notice by the Four Golondrinas, of whom Miss Anita Manuela, styled "the Spanish Nightingale," distinguishes herself in no mean manner; and Mlle. Bresina, a very engaging and sweet-voiced French soubrette. De Biere may be considered one of our leading exponents of the art of magic and illusion, and his different tricks in the direction of producing objects from seemingly nowhere, his own and his assistant's mysterious disappearance and reappearance, cannot fail to excite one's admiration and interest. The ballet L'Amour still continues to please audiences at Leicester-square. The ancient East always casts an irresistible glamour over all who love a wealth of light and colour, and metropolitan audiences have been of late treated to several spectacles the scene of which has been the valley of the Nile. Of course, very few care to follow the story of L'Amour as dumbly portrayed on the stage. People are quite content to feast their eyes on the gorgeous Oriental scenery and dresses. Signorina Morina proves a delightful exponent of a style of dancing not now so popular as it used to be, and the music of M. Francis Thome has just that weird Eastern ring about it which such a production demands.

SURREY.

The current programme is so full of good things that it is hard to discriminate, but out of the thirteen items three sketches loom most prominent. The first of these is Leonard Mortimer's strong romantic drama, The Martyrdom of Michael. Set in two scenes, the story is one of absorbing interest, and tells of the ruthless treachery and persecution of Michael Vesney by his—afterwards repentant—friend, Robson Macowan, who in turn is persecuted and blackmailed by his secretary, Neville Potter, who knows his secret. Ruth Macowan, however, is loyal to her lover, Vesney, and finds him imprisoned in a dungeon beneath the convent in Spain to which she has retired. On the eve of his execution, Ruth, disguised as a monk, gets to her lover, and makes him don the monk's robe and escape. Michael Vesney and Ruth return to England, and Michael, full of determination to punish his enemy, Ruth's father, goes to his house, and, being mistaken for Macowan by the poor wretch whom Neville Potter has made his tool, learns how Macowan has been blackmailed and persecuted, and that Macowan has employed Olive Kingsley, a female detective, to find out for him who is his mysterious blackmailer. Olive Kingsley meets Michael and begs of him to spare Macowan; but Macowan, hearing from Potter that Michael is in his house, writes a full confession of his treachery to his friend Michael, and takes his own life. Potter tries to fix the charge of murder on to Michael, but the lady detective clears Michael, and gives Potter into the hands of the police. Mr. Herbert Pearson delineates the character of Michael with a strength and feeling which is throughout artistic; as Macowan, Mr. Harry McClelland is remarkably good; Mr. James Esmond imbues the part of the villain with a brutal force that makes its mark on the audience; and as the "Social Wreck," Mr. C. E. Ludlow gives a fine character-study. Both Miss Louie Adair as Ruth, and Miss Helena Walbran as Olive Kingsley have a charming personality, and invest their characters with an artistic skill. In direct contrast is the brilliantly-lighted scene of The Hotel Grande, in which the Brothers Luck and their clever acrobatic company indulge in a series of mad revels that savour much of pantomime. Laughter holding both its sides follows the whole action of this absurdity. On the same lines follows the Edmund Edmund's troupe in their farcical comedy, Mrs. Banbury, and, like all this clever comedian and his very lively company attempt, is a feast of laughter.

Tennyson and Wallis as two policemen keep the house fairly roaring with mirth in their amusing cross-talk, and in their duet, "You can't take it with you when you die." The Le Gren Trio are excellent and grotesque performers: one is remarkably lean and tall, the other short and stout, while their lady companion is charming and lively. Their military absurdity is full of admirable fooling that is really hard and artistic work. The Zampas are two vaudeville artists from U.S.A. who win abundant approbation by their lightning dances; the Sisters Florence, tall, graceful, and shapely, in pretty costumes, excel in the art of terpsichore, and win well-merited aplause for their skilful International dances and acrobatic feats; the Royal Raynors, three demon acrobats, are supple and clever; Charles Gardiner, a gifted comedian, wins a series of well-merited recalls for his song and patter, "I'm a lady"; Fred Land, an eccentric comedian, in his parody of "Nursery Rhymes," leaves his audience hungry for more of his wit; and Jack Rae, the tramp gymnast and juggler, keeps up a running fire of humour while indulging in marvellous acrobatic feats and juggiery. Raymond's Bio-tableaux depicts the story of "The Villain Who Still Pursued Her," with a realism that leaves the audience in wonderment and hearty appreciation. The efficiency of Mr. Charles Craig, the courteous acting-manager, is evidenced both sides of the footlights by the smoothness of the whole entertainment, and by the excellent order maintained by the Surrey patrons.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

A capitally diversified programme is provided for the delectation of the patrons of this hall for the current week, and Mr. Christie had the pleasure of seeing the large auditorium packed to the doors at both performances on Monday. The Boisset Troupe top the bill in their absurdity The Dock Strike. The many incidents of a strike, the labour agitator's stump speeches, the fights, and all the other characteristics of a labour dispute are parodied in a humorous manner, and the spirit of infectious irresponsibility that pervades the whole, together with some smart knockabout work, enables the troupe to acknowledge a hearty and deserved curtain. The Phydoras, in an eccentric musical act, which embraces dancing and some acrobatic work, make a good impression. Miss Grace Merton, the original street singer, displays vocal ability of a high order in a ballad, and is cordially received. The Renard Trio, described as dental athletes, present a turn of distinct merit and originality. The whole of their turn consists of trapeze work with no firmer support on which to depend than each other's teeth. No small praise must be accorded to the leading member of the troupe for the endurance he displays, and it is pleasant to record that their efforts were loudly applauded, several calls being accorded them. Gus Garrick is a very popular item on the programme. His imitations of such diverse comedians as Sam Mayo, Harry Champion, and Harry Lauder are particularly clever, the most amusing impersonation, however, being that of the Continental chanteuse, a study that provoked much amusement. The Three Sisters Chester present a good turn as comediennes, dancers, and instrumentalists, their song and dance, in which they accompany themselves on banjoes, being smart. A well-earned call is accorded them. Marguerite Broadfoote, in two songs, scores her usual success. Her first, "She didn't come from Borneo," caught the ear of the audience at once, and her second, the well-known "Nursery Rhymes," went equally well, several encore verses being demanded. Ross and Lewis, in "Fits and Misfits," present a very smart show, the gentleman being a dancer of extraordinary agility and the lady's efforts in this direction being capital, in addition to being a good pianist. Mr. Ross had to concede an encore, and the act scored a conspicuous success. Powell's Marionettes is an ingenious and effective show, the allegorical tableaux at the end being particularly brilliant and gaining an undeniable call for Mr. Powell. The bottom of the bill this week is no less an artist than Mr. Bransby Williams, and when it is borne in mind that he first saw the light in the locality it will be almost superfluous to mention that his entry was the signal for a very popular greeting. Mr. Williams gave as his first item "An old man's soliloquy to his Pipe," a clever thumbnail sketch of an old man recalling the past, for his second a humorous story in which depiction of an elderly and a young man formed the notable features, and for the third "The flight of little Em'ly," from "David Copperfield." In each Mr. Williams' gifts as a character-actor were much in evidence, and the enthusiastic nature of his greeting from the audience at the close testified to the complete success of his artistic labours. Mention must be made of the valuable assistance rendered by Mr. Johnston and his excellent orchestra during the evening.

THE CANTERBURY.

The specialities with which Mr. Fred Miller has embellished his bill of fare at the Canterbury this week include a goodly portion of pantomime served up by Miss Daisy Yates' company. It is an excerpt from the Aladdin production in which Mr. Dan Thomas has recently been seen in halls and theatres, and is called Widow Twankey's Laundry, because it is that scene which is depicted. Laughter is the chief object of the sketch, and Mr. Thomas's antics as the Widow are quite successful in obtaining it in abundance. Miss Daisy Yates presents a pleasing principal boy as Aladdin, and joins with Mr. Thomas in a burlesque of music-hall turns which has before received praise at our hands. Other characters in the "pantolet"—if we may coin a word—are effectively represented, and a tuneful chorus, a troupe of lady dancers, and new scenery and dresses help considerably towards the success attained.

New eccentricities have been imported into Mr. Harry Tate's Motoring sketch, the fun of which now grows more riotous than ever. Mr. Tate, who has imitated so many in his time, is himself inimitable in his impersonation of the irascible automobilist, whose journey to Portsmouth is attended by so much tribulation. Additional comic personages figure in the sketch, which now concludes with a conflict between the small boy with the mouth-organ and the owner of the car. Miss Margaret Parker and company give an effective rendering of an episode called Sunshine, the pathetic element in which makes a strong appeal to the audience. Miss Parker exercises her dramatic skill impressively as a young girl who acts as a housekeeper for an artist and thereby incurs the odium of the neighbours. Her father, who years before had driven his own wife from the door through similar unfounded suspicions, sides with the detractors. The girl finds out that she is his daughter and loads him with scorn, but in the end the artist asks her hand in marriage and everything is forgiven. Miss Parker's emotional ability and the naturalness of her acting in a difficult rôle gain general approval. She is adequately supported, and the sketch, which is mounted with taste and elegance, is received with special marks of favour.

The sentiment attaching to the songs of Mr. G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, has a fragrance that is well brought out by the singer, who wins for "Baby Lou" the plaudits of a delighted house. Mr. Elliott's methods are of excellent service also in his serio-comic lay "If the man in the moon were a coon," which is finished off with a dance possessing novel features and executed with a graceful agility that secures the artist so many recalls that the ecstasies of admiration have to be cut short by the curtain. Mr. Percy Tarrimond, the collier lad, who looks to be fresh from the pit's mouth, gives a remarkable vocal display. He has a tenor voice of marvellous strength and purity of intonation. "The Soldiers' Chorus" from Faust tries its quality to the utmost, but he takes the top notes with unfailing sureness, while in the old Scotch ballad "Annie Laurie" he reaches with ease what sounds remarkably like "high C." Mr. Tarrimond really is a valuable "find," and his reception is overwhelming.

Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope continues "unruffled" on its successful course, the domestic comedy in which the vagaries of a mother-in-law on a motor-car are depicted being irresistibly amusing. Miss Jessie Preston, the clever comedienne, is a great attraction of the current programme, which also includes Mr. R. H. Douglass, Benson and Geoffreys, Olive and Owen, Mr. Frank Harwood, My Fancy, the superb danseuse, Ernie Mayne, and the Lancashire Lads, unexcelled exponents of the art of stepping.

EALING HIPPODROME.

That Miss Daisy Dormer—most dainty of soubrettes—would return again and again to the Ealing Hippodrome was a certainty from the moment when she first came "Westward Ho!" and captured the hearts of innumerable Ealingites. There is a personal and particular charm attaching to this "sweetest and prettiest of coon vocalists and dancers" which extends to her songs—always melodious, piquant, and witty. There is, too, an irresistible witchery in her "buck" dancing which is altogether unapproachable. Her audience will never tire of her history of Jonas Johnson in "Going, going, gone"; while in "I wish I were you" she is equally happy. On the night to which we are alluding an eager house would willingly have had more of her dainty contributions. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is a standard attraction nowadays, and this week Mr. E. W. James, ever in search of up-to-date methods, secures a gem that appeals to all lovers of football. Every interesting incident in the Cup final of the Everton—Sheffield contest at the Crystal Palace last Saturday is so clearly depicted that one is really almost there. An ever-welcome and a clever little scena is found in Married or Photographed, presented by Reed and Stephens. Here the usual marital misunderstanding that is so deftly exploited in this class of show is made full use of, and the result is an enjoyable fifteen minutes of hearty merriment. A note of pathos is struck by Fox and Melville in "Illustrated Melody." In this turn it is a neat idea to throw the words of the chorus on to the screen, and the house joins heartily in the refrain to "Mother is my sweetheart" and "Like a star"; both songs being illustrated by beautifully-coloured lantern slides.

We have before had occasion to notice the work of that careful and earnest character-actor, Mr. Tom Stuart. His Uriah Heep is a fine study of the unlovable, Janus-faced hypocrite; while the audience is stilled to silence by Wilfred Denver's dream-speech in that famous drama, The Silver King. Mr. Johnnie Fuller is an all-round sort of "cat," who finds itself quite at home on the wire, and here Miss Tabby contrives to disport herself very cleverly, descending to terra firma for a little chair vaulting. Mr. Bert Byrne is a comedian who strives to be funny—and succeeds. He is responsible for two songs, "It's a funny feeling" and "Song types," and both are equally serviceable in raising laughter. Mr. H. O. Wills has a merriment-producer in his "I am a wanderer," and his little flag, of postage-stamp proportions, causes immense amusement. Miss Edie Veno, with a sympathetic voice, is heard to advantage in her song, "Firefly"; a more boisterous note is sounded in "Yellow Boy." Mr. E. W. James, the popular manager, is capably aided by his second in command, Mr. L. Westcott Hicks.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

Variety of the best character fills the bill this week, and not a discordant note mars an admirably arranged programme, which is hugely enjoyed by everybody present. The orchestra lead off with "Bustling Billy," and then the fun begins in real earnest. Miss Vera Granville vocalised satisfactorily in a couple of ditties, the latter dealing with a truism, "Accidents will happen." Then Rell and Butt got to work with some crosstalk, and cause hurricanes of laughter; they dance neatly, too, and dress their show to perfection. Mr. Cull-Pitt, assisted by Mlle. Adele, obtained some wonderful illustrations by means of le chapeau, and his sleight-of-hand greatly mystifies the audience. Better Friends afforded Miss Flo Wakeman and Mr. J. C. Groves an opportunity to display their histrionic ability. The sketch deals with the disguises assumed by a jealous husband, and the troubles that ensue through the "green-eyed monster," who has really quite a lot to answer for. A selection from Miss Hook of Holland, skilfully interpreted by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Max Guy, is sufficiently well done to maintain every one in a good temper. Howard and Collinson's comedy duo, The Porter and the Parcel, is one of the tit-bits of the evening; and it would be difficult to find a funnier or better interpreted sketch. As the doll, Miss Collinson is excellent throughout, while Mr. Howard revels in the humours of the porter. Mr. Tom Dunmore meets with a flattering reception, and deserves it; his patter is inimitable, and much of it original; and fresh merriment pervaded the house when he recounted his adventures as a football referee. The popular sketch, The Little Stowaway is as successful as ever, and never was virtue more triumphantly applauded or vice more emphatically hissed. Miss Eva Lumley is charming as the Stowaway, and puts in some really excellent work; Mr. J. K. Walton does well as Capt. Worsley; to Mr. H. G. Shaw falls the rôle of Lieut. Burton; and Mr. Hugh Metcalf is sufficiently boisterous as the burly bo'sun. Mr. A. Chatterton plays the part of the Hon. Percy Willie, and the remaining characters are satisfactorily delineated. A novelty about Vernon's bioscope pictures here is that the latest important news is wired at different times after publication of the newspapers and exhibited during the evening.

"THE REHEARSAL."

A new Musical Comedy-Duologue, performed for the first time at the Hippodrome, Hastings, On Monday, April 22.

An Affected Fop .....Mr. Chas. D. Wright
A Prima Donna .....Miss Katie Blair
(from our own correspondent.)

When the curtain rises, an exquisite dude is found in a very discontented and desponding state through the prima donna failing to appear at a rehearsal, having lost her jewels. He is very desirous of exhibiting his marvellous musical ability by accompanying her on the piano. The chambermaid discovers him in this depressed condition, and offers to help him out of his difficulties by taking the rôle of the prima donna herself. The dandy consents if she will give a rehearsal. She therefore asks him to play some light and graceful music for her to dance to. He plays selections from Wagner, and her attempts at dancing are a decided failure, as the music is, of course, too classical. He therefore attempts another piece, but as she is equally unsuccessful in dancing to his superior playing, she bursts into tears, and he then plays "Oh, dry those tears." Eventually he, with the assistance of the orchestra, executes a dance, and the maid dances, to his great satisfaction. A new and taking duet is here introduced, "By your kind permission" (the words by Fred Leigh, the music by Airlie Dix), in which numerous current topics are amusingly treated. The ten minutes' sketch is brought to a conclusion by the two artists playing, on respective pianos, a selection from Wagner's opera Lohengrin. Their répertoire of music is extensive, and varies from time to time. Mr. Chas. D. Wright was good as the musical fop, and Miss Katie Blair did well as the "prima donna."

Miss Mayme Cannon has just signed a large batch of contracts, including one for principal boy with Messrs. Dottridge and Longden, through her agent, Will Oliver.

Mr. Fred H. Anderson, of the Palace, Northampton, generously devoted the gross takings of the two houses on Friday, the 19th inst., to the funds of the Northampton Good Samaritan Society. Mr. F. H. Mardlin, hon. sec., proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Anderson for his great kindness, and gave some interesting details of the work done by the Society. Mr. Evans, the manager, replied on behalf of Mr. Anderson, who sent a telegram regretting his absence and trusting the cause would be well supported. The entertainment was under the patronage of Mr. R. L. Poulton (the Mayor) and of Alderman F. C. Adnitt.

"THE ERA" SHILLING FUND FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

Mr. Barrasford and Miss Vesta Victoria join in a strenuous appeal for the generosity of the profession in support of The Era Shilling Fund. When, twelve months ago, we brought before our readers the claims of this deserving charity, a very considerable sum of money was collected in separate shillings. That last year's appeal, however, and most of the money obtained by it, are, as Miss Marie Lloyd would say, "a thing of the past, old dear."

Subscribed to date, 2388½ shillings.

Oxford May Fair.

THE May Festivals at Oxford take place on the 3rd of the Month of Flowers. The fair is principally in the capable hands of the local showmen, among whom will be found the Jennings Bros., with electric-driven horses and grand electric orchestrions. The other local caterers include the Dolloways and Buckland, with machine novelties, shooters, cokers, and variety stalls.

OUR Oxford correspondent calls attention to this fixture as being capable of development. It is held on the Cattle Market Ground, and he thinks that side-shows and a helter-skelter might do well to remember it.

Knutsford May Festival.

THE picturesque Cheshire town of Knutsford is the centre of the modern revival of May-Day Festivals. Nowhere else is the pageant of crowning the Queen of May so elaborately celebrated. The procession that parades the narrow streets of the quaint old town, the Queen's courtiers and the various notabilities in attendance at the Court of Beauty, the Ambassadors representing the nationalities of the British Empire all take their allotted part in the gay throng, the stage-management and marshalling of the procession being a matter for which Knutsford is justly famous.

The Morris Dancers.

QUITE a special feature and an unfailing attraction of these May Festivals is the company of the Morris Dancers—the agile Lancashire lads in their wooden shoon dancing their way along in the procession. The cult of the Morris Dance is quite a Lancashire passion. Even to the tie of a ribbon bow, to the exact number of steps in a particular part of the dance, all, all, has been fixed and settled for ages. Tradition rules the dance, the dresses, and all else. No one dare alter or vary it. It is an abiding monument of the power and tenacity of glorious old customs enshrined in the heart and life of the people.

Showmen and the May Festival.

IN this truly national renaissance of the love of life and colour showmen have taken a conspicuous and important part. In the early days of the revival of May-Day Fair at Knutsford the late James Dean developed the fair. Dean was succeeded by John Whiting, who for many years past has managed the fairground. In fact, both Mr. and Mrs. Whiting throw all their energies into this unique local celebration, and year by year Mrs. Whiting presents the May Queen with a costly and beautiful basket of choice flowers. There is the heartiest recognition on the part of the local committee organising the Festival of the necessary co-operation of the showmen, and the fair is regarded as part and parcel of the May-Day festivities.

The Showmen's Guild at Knutsford.

THE Rev. T. Horne has arranged with the Vicar of Knutsford to conduct Guild services on the Sunday before May Day (to-morrow, April 28), and also to address a meeting of Guild members in the afternoon of that day. The Guild Chaplain is quite satisfied with the result of his work on the fairgrounds. At Manchester in Easter week, at Wrexham Fair, and at various centres in Wales he has met with the most cordial reception, and the propaganda work of the Guild has been enthusiastically received by the showpeople.

A VERY pleasing and significant result of this work of Mr. Horne's has been the manifest interest of the outside public in the life and business interests of the travelling showman.

Stockport May Fair.

WE understand that the British Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union has again obtained the lease of the Fairground for the May Festival. The energetic secretary of the Union, Mr. Thomas Hurst, will, as before, set out the ground, and the local caterers, Messrs. James Hibbert and Sons, will display their well-known machines and other novelties.

Newcastle Temperance Festival.

FOR some years past efforts have been made to reduce the hitherto exorbitant rents for shows, &c., at this Northern fixture. Cut-throat competition and unreasonable business rivalry on the part of local lessees had raised the price of the ground to that extent that showmen found nearly all their profits absorbed in ground rents. It was sincerely hoped that this year would show a great reduction in exorbitant charges. Mutual arrangements with this desirable end in view had been arrived at. The two trade societies concerned had decided upon a reasonable maximum sum to offer for the ground, and all seemed to promise well for the success of the effort to bring the rent within reasonable limits. We regret to hear that this much-desired result has been prevented this year by an offer from another source, which was accepted, and so we shall witness again (unless better counsels prevail) the continuance of those trade rivalries that throw back for the time being the organisation of showmen to prevent exorbitant rent.

WE are informed that the British Roundabout Proprietors' Union have advised their members, in conjunction with the North of England Amusement Caterers' Federation, to keep away from Newcastle this year.

Aberdare Fair.

THIS fair, as usual, attracted some of the best shows on the Welsh circuit, the principal exhibits being by Messrs. Jacob and John Studt. The shows were:—Jacob Studt's coliseum of animated photography, Chipperfield's menagerie, and Wadbrook's electrograph and Empire varieties, and Professor Scarrett's school of athletes and boxers. The machines included sets of motor-cars and ostriches by the brothers John and Jacob Studt. There were also the usual attendant novelties—shooters, cokers, side-shows, varieties, and stalls by the caterers attending the Welsh fair.

Pontypool Fair.

THIS spring fixture had for its entertainers this season J. Scarrott with boxing-booth; Sid White with tunnel railway, helter-skelter, and over-boats; Plinston Bros., with razzle-dazzle; Miles Jervis, with swings, Alpine wire, and shooting-range; and Messrs. Hayle, Hall, Danter, Gaze, Challis, and Davies, with bottle-smashers, pipe-breakers, coker-nut sheets, and stalls.

Carmarthen.

CONSIDERABLE dissatisfaction is felt in this town at the refusal of the County Licensing Committee to grant Mr. Haggar, jun., a dramatic licence for his portable theatre. For some time past Mr. Haggar has been located at Neath, and he proposed erecting his theatre in the Market-place, Carmarthen. Mr. Haggar is the son of the well-known and highly-esteemed South Wales Bioscope proprietor, Mr. William Haggar.

WE can only express our own sympathy with Mr. Haggar, jun., and at the same time our strong hope that licensing bodies throughout the country will realise their public duty to encourage and not to hinder high-class amusements for the people.

Mold Fancy Fair.

THIS Fair was held in the Cricket Field, and consisted of P. Collins's racing motor-cars, twin yachts, helter-skelter, slipping-the-slip, and animated palace of pictures and variety entertainment; Wortley's colliery exhibition; West's novelty booth; Wright, Fossett, with Winchester ranges; also Harry Fossett's photo booth; cokers by Wright, Halls; Emmas by Hall, James, and Curry; the whole making a great fair, brilliantly lit with electricity.

Pontypool Fair.

AT this Fair the shows were Testo's cinematograph, Buckley's freaks, J. Scarratt's boxing-booth, and Lucas's novelty booths; while there were J. Studt's motor-cars, the tunnel of S. White, and the whirling-the-whirl of Plinston Bros., big boats by S. White, high-fliers by J. Studt and Gervis, and shooting-the-shoot of S. White. Among the novelties were Messrs. Clark, Vail, and Gervis' rifle saloons, J. Butlin's bottle-smashers and Emma sheets, cokers by Jervis and Davis, and roll-up boards by Gage and Challis. The dates for the year of Pontypool Fairs are April 2, April 22, July 5, and Oct. 10.

Charles Urban's New Work.

"THE Cinematograph in Science and Education and Matters of State" is the title of an excellently got-up little brochure. Mr. Charles Urban demonstrates the uses to which the cinematograph may be put. Having applied it to the amusement of the people, he now seeks to popularise it amongst our teachers, professors, and politicians as an aid to their studies and work. A copy of the instructive little pamphlet will be forwarded gratis on application to the Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd., 48, Rupert-street, London, W.

Bedford April Fair.

THIS annual event, held on Corporation Ground on Monday and Tuesday, was graced with fine weather and thousands of visitors from the town and outlying villages. The attractions include Chas. Thurston's helter-skelter, H. and W. Thurston's cinematograph, Thurston and Sons' switch-back motor-cars, H. Thurston and Sons' round-abouts, Professor Goldsmith's boxing-booth, Madam Lambert, and Braham's birds.

Warminster Spring Fair.

AT the monthly meeting of the Warminster Urban Council on Monday there was a lengthy debate over the pleasure fair which had been revived after a lapse of some years. Various complaints were made by tradespeople in the town, but one speaker remarked that if they attempted to shift the fairs they would have to fight the town; and others were of the opinion that the townspeople would resist any such attempt. The Clerk said they had no power in the matter. The fair was a chartered fair, and open, and these people had a right to come. The only thing they could do was to shift the venue, and that could only be done with the consent of the lord of the manor (Lord Bath) and the Local Government Board. A small committee was appointed to see what could be done. It was stated that the showpeople appeared to fully know their rights at chartered fairs. The action of the manager of the tolls in admitting the shows was upheld.

Guild Subscriptions, 1907.

PER Mr. Chaplain, J. W. Taylor (Gorton), 10s.; per Mr. Mercer, Mrs. Ann Jones, 5s.; Geo. Smith, 5s.; J. Mitchell, 5s.; per Mr. Shuttleworth, Paul Blakey, 5s.

Horwich Spring Fair.

MESSRS. MAKIN BROS., have command of the ground for the above fair, which is in full swing. Messrs. Makin's flying motor cars and gondolas, whoa Emmas, and J. Sharp's horses and swings, &c., keep the place alive.

Redruth.

ALEXANDRA'S CIRCUS visited Redruth on Saturday last, and performed to crowded and delighted audiences.

"THE BELLS"—A TRAGEDY.

One of the latest and most exciting films published by the Vitagraph Co. is entitled "Retribution." This film is based on the famous play entitled The Bells, played with such great success by the late Sir Henry Irving. A poor innkeeper, by name Mathias, is in great poverty and unable to pay his rent. He is visited by a representative of the law and two gendarmes, who are about to dispossess him, but his wife pleads so earnestly with the sheriff that he consents to an extension of time. The same evening a travelling Jew visits the inn and pays for his refreshment from a belt of gold, which he wears around his waist. The innkeeper, who is desperate, and whose avarice is aroused by the sight of the gold, determines to waylay the Jew and rob him. The guest drives away in his sleigh through a winding path in the woods, and Mathias, seizing his woodman's axe, takes a short cut through the wood, and, as his victim drives by kills him with the axe, and, after possessing himself of the gold belt, carries the body on his shoulder to a lime-kiln, into which he throws his gruesome burden, thus destroying all traces of the crime. But, although the material evidence has been disposed of, he cannot escape from his conscience; he reaches home and is counting over his ill-gotten gains when his wife enters. She recoils at the sight of the money, and he locks himself in his room overcome with remorse. Then we see a series of wonderful visions or dreams illustrating with vivid power the agony of a guilty conscience. He sees again the murder in all its horrible reality, then he views himself in the court room, being tried for his life. The murdered Jew appears and forces Mathias to make a written confession, and, although he fights against doing this, he is unable to prevent it. This scene then fades away, and he sees himself being roughly dragged up the steps of a scaffold, while before him a multitude of angry faces hurl jeers and curses at him. The effect of this vision is so terrible that he awakes from his horrible dream, gasping for breath, and, staggering to the centre of the room, falls dead, just as his wife and some of the villagers, who were drinking in the room below, rush in, alarmed by the noise of his fall.

Lord John Sanger and Sons' circus was stationed in Castle Fields, at Castleford, on Monday, performances being given both afternoon and evening. In the evening it was calculated that close upon seven thousand persons paid for admission.

STORIES OF SHOWMAN LIFE.

By the Rev. T. HORNE, Hon. Chaplain, the Showmen's Guild.

"CHORUS, TOMMY."

Probably no show has had a more abiding interest and popularity than the marionette theatre. Although at the present moment there are but few such theatres travelling our fairs, we must look for other reasons rather than decline in popular esteem for their paucity in numbers. The tremendous popularity and the endless variety of the cinematograph has not tended to drive other shows off the road, but it has also come to the front at the psychological moment when electricity has revolutionised the showman world as it has revolutionised all other departments of human life and enterprise.

We are to notice that despite the well-known supremacy of the cinematograph as the up-to-date show, there still exist shows that combine marionettes with pictures. This is notably true of such showman worthies as Edward Lawrence and Harry Ashington, and that we have on the road marionette theatres and marionette turns of an extremely artistic and popular character on the variety stage.

Our story is an episode in the life of a marionette worker, who may be justly regarded as the greatest expert of his time—the actual pioneer of such magnificent mimic theatres as the Holden's, of world-wide fame.

Edward Calver the elder flourished in the first half of the eighteenth century, and his son, Edward Calver the younger, carried out the traditions and ideas of his father to such perfection that Calver's marionette show was the centre of attraction at our great pleasure fairs. It remained for the genius of Thomas Holden to take the marionette as the clever Calvers left it and to lift the marionette theatre to its highest pinnacle of success. That, however, is another story. This tale concerns Edward Calver the elder, who was known throughout the land as "Chorus Tommy." In those far-off days, more so than now, the people fixed upon some trait in the character of their supreme favourites in the world of shows, some mark of his genius, and from that they named them.

Calver was known as "Chorus Tommy" from the catchword of an old ballad sung by two marionettes in the entertainment. So popular was this particular singing turn that no marionette theatre in the country travelled by the Calvers dare omit it from their répertoire.

The ballad singers were an old and very deaf Navy veteran and his dear old wife; the charm and pathos of the ballad were in the way the dear old couple sang it. The cleverly-worked figures—the old one-legged, one-eyed sailor, scraping an accompaniment to the air of the song on his fiddle; the old woman, in her feeble, senile treble, singing the words of the ballad, at the end of each verse had to shout into the ear of her deaf partner, "Chorus, Tommy."

At this cue from the old woman the old man began with a presto accompaniment on the fiddle and a shuffle of his leg-stump to yell the chorus in a thunderous roar that set the audience going, and again and again the chorus would ring out.

This ballad and the way in which it was rendered was not only the great source of Calver's success, but it was also closely linked with the greatest trouble of his life. Minnie Calver, his favourite child, and the one and only member of the family that inherited the father's dramatic and mimetic ability, used to help in the double voice part of "Chorus, Tommy"—in fact, so singularly deficient were the other members of the Calver family in the spoken part, and so remarkably versatile was Calver, that, whilst the family worked the figures Calver himself would speak the words of the whole play. So wonderful was his power of vocal mimicry, so rich and flexible his voice, that it was the spoken word quite as much as the clever working of the figures that drew the immense audiences to the show.

Minnie Calver, like many gifted daughters of the road before her and since, chose her own path in life at the time of crisis. Her case, like many another, only illustrates the world-wide ignorance of parental love to determine what in the great hazards of life is really best for its offspring.

Minnie Calver married wisely the man of her choice, and after events proved that the man of her choice was the right man, although her autocrat of a father prognosticated all manner of evil, and also in his stubborn self-will and self-love refused to be convinced otherwise. Young and full of new ideas, Minnie and her husband were amongst the first flight of British show-people to cross the Atlantic and to begin show life in the New World.

For years the old man's pride and the difficulties of communication between the two countries prevented the reconciliation of father and daughter. At last, however, the long absent couple, with two bonnie boys of their own, returned to England from America. Minnie found the old people's show stationed at Stalybridge for the winter season.

* * * * * *

"'Chorus Tommy' has coom agen. 'Chorus Tommy' is on t' fair-ground, lads," were the words of welcome on every lip as the theatre was being built up.

"Ah, me lud, thet's true enuff; but t'owd chap winna sing 'Chorus, Tommy' no more," was the confidential reply of a listener who posed as being in the family secrets of the showman.

"Yoo're tu yung to remember abawt his bonnie lass, Minnie, wot ran away to Amerikey and brock his hert. He's niver sung 'Chorus, Tommy' sin' he sung it last wi' her. He's niver bin the same mon sin' then, I can tell yo'."

"Well, I've herd my feyther speak on that. I sud so loike to hear it," was the remark of another interested listener.

"I'll try and get a few to go wi' me on t' oppening neet, and win raise a shout for it as a sort of encore. I shall be theer, me luds, and hope you'll get it, thet's all."

Now, it chanced that Minnie's husband was listening to this deeply interesting chapter of their family history, and the conversation gave him an idea that sent him back to his wife and to the elaboration of a scheme of reconciliation that would touch the heart of the old marionette worker.

The mimic play for the opening night of the marionette theatre was The Miller and his Men, produced and staged with the scenic and pyrotechnic effects for which the Calvers were famous, concluding with the pantomime of The Beauty and the Beast.

Between the play and the pantomime were to be the usual interlude of trick figures and vocal turns. The theatre was crowded to its utmost capacity. The full enjoyment and the enthusiasm of the audience was immense. Old Calver was at his best, and his sons and daughters still with him did full credit to their reputation as figure-workers. The first singing figure, the Country Joskin, finished his turn, amidst tumultuous applause. Someone in the audience raised the cry, "'Chorus, Tommy.' Let's have 'Chorus, Tommy.'" This cry was taken up by the whole audience. It was alternated with long and sustained applause. Calver came to the front and bowed his acknowledgment, but listen to him they would not. "'Chorus, Tommy,' 'Chorus, Tommy.' Let's have 'Chorus, Tommy.'"

This diversion at the front was the opportunity of the family behind to join in the plot to help their absent sister to soften her father's heart and to get the dear old figures ready for the stage.

Minnie was already in hiding, and, with streaming eyes and throbbing heart, waiting for her old-time part in the duet.

With a troubled face old Calver said to his eldest son, "You did right to get out the figures. I must do my best with the double part, but I fear it will break my heart to sing it again."

"Put your heart into it, dear old dad, and you will find it all turn out right."

On to the centre of the stage came the figures, only to be welcomed with thunderous applause. "Good old 'Chorus, Tommy,' good old 'Chorus, Tommy'!"

When the musical introduction had been played, in the dead hush of the expectant audience, Calver began, in the feeble treble of the old woman, to sing "Bartholomew Fair," better known as "Chorus, Tommy":—

"'Ow cruel wos the pressgang
Wot pressed my love from me;
'Ow cruel wos the little boat
Wot took 'im hout to sea;
'Ow cruel wos the Hadmiral
Wot did the fleet command;
Hand 'ow cruel was the big ship
Wot took 'im from the land."

With breathless attention the audience watched the clever and life-like manipulation of the dollies, the old-time business at the end of the verse—the deaf sailor's absence of mind until his old woman shouted in his ear, "Chorus, Tommy."

Then the sudden raucous energy of the sea dog, with the clever double-voiced treble and bass of Calver in the rollicking sea chorus, "Tooral looral high do, tooral looral hey," with additions by the audience ad libitum.

The whole family, behind the scenes, saw in eager and expectant anxiety the tense excitement of their dear old parent. They marked the sympathetic note in his voice as he sang the second verse, whilst the hiding Minnie was bracing herself for the critical moment of self-revelation.

"'Ow cruel wos the splinter
Wot shot 'is won heye hout;
'Ow cruel wos the cannon ball
Wot shot 'is won leg hoff;
'Ow cruel wos the capting,
Hand 'ow cruel wos the men;
They didn't care a fargin
If we never met agen."

At the last line, "If we never met agen," the old showman utterly broke down, and cried to his eldest son, "Bring off the dolls; I can sing no more. Minnie, Minnie, my poor wandering Minnie!"

From the opposite wing came a wonderful mimicry of old Calver's voice, "Chorus, Tommy"; and Calver's sons, working the figures, went through the dear old business. Teddy Calver the younger broke the silence for the first time, and sang, as best he could, the old sailor's part.

The audience, all unconscious of the play behind the scenes, took up the chorus, and sang it again and again.

It was the brave, tender-hearted, loving Minnie who held to her heaving bosom the bowed head of the now astounded old showman.

It did not need many words. Their hearts were beating in unison; and the anthem joy of their reconciliation made harmony with the exultant chorus of the shouting audience. It was the voice of Minnie finished the song:—

"Now my dear old love and I
Werry seldom fights;
Except when he gets grog aboard
Hand I gets gin at nights.
We roam about from fair to fair,
From town to town we pass;
We illustrate the story
Of a sailor and his lass."

What a mercy that clamant and insistent demand, "Encore, encore, encore!" was. Again the artist within the father triumphed. "Chorus, Tommy" was sung as never before—or since.

What worlds of love, what worlds of tender pathos father and child put into the dear old words:—

"How cruel was the captain,
How cruel was the men;
They did not care a fargin
If we never met agen."

All the cruel years of their heart exile were now over; the family were one again. Their tragedy of real life was ended. Now the rollicking fun of the pantomime could fittingly finish the performance.

When old Calver went to the front, in answer to the long and sustained demand for his presence, he led by the hand his darling daughter Minnie. He told the people that not alone to him was all the credit, but that his daughter, just come home from far-away America, had sung with him, and for him when his heart was too full for song, "Chorus, Tommy."

MASKELYNE AND DEVANT'S.

The most recent novelty in the programme at St. George's Hall is supplied by Mr. Percy French, who as a quick humorous draughtsman takes high rank. In the first place he defty illustrates the story told in rhyme of the courtship of a rich young man, rapidly sketching portraits of the suitor, the young lady, and her parents, a few strokes of the crayon changing the expression of the faces in a most amusing manner. Finally the couple are duly married, and we see a picture of the first-born in an amiable and an unamiable mood. Mr. French next proceeds to illustrate a theory that man was descended not from monkeys but from spiders, the sketch of a big spider being cleverly transformed into the features of a man's face. Lastly the artist tells a sort of fairy story concerning a hermit who was skilled in the magical art. In illustration of the tale a picture is drawn, and on being reversed this is found to be a pretty landscape with a flock of sheep travelling along a country lane. Mr. French has a pleasant conversational style, and his entertainment is a very agreeable addition to the present programme.

Mr. Karl Germain continues with marked success his "experiments in sleight-of-hand and stage conjuring." His production of hot coffee from the most unpromising material is an ingenious trick, which is greeted with applause, cups of the steaming beverage being handed round to lady members of the audience. Another trick which never fails to excite amusement as well as wonderment is the discovery of a live rabbit underneath the overcoat worn by a lad who has been induced to take part in an experiment in connection with a lady's watch, which is found attached to a ribbon around the animal's neck. The mysterious growth of a rose tree in full bloom is also a neatly worked piece of stage conjuring, and altogether the "American magician," as he is called, proves himself to be a past-master in his line of business. Mr. J. N. Maskelyne continues to excite astonishment with his "New Page" effect and his illusion "A Side Issue," the spirit mediums being challenged to produce a materialised visitant from another world under like conditions. The performance of Joad Heteb, Egyptian necromancer, presents specially interesting features; and for a welcome variation from the mysterious and unaccountable the audience is indebted to Mr. Barclay Gammon, whose humorous musical interlude, "Tunes and Tarradiddles," is greatly appreciated. The "perplexing playlet" called The Enchanted Hive, excellently played by the Messrs. F. W. Arnold-Mussett, Edward Morehen, Chas. Glenrose, and the Misses Helen McCulloch and Cassie Bruce, remains an interesting item in the bill. The orchestra is under the able direction of Mr. F. Cramer, and their rendering of the descriptive fantasia entitled "The Wedding Day" is received with well-deserved applause.

WANTED, Address of Mr. C. De Quincey, Musical-Director. Box 4,704, "The Era."

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
A capital shilling's worth is the "Era Annual," with its valuable lists of new plays produced during the year in London, the provinces, Berlin, and Paris. It contains, also, many readable articles by stage favourites, notably a characteristic contribution, "How I Spend My Day," by Miss Ellen Terry.—Daily Express, Feb. 2.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
The "Era Annual" for 1907 is now out. It is full of good things, and will be eagerly perused by all who are interested in dramatic and musical affairs and personnel. Portraits of, and original contributions by, several public favourites and managers appear, including Miss Ellen Terry, who tells "How I Spend My Day"; Mr. Frank Cooper, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. Charles Collette, Mr. Frank Curzon, Mr. Matthew Brodie, Miss Constance Moxon, Miss Edith Cole, and Mr. Tom Craven. There is, in addition, the usual store of miscellaneous theatrical information which is indispensable to all who are interested in stage matters.—Liverpool Post, Jan. 26.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING.
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON.
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON.
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOLL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER,
The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

TRADE MARK MARK

TRADE MARK

THE LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD.

THE BLIND BEGGAR'S DOG.

Code Word, CAPACITE.

The kind guide. Separated. The voice of a friend. Poor dog! Help. Free. Too late. In search of his Friend. Touching fidelity.

We see here two old friends who never leave each other, and every day have the same fight for life, one being the eyes of the other. Separation comes one day when two scamps steal the dog, and the poor beggar in distress is taken to his miserable home by charitable people. Friendless from now on, one morning he is found dead. Next we see the dog which has escaped, back in the old home, and finally tracing his master tothe cemetery, he lies down on his grave, faithful to the end. Length 362ft. The Subject £6 0s. 8d.

THE DENTIST.
Code Word, CAMP.

Another real comic. Patients with terrible tooth-aches go to be attended to by the Dentist. He uses extraordinary methods to pull out the troublesome molars, and does it in record time.

297ft. The Subject £4 19s. 0d.

THE BOAR HUNT.
Code Word, CLAIRON.

Exciting and realistic scenes of a Boar Hunt. The Meet. The arrival of the dogs. The start. The wild and thrilling chase. The animal caught, and the presentation of the boar's foot, which ends this most fascinating film.

676ft. The Subject £11 5s. 4d.

LAWYER ON THE SPREE.
Code Word, CANICULE.

Mr. Pleasurlove goes out to enjoy himself, which he does to such an extent that he is taken up for the night, and after a very extraordinary experience, we see him returned to his anxious wife.

528ft. The Subject £8 16s.

JULIUS, THE SANDWICH MAN.
Code Word, CALUMET.

A sandwich man advertises some beverage, describes his wares to everyone. Meets a friend, talks, boy lights fireworks under him. Timely arrival of policeman. Awfully funny.

445ft. The Subject £7 8s. 4d.

TAMING HIS WIFE.
Code Word, CALCIUM.

A wife with a grievance. A husband fond of his glass. Their efforts to get the better of each other are very amusing. The husband wins at first, but naturally it is the wife who finally conquers.

165ft. The Subject £2 15s.

TIGHT BOOTS.
Code Word, CANAL.

A man, suffering great discomfort from his Boots, goes to a shop to purchase a fresh pair. These turn out to be just as bad. Luckily he has a pair of list slippers in his pocket also. Calling at a friend's house to dine, he takes off the boots under the table. The dog runs away with them, so he is very awkwardly placed. There is some very amusing by-play. This film is intensely funny.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

ALL FOR A NECKLACE.
Code Word, BUVARD.

A selfish wife and a devoted husband. To obtain what she wants, she drives her husband to steal and even commit suicide. Pathetic film.

362ft. The Subject £6 0s. 8d. Colouring 9s.

THE FIANCÉE'S NIGHTMARE.
Code Word, BROUISSURE.

The night before the wedding the mother turns a beggar away from the house. This the bride thinks will be an ill-omen. She dreams all kinds of terrible things at first, later on a fairy comes, lets her see her bridegroom, and all is well. Very pretty scenes.

230ft. The Subject £3 16s. 8d. Colouring 5s. 6d.

DISTRESS.
Code Word, CALEBASSE

Thrilling story of a father and daughter. The man steals a loaf and is imprisoned; subsequently escapes, and goes to look for his little girl, who has been sent to a home for children. Great joy when father and daughter meet. Later on he is tracked by the police. In preference to being taken again he throws himself from a great height and is killed. Very pathetic scenes, and full of interest.

610ft. The Subject £10 3s. 4d.

THE HOOLIGANS' IDEA.
Code Word, CAROTTE.

This is a capital picture. One of two Hooligans buys at a secondhand shop a policeman's uniform. The other Hooligan robs a house and is arrested by the bogus policeman. It is splendidly carried out and is of extra fine quality.

362ft. The Subject £6 0s. 8d.

CONSTABLE, PLEASE.
Code Word, CAMEMBERT.

A rubber air toy, life-size model of a dragoon, gets away from the toy shop and is pursued by real dragoons, who think, seeing it flying in the air, that it is a companion in distress. The local fire brigade also is called out to help in the capture. Very amusing indeed.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

JEALOUSY AND FOLLY.
Code Word, CABARETIER.

A tragic story of a jealous husband. He goes mad, and is shut up in an asylum. Later on he is allowed to return home, but is still a victim of the insane jealousy which leads him to kill his young wife, and finally to get arrested and shot. Most pathetic story.

595ft. The Subject £9 18s. 4d. Tinting 8s.

THE ELECTRIC BELT.
Code Word, CANAPE.

The husband has a bad pain in his back. His wife gets an electric belt; puts it in his overcoat; it makes him jump all over the place and want to kiss every woman he meets. He is arrested; the magistrate accidently puts on the coat and goes through the same performance; many amusing complications follow. This is one of the most humorous films we have ever produced, and is bound to be a large seller.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

GREAT INTERNATIONAL BOXING CONTEST

FOR THE MIDDLE-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE WORLD,
At the NATIONAL SPORTING CLUB, LONDON, April 22nd, 1907.

Between TIGER SMITH, Middle-Weight Champion of England, and SAM LANGFORD, of America.

Grand reproduction of the Match, from the start to the finish in the fourth round. The ring was splendidly illuminated by our special powerful electric light system, and every detail of the contest is plainly shown. Both men form excellent pictures of perfectly trained boxers, and the remarkable speed, great power, and admirable attack and defence of the Champion, combined with the courage and swing of Smith, form a Glove Fight series of thrilling and absorbing interest. Inasmuch as Langford is a coloured man the incidents of the match throughout can better be followed.

In consequence of the great expense incurred in the electric installation, and the royalties for photographic privileges, we are obliged slightly to advance the price of this special film.

No. 1990. Code "Langford." Length 575ft. Price £14 7s. 6d.

"HIS ONE FRIEND."

A beautifully pathetic Picture illustrating the almost superhuman sagacity, devotion and touching fidelity of a dog to his master, a poor blind beggar, to whom he is "Faithful unto Death." Reverently treated and perfectly photographed, this subject, foremost amongst the animated picture dramas of the year, will strongly appeal to the sympathies of every audience, and is certain of a long run wherever exhibited.

This is the original film which gave one of our competitors an idea for another subject on somewhat similar lines. A comparison of the two will effectively demonstrate the great superiority of the original Urban Production.

No. 3173. Code "Faithful." Length 475ft. Price £7 18s. 4d.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—Mr. Fred Karno's vaudeville company opened here on Monday night in the sketches, The Mumming Birds and Early Birds. Mr. Charles Denton is a comedian of high merit, and is well received. The Sisters Lavender are clever duettists and dancers; the Meltons, comedy duo, give a bright and amusing turn, and are deservedly applauded; Lincoln and Warren are exceedingly capable trick acrobats and comedy cyclicts; Miss Lillie Stuart, comedienne and dancer, also adds greatly to the evening's entertainment.

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mr. Junius Booth and company are appearing here this week in Monte Cristo. Mr. Booth plays most powerfully and artistically as Edmond Dantes; and admirable portrayals of the parts of Nortier and Caderousse are given by Mr. Beckitt Gould and Mr. Percy Braithwaite; while Baron d'Anglers and General Mondego are well impersonated by Mr. Augustin Bowerman and Mr. C. W. Crowe.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Gunner Moir's feats of boxing are the principal attraction here this week; Schavoni's troupe of comedy acrobats are completely successful; Miss Lily Vearl and company play cleverly an interesting sketch, The Red Letter, which is founded on the Thaw case; the Montaldos give a capital wire and equilibristic act; Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor, American comedians, earn hearty applause; Mr. Bert Bowden is clever as a comedian; Nelson and Thomas are particularly humorous patterers; Miss Jennie Evans, comedienne, is appreciated; and the ingenious "song and story in a garden" turn of Vowles and Bryan proves highly interesting.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. I. E. Barnes.—The Face at the Window is being presented here this week. Mr. Hoggan Armadale gives a thrilling performance of Le Loup; Paul Gouffet is cleverly portrayed by Mr. T. W. Dunscombe; Henry de Brisson is well played by Mr. A. Warne; Mr. C. A. Hineson scores as Petre Pottleberry; Le Blanc is in the safe hands of Mr. George Rhythian; Miss Marie Tennant gives a very artistic performance as La Pinau; Miss Gladys Newcombe plays Babette with effect; Miss Marie Barrett is an ideal Marie de Brisson.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Potter, Vandy, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Parsons.—Tom Foy tops the bill with the funny sketch, The Yorkshire Lad in London; McDonald and Huntington are a smart comedy duo; Arthur Royce is a good character comedian; and Fay and Fay amuse the house by their burlesque boxing. Pete and Juno are capital dancers; the Lorrisons are good; and Pat in China, by the Foy Bros. and company, is funny and clever. The Hippo. pictures complete an interesting programme.

ALDERSHOT.—THE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—The Prince of Pilsen, played by Mr. Baron H. Harriss's company, forms the attraction here this week, and has had a hearty reception. Mr. Harry Kilburn's conception of Hans Wagner is excellent; Mr. Frank Crimp gives a talented portrayal of the Prince, and he uses a good voice to advantage in his song, "A passing cloud"; Mr. Roy Sydney as Lieut. Wagner also does well; as the affected Earl, Mr. B. Russell is good; and Mr. Ernest Gifford is an amusing Francois; Miss Sophie Harriss's fine appearance, clever acting, and success generally as the Widow, places that rôle among the foremost; Miss Connie Leon has a charming manner, and sings and dances with great ability; Miss Mollie Wynne is a vivacious Jimmie, Miss Alice Nixon's Nellie is ably portrayed, and Miss Ada Watson as Edith is good.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Revill.—A return visit is being paid here by Miss Mary Austin and company. The play produced on Monday and two following evenings was the pathetic story of The Cotton Spinner, with Miss Mary Austin in the character of Mary Prescott, the cotton-spinner's daughter. It was a very fine portrayal of the true woman. Some excellent delineations of character are also depicted by Miss Annie Beaumont as Lady Charlotte Needy and Miss May Grimshaw as Constance Harrington. Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds scores as Arthur Northbury, a swell wastrel; Mr. Jno. S. Haydon gives a powerful and touching interpretation of the cotton-spinner, Mr. Jno. Prescott; Messrs. J. Milne Taylor, Geo. P. Lester, F. W. Goddard, Chris. Dashwood, H. Harrop, and Miss Ethel Vinroy, in minor rôles, are satisfactory exponents of varied characters. On Thursday and Friday evenings the drama, Shall We Forgive Her? another of the late Mr. Frank Harvey's plays, was ably performed by Miss Austin and members of her company.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—A good all-round "variety" company has possession here, including Derenda and Green, the creative juggling comedians; Mr. Geo. Hyam finds admirers of his peculiar humour and song; W. L. Murray, the Roman gladiator, is a man of fine physical proportions; the Gentrys appear to advantage in the refined acrobatic sketch Wanted, a Maid; the Lilian Brothers are good acrobats; Kate Hill, singing comedienne; Harry Russon, versatile comedian; and Ginger, a clever ventriloquist, are interesting "turns." Mlle. Vanda does some expert juggling on the rolling globe. Finally, a good dramatic sketch is submitted by Howell Webb's company, The Galley Slave, showing how a galley slave paid with his life the debt he owed to his benefactor. The chief actors in the scene are Messrs. Howell Webb, Chas. Bennett, Miss Magdalen Moore, Miss Emily Ruby, and little Ivy Rochfort.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaughton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chris A. Wordsworth.—Picture entertainments are still drawing crowded houses nightly here. In consequence of her great success, Miss Nellie Burke, the pleasing comedienne, is retained, and her illustrated songs, ably rendered, meet with hearty approval.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. E. Owen.—The programme at this popular house is up to the usual high standard. One of the cleverest illusions ever seen here is presented by the Denturinis, under the title of "So-Da." A most interesting coster-scena is furnished by Shirley and Ransom, entitled "'Alf a Quid"; Mr. E. C. Clayton's "Attergraph" pictures of the Football Cup Final last week prove popular; well-deserved applause is given to Kier and Kempton for their refined vocal scena; Mr. Harry Zetter is an amusing and versatile comedian; other turns are given by Valvo, ventriloquist; the Sisters Brooke, duettists and dancers; and Cyclo, comedy cyclist.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company in The Power of the Cross is here on a return visit. Mr. George A. de Gray plays Baron Wolfe Curzola with convincing realism, and Mr. Charles Linney is happy as Gerald Fairfax; Mr. Alexander J. Haviland is well placed as Dr. Leslie Fairfax; and Messrs. Frank Stephens as Benjamin Hawke and A. Read as David Kingsley are good in their respective characters. Miss Cicely Desmonde makes a fine adventuress as Rita Lascelles, Miss Phyllis Vaughan a winsome Blanche Kingsley, Miss Etta Turner a vivacious Dolly Gray, and Mr. Richard E. Nugent a humorous Timothy O'Dowd.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—The last company to appear here prior to rebuilding is Mr. Albert Chevalier in the three plays, Atonement, The Dream of His Life, and Pantaloon. He himself plays the leading part in each of the plays, showing great artistic gifts and singing finely, and is assisted by a very efficient company.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar St. Laban.—An excellent programme is presented here this week. The Ten Loonies are the top of the bill with their musical sketch, Dotty, and display clever musical abilities; Lozelle gives a clever and neat performance in a novel speciality act; Francis and Alfred, in a juggling act, are very clever; Miss Marie Beresford is a pleasing musical comedy artist; and Mark Merry is much appreciated for his quaint songs and patter; Dave McNeil is well received; and the Jansons, equilibrists, give a clever and novel show; the performance is concluded with some good pictures shown by Vernon's Bioscope.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Closed this week; re-opening on Monday next with Mr. H. F. Maltby and company, in the romantic play, The Youngest of Three.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Mr. Fred Ginnett's equestrian spectacle, Turpin's Ride to York, has met with an enthusiastic reception. The rest of the bill is contributed by Beau and Belle, in an artistic song-scena; the Coolvilles, engaging vocalists and dancers; Richard Finberg, a clever character-actor; Lang and Beal, musical comedians and patterers; Vera Mayne, a pleasing comedienne; Edie Endon, comedienne and dancer; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—A new play from the pen of William T. Saward was presented for the first time on Monday night, three subsequent performances being given. Honi Soit is the title of the piece, which was played by local amateurs, the profits from the performances to be handed to the Bedford Cricket Club. From rise to the fall of the curtain things went smoothly enough, the players appearing to be almost word-perfect, and mistakes being few in number. Many members of the company have faced Bedford footlights before, a fact which probably accounted for the absence of any awkwardness among them. Every part showed evidence of careful study and rehearsal. According to the plot, the piece might be termed a society drama in high life. Lord Harborough was cleverly personated by Mr. E. E. Spencer; Mr. J. Trapp was amusing as Dick Cunningham; as Gerald Arden Mr. G. W. Carter was good, although we have seen him in a more suitable part. Mr. W. E. Ison looked the exact image of a country squire, Sir Robert Cardington, and played the part admirably; Mr. A. Ednie gave a clever representation of the unsuccessful schemer—Major Rimmington; and Mr. E. P. Anthony, excellently made-up, is to be congratulated on his portrayal of the character of Lord Harborough's secretary. Mrs. Kyffin Crossfield gave a refined and clever performance as Norah St. Quentin; and next in order of merit must be placed Miss Hebden, who as Countess Lanovitch played with much dramatic force; Mrs. A. H. Blake was a dignified Lady Harborough. The piece was well staged, and many charming dresses were worn.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Arthur Hardy's company opened here on Monday with Beauty and the Barge. Mr. Blake Adams achieved a noteworthy success as the amorous old salt, Captain Barley; as the mate, Mr. Fred Knight was in every sense admirable; and Miss Dido Drake gave a delightful impersonation of Ethel Smedley. Miss Mary Pemberton was a charming Lucy Dallas; and Mr. Edward Coventry a capital Lieut. Seton Boyne, R.N.; the rôle of Major Smedley was cleverly sustained by Mr. Walter Pemberton, and Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu presented an excellent impersonation of Herbert Manners. Miss Mona Robin appeared to much advantage as Mrs. Smedley; and the parts of Mrs. Porter and Mrs. Baldwin were well represented by Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite and Miss Ruby Wyndham. Jerry and the Sunbeam was an acceptable curtain-raiser.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. de Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Harris.—Mr. Arthur Rigby, with a most capable company of twenty artists, appears with every element of success in a new comic opera, The Isle of Ooma; Les Piccolinos, two midgets three feet high, appear in their extraordinary performance, including head and hand balancing, wire-walking, &c., which has created quite a sensation; the sweet tenor vocalism of Mr. Arthur Aldridge has delighted all; and Mr. Morny Cash, a versatile comedian, creates roars of laughter. Also here are Mr. J. H. McCann, the comedian on skates; Miss Rosie Reval, comedienne; and the Palace pictures.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Hippodrome Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Mr. Eugene Stratton, a great favourite in Belfast, heads the bill here; Silbon's American Vaudeville Circus provide an excellent entertainment; the illusory feats of Kahn and Kahn have created the utmost astonishment; Olms and Carbeth, comedy jugglers, have been accorded a good reception; the McKays, in their comedy act (which includes some clever painting by Mr. McKay) gain approval; Prof. R. Dunning is a humorous ventriloquist; and Miss Mabel Vavius plays the musical glasses to perfection. The De Gross Trio, in their novel gymnastic act; Adams and Ward, acrobatic comedians; Mr. George Lennard, comedian; and the Hipposcope, with new pictures, are also among the attractions.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Walker.—Miss Juno May, the lady wrestler, tops the bill, and her capital exhibition has been accorded a good reception; a hit has been made by Mr. Chas. Kitts and Miss Rhoda Windrum in their military sketch, The Cuckoo; Mezzetti and Nora appear in a smart exhibition on the bars; the graceful dancing and capital singing of the Eight Emerald Gems have won favour; the Bros. Egbert, big favourites here, are on a return visit with their highly amusing act; and the juggling feats of Marlo have astonished large audiences. Also here are Mr. Chas. Dillon, comedian; Mr. C. Randolph King, the one man programme; Miss Bessie Benson, comedienne and dancer; and Parker and Parr, Welsh comedy vocalists.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Sinclair Neill.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company, under the personal direction of Mr. M. Montgomery is producing Kathleen Mavourneen. Mr. Horace Denton, a capable actor, deserves congratulations on his success in the rôle of Terence O'More; a winning impersonation of Kathleen is furnished by Miss Nina Blake-Adams; Mr. Cyril Grier acquitted himself with distinction as Black Rody; and Miss Kathleen Magee deserves special mention for her clever impersonation of Dorothy Kavanagh. The humour of the piece is in the hands of Mr. Tom H. Solly, an inimitable Bill Button Cap, and Miss Mattie Crawford, a charming Kitty O'Lavery. The iniquities of Bernard Kavanagh are cleverly portrayed by Mr. Edward

M. Heanley; Mr. Elmore Frith is Father O'Cassidy to the life; and Miss Alice Clarke as Meg Marslogh is all that can be desired.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Musical-Director, Mr. J. E. Machin.—Mr. Frank Lindo is here this week as the hero of his own drama, Home, Sweet Home, and gives an excellent impersonation of Steve Armitage. Miss Marion Wakeford as Joan (the heroine) is also a painstaking performer; Captain Gerald Gambiar makes an ideal Duke of Ancaster; the Misses Rochefort are well cast as Sybil Fay and Dor; good service is rendered by Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle as David Armitage, Mr. F. Miles Hodgson as Lucas Lyle, Mr. Geo. Overs as Dick Redmayne, and Mr. Jack Patrick in the comedy part of the Duke's son.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Messrs. C. and F. Renad's company in The Swiss Express is here. Mr. Charles Renad as James and Mr. J. Oliver Russell as John shine with exceptional brilliance; and the Dr. Gondiniar Gull of Mr. Wilfred E. Brandon is a most humorous impersonation; Miss Celestine Brandon is a charming and efficient Virginia; Miss Blanche Vernon is well suited as Mrs. Septimus Squeeze, and Mr. Charles Gray, Mr. Harwood Cooper, Mr. Harry H. Vernon, and Mr. Alex Wylie are prominent in the cast; Miss Lottie Stone's quartette of vocalists and dancers are a decided acquisition.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Morris Cronin and his confrères, in their marvellous exposition of jugglery, are an undeniable attraction; Miss Nina Gordon, an accomplished comedienne and mimic, is a leading favourite; and Fred Kitchen and Frank Lister in a well-sustained sketch, No. 99, are received with well-deserved cordiality. Wylie's dogs are marvels of canine sagacity; Sandford and Lyons, clever dancers, are a favourite turn; and an excellent company also includes Mr. Albert Le Fre in "That's What You See in the Halls"; Mr. John E. Coyle, comedian; Mr. Charles Pastor, comedian; Miss May Young, descriptive vocalist; and Morris's Royal Bioscope. On Thursday Mr. Clarke generously gave a matinée in aid of the Benevolent Fund of the Mersey Railway Company, when extra attractions were provided.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Mr. Martin Harvey is here in The Only Way. Mr. Martin's study of the self-sacrificing hero remains as ever an affecting picture, and he is admirably supported by Miss N. De Silva as Mimi, Miss Coleridge as Lucy, Miss Rorke as the vengeance, Mr. Leonard Craske as Darnay, Mr. Fred Wright, sen., as Dr. Manette, and Mr. Charles Glenny as Defarge, &c. On Wednesday and Thursday evenings The Breed of the Treshams showed Mr. Harvey in splendid form as Reresby, "the Rat"; with Miss De Silva in her original part of Batty. The Corsican Brothers, which Mr. Harvey revived here last autumn, was down for Friday and Saturday, Hamlet being reserved for Thursday's matinée.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Garham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The Beauty of Bath, which drew enormous crowds to our Theatre Royal last week, is now appearing here, where its success is fully maintained. Mr. Hicks as the Lieutenant, and Miss Terris as "the Beauty" are quite "the catch of the season," and Birmingham delights in them.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo.—The Little Bread-Winner is being played by Mr. J. A. Campbell's company. Meg, the title-rôle, is presented in a pleasingly natural style by little Miss Emmie Thomas; Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam deserves the highest praise as Kate Cherry; Miss Emil Leslie is admired as Margaret Daventry; Miss Jenny Bostock handles the part of Bridget in a clever manner; Miss Kitty Melville is successful as Ruth Cherry; Mr. Eugene Santley plays with impressive dignity as Lord Dorrington; Mr. Matthew Boulton secures much sympathy as Richard Lawrence; Mr. Alfred Maurice brings out the characteristics of the secretary, Joseph Prior, with admirable skill; and Mr. Stanley Leedham gives true realism to the rôle of Charles Prior.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Price of Her Soul is here, with Mr. John B. Shinton and Mr. Alexander Greenwood's company. Mr. Shinton appears with fine effect as Lord Rolfe Mandeville; Miss Ada M. Ryder lends full glamour to the rôle of the Countess Inez Steinmetz; Miss Eva Elwes gives a clever portrayal of Olga Lanovitz; little Mabel Ronald deserves much praise as Vera; Miss Grace Garside wins distinction in the rôle of Lady Jemima; and Mr. Archie Gear as General Lanovitz, Mr. Arthur C. Pringle as Major Skoboloff, Mr. Ernest Regent as Captain Petruski, and Mr. George Marriott, jun., as the Hon. Algy act with signal ability. Mr. Larry Clements as Pat Murphy and Miss Ethel Rainforth as Polly Perkins are responsible for some clever humorous passages.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Interest here centres in the famous native choir from Jamaica, who submit a pleasing programme from their extensive répertoire of plantation melodies, novel glees and choruses, instrumental solos, descriptive pieces, and funny sketches. The entire entertainment is of a decidedly novel and catchy character, and Mr. Henry Nation's pianoforte solos, from the works of Chopin, Rubenstein, &c., show a fine appreciation of the works of these masters.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—The Tyrant is being presented by Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's company. Miss Dagmar, in her acting as Tisbe, displays rare emotional power, and keeps the audience enthusiastic to the end; Mr. Somerfield's success as Homodei is very pronounced and deserved; Mr. Roy Fortesque's presentment of Angela is thorough and convincing; and Mr. Lionel Atwill is most satisfactory as Rudolph. Miss Lallah Shelton shows much power as Rulie, Miss Millie Ford acts the rôle of Lady Katherine to considerable advantage; Miss Olive Lloyd shines as Reginella; Mr. Albert Rogers makes capital fun as Nobbo; Mr. Charles E. Warne makes a goodly Dean; and Mr. Percy Brown does well as Victor.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Harry Cadley's sketch, The Casey Circus, is screamingly funny, and anything more ludicrous than the Casey Boys could hardly be imagined. The Gothams fully maintain their reputation for song and merriment; Clive Darrell is appearing as "the Jilted Giant," and it will be recalled that his unreciprocated attentions to Marie Fassenr, the Tyrolese giantess, some little time ago created a stir. The Geretti Sisters fully deserve their designation as graceful gymnasts and lightning trapeze artists. The Boccacio Minstrels provide a pleasing turn, and Rosa Looder is entertaining as "the Slavey at the Piano." Topsy and Usher, in plantation songs; George Ridgwell, versatile vocalist; Syd Sylvester, comedian; and Frank Couch, patter comedian, complete the bill.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The great features of the entertainment are the tableaux of La Tia, and a crowded audience gives the artist a reception no less hearty than is deserved. Terry and Lambert, the American comedy duo, add greatly to the fun; while Alec Kendal scores a distinct success with his quaint and original patter. W. H. Clemart is an exceedingly clever ventriloquist; Gilroy and Gros, expert dancers; Tom Lloyd, eccentric comedian; Nash and Noel, comedians and dancers; the Three Laurels, gymnasts on the ping-pong table; Daisy Martell, comedienne; and Will Johnson, the lively comedian, also contribute to the success of the evening.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Harry Ford presents a number of new songs, which appears admirably suited to the public taste; Harry Brown's American quaintness and patter adds greatly to the success of the entertainment; Sylvia du Berry possesses a rich soprano voice; Sam Spira is an entertainer of no mean order; while Helen Charles gives a refined drawing-room entertainment, which has the additional charm of novelty; Effie White, in her kaleidoscopic dance, is also successful. Jack Hylton, La Velle Bros., the Tally Trio, and Woolmer Young are also responsible for pleasing turns.

NATIONAL TRADES EXHIBITION, BINGLEY HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. George Stanley.—The popularity of this hardy and recreative annual shows no signs of waning, and the instructive quality of the exhibits and the rare diversity of the side-shows have awakened unprecedented interest in the show. This week, the music is supplied by H.M. Band of the Royal Marines, Chatham, whose selections have proved most satisfactory and popular.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Ed. Foster.—Lockhart's Elephants, presented by Captain Taylor, hold the place of honour in the programme. Charles Coborn sings several capital songs, which are well received, especially "The costers' friendly league"; Seeley and West are expert musicians, as well as comedians, whose handbells and numerous brass and wood-wind instruments delight their hearers. Gracie Moore has a pleasing contralto voice, and her songs are illustrated by limelight views; Frank Bertram and company appear in a sketch, entitled The Chaperon, which is extremely amusing; the Rohda Bros. are neat and skilful gymnasts; and Florence is a clever lady mimic, whose imitation of Happy Fanny Fields and Eugene Stratton captivate the audience.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Mr. Frank Ayrton's company is presenting here this week The Power of Gold, a drama which is proving an exceedingly good attraction. The rôle of Paul Judson is manfully played by Mr. R. F. Stacey; Mark Harley is well depicted by Mr. Richard Harris; and the character of Hadgi Zambra could not be better portrayed than it is by Mr. Geo. Lyttleton. As Meg Judson, Miss Lily Prescot is most painstaking, and her efforts are deservedly applauded; villainy is well represented by Miss Amy McNeill as Lady Brandon; Little Prudence makes an admirable Paddy Blake, a street arab; much fun is caused by Mr. Frank Ayrton as Sammy Smudge, and Miss Madge Seymour as Norah Donnelly.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey and company are here this week with The Shaughraun. Mr. Mackey gives a lively picture of an Irishman, and Mrs. Mackey presents a pleasing impersonation of Clare Ffolliott. Mr. John S. Chamberlain's Harvey Duff is a masterpiece, and Korry Kinchella has an able representative in Mr. David M'Farlane. Mr. H. Sainsbury as Father Doolan, Mr. St. John Stuart as Robert Ffolliott, and Mr. Charles Homer as Captain Molyneux are deserving of praise.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—The Sorrows of Satan is here played by Miss Loie Esmond's company. The part of Prince Lucio Rimanez is sustained by Mr. Edward Neville, and Miss Esmond is responsible for that of Diana Chesney. The play is preceded by a curtain-raiser, entitled Two Soft.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Arabella Allen contributes remarkably good impersonations of Dickens' characters; Hyram Travers, "the Pearly King," gives great delight with his humorous songs; the Three Electrics are funny comedians; the Maples are comedy artists and dancers of repute; Lizzie Kirk finds instant favour as a comedienne; Huline and Le May win the good graces of the audience as musical clowns; and Rowland Hill's comic songs are always in good taste. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope winds up the show.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Mr. Montagu Beaudyn's company has paid a return visit here with A Beautiful Fiend. Mr. Beaudyn made an interesting Ivan Paulovitch; Mr. Herbert Skardon, in the character of Fedor Karatoff, was well received; the Sergius Strogoff of Mr. Mat Russell won favour; and Mr. W. Robertson Foulis as Malachi was highly satisfactory; Miss Sidney Crowe assumes the part of Wanda Lubinoff with distinction; and an artistic portrayal of Nadini is furnished by Miss Irene Monroe. The humour of the piece is safe in the hands of Mr. Harry Oates and Miss Annie Clunn.

THE GAIETY.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. George E. Good.—The artists appearing here include J. P. Carroll, George Grenville (comedian), Paddy Cullen and Nellie Nora (a dainty instrumentalist). Pictures are a feature of the programme.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—Mr. Arthur Carlton is presenting In Sight of St. Paul's. The company responsible for the production is a capable one, and mention must be made of the abilities of Mr. Ernest R. Allen as Tom Chichester, Mr. Herbert Cecil as John Gridston, Mr. Henry Gilpin as Blidstein, Herbert Colley as Jim Palfrey, Miss Sybil Hammersley as Becky Vetch, and Miss Gussie Everitt as Cynthia Dell.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Mr. Fred Karno's company is here in Mumming Birds and Early Birds. Other turns are Apollo, athlete; Miss Rosie Archer, mimic; Tom E. Hughes, comedian; Sterling and Love, in a smart vocal and instrumental comedy act; Will Vay's juveniles, in their scens, "Life in the Slums"; Robins and Collier, in The Lady and the Porter; and Will Driscoll, swell comedian and dancer.

BOOTLE.—MUNCASTER THEATRE — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—Mr. Leonard Dalrymple's company is here in As Midnight Chimes. Mr. Herbert Pearce makes a fine Ezra Gamble, and Mr. Dalrymple a manly Dave Stannard; Miss Maud Hastings is a capable and sympathetic Mary Stannard, and Miss Marion Ryder is well placed as Little Davy; Mr. H. Belmore gives a powerful rendering of Luke Dezzard, his acting in the Vault scene being deserving of special mention. The comedy portion of the piece finds capable exponents in Mr. James Salter as Tat Spavvin and Miss Madge Beresford as Suzette. Other characters in capable hands are Nat Wilson (Mr. H. B. Peppin), P.C. Tibbot (Mr. Harry C. Nerney), and Zamora (Miss Alma Henson).

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Ball.—Jan Rudenyi, supported by Miss Dora de Winton and Mr. John Saunders, appears in a romance, entitled The Power of Music, in which his skill on the violin is shown to great advantage; the Pender Troupe of pantomimists create much laughter in their farcical burlesque, Hands Up!; the Five Casino Girls submit a pleasing instrumental turn which gains much applause; Harry Carsdale is a clever mimic of farmyard animals; the Sisters Belmont are dainty singers and dancers; Henri Bekker is good in a neat conjuring turn; the Stilt-Walkers' Troupe are amusing; and some excellent pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Miss Annie Hughes, supported by a strong company, in Tommy, is appearing here this week. Miss Hughes in the title-rôle is rapturously received, and deservedly so; Mr. Evelyn Vernon as the Editor is very good, and so is Mr. Willie Hartill as Clod; while the Dick Danvers of Mr. Rupert Danvers is a sound piece of acting; Miss Winifred Pearson in her lovely costumes scores heavily as "Mr. Morrison"; and strong support is lent by Mr. R. F. Beach as Flipp and Miss Ida Richardson as Honour.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. Hart's own company is appearing this week in the delightful comedy-drama A Message from Mars, with that clever actor, Mr. Arthur Holmes-Gore, as Horace Parker. He is finely supported by Mr. W. H. Brougham as the imposing Martian; Mr. Bruce Lindley is particularly effective in his acting as the tramp; Arthur Dicey has a capable exponent in Mr. T. Holding; Miss Joan Ellis gracefully fills the part of Minnie Templer; and a capital performance of Miss Parker is given by Miss Flora Hastings. There are some fine stage effects, and the play is greeted with hearty applause.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—With marked success Mr. Walter Howard's military drama, Her Love Against the World, was presented here for the first time on Monday evening by a capable company, under the direction of Messrs. W. H. Hallatt and Mr. Howard, who wins unstinted applause for his vigorous and convincing acting as the much-persecuted Lieut. Eric Strathmere; his little brother Nello is represented by Miss Rosie St. John in a capable manner, her acting being marked by earnestness and pathos; Mr. Mayor-Cooke is forcible as the tyrant Ulric, Prince of Ravensburg; Mr. Hallatt gives a performance of the part of Prince Othmar which is earnest and conscientious; Mr. Sam Arthur leaves nothing to be desired as Prince Maurice of Saxonia; Mr. Walter Langley's fire-eating General Gessler is a capital effort. With much grace and tenderness Miss Ellen Snow embodies the character of the oppressed Iris, Princess of Idalia. The love complications of Henrick Pimpernickle (Mr. H. B. Lewis), Fritz Pimpernickle (Mr. R. Webb), Katinka (Miss Lizzie Lennon), and Gretchen (Miss Hettie Ferguson) supply the humorous element, and there is much praise due to Miss Blanche Steele for a powerful impersonation of the small but important part of the confiding Shulah, Countess of Rassellyn.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Mr. Fred Karno's company of comedians, including Mr. Fred Kitchen, are here again this week, convulsing audiences with the farcical absurdity The Bailiff, which is brimful of broad humour. A pleasing song-scena, "Let Bygones be Bygones," is presented by Hurley and Cole; an attractive and clever gymnastic display is given by the Renards, dental trio; Kate Traill at the piano largely interests the audience with her songs; as comedians and dancers Stephens and Rennior are excellent; Forest and King are clever contortionists; some very fine gymnastic feats are accomplished by Helene and Emilon; as a comedienne of the broad comedy type Nellie Wallace is decidedly clever and diverting; and a good programme is completed by interesting pictures on the American Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. Ralli.—Excellent dancing by Sterling and Cashen, of the speciality order, is the first turn on an excellent programme here; Arthur Croxon, a smart mimetic comedian, is entertaining; Josie Delaine, a charming vocalist and dancer, wins unstinted applause; a fine instrumental performance by the accomplished Transfield Trio is deservedly applauded; the Katos are good as "The Komical Kidgets"; Johnny Dwyer, comedian, submits some capital songs; the pretty juvenile duettists, the Sisters Marion, charm the audience; Florrie Gallimore, comedienne, is as popular as ever with her excellent songs; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux submit up-to-date pictures.

BRIDLINGTON.—ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—The promenade concerts given daily by Mr. Joseph Sainton and his talented orchestra are increasingly popular. Mr. Sainton, in addition to his great ability as a conductor, is also a very brilliant pianist, and has gained in favour by the beautiful manner in which he has interpreted various solos by some of the great masters. Miss Ethel Walker is this week giving some smart and well-chosen sketches at the piano, and scores greatly with her humorous songs; Mr. F. L. Kettlewell's cornet solos are a great source of delight.

THE PALACE.—Managers, Messrs. W. H. and J. W. Delmar.—A ten days' Carnival is being held here, and the management have secured some good talent to assist the usual attractions, including the Japanese Ladies' Orchestra, a good combination of vocalists and instrumentalists; Professor Reno, a smart and up-to-date illusionist; Mr. George Le Wist and his talking figures, in a very clever ventriloquial entertainment; and Miss M. Adrian, a lady tenor vocalist. The animated pictures and Milton's "hall of laughter" add to the enjoyment of the large audiences.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. Leonard Boyne and company opened here on Monday with Raffles. Mr. Leonard Boyne gave a masterly portrayal of the amateur cracksman, Raffles; Miss Jane Savile imparted grace and charm to her enactment of Gwendoline Conran; Miss Elaine was distinctly effective as the grass widow, Mrs. Vidal; and Miss Alys Rees was admirably suited as Lady Melrose. Mr. E. W. Thomas, as the American detective, Curtis Bedford, achieved great success; Mr. Dalziel Heron submitted a clever character-study as the professional burglar, Crawshay; Mr. Arthur Willoughby was a dignified Earl of Amersteth; Mr. Lewis Edgard's Harry Manders and Mr. Edmund Breon's Viscount Crowley were well played; and able support was rendered by Miss Jean Morrison (Lady Ethel), Miss Jean Harkness (Marie), and Mr. Charles Kean (Goldby).

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton's company is here this week with A Gambler's Daughter. Miss Adria Hill's acting in the dual rôles of Mildred Grant and her daughter Miriam is thoroughly artistic; Mr. Robert Ayrton gives an admirable enactment of Desmond O'Dare; Mr. Fiennar is well suited as Stephen Brand; Mr. Alfred Sanders makes an entertaining Solomon Solomens; Miss Harriett Loydall affords much amusement as Auntie Zeb; Mr. W. H. Terriss as Ralph Gillman merits praise; Mr. H. Barham capitally impersonates Dick, "the Weasel," afterwards Capt. Stanhope; Mr. Richard Pitt is an excellent John Grant; and the remaining characters are satisfactorily sustained.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—There is a capital company here this week. The Mysterious Brothers Howard, mind readers, submit a clever and interesting turn; Edith Muir, Hubert Bartlett, and company are highly successful in the tabloid comedy, The Collar Stud; the "Bounding Navvies," Wild, Willie, and West, are entertaining in their comedy acrobatic trampolin and trap act; Dorothy Vernon and Marie Burdell win warm applause in their musical comedy duo, What Price Me? Jordan and Harvey, Hebrew comedians, contribute a praiseworthy turn; the Mackinnon Family of musicians, vocalists, and dancers are well received; Farr and Farland, the "aristocratic comedians who converse," are diverting; Dorothy Gould is a dainty comedienne; George Burley, comedian, merits commendation; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—An excellent programme is submitted here this week. Arthur Roberts and company appear in the farce The Woman Who Was, and evoke very hearty laughter Keith and Herson are amusing in their hunting absurdity, The Meet; Millie Payne's quaint songs are warmly appreciated; W. T. Ellwanger and company win cordial applause in the comedy sketch, The Peacemaker; Vernon and Voyce are capital singing comedians; Coram, a clever ventriloquist, gives an excellent entertainment; the Crystals are pleasing vocalists and graceful dancers; Percy Hannan, American baritone, acquits himself admirably; Dave O'Toole is an amusing comedian; and the Barrascope pictures are interesting.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott and company opened here on Monday with Sapho. Miss Ada Abbott achieved great success in her impersonation of Fanny Legrand; Mr. Ernest R. Abbott submitted an excellent enactment of Jean Gaussin; Mr. Weedon Ross made a capital old Legrand; Mr. John Lester was well placed as Caoudal; Mr. Douglas C. Phelps' Uncle Ceasaire was ably presented; and Mr. C. Douglas as Flamant, Mr. W. H. Garbois as Henri Dechelette, and Miss Hetty Jones as Joseph also deserve praise. In the first act Mr. Edward Keene introduced some pleasing musical and humorous specialities. The programme for the week included Trilby.

PALACE PIER.—Mrs. Fred J. Kirke's company is here this week with The Naval Detective. Mr. Leslie Austin achieves conspicuous success as the detective, and cleverly impersonates three characters; Miss Louie Fountaine, who also sustains three parts, displays marked skill, and sings in good style; Mr. Rowland Bridge is highly effective as Dr. Schreiner; Mr. George Willis makes an admirable Captain; Mr. Walter T. Hybert is amusing as the Hon. Bertie Fairlox; and Miss Edith Claris as Susan Scrubs and Miss Francesca Strickland as Lulu Kaufmann contribute to the great success of the performance. The variety turns introduced included specialities submitted by Miss Louie Fountaine (soprano), Miss Edith Claris (comedienne), the Roduin Girls (expert dancers), Mr. George Whillis (character comedian), Mr. Leslie Austin (baritone), Mr. Walter T. Hybert (light comedian and dancer), and Mr. Charles H. Burns, instrumentalist.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. Chas. Frohman's excellent company is here for a fortnight with Peter Pan. The play is elaborately staged, and on Monday evening it obtained full appreciation by a large audience. Miss Zena Dare acted very cleverly the difficult part of Peter Pan. Altogether her exposition of "the boy who wouldn't grow up" was most interesting and highly artistic. Miss Ella Q. May acted well and spoke her lines clearly as Wendy; John and Michael were done full justice to by Masters Walter Cross and Philip Tonge; Mr. and Mrs. Darling had capable exponents in Mr. Lionel Mackinder and Miss Irene Rooke; Mr. George Lupino was both amusing and clever as the colley dog, Nana; Mr. Lionel Mackinder scored heavily as the old-style transpontine pirate captain, James Hook; Mr. G. W. Anson, capitally made up, made an amusing Smee, the other pirates being well represented by Messrs. Stratton Mills, Evans, Eric Leslie, William Luff, A. G. Williams, and H. W. Hewlett. The Red Indians, Panther and Tiger Lily, were ably represented by Mr. Humphrey Warden and Miss Florence Wells; Miss Hetty Muret sang pleasingly as the Mermaid; and Miss Mabel Lamont scored as Liza. The incidental music was very capably performed by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Alfred Isaacson.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry C. Alty.—Messrs. Carpenter and Cooper's company is here with The Spider and the Fly, the drama being staged with much liberality. Miss Amy Venimore displays considerable power in her clever exposition of Stella Grey; Miss Nina Naughton is pleasingly interesting as Edith McAllister; Mr. Benson North is highly successful as Cyril Girdlestone; Mr. Ellis I. Preston is good in the unpopular part of Welby Girdlestone; Mr. Arthur H. Hill does remarkably well as David Strong; Mr. H. C. Lanceley is successful as the village Pastor; Miss Lucy Murray is pleasing as Molly Blake; and Messrs. C. Russell and C. A. Preece score in the comic parts of Romulus and Remus Roe.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Leoni Clarke, with his cats, rabbits, monkeys, &c., is highly successful, the show being both interesting and amusing; Jay W. Winton obtains applause for his ventriloquial turn; Prince Kokin is decidedly smart as a balancer, juggler, &c.; Hall and Earl, eccentrics, are amusing; Mollie Wolstenhome is a pleasing vocalist; Davis and company have a capital absurdity, Jack's Uncle; Brul and Hemsley (Elsa and Arthur) have a good musical act, Fun in a Music-shop; and Louis Kerno scores as a coon impersonator and dancer. Vernon's animated pictures—a good selection—conclude the entertainment.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Marie Lloyd is here for the week, the popular comedienne having a very cordial welcome, and obtaining enthusiastic applause. Alf Gibson, comedian, has a quaint style and obtains appreciation; Clifford and Monti amuse with their comedy act, The Mad Actor; Tom Dunmore, comedian, has some amusing songs and patter; Ella Lane, comedienne, presents a pleasing turn; Hyde and Cody, eccentrics, are smart in jumping and tumbling acts; the sprightly Dancing Gilberts are exceptionally expert dancers; and the performance concludes with a good display of animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—The popularity of the domestic drama, Two Little Drummer Boys, gains favour, especially when so well presented as it was on Monday by Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Kimberley's No. 1 Company. Miss Maggie English as Eric Carsdale and Miss Maud Douglas as Jack Smith are a couple of smart drummer boys; Mr. Edward Bikker gives a good portrayal of General Kingsley, V.C. The villain, Captain George Darrell, is in the capable hands of Mr. H. Harleigh; Mr. Fred Emery powerfully sustains the part of Captain Frank Carsdale; Mr. Geoff Sutherland as Lieut. Allen Kingsley and Mr. Philip Redgrave as Major Kilkereen do well. Much amusement results from the funny incidents provided by Mr. Michael Madden as Corporal O'Quirke, Mr. Dick Seddon as Private Trimmer, and Miss Lizzie Chambers as Molly Meadows. Miss Mildred Eversleigh cleverly plays the rôle of the deserted Margaret Rivers, and a charming Alma Kingsley is presented by Miss Beatrice Shirley.

BURNLEY. — VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Lady of Ostend is presented by Mr. Lawrence Brough's company. Mr. Lawrence Brough submits an exceptionally clever character-study of the Baron de Longueville; Mr. Percy Marshall as Joseph Carbury attains high excellence; and the unlucky Dick Whortles is played with correct spirit by Mr. Henry Hampson. A smart Dorothy is Miss Kate Milford; and Miss Roberta Svendson is equally pleasing as the Lady of Ostend; Mr. Walkin Wynne is well suited to the rôle of Toby Krackitt, and Miss Eva Boyne is good as Jane. The mother-in-law, Matilda, is splendidly given by Miss Bessie Harrison; and Mr. Reginald A. Hunt is clever as John Humbert. The comedy is preceded by a capital one-act play, At the Risin' of the Moon, which is greatly appreciated. The Cruise of the Saucy Sally is announced for performance on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Yuilians Family provide some excellent and difficult risley acrobatic work at this hall this week; the Leonards (Bob and Jennie) give a very acceptable turn in comedy vocalism and dancing; Little Lillybelle is charming in a song-scena; and the Davenports display some really good palming and card tricks. R. A. Speedwell paints several excellent portraits with wonderful rapidity; and A. G. Spry is a very funny comedian; Miss Mayne Cannon, comedienne, is loudly applauded for her excellent songs; good singing is done by Vesta and Minnie Pine in A Kitchen Rehearsal; and the Empire Theatroscope exhibits interesting pictures.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Some good variety turns are given this week. The premier honours are accorded Miss Ella and her lions; most pleasing and interesting is the turn of the Sisters Judge, who introduce some clever performing birds; Victoria Carmen gives her songs in capital style; George Rapley is an amusing comedian; H. A. Griffiths (comedian) and Burg, Haud, and Wise (comic acrobats), acquit themselves creditably. Up-to-date pictures are shown on the Operascope.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, MR. Eade Montefiore.—An attractive feature of this popular entertainment is the wonderful concertina-playing of Percy Houri; Miss Mollie Wynter's tuneful whistling evokes much applause; John Warren gives a smart exhibition of ventriloquism and conjuring, also appearing as a clever illusionist in his sketch The Magic Carpet; Rex Sugden's illustrated songs are deservedly popular; and Jury's pictures amuse and instruct.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is paying a return visit here. On Monday night Faust was performed in a most delightful manner. Mr. Seth Hughes in the title-rôle was admirable, having a very fine voice; Mr. George Neilson as Mephistopheles showed to great advantage, not only in his singing, but also in his acting; Mr. Frederic Erle was perfectly satisfactory as Valentine; Miss Alice Boadin is the happy possessor of a splendid voice, and as Marguerite charmed the house; Miss Rosina Beynon has also a lovely voice, and she played Siebel beautifully. The chorus and band, under the direction of Mr. Harrison Frewin, came in for their share of appreciation. The week's bill included Lohengrin, Cavelleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, Maritana, Carmen, Tannhäuser, and The Bohemian Girl.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—It is some time since The Geisha has been to Cardiff, and, consequently, a visit this week of Mr. Mouillot's principal company, with the popular Japanese musical play, was very acceptable. Miss Louie Collier gives a fine representation of O Mimosa San; Miss Florrie Saunders is equally successful as Molly Seymour; Mr. Edward Carlton as Wun Hi, sustains the comedy element in excellent style; and Mr. Lionel Braham invests the part of the Marquis Imari with irresistible humour. Mr. Cyril Thompson as Reginald Fairfax makes a manly and dashing hero; and Miss Violet Kenyon as O. Juliette Diamant and Miss Aubrey Ashton as Lady Constance Wynne are both well placed. The rôle of Captain Katana is in the capable hands of Mr. J. Mansel Stringer.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—The interesting drama, £1000 Reward, is this week presented by a talented company. Mr. Fred Wilberforce, in the rôle of Gilbert Lisle, achieves much success; Mr. Frank J. Pitt as Fred Ingelford fills the part with distinction; Mr. Chas. Halling, well groomed as Vincent Rainsworth, makes a capital exponent of this important part; and Mr. Frank Dallas is particularly amusing as Inspector Gilbert. As Mme. Sanson Miss Daisy Halling shows her histrionic powers to much effect; and Miss Lynn Darlington, in the part of the flower-girl, Meg, displays a powerful and well-trained voice. In the comedy characters Miss Cissie Frances as Kitty and Mr. George Scully as Dick Springthorpe prove a delightful couple. Mention must not be omitted of Mr. Arthur Merton's impersonation of Fighting Jepps.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Wm. Lee; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—Lew Lake and his company of clever artists are here in The Bloomsbury Burglars, meeting with great success, Mr. Lake and Mr. Bob. Morris keeping the audience in one continuous peal of laughter; the American Comedy Four delight with their beautifully-balanced quartettes, as well as with their comedy; T. E. Finglass scores in his well-rendered coon songs; the Macarte Sisters are a clever trio on the trapeze and wire; Dion Wade's mimicry wins him an enviable reception; a finely-illustrated song is presented by Tom Hoed; and other turns are given by Frank Leslie, comedian; Lena Verdi, a captivating singer and dancer; Millie Howell, a refined singer; and the ever-welcome Bioscope.

CARLISLE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim.—The first week at "summer prices" is proving even more successful than the enterprising manager anticipated, the house being crowded in every part when A Fight for Millions, by Mr. Robert Perris's company, commenced a week's engagement on Monday night. Mr. Karl H. Edwards as the tramp soon became a favourite; Mr. Alec Grant in the heavy part made good use of his opportunities, and contributed a strong and robust study of the part; Mr. Tom Jones, a Welsh comedian, sang himself into favour; and Mr. Tom Manley was quite successful as the hero; a capital piece of acting by Miss Elma Turner as Helen Dudley, well supported by Miss Dorothy Wilkinson, a capable child-actress, was deservedly appreciated; Miss Isabel Edbrook and Miss Winifred Symons also contributed sound performances. The sensational scenes and eff siderable merriment as Polly Bramble, and her singing and dancing are appreciated; Mr. Wm. Burgess gives an effective reading of the part of Captain Langton; Mr. Philip Renouf introduces plenty of humour as Nixey Stinger; and the part of Joe Bluener is excellently interpreted by Mr. Walter Wilby.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Charles Beanland and W. H. Emerson; Business-Manager, Mr. Will. H. Emerson.—The Dayton Family, in their latest creation, Le Rendez Vous, are meeting with extraordinary success; the Cecilian Family of Musicians and dancers, including Prof. T. Wigham, concertina soloist, give selections well worth listening to; Miss Beattie Foster creates a pleasing impression as a ballad vocalist; as coloured comedians Liggins and Murlow score heavily; the Milford Brothers contribute a smart and entertaining turn on the triple bars; Wallace Whitney, a funny comedian, is applauded; George Bernard, vocal actor, sings some good songs successfully; Palette, in his original act, A Busy Time in the Studio, introduces some beautiful sketches; and animated pictures by the Loyal Dominion Co. are still to the fore.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—Mr. George Henry's company is this week presenting The Sledge Hammer. The most noteworthy performances are Mr. Frank Litchfield as Tom Walker, Mr. Arthur Chisholm as Jacob Derrick, and Mr. Hardy Macoo as Simon Derrick. There are many stirring incidents in the play, the fight with sledge hammers in the last scene proving a very exciting contest. In the interval between Acts II. and III., Lacey's Erascope projects some amusing and interesting pictures.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Cee Mee and Family top the bill here, and nightly gain unstinted applause for their aerial act; Mabel Thorne is staying over from last week; Fred Herbert, topical vocalist, is on a return visit; another old favourite appearing is Will Musgrave; David and Longmore score in a vocal scena, The Green-eyed Monster; the Summersons, comedy duettists; Louie Oswald, vocalist; and Phillips and Merritt, society entertainers, also appear; and Lacey's Erascope pictures are quite up to the mark.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank J. Dorme.—The leading attraction here is The Little Stowaway, which is well staged and capitally acted, Miss Eva Lumley scoring quite a hit in the title-rôle. Dan Conroy dances nimbly, and has some good patter; Maud Esmond has a very pleasing style, and the same remark applies to Ailsa Douglas. Barrett and Knowles prove amusing as cross-talk comedians; the Sisters Grovini are a trio of nimble and lithe tumblers, who are enthusiastically recalled; Charles Russell is well received; and the audience display great interest in the pictures shown by means of the Edisongraph.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE. — General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford. — The Girl Behind the Counter is introduced by Mr. Mouillot's company. Mr. Ellis Holland sustains in a most taking manner the part of General Sir Wyke Willoughby; Mr. Arthur Cartwright as Charles Chetwyn, and Miss Nora Brocklebank as Winnie Willoughby, act with refinement and style, using their excellent vocal powers to advantage; Miss Florence Lee scores a success as Millie Mostyn, the real shop girl, with whom is associated Mr. Howard Cridland as Viscount Gushington, who acts with necessary point and humour. Miss Rose Helene and Mr. Fredk. Park, as the cash girl and the erring office boy, Susie and Adolphus Dudds, are a lively and talented little pair; M. Jules Charmettes makes a big hit as Duval; Miss Doris Langdon is pretty and chic as the French milliner, Ninette; Mr. A. M. Moore gives a clever study as Baron's Court waiter; Mr. Geoffrey Allsopp is imposing as the Commissionaire; Mr. William Amery a lugubrious Joseph, a second waiter; and Miss Winifred Knightly is a stately Lady Willoughby.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company is here in The Private Secretary. Chief mention may be made of the admirable performance of Mr. W. Hargraves as Mr. Cattermole; Mr. Donald Price-Evans is good as Rev. Robert Spalding; Mr. Randolfe Reade makes a bright, breezy Douglas Cattermole; Mr. Vivian Gilbert appears to advantage as a tailor with social aspirations; Mr. James Hussey does well as Harry Marsland; Mrs. Alfred Davies is the "motherly" Miss Ashford to the life; whilst Miss Cecily Wade is an excellent Mrs. Stead; the two girls, Eva Webster and Edith Marsland, have charming exponents in Misses Beth Elliott and Dora Gray; Mr. W. E. Torrington is a jovial Mr. Marsland. On Monday the summer variety season will commence here, and arrangements have been made whereby first-class programmes will be presented weekly.

CHORLEY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hemingway.—Mr. Dickie Clare's company is here this week in the comedy Lucky 'Liza. Mr. Clare gives an excellent and humorous portrayal of Silas Slim; Peter Pettitoe and Paul, his son, have capable exponents in Mr. T. W. Benson and Mr. Syd. Hind respectively; Mr. J. W. Forrest as Biffins the gardener, and Mr. A. W. Thompson as Barnaby Blatherwick are successful in their respective parts; in the title-rôle Miss Madge Brownie meets with approval; and Miss Vesta Brownie is good as Marie Pettitoe. The company also includes "the Dancing Girls," Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Marie Cordon, and Miss Queenie Bell, an excellent trio.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. Charles Harrington's Uncle Tom's Cabin combination opened here on Monday. In Act IV. a plantation festival scene is cleverly introduced, in which the following were very well received, viz., Rich and Moore, coloured duettists; Walter Langford, banjoist; Sylvia Stella, plantation songstress and whirlwind dancer; Ben Rowe, bone soloist; Rose and Holden, cake walkers; Mr. Harrington himself ably portrayed the much-worried Mr. St. Clair; Mr. J. Carr made an ideal Uncle Tom; Mr. J. H. Renny did well as Phineas; Mr. Leslie Beaufort was an admirable George Harris; and Little Eva was well represented by Holly Hazelwood; whilst the villainous Legree was cleverly shown by Mr. J. Henry Rogers.

HIPPODROME. — Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Miss Lilian Dundas and company head the programme in the dramatic sketch The Doom of Delilah, and the greatest credit is due to the trio who comprise the cast; Lew Lake's company, in the comedy sketch My Landlord, provides a most amusing entertainment; Moon and Morris, twin dancers, create a very favourable impression at each house and rightly so; Beattie Kent dances in an artistic manner; whilst Minnie Love, an old pantomime favourite, is deservedly applauded for her songs; Ted Saunders is an entertaining mimic; and Tom Collins goes well with his lullabies.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard opened on Monday with The Belle of New York. Miss Empsie Bowman as Violet Grey won great success, and her solo, "Follow on," was loudly applauded. The part of Fifi was taken by Miss Lily Maxwell, who sang well; Miss Florence Hersee as Kissie Fitzgarter and Miss Winnie Browne as Cora Angelique were distinctly good; Mr. Paddy Dupres as Ichabod Bronson was most enjoyable, and the part of his son Harry was successfully filled by Mr. John Doran; Mr. Joseph R. Tate as the polite lunatic was capital; Mr. Frank Lawton, as Blinky Bill, sang, danced, and whistled with his accustomed skill; Mr. Walter Uridge as Kenneth Mugg also scored.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD. — Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—Barton and Ashley, in a comedy act, introduce some clever dialogue; Olga Rayne is a capital comedian and dancer; the Woodwards (lady and gentleman) are a clever pair of equilibrists; Sylvesta is a very clever sleight-of-hand artist; the Delcars are expert acrobats, and afford genuine amusement; Allsopp and Beckwith introduce humorous babble and sing a few good songs; Simms and Simms play in good style on several instruments; and the Cinematograph shows the latest pictures.

COVENTRY.—HIPPODROME THEATRE.—There is a good and well-varied programme this week. Miss Kate Carney gives some capital songs; for one of these, "'Liza Johnson," she was encored again and again. The nine members of the Lorch Family perform some wonderfully clever feats; the Fitzroys give a fine trapeze performance, and also excel as rope climbers; Simosa San, a lady juggler, is very smart, and gives a good show with trained pigeons. Other artists are Ivy Aberdare, coon songster and dancer; the Three Sisters Tree, vocalists and dancers; and Jack Pleasants, a good comedian. The Hippodrome pictures are specially interesting.

THE OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—The Manxman is drawing good houses at this place of amusement. Mr. A. B. Cross is still appearing as the giant-hearted Pete, and his fine portrayal of this part wins him well-earned praise. Miss Minnie Watersford is seen to good advantage as Kate; Miss Nellie Freeland is responsible for the faithful Nancy; Mr. Frank Etheridge gives a forceful rendering of Cæsar Cregeen. Other well-rendered characters are Mr. Sydney C. Kearns as Philip Christian, Mr. Maurice York as Ross Christian, and Miss Hazel Dent as Miss Christian.

THE EMPIRE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance.—A well-varied and entertaining programme is submitted this week, the chief turn being Bella and Bijou, the comedy duo, who, among other items, give an amusing skit on the woman Suffragist. The Huxter Brothers are very clever long-distance somersault performers; Leicester Cooke and company appear in a smart dramatic episode, entitled Lululand, which is much admired; the Kirbys appear as musical comedy duologists with marked success; Kioto, Japanese equilibrist and balancer, is responsible for some very clever tricks; Russell Brandon gives a wonderful exhibition of clever dancing; Jack Monks is successful as a descriptive vocalist; Vernon's Bioscope shows some new and up-to-date pictures.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company in The Midnight Wedding is a strong attraction here this week. Paul Valmar is excellently played by Mr. Paumier, Mr. F. W. Freeman ably embodies Crown Prince Leopold, Mr. E. Fletcher is well placed as Lieut. Eugene von Streisburg, Mr. E. E. Imeson is a capital Captain Rudolph Von Scarsbruck, Mr. W. S. Hardy is good as Father Gerard, and Messrs. James E. Page, Vernon Vane, and Algie Spalding are responsible for much mirth in the characters of Sergeant Max, Corporal Otto, and Private Bobo respectively. Miss Annie Saker cleverly impersonates the dual rôles of Princess Astrea Von Streisburg and Second Lieutenant Karl Helsburg; Miss Ada Champion contributes a successful rendition of Kathie; and Miss Marion Fawcett acquits herself worthily as Rozel.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company is here in The Morals of Marcus. Miss Hilda Antony makes a fascinating Carlotta; Mrs. H. Nye-Chart acts with skill as Judith Mainwaring; Miss Mary Weigall is adequate as Mrs. Ordeyne; Miss Gladys Purnell is a pretty Dora Ordeyne; Miss Conyers Radcliffe makes the most of Mrs. McMurray; Miss Eleanor Gilbart submits a studied rendering of Antoinette; Miss Mary O'Neill is good in the part of Lady Elmira Wynn; Miss Evelyn Summers deserves a word as Miss Lestrange; and Miss Hilda Saxe is a neat Maid. Mr. H. Nye Chart gives a carefully studied portrayal of the rôle of Sir Marcus Ordeyne; Mr. David Domville is excellent in the character of Sebastian Pasquale; Mr. A. H. Leveaux is well made up as Hamdi Effendi; Mr. Cecil Brooking is careful as Stenson; and Mr. W. Swinburne completes the cast as Bobby Tremlett. Mr. Lawson Lambert deserves all praise for his creditable management of this popular theatre.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is here with Man and Wife. Mr. John F. Traynor gives a fine manly rendering of Paul Revere; Mr. Wilson Coleman is admirable as Captain D'Esparre; Mr. Edward Van Biene acts with effect as Colonel Latour; Mr. Edward Leslie is careful as Father Coupe; and Mr. Ambrose Horton is satisfactory as Sergeant Jacques. The comedy element is abundantly supplied by Messrs. Sydney Bryant and Val Gully, a pair of quaint comedians, who, as Bimbo and Bambo, keep the house agog with merriment the whole time they are on the stage. A young actress who will make her way to the front, Miss Ethel F. Greene, cleverly enacts the rôle of Jean; Miss Kate Hallam plays the emotional part of Marcelle with all the skill and ability of an accomplished actress; Miss Pollie Denville is a bright and attractive Rosette; and Miss Violet Temple wins sympathy as Ruth Revere.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—The star here this week is enchanting Madge Lessing, who brings down the house with her songs, "Nesting in a New York tree," and "The Story of the Wedding March"; the Ten Dixie Girls are excellent singers and dancers; the Three Panamas are great in acrobatic, dancing, and tumbling act; Arthur Pearl, comedian, wins favour; Tom Stuart is a clever dramatic and burlesque character artist; Rastus and Banks, coloured American entertainers, are applauded; Anna Kenwick, comedienne and dancer, is commendable; the Four Aces are smart acrobats; and a cordial reception is given Collinson's Combination in The Club Raid.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Mr. Edward Ranier and his company are here this week in A Son's Devotion and The Bank Robbery. In the former, which was played on Monday night, Mr. Ranier has a part that suits him admirably, and he is well supported by Mr. Edward Muir Palmer, Mr. Harrison Dalley, Mr. Henry Pearce, Mr. Arthur Barnes, Miss Lilla Wilde, Miss Alice Maud, and Mrs. Maynard. The performance is preceded each evening by Apartments for Two.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Langley Wyatt.—Mr. William Greet's principal company is here this week with The Sign of the Cross. The Marcus Superbus of Mr. Frank E. Petley is a powerful assumption. He both acts and looks the part to perfection. Miss Marie Leonhard's Mercia is an appealing stage picture, and her delineation all through is very effective; Nero has a thoroughly realistic exponent in Mr. C. Yorke, his depiction doing him much credit; the Tigellinus of Mr. Charles Aldred is another very capable assumption. Glabrio is commendably accounted for by Mr. Walter Fleet; and Favius receives adequate justice at the hands of Mr. Walter Fleet; while Miss Dulcie Greatwich plays exceedingly well as Stephanus. The Berenice of Miss Gertrude Price is a highly successful characterisation; and Miss Lillie Ward and Miss Cissie Carlton figure acceptably as Aucaria and Dacia respectively.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—A particularly attractive programme is submitted here this week. Occupying first place is Harry Tate's No. 1 company in the laughable skit Motoring, which gains deserved applause. The Bouncing Dillons are responsible for some clever gymnastic feats. In connection with this turn Mr. Edwardes has kindly arranged for a bouncing competition, the final being fixed for Friday night's second performance. The efforts of the competitors are highly diverting. The Ongars are speciality dancers of great ability; Ted Waite, comedian, scores, as does Hesketh Meade, a fine baritone singer. The Sages, burlesque artists, do well in song and dance; and Nellie Chandos is an exhilarating little comedienne. The Bioscope adds greatly to the merriment.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—Messrs. A. Hamilton Warden and Charles V. Sandford's company are presenting A Woman's Past. Miss Maisie Hanbury as Bessie is a charming actress; and Mr. G. Morton, who takes the part of Uriah Craven, makes a very fine villain. Mr. Beresford Lovett, Mr. Charles V. Sandford, Mr. A. Hamilton Warden, Miss Mary Mallalieu, and Miss Eva Bertram also prove themselves capable artists.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—Chevalier Cliquot swallows cavalry sworts, watches, &c., with facility. Cliquot is a physiological marvel. The Five Royal Quintettes are brilliantly clever and successful as singers, international dancers, and pipers. The acme of drollery and absurdity is secured in Harry Cadle's Casey Court Mick Wittintun, being a street urchin's idea of producing a pantomime. Vocalism of very good quality was forthcoming from Miss Georgina Leonard, a comedienne of marked talent and blessed with a style essentially her own. Rex Sugden has a pleasantly harmonious tenor voice, which he used in several illustrated songs. The Sisters Clare evinced terpsichorean skill of no mean order.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Weldon.—Zanfretta and Napio's performance as musical eccentrics gratified the audience; the Dainton Girls as gipsy and character duettists scored with their efforts; Frank Coyle, defined as "the continuous comedian," assuredly lived up to his title; J. C. Morris, a comedian and raconteur, who has a droll humour and wit, found speedy acceptance; whilst Miss Eva Reed as a character comedienne and grotesque dancer gave the completest satisfaction. The Alskamo Trio distinguished themselves for an exceptionally clever performance as risley performers and tumblers, and their refined comedy was thoroughly appreciated.

DOVER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Kavados, expert equilibrist, is giving a smart sensational act here this week; Ethel York sings "The Rhine" and another song with a catchy chorus; a good turn is contributed by the Albano troupe of musicians; Flo Melville scores with her "Stowaway" song and "My Sweetheart"; Beal and Broadway, described as cross-talk comedians, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux complete the programme.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Lessees, The Vaudeville Syndicate; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Holt; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. Chas. R. Standfield.—Prominent among some excellent turns is the one contributed by J. P. Ling, whose vocal mimicry is both clever and humorous. Ford and Barris give a good performance, the former proving himself a smart dancer. A dancing competition is held in connection with this turn, some valuable prizes being offered for the best local talent. Harry Hillier, paper tearer, vocalist and violinist, shows his versatility; Florence Bell, comedienne, and Louie Oswald are well received; H. C. Lovell and company in Mam'selle Pom-Pom, the Two Wiltons, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux bring the performance to a close.

DUBLIN. — GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Directress, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Chas. Hyland.—Mr. Rollo Balmain and Miss Sara Mignon's company, in the farcical comedy Our Flat, are drawing excellent houses here this week. Mr. Balmain creates hearty laughter throughout by his impersonation of Nathaniel Glover; Miss Sara Mignon portrays the rôle of Margery Sylvester with considerable vivacity and cleverness; Mr. Sydney Leyton gives a capital representation of Reginald Sylvester; and an amusing bit of characterisation is the Bella of Miss Louie West. Mr. J. W. Braithwaite successfully enacts the part of Mr. McCullum; and Miss Mary Beatrice acquits herself admirably as Mme. Volant. The part of Clarence Vane has an able exponent in Mr. Langford Reed; and Miss Miriam Holt does full justice to the rôle of Lucy McCullum. Mr. Wilfred Compton is satisfactory as Pinchard; and Mr. James Ellis as the Foreman, Mr. Holden as Lewis, Mr. Arundel as Jones, and Mr. W. S. Dent as Stout are all good in their respective parts. A playlet in one act, entitled One of the 93rd, precedes, and is well received.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—A hearty welcome is accorded here to Charles Robinson, the popular Dublin baritone; Mons. Slippere, the blind pianist and vocalist, gives a clever and interesting performance; Frank Bernard and company caused plenty of laughter in their sketch, Hello; and W. Fullbrook and company in Astronomy keep the audience highly amused. Harry Berd excels as a mimic; Edie King sings and dances nicely; the Howards give a capital musical act; Carlotta Lunn, comedienne, and Kitty Marion also appear with success; and the Empire pictures complete the programme.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—My Darling is having a most favourable reception here this week. Miss Marie Studholme gives a dainty and effective portrayal of Joy Blossom, her excellent singing and graceful dancing being warmly appreciated; in the character of Sir Henry Heldon Mr. J. F. McArdle is particularly good, his comedy throughout being most amusing; Miss Barbara Deane makes a charming Daphne Bell, and delights everyone with her exquisite vocalism; Mr. Will Bishop displays considerable skill as Sir James Jagg, and wins rounds of applause; Mr. Armand Kalisz as the opera singer, Maurice Le Blanc, acts cleverly; and Mr. Henry A. Lytton is most agreeable as the Hon. Jack Hylton. Miss Marguerite Leslie makes an admirable Sylvaine; Miss Alice Barth submits an amusing conception of Lady Heldon; and as the American widow, Mrs. Pomeroy P. Green, Miss Helen Kinnaird does very well. Mr. Tom Graves fulfils the part of Oddy, the proprietor of the hotel, capitally; Master Archie McCaig is pleasingly conspicuous as the page boy, Squib. The dresses are handsome, the scenery pretty and picturesque, and the music and choruses admirably carried through under the direction of Mr. Thos. M. Tunbridge.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Roland, illusionist, assisted by Miss Marjorie Russell, heads the programme here this week, and meets with a gratifying reception; Maxwell and Frances, in their flirtation comedy act, cause much laughter; Walter Emerson, an exceedingly funny comedian, is nightly recalled; a refined musical act provided by Mlle. Renee is deservedly applauded; Bob Nicol is an excellent mimic; Miss Anita Wayman sings several songs in fine style; the Fitzgeralds, in a graceful juggling act, are warmly appreciated; Brilliant Rose, comedienne, is an established favourite; and Fred Hastings is a capital comedian. The Bioscope pictures are interesting.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The programme for this week includes Syd Mountford, comedian and educated dog; Rosie Young, serio and dancer; James Dunne, musical comedian; Yew and Deare, the comedy couple; James Rogers, comedian and dancer; and the new cinematograph.

SAMUELS' EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—The following artists are appearing here:—Hall and Lane, speciality artists; Hubert Davis, eccentric comedian; Daisy Clowser, comedienne and dancer; Harry May, comedian; Isa Bernard, vocalist and dancer; and the Raymonds, in their comedy act, The Warrior's Return.

DUNDEE. — PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—Captain Maximilian Gruber's elephant, horse, and pony go through a marvellously clever performance; Ambrose Thorne's songs are delightfully fresh, and his business, in which he is assisted by the Eight Pavilion Girls, is on novel lines. These clever ladies also appear earlier in the evening, and their charming singing and dancing win golden opinions. Another big attraction is George Formby, whose songs are exceedingly quaint, and his antics are ludicrous in the extreme; Venie Clements, with her catchy refrains and fairy-like dancing, is another popular card, as is also George Westland, a Scotch comedian, who is as funny as ever; Sandy and Carl introduce some capital fooling in their well-worked turn; and Herr Einwol completely mystifies the audience with his illusionist entertainment; Vernon's Imperial Bioscope completes.

GAIETY THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams. — The Marvellous Juanitas Troupe of acrobats work with lightning-like rapidity, and their turn is at once picturesque and thrilling; Clara Sefton, comedienne and dancer, is very warmly received, her style being good and her appearance excellent; Flo. Hilton, a dashing male impersonator, proves an immense favourite, as does also Dot Hardy, a dainty comedienne; Early Closing Day, a pretty and effective scena, as worked by Bert Raynor and Cissie Reece, proves very diverting; Carr and Rose, a very clever singing duo, are well received, while a special word is deserved by the Four Hearns, eccentric acrobats. The Electro Photoscope, with latest films, concludes an enjoyable bill.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The Twentieth Century Animated Picture Co. pay a return visit, with a large and varied assortment of all the latest films. A very popular picture is "Highway Robbery," a dramatic film in twenty scenes. Another long subject deals with incidents in the life of Charles Peace. The variety turns, which include Clifford Spencer, comedian, and Ella Durken, ballad vocalist, are also greatly enjoyed.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Devonshire Park and Baths Co.; Managers, Messrs. Murray, King, and Clark.—Mr. Norman V. Norman and company are appearing here in Robin Hood, Davy Garrick, Lady Ursula, and selections from Shakespeare's plays. As Robin Hood Mr. Norman fully realised the humorous side of the character; Mr. Kenneth Bruce as King Richard deserved the highest praise for a performance full of dignity and strength; Mr. Norman Leslie was an incisive Lord Guy; Mr. Francis Hope made much fun as Friar Tuck; and Mr. Brember Wills was an able Sir William Trusty. Miss Beatrice Wilson again delighted the audience with her fine, womanly rendering of the part of Maid Marian; Miss Sybil Ruskin was a pretty, charming Clorinda, and Miss Bessie Stannard a very good Conrad.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Norman Macowan's company is here in Monsieur Beaucaire and A Marriage of Convenience. In the latter Mr. Macowan as Comte de Candale gave a very effective, restrained account of the part; Mr. Murray Hathorn is to be congratulated on the easy, refined work he contributed as the General; Mr. Arthur Somers, light, bright, and entertaining, was a capital Chevalier de Valclos; and Mr. George Traill gave excellent help as Jasmin. Miss Violet Sterne, naturally graceful and attractive, was a charming and unaffected Comtesse de Candale; and Miss Mary Masters as Marton did her work in admirable fashion. The screen scene from The School for Scandal followed, and in this the characters were particularly well played.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. H. Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Smith.—Miss Lily Burnand, in her own bright and brisk manner, carries all before her; the Royal Russian troupe of dancers arouse the house with their whirlwind of dance; Mr. Charles Windermere and Miss Clare Manifield play very smartly in their sketch, Lunch for Two; Rene is a lady who juggles very dexterously; Miss Mollie Doon is a distinctly bright, and refined dancer and vocalist; Mr. Roy Beavis conjures and mystifies the audience; the Sisters Charnley sing and dance very well; Mr. Will Freedo is a good dancer, too, and provides laughter. The new films are interesting.

ECCLES.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. C. Hamilton Baines; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—The attraction here this week is James Hare's company in the romantic Servian drama, A Destroyer of Men. Mr. C. P. Wentworth makes a grand Count Starevitch, Chief of Servian Police; the character of Paul Starevitch is in the capable hands of Mr. Hill Cremer; Mr. James Hare as Karl Mischla plays powerfully; Michael Mischla is well depicted by Mr. Charles Birkell; Mr. Ross Warren as Coco Tatchooki is responsible for a deal of fun; and Mr. Arthur Swain as Colonel Linievitch, governor of the convict prison, undertakes his duties admirably. Miss Irene Clifford impersonates Olga Mischla, known as Countess Starevitch, with great credit; Miss Alicia Buckland is a pleasing exponent of Nina Pattakake; and Miss Jessie Yatman as Vida Ravel is dainty and entertaining.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. George T. Minshull.—San Toy is being presented by Mr. John Hart's company. Mr. Horace Mills is as funny as ever in his old part of Li; Mr. W. J. Manning develops the humour of Sir Bingo Preston in capital style; and Mr. Edmund Sherras is in excellent form as Captain Bobby. Mr. Colin Coop as Yen How, Mr. Jocelyn Hope as Sing Hi, Mr. Alfred Clark as the Emperor, and Mr. Alfred Majilton as Lieut. Harvey Tucker act and sing admirably. Miss Gertrude Gilliam makes a very winsome San Toy; and lively support is well provided by Miss Sylvia May's Poppy, Miss Lulu Valli's Dudley, Miss Olive Crellin's Ko-Fan, and Miss Mabel Davies as Yun Shi. Miss May Gould danced a graceful pas seul very prettily.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Luis Hardt, the original boy Samson, introduces his wonderful feats of strength, all of which are very dexterously performed. The clever nondescript comedy turn of Clark and Hamilton is quite to the taste of the audience; the Soho Trio of vocalists and dancers make a very favourable impression; and Walton and Lester are amusing as "the world's worst wizards"; Mlle. Yetta gives a neat and graceful performance on the slack wire; Meg Hamilton and Jack Cromo appear in their diverting travesty, Artful Aladdin; Francis O'Flynn is prominent as a remarkably skilled banjoist; Zaro and Arno provide entertainment by their horizontal bar display; and Frank Dunlop, dialect comedian, with the Sisters Wingrove, duettists and dancers, and an interesting series of bioscope pictures completes the bill.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—Mr. Van Biene is seen to advantage in the playlet A Master Musician, which serves as a framework for the introduction of the clever violoncellist's performance of several graceful solos. Mr. Van Biene receives able support from Miss Lena Burnleigh in a pathetic impersonation of a little maid-of-all-work. Miss Lil Hawthorne gives a dashing rendering of several songs; Miss Daisy Mayer is loudly recalled for her vigorous coon sketch; Mr. Herbert Shelley acts with considerable success a short dramatic sketch, Dan the Outlaw, in which four diverse characters are delineated; Drew and Aiders, nimble and amusing as ever, prove especially entertaining in their latest sketch, The Coastguards; Sydney James's Strolling Players are seen in a travesty of the balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet; and the Wartenburg Brothers, admirable double-foot jugglers; Miss Fanny Erris, comedienne; Billy Farrell, coon comedian; Mr. Tom Owen, Welsh comedian; and the Bioscope are also included in the programme.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Ventom Swift. Smith and Johnson are smart coloured comedians, whose work is much appreciated; Miss Winnie Wentworth is a clever artist, whose turn is greatly to the taste of the audience; and Miss Marie Raymond is equally successful in her vocal efforts; Ted Curtis and his piccaninnies obtain loud applause; Mr. K. C. Macgill, a Scotch comedian, is really amusing; Cliff and Kean are excellent dancers, and Mr. Keane Harker and the Alhambrascope secure due recognition.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. H. F. Maltby and company are here with his play The Youngest of Three. Mr. H. F. Maltby himself as George Wendover is decidedly good; Miss Mara Maltby is a sweet and charming Lucy Dulley; Mr. Wyn Weaver an excellent George Wendover; Miss Janet Hodson and Miss Grace Richardson as Lucy's two elderly sisters are all that could be desired; and Mr. W. Reginald Favell is a capable Philip Radford. Hounslow Heath makes an interesting curtain-raiser.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Lights Out was presented to an appreciative audience on Monday night. Mr. Charles Esdale gives an able and finished impersonation of Lieut. Von Lauffen; Mr. Arthur Stone renders due justice to the rôle of Capt. Von Bannewitz; Mr. Kenneth Brampton portrays Lieut. Von Howen with effect; Mr. Lionel D'Arragon wins golden opinions as Sergt. Volkhardt; Mr. Frederick Clifton plays Private Michael in good style; and Miss Frances Davie, a clever actress, fills the part of Klara Volkhardt with much charm. A Hundred Years Hence is played as a curtain-raiser. Mr. Lambert Plummer and Miss Belle Donaldson give adequate representations of their respective parts.

LES PAVILION.—Manager and Musical-Director, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton.—Les Directoires are here this week, and are unflagging in their efforts to please, and are rewarded with loud applause; Mr. Edgar Berte is a capable comedian, and makes a decided hit; and the Pavilion Bioscope terminates an enjoyable evening's entertainment.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—The modern Venus in living statuary is here; Clark and Hayden, in a musical duologue, By Appointment, make a "hit"; Lord, Murray, and Lord, in a comedy gymnastic mélange, The Intruder, are warmly applauded; and abundant praise is awarded Wee Mona, a child vocalist and dancer. Onda and Leon are accomplished gymnasts; and Ward and Davis, in a comedy duologue, Wanted, a Typist, achieve a success. Harry Bickley, an eccentric comedian, with quaint "animal" object lessons; Eva Chadwick, vocalist; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope, are also on the programme.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Go-Won-Go-Mohawk and company are appearing here in the drama Wep-Ton-No-Mah. Go-Won-Go-Mohawk repeats her clever interpretation of the title-rôle; Mr. C. W. Charles makes a capital Colonel Stockton; Mr. Ed. Leroy is successful as Lopez; Mr. Guy D. Hackney makes a manly Captain Franklin; Messrs. Arthur Selwyn and Dan Ryan, as Sam White and Carry Cullen respectively, are very amusing; Miss Bessie Frank is a dainty and refined Nellie Stockton; and Miss Jessie Hart is well placed as Matilda.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Napoleon the Great occupies the boards here. Mr. Hugh Montgomery presents a particularly striking picture of Napoleon; Mr. Frank M. Thorne deserves praise for his highly-amusing Pierre Pomponnet; Miss Leslie Warner does excellently as Marie Walewska; and Miss Maud Russell does well as Mlle. Marboeuf.

GLASGOW. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Mr. Charles F. Cooke's company opened, on Monday evening, in the Sims-Buchanan play, The Trumpet Call. Mr. Leonard Yorke as Cuthbert Cuthbertson made a capital hero; and Mr. C. F. Cooke created a good impression as the genial Sergt.-Major. Professor Ginnifer was a most enjoyable character, thanks to Mr. David Beattie; Mr. John Dennys and Mr. Freddy Bentley, as Richard Featherstone and Tommy Dutton, made excellent capital out of the very dissimilar parts. Miss Helena Millais was charming and sympathetic as the heroine; Miss Doris Gilham as Astrea, Miss May Foster as Lavinia, and Miss Amy Wood as Wicklow were admirable in their respective rôles; and the other members of the large cast deserve credit for conscientious work. The whistling solos by Mr. F Selby, who was encored, deserve a word of praise.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. H. G. Pellisier and his talented assistants scored an instantaneous success here on Monday, when they commenced a two weeks' engagement in their unique entertainment "The Follies." The visit of this combination has been looked forward to with considerable interest by local playgoers, and, judging from the size of the audience and the heartiness of the laughter and applause, the expectations of seeing high-class burlesque were fully realised. In the miscellaneous part of the programme the versatility of Mr. Pelissier's talent was a revelation to most spectators, perhaps his most popular contribution being "Mein Faderland." Miss Lily Walbrook's singing of Arditi's waltz was duly appreciated; as singer and accompanist Miss Gwennie Mars did good service; the dramatic recitation of Mr. Norman A. Blume was an exceedingly funny item; Mr. Lewis Sydney is another accomplished member of the troupe, who shone both as a comedian and piano-player; while considerable refinement was displayed by Miss Dollis Brooke and Mr. Dan Everard in their duets, &c. The burlesques of opera and musical comedy pleased the house immensely, and the extravagant pantomime travesty, Bill Bailey, made a fitting termination to an evening of almost continuous laughter.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—An exceptionally good performance of Twelfth Night was given here on Monday by Mrs. Russ Whytal and company. This clever American actress made a charming Viola, and spoke Shakespeare's lines with evident appreciation of their poetic value. Mr. G. S. Titheradge gave a good performance of Malvolio; and the humours of Sir Toby Belch and Sir Andrew Aguecheek were amusingly depicted by Mr. Eardley Turner and Mr. Stratton Rodney. Miss Ada Marius was happily placed as Olivia, and ably shared the honours of the evening. Mr. Henry Le Grand was duly melancholy as the love-sick Duke Orsino; Mr. J. J. Bartlett made a picturesque and impassioned Antonio; Mr. G. E. Polson was a dignified Friar; and the fun-loving Maria was cleverly played by Miss Mabel Knowles. Mr. Arthur Burne looked the part and acted well as Sebastian; Mr. F. Pennington-Gush as Fabian, Mr. Wilfred Beckwith as Feste, Miss Ninon Dudley as a page, and Messrs Alan Birch and Thomas Pauncefort in other parts completed a good cast. On Tuesday Mrs. Russ Whytal was seen as Portia in The Merchant of Venice, and a novelty was introduced in making that lady the judge instead of an advocate in the Trial scene. On the remaining evenings The School for Scandal, As You Like It, Much Ado About Nothing, and Romeo and Juliet were given.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Siberia, presented by the stock company under the direction of Messrs. Felix Pitt and Frederick Sandy, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Philip Darien is a convincing Nickolai Neigoff; and the part of Vera is sympathetically sustained by Miss Doris Lorraine. Mr. Frederick Sandy's interpretation of Sparta is a piece of clever acting; and Mr. Felix Pitt gives an excellent account of the Governor-General. Mr. Clavering Craig depicts cleverly the evil nature of Lieut.-Governor Jaracoff; Sara has a clever representative in the hands of Miss Maud Linden; Miss Enid Wilde is successful as Phedora; and Miss May Anderson impersonates the Princess with credit. Mr. David Phillips bears himself admirably in the part of Michael Troisky.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—The attraction here this week is Miss Winifred Chalmers' company in the interesting melodrama The Master Criminal. Some talented artists are included in the company, notably Mr. Henry L. Ormond as Telford Lestage, a character for which he is well adapted. Mr. Harold C. Macartney and Mr. John C. Carlyle also perform their respective parts with credit; while the portrayal of Cecile by Miss Chalmers is all that could be desired. Other characters well filled are those by little Lizzie Power (who is entrusted with a vocal part), Miss Mabel Tremere, Miss Alice Lloyd, and Mr. Harry Cooke.

LYCEUM.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—A change is given here, variety entertainments having taken the place of the drama for a time. Animated pictures form a considerable part of the show, and clever artists lend variety to the entertainment. The Sisters Lotus are pleasing little duettists, who give quite an operatic tone to their performance; the Bros. Durant are a pair of funny acrobats, who keep the house in roars of laughter; the Narrow Brothers are amusing comedians and eccentric cyclists; Jack Neil, Scotch comedian, keeps the fun going briskly; J. J. Hargadon and Emily Cole give an entertaining sketch called A Lucky Mistake.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Milke S. Whallen tops the bill here, and his racy style and fund of clever stories makes his turn a most enjoyable one. The Molasso Quartette are wonderfully clever and agile in their whirlwind dances; Toch and Tard give a smart acrobatic turn, and their burlesque wrestling is extremely funny; Daisy Davidson's beautiful voice is heard to full advantage in three songs from Faust; McNulty Sisters are smart dancers; Lupino Bros. contribute a musical and animal speciality; and Nipper Lupino Lane proves himself a smart young comedian. The Cumberlands give a particularly clever and daring cycle display; Charles Hargreaves' illustrated songs are well received, and the Bioscope shows views of the Royal visit to Glasgow.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—A strong and varied programme is submitted this week. Frank and Jen Latona increase their popularity by their clever entertainment; F. W. Purcell and company are highly successful in that farcical comedietta That Brute Simmons; Lily Flexmore is a remarkable dancer of the contortionist variety, and makes a decided hit; the Delevines produce much laughter with their sketch Flipp and Flopp; Lambeth and Robertson are as successful as ever in their humorous sketch Scots Folks' Wooing; Miss Lambeth sings some Scotch songs in a charming manner. Other good turns are given by the Bros. Lang in a clever speciality act; the Society Quartette, singers and dancers; Conan and Doyle, comedy patterers, and Cussac-Talma, the clever illusionist.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—In the unavoidable absence of Miss Lelia Roze, owing to illness, the management were lucky in securing Miss Lily Morris, who is a strong favourite in Glasgow, and her latest songs are catchy and popular. George D'Albert is a comedian with a novel style, and he is well received; Selby and Myers are smart patterers and neat dancers; Montague Biggs gives a clever female imitation, including an impersonation of Marie Lloyd in her "Coster's Wedding" song; and Mabel Le Blanche is a vocalist of much merit. J. G. Grahame, jun., and Zerlina Harrington again appear in their strong dramatic sketch, A Daughter of Pleasure; Harry Rae and Lillie Calden contribute a smart song and dance turn; the Juggling Geraldos give a novel and ingenious Indian club display.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—A capital programme is submitted here this week, the chief item being the engagement of Sidney Dooley and Chas. Seymour's company in a musical comedy, entitled A King for a Day, which has had a good reception. The Hadj Abdullah Arabs give a wonderful exhibition of acrobatic feats; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden, in a comedy duologue, Two to One, are very successful; a clever turn is submitted by Nellie Coleman, the female comedian; and a laughable and smart performance in clay-modelling is given by Dome. The rest of the artists include Chorley and Connor, comedians; Gaumont's Chronophone; Miss Margaret Ashton, the versatile American girl; the Gems, vocalists; Gwennie Hasto, fancy dancer, and the Bioscope, with pictures of the Royal visit to Glasgow.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—This week that versatile Hibernian comedian Mike Nolan tops the bill. As of yore, his songs are well selected, and many are the calls of "Encore." Lillie Soutter is another who is excellently received, and her breezy style at once makes her a favourite; that popular little comedian Harry Conlin is also included; the Waldrons are responsible for the production of an exceedingly humorous sketch, entitled The Silly Burglar; Johnny Holland and company, in their farcical absurdity, My Friend Boots, continue to prove successful and amusing; Lilith, a modern illusionist, provides a mysterious turn; Maxford and O'Neil are clever patter comedians; Lillian Warren proves a capable vocalist; George Anthill is an eccentric dancer above the average, and Herbert Madden is a successful vocal comedian.

GAIETY, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Several clever experiments in thought-reading are given by "The Collier and his Child." The programme is strong in vocal and instrumental music, in which The Orchids and Musical Miller and Son figure prominently. Ina Bathurst is a dainty and clever comedienne; Sam Thomson, Scotch comedian, makes a successful appearance; the Original Blackpool Singer, Sam Morrison, gives an enjoyable turn; the Bioscope pictures, with some up-to-date films, maintain their popularity.

BRITANNIA.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—This week a special feature is being made with the Bioscope pictures, showing the recent Royal processions, decorations, &c., and a company of clever variety artists keep the entertainment up to date.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—The Ediscope and Barnum's variety company is drawing large houses here. Topping the bill is Boy Hackenschmidt, wrestler. Others include Mlle. Pardoe, speciality dancer; Otto Ethardo, Continental juggler; M. Leon, in illustrated songs; Lulu, instrumentalist; and Loder Lyons, ventriloquist. Animated pictures are also a feature of the programme.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Messrs. Cline and Clark, clever dancers and duettists, pay a return visit; while new aspirants for favour are the Hartley Wonders, who perform some excellent jumping feats; Amy Anderson in a smart coster skit, The Banana Queen, makes a hit; and Percy Curry gives a novel turn as a rag and bone man; Barney Vox gives a show second to none that have appeared here lately in the ventriloquial line; Miss Maggie Walsh, the singing mill girl, is well received; and Geo. Barron is a good eccentric comedian; Messrs. Blarney and Kennard are neat patterers, and their waltzing dogs are extremely pretty; Miss Florry Bray persuades the house to assist her in each of her chorus effusions; and Will Ellerslie gets applause for his facial mimicry. The Bioscope, as usual, concludes a good bill.

GRANTHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. A. Campbell.—Mr. John Leopold's company, including the original Leopolds, occupied the boards at the theatre last week in their musical absurdity, New Frivolity, preceded by the farce The Houseboat. The Leopolds display great cleverness as acrobats; Miss Cathleen Cavanagh took her part well as Mme. Cobweb, the schoolmistress; and Mr. Watson Hulme as Buckwheat, the stockbroker, was excellent. Mr. Willie Leopold, as the dunce in school, was very clever.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company is fulfilling a second week's engagement here. For the first three nights A Soldier of France was played, when Mr. Hinton gave an able rendition of the rôle of Father Jean, and Mr. Travis Green was excellent as Judas Delara. Miss Leila Zillwood was effective as Pauline Lorraine; and other parts were well filled. For Thursday and Friday The Sorrows of Satan was announced.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—The attraction here is Mr. Walter Maxwell's company in The Lion and the Mouse. Miss Nita Faydon gives a realistic portrayal of Shirley Rossmore; Miss Maud Townsend is well suited as Mrs. Rossmore; Miss Margaret Nybloc is vivacious and clever as Kate Roberts; and as Mrs. John Burkett-Ryder, Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is successful. Mr. Leslie Carter scores a triumph as John Burkett-Ryder; Mr. Martyn Roland as Jefferson Ryder is very fine; Mr. Douglas West as James Rossmore is decidedly good; the Hon. Fitzroy Bagley is ably portrayed by Mr. Herbert Chown; Mr. John Wheatman appears as J. Whitmore Roberts, M.P.; and the Alfred Stott of Mr. Geoffrey Hall deserves mention.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr Harry L. Skivington.—Mr. George Gray and company are here in The Fighting Parson, which arouses great enthusiasm. O'Malley and Brown are popular in their sketch, Still a Friend of Mine; Professor Hulbert is an exceptionally clever ventriloquist; M. de Lil, conjurer, is good; and the Empire pictures are interesting.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—Fred Cary, comedian, who heads the bill here, has a cordial reception; Sibb and Sibb submit a daring performance on the double trapeze; and remaining enjoyable items are the Moncktons, in their tabloid plays, Are Wives Dummies? and A Woman's Curiosity; Zarmo, comedy juggler; Jack Mills, comedian; Carrie Joy, serio-vocalist; and the Paviscope.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—What the Butler Saw is here. Mr. Lionel Rignold as Pink extracts the maximum of humour from the part; his comedy is quiet and free from exaggeration. Miss Ada Blanche fully sustains her reputation in the part of Miss Barrington; and Mr. Charles Fawcett gives a breezy representation of Jack.

CURRY'S TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Enchanted Iona, a sketch in which comedy and mystery are pleasingly combined, is proving very entertaining here, presented by Charles Frazer and company. The Brothers Leslie's eccentric musical speciality is very well received; Stanley and Vandyke present a capital absurdity; the Paul Hesse Trio are clever wire-walkers; Carl Howard is an amusing burlesque conjurer; W. H. Webb and Edna Branston are talented duettists; the Brothers Obo have good patter; and Harry Taylor is a successful comedian.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. C. Shread; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—The dramatic episode, Anarchy, is causing much interest here; the Pichel Troupe give a smart risley performance; and others appearing are Takio, a Japanese mimic; Curwen and Bell, in a speciality; Chris Masters, character comedian; the Reays, in a chain act; Arthur Boyne, comedian; and the Sisters Ford, duettists.

HALIFAX. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Messrs. Baines and Keat's company are presenting the musical comedy, The Pet of the Embassy. Mr. Witty Wattie Walton enhances his reputation as the Middy, his broad humour being thoroughly appreciated; an eccentric Hon. Percy Brassington is found in Mr. Sinclair Holden; another who contributes to the gaiety of the play successfully is Mr. Harry Fischer as Palatine Brown; the Pet of the Embassy is delightfully sustained by Miss Ethel Dunford, whose charming voice is heard to advantage in the song, "Take back the word"; and a vivacious Mrs. Bung is Miss Juila Bassett.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Ed. Harrison.—Miss Victoria Monks, who made her first bow to a Halifax crowd here on Monday, scored instantaneously with "Sweet Saturday night," "Moving day," and "If you want to have a row"; Mike Gray, an eccentric juggler, adequately supported by a sagacious canine, earned rounds of applause; straight faces were out of the question whilst Deane Tribune and company occupied the boards with their absurdity Applicants; another exhilarating turn was contributed by Tom Kelso and company in The Silly Servant; the Association Final was realistically depicted on the Bioscope; and Lea King, Gym Hurst, and Gertie Moore are also here.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Sam Winks.—The premier position here this week is held by Duncan's Royal Collies, whose performances evoke hearty plaudits; Lotto, Lilo, and Otto submit a clever and sensational cycling act; the Brothers Harrison are a couple of quaint knockabouts; the Etharien Brothers, Harry Barker (a light, descriptive vocalist), Harry Leybourne, and the Alberto Troupe of acrobats are also prominent; while the air-gun shooting competition has caused great amusement.

HANLEY. — ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Messrs. Mollison and Cooper's company opened here on Monday in Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush. Mr. Mollison as Lachlan Campbell contributes a most masterly reading, his impersonation of the old sheep farmer being admirable; Miss Evelyn McNay, as Flora Campbell, is well placed, and plays the part charmingly; Mr. W. A. Mackersy cleverly represents William Maclare; as the Rev. John Carmichael Mr. Henry Deas is distinctly successful; Mr. Alec F. Thompson as Wee Posty is excellent, playing the part in a most finished manner; Mr. Archie W. Chappell makes a capital Lord Donald Hay; Mr. Kendal Chalmers makes the most of Tammas Mitchell with great success; as Lord Kilspindie Mr. Whitford Kane does well; Kate Carnegie (Miss Elsie Vron) is charmingly portrayed; Miss Josephine Woodward is a fine exponent of Margaret Howe; and Miss E. Blair-Staples makes a good Annie. As the children, Geordie and Jeannie, Miss E. Hermina Black and Miss J. McGaw Fitzgerald do well, as also does Mr. Maclaren as Macpherson.

GRAND, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynes.—The Kremo Family head the bill in their clever acrobatic performance; Sam Mayo returns in new songs, which are funnier than ever; Marjutti is a contortionist of wonderful ability; Mabel Sinclair, the lady ventriloquist, is entertaining; Barlee and Smith, in their duologue, A Rehearsal, contribute a clever turn; Baker and Balfe, in their operatic xylophone selections, are capital, the dancing also of the male member is smart; the Northern Troupe of dancers are always welcome; and Maud and Sidney Wood are clever duettists and dancers. The pictures conclude.

HARROGATE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Smith.—Ibsen's play, The Master Builder, was presented here by Mr. Leigh Lovel's company on Monday and two following nights. Mr. Lovel was excellent in the title-rôle; and Miss Ethel Caryllon was well placed as the miserable wife, Aline Solness. Mr. Arthur McCulloch as Dr. Herdal was very good, and delivered his smart lines with point; Miss Dora Levis was fair as Kara Fosli, the book-keeper; and Mr. Alfred Hardinge was acceptable as Ragner Brovik; Miss Octavia Kenmore was admirable in the long and exacting part of Hilda Wangel. A variety performance (two houses a night) was given the remainder of the week.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—The bill this week is headed by the Six Brothers Luck, who in their sketch The Demon of the Cellar, do some brisk work; the musical performance of Phern and Phern is highly enjoyable; marvellous skill is shown by Mlle. Pollo, in her novel gymnastic act; much amusement is caused by the originality of Percy Johnson; the dancing by Doyle and Gibson is well done; Fanny Cooper, a charming vocalist, and Florry Robina, are old favourites who always please; and the Bioscope is more than usually good.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Les Cloches de Corneville is capitally presented by Mr. E. St. Alban's company, the orchestra being directed by Chevalier Legrand, and the piece stage-managed by Mr. Richard Martin, who also plays divertingly as Gobo. Miss Madge Roberts gives a good impersonation of the vain and ignorant Serpolette, and sings successfully; Miss Marion Ayling has a well-cultured voice, and sings to good effect as Germaine; Mr. William Everard does well as the Marquis; Mr. E. St. Alban finely enacts the miser Gaspard; and Mr. Fred Dark, as the Bailie, is humorous.

PIER PAVILION.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—The Marriage of Kitty is being produced here this week by Mr. Thomas Sidney's company. Mr. Thomas Sidney as the solicitor is admirable in every way, and gives the character weight, dignity, and repose; Mr. Edgar King gives an intelligent representation of Sir Reginald Belsize; Miss Mary Thorne amply justifies her principal position as Kitty, playing her part with a light and effective touch, and all the piquancy which the character demands; and Mme. de Semiano is a well-studied sketch by Miss Kathleen Russell, who plays the part admirably.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Mr. Frank Dunlow sings capital songs in spirited fashion; an excellent dancer Miss Enid Errol proves herself; Mr. Will Sergeant, comedian, carries the audience with his patriotic songs; the comedy eccentrics, Elmo and Rocco, are diverting; Mr. Jack Crawley introduces a very clever act of imitating a concert party; a laughable comedy duologue is enacted by Mr. and Mrs. Shelley; Barton and Franklin quite excel in their novel orchestration and singing; the burlesque actress, Miss La Mara, contributes some spirited songs; Cosgrove and Burns give a delightfully amusing vocal turn; a marvellous display of Ju-Jitsu is shown by the Japanese wrestler Raku, supported by Japanese assistants; and some interesting pictures are shown by the Bioscope.

ST. LEONARDS PAVILION THEATRE.—Pier-Master and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—The latter evenings of last week Mr. W. G. Bell's company occupied the boards here in Rip Van Winkle. Mr. Broadbent Bell, in the title-rôle, gave a sturdy and convincing rendering; the part of Gretchen was taken by Miss Norah Coronne, who showed excellent dramatic ability. This week Mr. Harold Montague has brought a small party of smart vocalists and clever artists, who, under the designation of the Vagabonds, or Wandering Minstrels, go through a very bright and entertaining performance; Mr. Harold Montague's original comedietta, in which he is associated with Miss Mayaffre, is received with applause; and the other lady vocalists, Miss Marie Longmore, Miss Olive Sparke, and Miss Leslie Lu-lu possess tuneful voices.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company in A Royal Divorce is here. The fine performances of Miss Edith Cole as Josephine and Mr. Frederick Victor as Napoleon, are making their usual good impression. The rest of the parts are in capable hands.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Alburtus and Millar present a clever and highly humorous sketch medley, Fun at the Fair. Other turns are by Bert Dansie, character comedian; Mme. and Signor Borelli, in a fine singing and clever burlesque act; Herbert La Martine, the talented dancer; James and Alexander, in a vocal scena; Miss Edith Sylvesto, a graceful contortionist; Billy McClain's troupe of coloured singers and dancers; and the Bioscope.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Very early indeed in its career Hull has had the opportunity of seeing the new and powerful play The Last of His Race. There is a strong romantic, yet, at the same time, dramatic element running through the play. The theme touched upon is of the Red man, at the era when he was still unspoiled by the advance of civilisation. The characters are all cleverly limned, and it is safe to say that when the play reaches Drury Lane, London will be keen to endorse the provincial opinion. Mr. H. Reeves Smith, who stands at the head of the present organisation, is well fitted for the rôle of Ockotchees, and fills a big place in the picture; Hull has fewer favourites more welcome than Mr. Phillip Cunningham, who, as the Indian hunter, has a rôle which he sustains with that skill and artistic finish that one now always expects from him; there is a distinct charm about the work of Miss May Chevalier, who, as Adulola, is all one may desire; highly commendable is the work of Mr. Arthur Poole; whilst praise in no small manner must be bestowed on Miss Margaret Murch and Miss Winifred Ingham.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Peter's Mother finds a place for the first time on a Hull programme this week, and Mrs. Henry de la Pasture's play has become a favourite. It is well written, whilst in construction it lacks nothing that would add to its further success; the dialogue is smart and crisp. As Peter's Mother, Miss Lilias Earle fills a prominent place with every success; Mr. Henry Renouf plays the part of the barrister with all his well-known force, never lacking in resource; the Peter of Mr. E. F. Mead has much in it to signalise for praise; as the two old ladies could anything be finer than the work of Mrs. Mallalieu and Miss Evelyn Shirley. The clever farce, Chalk and Cheese, precedes the play itself.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. George Morton.—Her Luck in London is a play which has already been seen in the city, and one that has gained a hold on local patrons of the playhouse. The story, if conventional, is not the less pleasing, and affords ample opportunity to several clever artists to gain fame. As an emotional actress Miss Mary Neil finds in the rôle of Nellie Harborne; as the Curate Mr. Douglas Tremayne succeeds well; and Miss Fanny Bruce proves herself to be a very acceptable Lilian Harborne. The staging and mounting are very fine.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Mlle. Yvette de Laabè, in her artistic poses, stays a second week; Edwin Boyde delights all with his witty songs; Little Ganty is a firm favourite; and Madge May is a dainty comedienne. Regan and Ryan are a very smart turn; and Bert Brantford and Marco complete a good bill.

THE EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby. — J. G. Aitken gives a very entertaining turn; Elsie Russell and Violet Ashcroft are two talented comediennes; Leslie and Player make a hit; Sanderson and Hill, in an iron-bar breaking act, create astonishment; and other good artists are D'Argan and Dene and Hurman.

THE PALACE. — Manager, Mr. Jno. S. Barnett.—Wilkie Bard is a big favourite, singing eight songs nightly; the Lukushima troupe of Oriental entertainers are the next principal turn. Other excellent artists include the Dorrell Sisters, Karno Four, Spry and Monti, Barnard's Mannikins, Robertys, and Four Royal Welshmen.

THE CIRCUS.—Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—Animated pictures are still drawing good houses.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Mr. Samuel James's company is here in the drama As Good as Gold. Mr. Fred Lloyd, as Lieut. Jack Stanton, submits a thoughtful and earnest interpretation; Mr. Jackson Hayes strikingly depicts the unscrupulous nature of Sir Richard Wharncliffe, Bart.; Mr. Clinton Baddeley gives a painstaking study of Mark Williams; and Mr. Ernest Tresner makes the most of his opportunities as Sumners Maniwett. Miss Isla Garnet Vane endows the rôle of Norah Williams with grace and charm; Miss Agnes Collier displays emotional power and dramatic skill as Kate D'Arville; and Miss Bertha Baker admirably portrays the character of the Kipper. A remarkably clever sketch is furnished of Timothy Nias by Mr. Joseph Rowlands; Mr. Herbert Fuller is mirth-provoking as Horatio Spankes; and Miss Maud Merrick is a bright and vivacious Madge Merry.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The United English Opera Company occupy the boards with Maritana, The Daughter of the Regiment, Il Trovatore, and The Bohemian Girl. Maritana was presented on Monday evening, Miss Elsa May receiving marked attention for her portrayal of the title-rôle. Mr. F. S. Gilbert as Don Cæsar makes his usual hit; whilst Miss Doris Gilbert as Lazarillo is a charming exponent of the part. Mr. F. C. Silverstone as Don José uses his fine voice with much effect; whilst Mr. J. Kneale Campbell scores as the King of Spain. Mr. H. Blagrave (Marquis de Montefiore) and Miss Kate White (Marchioness Montefiore) are deserving of praise.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—The Silver King opened on Monday, with a capable company. The title-part was played with great effect by Mr. Fred D. Daviss, who was well supported by Messrs. Edward J. George. Arthur Wright, and Miss Flossie Hale Daviss, and other members of the company.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Mr. Nat Clifford is one of the chief engagements this week. Other turns include Talbeeto and Douglas, in a pleasing sketch; the Elgars, vocalists; Nelly Farrell, a charming singer; Fred Keeton, comedian; Duncan and Godfrey; the Florodora Girls; and the Smythsons, in a funny sketch.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr Jerold E. Reed.—Mr. Harry Roxbury's company is here in A Little Vagrant. Mr. Brian Henry is well placed as Amos Browning; while Mr. J. W. Gallagher causes much amusement as Slideaway Bates; and is ably assisted by Miss Bella Moody as Hannah Smithers. Mr. C. A. Collins does full justice to the part of Jim Harris; and Mr. R. Bosco is most excellent as Thomas Whitworth. Mr. Stanley Radcliffe gives a very powerful portrayal of the part of Eric Arden; and Miss Vashti Wynne proves herself a talented artist in the part of Poll. Miss C. Fenton is well placed as Julia Pilbeam; and Miss Alice Bowes gives an excellent rendering of the part of the Little Vagrant.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Edward Marris.—The St. Louis Picture Company, under the direction of Mr. Walter W. Hook, is presenting a series of scenes and sketches here this week. The chief feature of the entertainment is the Chronophone, an apparent combination of the cinématograph and phonograph, by means of which scenes are reproduced from The Belle of Mayfair, The Mikado, and The Little Michus.

ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Moving pictures are also the fare here, where a full programme is given by the National Animated Picture Company.

KEIGHLEY.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will Carson.—The Three Orros Brothers head an excellent variety programme, and achieve much success in their silver chain acrobatic performance; Whimsical Walker scores immensely in Captain Hamilton, V.C.; Jack Trueman possesses a fine tenor voice, and his songs are received with enthusiasm; Arthur Page keeps the house in roars of laughter; Little Daisy Ray sings and dances prettily; the Days provide an astonishing thought-reading act, which is much applauded; and new and amusing pictures are exhibited on the Bioscope.

KIDDERMINSTER. — NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. James P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—Messrs. Alfred Northway and Mr. V. Garrod's company is here in The Prodigal Parson. Mr. Garrod, as the Rev. Tom Godley, is good; and Enoch Jaggins, his churchwarden, is in the capable hands of Mr. Northway; Ben Jaggins, brother of Enoch, being well portrayed by Mr. William Hayward. Miss Gwen Steward as Fern Godley, the parson's wife, does well. The play is effectively staged.

KIDWELLY.—TOWN HALL.—Mr. Will Stone's animated pictures are paying a return visit here this week. Supporting are Lemaitre and Bert, smart conjurers and illusionists; Robertson Keene, a versatile and successful entertainer; and the Pierrot and Page, with their packing-case trick.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—In the programme are the Stavordale Quintette, who are raptuously applauded in their clever banjo and harp speciality; Arthur Stacey scores a success as an eccentric comedian and top boot dancer; whilst Miss Beatrice Willey sings well in her novel medley of flower songs. The Three Clarions are responsible for a musical absurdity, The Would-be Tenor; and Willie Fauder, a local comedian, makes his first professional appearance on the boards. Jury's Pictures include the Cup Final.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—Mr. Bert Coote's company is here in The Fatal Wedding on Monday. Mr. Ernest Owttrim appears with success as Howard Wilson; Mr. Guy Hastings is an effective Robert Curtis; Mr. Arthur Law Raynor does well as the clergyman; Mabel Wilson is excellently portrayed by Miss Katherine Clarke; and as Cora Miss Leah Marlborough is most successful.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Porter and Fergusson.—The bill of fare here is headed by Herr Grais' baboon prodigies in a marvellous turn. Dennis Drew, in a military scena, Back to Barracks, is recalled nightly; and Mephisto is a smart equilibrist. Others who contribute include Rene and Smith, singers and dancers; Miss Bessie Lind, comedienne; Joe Conway, comedian; George Young, blind musician; and the Sisters Brenton, capital dancers. The Hippograph with new pictures still proves an attraction.

LEAMINGTON.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—For the first three nights of this week Lord Willoughby de Broke, together with his Kineton amateurs, gave performances of Captain Robert Marshall's farcical romance, The Duke of Killicrankie. Large and fashionable audiences filled the theatre each day, and that deserving institution, the Warneford Hospital, Leamington, in aid of which the performances were given, should benefit in no small measure. Lord Willoughby de Broke's delineation of the title-rôle was admirable; and the Hon. Mrs. Ailwyn Fellowes played Lady Henrietta Addison with charm and grace. Mr. Leo Trevor's impersonation of Mr. Henry Pitt Welby, M.P., was exceedingly good; Lady Willoughby de Broke sustained the exacting part of Mrs. Mulholland in a most creditable manner.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—The ever-popular Compton Comedy Company opened a week's sojourn here on Monday, and a very gratifying reception was extended by a full house. Davy Garrick filled the bill on this occasion, and Mr. Compton's masterly interpretation of the title-rôle again evoked a mighty show of enthusiastic appreciation; Miss Mackenzie makes a charming Violet Gresham, her portrayal being followed with rapt interest; Mr. Henry Crocker's Alderman Gresham is an excellent effort, subdued yet impressive; and the part of good-for-nothing Tally-ho is skilfully handled by Mr. Dennis Cleugh. Mr. Cleugh and Miss Mackenzie also display much ability in the principal characters of a pleasing curtain-raiser, The Desperate Lover. Excellent support is rendered by Mr. Philip Gordon, Mr. G. W. Johnston, Miss Phyllis Relph, and Miss Marian Le Strange. She Stoops to Conquer, School for Scandal, and Edmund Kean are also in the bill.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—The stirring drama, The Great Awakening, receives a spirited representation at the hands of a strong company, and good houses are the rule. Miss Maud Hildyard, who is joint author of the piece, plays the central rôle of Lola Selby, and her fine work is most impressive; Mr. A. C. Hardie gives a capital rendering of his part of James Selby; the work of Miss Lilla Nordon as Selini Wortz deserves high praise; and Mr. Bernard Copping, Mr. Stephen Langton, and Miss Doris Digby are also seen to advantage in leading parts.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Miss Hetty King is the bright particular star of this week's programme. The Howes are giving a marvellous exhibition of mental telepathy, which proves interesting; Carney and Armstrong are a clever and versatile pair of comedy entertainers; Ed. E. Ford strikes out in an original style, and his turn is much enjoyed; as also is a comedy act by the Jagos. A pleasing vocal entertainment is done by Denton and Rowland's Juveniles; Amy Russell is well known and popular as a ballad vocalist; and Ruby Dahl, with impersonations; and James Brady, comedian, also make successful appearances.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—A diverting musical extravaganza, The Cruise of the Calabar, is a strong line in the week's Palace bill, and Milton Ray's clever comedians prove themselves very smart in the presentation thereof. Jack and Evelyn are vastly entertaining in some clever comedy specialities; Bert Lytton and W. B. Raby are other popular contributors in the same line; and Johnny Fuller scores with comic business. Adey Spencer proves a clever comedienne; Kisbey, the call boy, makes a successful appearance; and the Palace pictures are again a popular feature of the programme.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—Mr. John Tiller's musical extravaganza, High Jinks, figures here again, and with that popular favourite, Bob Selvidge, as chief executant, the fun is fast and furious; W. J. Churchill, an amusing comedian, with a quaint style, is making gratifying appearances; Goodfellow and Gregson also score with a comedy speciality; and the witticisms of Wright and Elton are favourably received. Richardson Taylor contributes a novel ventriloquial entertainment; Ruby Bijou is a bright and pleasing comedienne; the Five Vernons are a pronounced success as xylophone soloists; and Roxborough and Wright, with a cleverly-rendered comedy episode; Cherry Lass, comedienne; and Tod Lowen, comedian, appear with success.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam. Jones.—Chas. R. Whittle, a comedian with a big reputation locally, pleases his audience vastly with new items cleverly rendered; and other successful contributors in a similar line are Arthur Woodville and Jem Pawson. The Brothers Kroney tickle our risible faculties with comedy speciality; a bright and lively turn by Little Don is much enjoyed; and a novel ventriloquial item by Russell Carr is very well received. Ruby and Laws, vocal comedy; Lillian Rigby, musical specialist; and Blanche Marion, a clever comedienne, also stand high in popular favour.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—Another excellent attraction is here in Mr. Robert Crossman's company, in the musical comedy, Sergeant Brue. A great favourite locally, Mr. Arthur Reynolds makes a conspicuous success in the title-rôle. Mr. T. A. Shale, as Crookie Scrubbs, is deserving of all praise for a clever performance; Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy makes an excellent impression as Michael Brue; and as Aurora Brue, Miss Mary Hay is dainty and vivacious. Miss Cissie Raymond is very good as Lady Bickenhall, and as Daisy Miss Marion Hargrave is well placed; Mr. Charles Sims, as Mr. Crank, is capital; and both Miss Ethel Ivimey and Mr. Cecil Hood deserve a meed of praise.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The Grip of Iron is here this week, presented by Messrs. E. H. Knight and Geo. Denham's company. Mr. Fred Powell continues to give his powerful portrayal of Jagon with the greatest success; Mr. Geo. Denham as Loustalot is to be highly praised; and other meritorious impersonations are those of Mr. Wallace Curnock, Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner, Mr. John Brittain, Mr. W. T. Riley, Miss Rosabel Dodd, Miss Florence Trevoir, and Miss Maggie Stewart. The play is well staged.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—The place of honour is held here this week by Chung Ling Soo, the magician, whose bewildering and deftly-performed feats are watched with the greatest interest. At the other end is May Henderson, whose vivacity, combined with her big-boot dancing, ensures for her unstinted approbation. Miss Lilieth Leyton and Mr. John Spurling prove most amusing in their cleverly enacted interlude, The Order of the Bath; Minnie Merry, the new eccentric female comedienne, is funny; Carlos Menard, a smart trick violinist, is making a well-deserved success; The Mezzettis raise roars of laughter in their clever comedy act on the triple bars; Burns and Burns score in their laughable speciality, Fun in a Museum; Ethel Ra Leslie, who is daintily costumed as a gentleman of old, goes well; Arthur Gill uses his many voices to considerable advantage; and the Bioscope is very interesting.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—Frank Hardie and company are here on a successful return visit in the well-played melodramatic episode, Pedlar Sam; Miss Irene Carlton, Mr. Frank Hardie, Mr. Richard Cruikshanks, and Mr. Harry Hillar giving portrayals calling for special praise. Stacey and Williams, cross-talk comedians, are very good; Bertha Winder's remarkably clever speciality dancing ensures for her an excellent reception. Others who give turns of special merit are Jessie Harper, serio and comedienne; Harvey and Holt, comedians; Maudie Ford, comedienne and dancer; and J. H. Carney, chorus vocalist. Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is popular.

LINCOLN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner, Mr. Frank King.—Messrs. Fred Acton and H. C. Nash are playing Between the Lights to very appreciative audiences. Mr. Bertram H. Ross is a dashing soldier hero; and Miss Eileen Bamford wins sympathy for the Captain's sweetheart, whose adventures she makes very interesting. Mr. F. Garrett is good as the old banker, Warren; and Mr. W. R. Winning is an incisive and convincing heavy man; while Mr. F. Orchard cleverly plays a dual rôle. The part of Madge Armley is admirably treated by Miss Fannie Williams; and the humour of the play is in the capable hands of Mr. Fred Acton, Mr. Frank Daleno, and Miss Mollie Doris.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—To an all-round strong programme the gem is contributed by Kelly and Ashby, whose Fun on a Billiard Table is entertaining to a degree. The Three Pirmans, Joe Dale, Madoline Rees, Bert Danson, Tiny Arnold, Bonnetti and Corrig, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are also thoroughly successful.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The Trail of the Serpent affords opportunities for realistic and thrilling work, of which Mr. A. Campbell-Kelly and the members of his company take every advantage. Mr. Campbell-Kelly himself acts well in the dual rôles of Gerald Kingston and Old Jack; Mr. Henry K. Penn puts in useful service as old Sir Gerald; and both Mr. Frank Lyndon and Mr. John Cullen give forceful rendering to their respective parts of Ralph Hammond and Gipsy Jake. Miss Nana Cameron appears to advantage in the leading feminine rôle of Rachel, the gypsy; and Ethel Maynard, the heroine, is gracefully portrayed by Miss Phyllis Elton. The comedy element is abundantly and aptly supplied by Mr. J. R. Tyrell and Miss Jennie Risley in their impersonations of William Higgins and Rose Wilson.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Enthusiastic audiences have this week flocked to witness the clever and funny comic opera Amasis, as well as to enjoy the artistic efforts of a most capable company sent by Mr. Louis Calvert. In order to prepare the public on Monday evening for any little disappointment they might experience in regard to Miss Constance Drever, the Princess Amasis, who was declared to be suffering from a cold, a notice was exhibited in the theatre; but all who heard the rich and charming voice of that lady doubted whether it were possible for her to afford more satisfaction than she did on the occasion. The applause was great and well deserved. Mr. Rutland Barrington proved a source of much enjoyment with his Pharaoh; shouts of laughter followed the work of Mr. Lauri de Frece, the Keeper of the Crocodiles; Mr. Reginald White, as the Court Embalmer, provoked smiles whenever he moved; admirable acting and singing characterised Mr. Roland Cunningham's efforts in the rôle of the Prince; Miss Madge Vincent was a bright and lively Natis; every credit is due to Mr. Whitworth Mitton for his carefully-handled part of the scribe Cheiro; Mr. Norman Salmond did excellently as Nebenchari; and Miss Winifred Hart-Dyke's solo dance in the second act earned for that lady several well-deserved encores As to the setting of the opera and the accompanying music, praise is superfluous.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. E. Stevens and R. C. Buchanan; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Peter Pan puts in a second week here, and public appreciation has been great. Miss Pauline Chase in the title-rôle and Miss Hilda Trevelyan as Wendy, Mr. Loring Fernie with his villainous though humorous Hook, and the remained of the excellent cast have been accorded receptions that cannot fail to be gratifying to painstaking artists.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The Shadow of a Crime has this week paid a first visit to the popular North-end house. Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's company includes Mr. W. Ruddle-Brown, who plays Harry Bullington with care; Mr. Hugh Mewburn, a capital Ralph Esmond; Mr. William Matthews, to whom is allotted the rôle of Jim Murdoch; Mr. Sydney T. Russell, an excellent Tom Brown; Miss Nellie Howitt, who affords every satisfaction as Loyale Norman; and Miss Nita Langford, who impersonates Mrs. Thomas Brown. Mr. J. B. Murray is the Sir Edward Bullington.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—Fred Karno's company of comedians, in Saturday to Monday, provoke rounds of hearty applause and roars of laughter here this week. Maidie Scott, a delightful comedienne, richly deserves the applause accorded her; Josh Dixon is certainly very funny; Lily Lena, a pleasing songstress, receives due recognition, as does Jack Ross, "double-voiced vocalist."

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The attraction here this week is A Wrecker of Men, presented by Mr. Charles Watson Mills' company. Miss Ruth Zillwood afforded an excellent portrayal of Risca Mallison; Mr. Eric Campbell played powerfully as Jim Murley; Mr. Miller Anderson afforded satisfaction as Railton; Mr. Percy Horton acquitted himself with credit in the rôle of Guise Strange; and Miss Gwendoline Talbot proved a popular Doris Melville. The play was mounted with care, some of the mechanical changes being very effective.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Top of the bill here this week are the Three Demons, whose sensational work on the aerial whirling stage is watched with interest; the Bros. Griffiths, with their motor-car and duel, are particularly diverting; some smart head and hand balancing is shown by the Pasquali Bros.; Those Troublesome Slaveys is the title of a most amusing sketch presented by the Elvio Comedy Trio; Lawrence Barclay comes with a budget of funny songs and sayings; Dale and O'Malley keep their audience in a good humour with a large stock of patter; as gymnasts Natalia and Diana prove successful; the Meynotts have a bright comedy duologue, Semi-Detached; Bert Williams gives a neat ventriloquial turn; and Silvo has a smart performance on the musical glasses.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The stock company here this week is presenting Geoffrey Langdon's Wife. Mr. Harry Tresham distinguishes himself a Cyril and Geoffrey Langdon; Mr. Sydney Grant makes a villainous Will Maynard; Mr. Robert Wilton affords every satisfaction as Vimbart; and other well-played rôles are Hingston (Mr. Cecil Ravenswood), James (Mr. Percy Boudor), Elinor (Miss Beryl Ravenswood), and Lily Lorrimer (Miss Nellie Bonser).

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The "Royal" stock company is this week presenting The Unknown; or, a River Mystery, the principal characters in which are ably undertaken by Messrs. Wallace Campbell (Harold Merrybright), Frank S. Strickland (Arnold Tyson), Charles Herberte (Dr. Brinkton), H. Hesslegrave (Jack Salt), H. G. Brandon (Pat), Francis E. Wybert (Albert Storm King), Fred Carroll (Jimmy), Miss Gladys H. Walton (Bessie), and Miss Florence Barnes (Louise).

HAYMARKET.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Harry Calden and company are here this week with The White Renegade; or, A Race for Life, a story of Indian life; the double-voiced vocalist, Charles Santon, renders several acceptable songs; Carrie Elliott and Tom Warne provide an agreeable turn as comedy artists, patterers, and dancers, and Joe Hocter also appears.

ROSCOMMON. — Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Ted Curtis is here this week with his clever black-and-white piccaninnies, who give a smart turn in singing and dancing; Lillian Victoria, a favourite in Liverpool, whose male impersonations are exceptionally fine, has had a most gratifying reception; Jake Euston dances in a talented manner, and renders some good coon songs; while Pearce and Ward, patter comedians, dancers, and burlesque boxers, find ready acceptance.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred B. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—Pathé Frère's beautiful Passion Play pictures are shown here by means of the bioscope; Fred S. Peake and company have a capital sketch, The Gambler; Starr and Jerome, as comedians and speciality dancers, have a cordial reception; and the singing of Ida Ross is much appreciated.

OLYMPIA, LTD.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—The aquatic spectacle Tally-Ho puts in a second week, and is repeating its success; the wonderful trick cycling by the Aurora Troupe is loudly applauded and much enjoyed; Harry Weldon, the "swell" comedian, is diverting; the original Two Bostons cause laughter with their funny show; the work of Graham, the human marionette, is richly enjoyed; a high-class vocal and dancing act is submitted successfully by Charles Parker's Six Æolians; Dan Leno, jun., is received with much favour; and other capital items are supplied by the Five Spanish Goldinis, jugglers and carpet-spinners, and the Cambrian trio of lady vocalists.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—The able illusionist, Goldin, assisted by Jeannie Fransiolli and company, heads the bill here this week. Chris Richards has some new and excellent songs and business; the performance by Belloni's Cockatoos is appreciated; a neat sketch from Il Trovatore is given by the International Opera Company; Goggin and Davis have a pleasing comedy acrobatic turn; the Neilson Sisters are pretty duettists and dancers; and others who appear include Bert Byrne, comedian; and Lola Patey, burlesque actress.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Liverpool Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.; Manager, Mr James Marks.—In big type here this week is Imro Fox, whose conjuring is somewhat out of the ordinary and particularly enjoyable; Zertho and his dogs are a good turn; Frank Cass, for his popular songs, earns a cordial greeting; a daring display on the wire and cycles is given by Johnson and De Vere; the Three Sisters Silcott show to advantage as vocalists and dancers; Charles Deane has brought some of his latest songs; the juggling of the youthful Wallace is cleverly executed; and Frank Gee, comedian, also appears.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—The Shulamite is being played here with great success this week, Mr. Algernon J. Hicks taking the difficult part of Simeon Krillet in most effective style. As Deborah, Miss Ruth Shepherd gives a realistic delineation of the part; Mr. Charles Fancourt is a manly Robert Waring; Mr. George Rammell is very good as Jan Vanderberg; Miss Chrissie Bickerstaff as Menke and Miss Emily Levettez as Tante Anna also do exceedingly well.

LOWESTOFT. — HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—There is plenty of variety in the programme at the Hippodrome this week. The "Passion Play" is a great attraction; and other films are equally entertaining. The company includes the Lancashire Harmony Boys, Cliff Dover, the Levans, and Geo. Russell, the man to make you laugh.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Dr. Walford Bodie and his company are here this week. Large and appreciative audiences are receiving Dr. Bodie, and several cures are made nightly. Amongst the variety turns must be mentioned particularly the acting-manager, Mr. Tom Mills, or, rather, as he is better known, Mr. John Bull, who sings and tells funny stories; one of Dr. Bodie's cures, a child of about twelve, sings very sweetly; the Musical Acmes are very clever with their different instruments; and the other members of the company are Bella Skene, who sings and acts well; Belford and Mars sing and dance exceptionally well; Bink's Blunder, a sketch by Russell and Read, is ably and well acted, and causes yells of laughter; and T. Duriah is a very able comedian.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The Norman and Leonard Trio, at the head of affairs this week, are popular in their sketch The Itinerant. Mr. C. Emlyn Jones, Welsh tenor, is assisted by a quartet of sweet-voiced lady vocalists in a popular selection of international songs; Frank Maura does more with his feet than many jugglers do with their hands; Spencer and Marks are clever cross-talk comedians; Frank Terry, a clever dancer, the Sisters St. Julian, duettists, and Miss Minnie Dare, comedienne, together with the Bioscope, complete the bill.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmonstone Shirra.—Mr. H. B. Irving's appearance in The Lyons Mail here on Monday attracted a large and interested audience. Mr. Irving's dual impersonation, a strong and impressive effort, was highly appreciated, and the company rendered excellent assistance. Mr. E. Harcourt Williams, Mr. Charles Dodsworth, and Mr. Tom Reynolds, as members of the gang, were markedly effective; Mr. Frank Tyars played the elder Lesurques with distinction; and Mr. Arthur Curtis was very good as Joliquet. Among the ladies Miss Ada Mellon was particularly effective as Janette; and Miss Sybil Noble made a pleasing Julie. The play was preceded by King Rene's Daughter, in which Mr. Harcourt Williams and Miss Madge McIntosh were excellent in a very adequate cast. (Miss Dorothea Baird does not appear during the week, being indisposed.) At the conclusion of Monday's performance Mr. Irving responded to acclamations with a short speech of thanks. The week's programme includes The Bells and Charles the First.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—Mr. Lionel Glenister and Mr. Wood-Ingram's company is here in All-of-a-Sudden Peggy. Miss Decima Moore, in the title-part, is excellently suited, and her pleasing work is well matched by the clever and refined acting of Mr. Lionel Glenister as the Hon. Jimmy Keppel. A remarkably fine piece of character-acting is contributed by Mr. Frank G. Bayly as Anthony, Lord Crackenthorpe; Miss Eva Lonsdale is very pleasing as Millicent; Miss Kate Wingfield makes a capital Lady Crackenthorpe; and clever impersonations are added by Mr. Henderson Bland as the Major, Miss Estelle Despa as Mrs. Colquhoun, and Miss Naomi Neilson as Mrs. O'Mara. A dramatic episode (unnamed) preceded the comedy, and gave good opportunities to Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson in a cast of three.

GAIETY THEATRE. — Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn. — Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company gave a fine performance of Lucky Durham here on Monday. Mr. Edmund Kennedy particularly distinguished himself as John Durham; and an entertaining delineation of the Hon. Reginald Steighton was given by Mr. Arthur Leigh. As Helen Vallerton Miss Alice Esther Belmore acted nicely; Miss Louisa Gourlay played well as Mrs. Durham; and Miss Florence Dulhunty fulfilled all requirements as the Hon. Margaret Steighton. All the remaining parts were in capable hands, and the staging is really admirable.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—When the Lights are Low, played by Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company, is here this week from the Grand Junction Theatre.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn. — An excellent programme here this week includes The Smart Set, a very clever vocal sketch. Juan and McQue, eccentric comedians; T. G. Edwards, an accomplished baritone; L. B. Athol, the popular actor-vocalist, in Dreamland; the Simpsons, in a clever musical act; the Three Behans, smart comedy artists; Mr. "E.," an amusing patterer; Nell Cotter, a pleasing comedienne; Duncan and Brasque, in a neat little playlet, On the Times; the Evalos, jugglers and gymnasts, and the Rinaldo Trio of comedy acrobats.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Manager, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—Miss Maude Western presents here this week an interesting military drama, entitled The Prodigal Son, the principal parts being capitally rendered by Miss Maude Western, Mr. W. A. Buckstone, Mr. Claude Seaton, Miss Ada Hender, Mr. Alf Stretton, and Miss Helen Thomson, others of the cast contributing to the dramatic effect of the whole. The piece is well staged, and is enlivened by some good music composed by Mr. A. E. Wilson.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Day.—Messrs. E. A'Dell and Chabot's play, His Sister's Honour, is the attraction here this week. Miss Kathryne Eckart plays Dora Stanley with distinction, and Miss Ethel Ashleigh is very good as Ivy Merton; while Mr. Evelyn A'Dell makes an excellent Frank Stanley and Mr. Lincoln Calthorpe is good as Redvers, the financier. Miss Winnie Kennedy sings and dances well as the Dutch girl, Gretchen; and the remainder of the cast are quite satisfactory.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Berry.—Mr. Flanagan opened his stock season here on Monday with a very successful production of Lytton's Richelieu, including Mr. William Calvert in the title-rôle. Mr. Calvert's delineation was well received, and he was ably seconded by Miss Clara Cowper as Julie de Mortimer and Mr. A. A. Harris as the Chevalier de Mauprat. Miss Ethel Maguire as François is worthy of special mention; and, among others, Mr. Hornby Warburton played well as Joseph. The whole performance was enjoyable and well staged.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The top attraction here this week is Herbert Darnley's company of comedians in The Skirmishers, a most amusing piece. Sinclair and Whiteford provide ample amusement in their duologue, Getting Even; and other capital turns are Mlle. Von-Bita, a smart illusionist; the Eisteddfod Prize Vocal Sextette, who sing beautifully; Allan Hanbury, a very smart patter comedian; the Vasilescu troupe of eccentric bar performers; the Three Cape Girls, comediennes and dancers; Fred Frampton, burlesque actor; and Effie Stuart, Scotch comedienne and speciality dancer. The Bioscope is, as usual, highly entertaining.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—Mme. Alice Esty, the celebrated operatic prima donna, is here this week, singing the "Miserere" from Verdi's opera, Il Trovatore, and is deservedly well received. Mr. Crawford Kent as Manrico sings well, and renders valuable assistance. Much laughter is caused by John Leopold's company, in The House Boat; an exceptionally clever turn is provided by Tambo and Tambo, who spin tambourines in a marvellous fashion; and the Harry Alaskas, in their comedy tumbling act, do some surprising evolutions. Other entertaining items are contributed by Lennie and Hast, in a pretty scena, The Sea Nymph, by Chris Davis; Boyd and Gilfain, who sing nicely; Howe and Ardie, comedy acrobats and gymnasts; two pleasing vocal items by the choir; and last, but not least, some excellent dancing by a clever juvenile, La Danseuse, in a scena, Santa Claus. "Baby's First Outing" is an amusing film shown by the Bioscope.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry. — Vesta Tilley is the bright particular star here; the talented lady is enthusiastically received. A sketch, The Girl and the Tough, is ably presented by John G. Brandon, the American actor, assisted by Pearla Cardiner and H. A. Lyons. The Four Jumels are good in a smart musical act; Jeanie Hartley is an exceptionally neat juvenile comedienne and dancer; Lena Brunton is a clever mimic; Barney Armstrong, with a quaint assistant, is well received; the Ladderites are clever in their unique ladder act; the Zaracs, in a comedy horizontal bar act, are excellent; and George Prince, the "crazy" comedian, is amusing. Up-to-date pictures complete.

TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Charming Helene D'Aubigny, from the Opera House, Paris, is singing delightfully here this week, and is warmly applauded. Clito remains another week in her artistic poses; G. W. Hunter, the well-known comedian and raconteur, is as funny as ever, and well received; Arthur J. Hill makes a hit in his Lilliputian act; Vincent Kelway and company are good in a costume sketch, The Poet of the People; and good turns are those of Hughes and Elliott, smart dancers; Canard, eccentric contortionist; Lucie Gerrard at the piano, Marie Elsie, comedienne, and Gladys Witton, vocalist.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Mr. J. Koffler-Reynolds, a Yiddish actor, and a strong company are here in an episode entitled Conscience, in which Mr. J. Koffler-Reynolds takes the chief part with great success. Douglas and Gordon are a smart comedy couple, who dance and sing well; Harwood's Juveniles are very entertaining in a pretty scena, A Children's Christmas Eve; and Les Zelovas, Continental acrobatic equilibrists, have a good reception. Halma is a capital juggler; the Spangelettis introduce some well-trained animals; George and Edwards are good patter comedians; Lily Arthur is a dainty singer; and Happy Attwood, comedian, is very funny. Ruby Dahl did not appear on the occasion of our visit.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Kay.—Miss Georgette Thierry and company are exceptionally good in an episode from "Oliver Twist," entitled Nancy Sykes. The Smart Set, under the direction of Mr. Walter George, and including little Hilda Light, are repeatedly recalled. Fame and Fortune are highly diverting in their acrobatic and boxing act; Shavo is a smart juggler; the Fours Sisters Victoria as instrumentalists and dancers are very entertaining; Baddow is an amusing ventriloquist; and Baker and Lindsay present a bijou musical comedy with excellent vocal effect. Greener, the singing pit lad, and Adams and Rouse in a new style singing playlet, both contributed good turns. As usual, the pictures prove very popular.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; General-Manager, Captain Cecil Clayton.—Mr. Eade Montefiore's company opened on Monday in The Streets of London. In the rôle of Gideon Bloodgood Mr. Gerald Kennedy was very good; as Mark Livingstone Mr. Frank Bradley did well, as also did Mr. Joe Bracewell as Jonas Puffy; Mr. Clifford Armitage gave a clever representation of the rôle of Captain Fairweather; and Mr. Charles O'Connor was well placed in the part of Paul Fairweather. Miss Florence Moore gave a fine rendition of the part of Dan Puffy; Mr. Wm. Rokeby was successful as Badger; as Alida Bloodgood Miss Dorothy Mayhew played successfully; and the same may be said of Miss Violet Hammersley as Lucy Fairweather. Mrs. Puffy was admirably delineated by Miss Helena Rigby.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Director, Mr. Tom Jennings; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Mr. Hilliard Vox's company, in the drama Alaska, occupy the boards here. In the rôle of Shookum Jem Mr. Percy Ballard plays exceptionally well, and scores a great success; Mr. G. H. Doyle gives a fine rendition of the rôle of Ned Garson; Mr. Stenson Liddiard as Baptiste is very well placed, and quite a success; Mr, James Fox gives a masterly interpretation of the part of Father Bernard; in the title-rôle Miss Violet Crawford is really excellent, and receives great appreciation; Miss M. Palmer is a clever Widow Casey; as Jessie Dalton Miss Muriel Vox scores.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Edward Michael; Stage and Business Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh.—The Margate stock company has this week been playing Arthur Law's amusing comedy, A Country Mouse. As Angela Muir, Miss Belle Travars is quite delightful; as the Hon. Archibald Vyse, Mr. Robert Grey is excellent, playing the part in a refined manner; Mr. Wallis Clark gives a very good impression of John Bowlby, M.P.; Mr. A. Austin-Leigh is amusing as the Duke of St. Kitt's; and Mr. Archie Selwyn is successful as Lord Robert Wyckham. Miss May Saker acts the somewhat difficult part of Lady Sylvia Bowlby with good judgment and skill; and Miss Mabel Archdall makes quite a charming Violet Aynsley. Miss Emmie O'Reilly is to be complimented upon her clever sketch of the charwoman, Mrs. Cropper; Mr. H. G. Mason as the butler and Mr. Richard Trieve as the footman are satisfactory.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree. —Sadie Seymour, comedienne and dancer, has met with an enthusiastic reception; and Kloof and Ramsey, in their comedy musical act, introduce several instrumental novelties. The Brothers Lester, swell coons and dancers, give a good show; and Arthur Stigant and Joe Nightingale, comedians, cause plenty of merriment in their new sketch, Two Sides of a Wall. The Sisters Reno give a very smart turn as Continental transformation dancers; Ernest Rees, the droll, is, as usual, quaint in his talk, and generally amusing; "The Wonders of Canada" is an instructive and entertaining series of Bioscope pictures.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. H. Player.—The popular character comedian, Arthur Reece, heads the bill here this week, and his songs are heartily encored; Milner Verrin possesses a good tenor voice, and his "Only a message" is well received; Vi Carlyle is successful with her scena, "My mountain maid"; and the Wyffs have a funny sketch, The Parson's Mishap in a London Flat; Amy Sullivan, comedienne; the Donas Trio, in a novelty balancing trapeze act; the Kimberley Boys, knockabouts; Auto, in a musical speciality act; Joey Stirling; Ernest Wright, comedian; and the Theatre Bioscope, with new pictures, also furnish attractive turns.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—The Five M.P.'s, military musical experts, top the bill here and prove a big attraction; the Wyndham and Kitty Trio provide an attractive show; Eugene and Willie are refined acrobatic and musical grotesques; the Royal Estos, in specialilites; Daisy Almer, comedienne and dancer; Janet Leslie, comedienne and vocalist; Li Chang Hi, Chinese conjurer, also provide good turns; and the Biograph, with all the latest novelties, completes an excellent programme.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE. —Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is this week playing here in Second to None. Mr. Jerrold Heather submits an intelligent and manly portraiture of the hero; the villain, Capt. Mannering, is powerfully played by Mr. James Stillwell; Mr. J. G. Maine presents a fine study of Sergt. Horseman; Mr. Louis Norman is a capital Sir Reginald; Mr. Horace Booth is well placed as Frank Wilding; while Mr. T. G. Vane is an excellent Lieut. Ballater. Miss Ward's histrionic skill is cleverly displayed in her interpretation of Nell Graystone; Miss Violet Ennis Lawson is highly commendable as May Graystone; genuine comedy is provided by Miss Maudie Grayson (Norah), Mr. Allen Carruthers (Joe Ruggles), and Mr. Tom Sinclair (Private Flutter).

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Mr. Alec Flood and Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice's company occupy the boards in the historical play The Angel of Unrest. The leading rôle, Napoleon I., is undertaken by Mr. Alec Flood; he is a sterling actor, and his interpretation of the character is apt and natural. Miss Patti March as Mme. Renaudot gives a refined, womanly rendering of the part; Mr. Creagh Henry acts with great distinction as Paul Brandt; and General Renandot finds a capable exponent in Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice. Mr. Henry Belding gives a fine impersonation of the old soldier, Bompasse; and Miss Florence Tressilian is exceedingly good as Julie. Mr. Laurence Vining is effective as Mons. Lepine; and Mr. Richard A. Greene and Mr. Alexander Bradley do full justice to the parts of Colonel Beznaise and Capt. Lemesull. Mr. George Chase as Capt. Leblanc, Mr. L. P. Danks as Capt. Beaupré, Mr. James Chippendale as Hugh, and Miss Nita Imeson as Lisette, are all that can be desired.

OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, The Middlesbrough Grand Opera House Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto. — Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company are here in The Midnight Mail. Miss Ada Oakley in the difficult rôle of Mary Steyne gives a very natural and womanly rendering; Billy Brewer, a drunken stoker, found an excellent representative in Mr. Fred G. Evison; while into the part of Harry Steyne Mr. George Harvard infuses a large amount of skilful acting. Miss Louise Brandon is delightful as Nancy Brewer; and Miss Nesta Sandford as Lady Phyllis Eustace leaves nothing to be desired. Mr. Austin Mortimer is good as Leonard Royle; and Hassan Padisha has an able representative in Mr. Maygill Martyn. Mr. Harry Emmerson as Donald Craig, Mr. Richard Banks as Ben Burney, Mr. J. Mann as Gerald Eustace, and Miss Kate Merton as Mrs. Milday all do full justice to their rôles.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles Rembges. — John Green Marx, the strong man, performs some remarkable feats of weight-lifting; Sable Fern scores a great success, her vocal items being well appreciated; a delightful musical turn is provided by the Sisters Carina, who prove to be musicians of exceptional ability; and the Dons and Gledhill Trio reproduce actual racing on a miniature track. Dolly McCalla, juvenile artist, pleases with her songs and dances; and George French causes much laughter. Billy Hobbs, coon dancer and comedian, and Almon, also add acceptable turns.

OXFORD.—Proprietor, Mr. Alf. Graham; Manager, Mr. R. L. Griffiths.—Albert Athas and Lizzie Collins provide the star turn here this week, and score a great success; Cliff Ryland creates roars of laughter with his songs and gags; and Ara, Zebra, and Vora do well in their novelty, "Indian Pastimes." The Snows please in their musical act; and the Three Royal Temples provide a delightful vocal turn. Florence Deighton is a dainty vocalist; and other turns are provided by Belton Jube and the Palascope.

NELSON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—Mr. F. Marriott-Watson's play, A False Wife, has been staged here this week. The company includes Miss Florence E. Florence as Estelle de Nussan, and her clever acting has impressed good houses each night. Mr. Fred H. Constable gives a capital presentation of Lieut. Geo. Mansfield; whilst as Ben Rattler Mr. Elton Morgan is excellent. As Jean Berand, the author, Mr. Marriott-Watson, plays very powerfully; and Mr. Harold Wallace in the rôle of the Mad Wizard proves most impressive. The sleep-walking scene is effectively given by Miss Florence; whilst the weird mystery, "From Life to Death," in which the hero gradually takes the form of a perfect skeleton, was quite startling. Capital gramophone selections are given between Acts II. and III. each night.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F Teale Lingham.—Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton and company are here in Othello, The Taming of the Shrew, and The Virgin Goddess. On Monday evening Othello was played. No more convincing representation of the Moor of Venice has been seen in Newcastle than that given by Mr. Asche. In Miss Lily Brayton as Desdemona he has a strong and striking counterfoil, and vociferous rounds of applause at the end of each act and upon the final drop of the curtain testified to the immense gratification Mr. Asche and Miss Brayton had created. A favourable impression was made by Mr. Alfred Brydone in the important part of Iago; and as Cassio Mr. H. R. Hignett played very well indeed. Roderigo had a good exponent in Mr. G. Kay Souper; while Miss Constance Robertson gave an excellent account of herself as Emilia.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—This theatre is occupied by the Newcastle Amateur Operatic Society, in Merrie England.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Mr. Fred Karno's company is here in the sketch His Majesty's Guests. The chief honours fall to Mr. George Hestor as Sergt. Lightning.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton.—The representation of Rip Van Winkle, in which Mr. Fred Storey figures as the principal performer, is one of the finest spectacular entertainments seen on the variety stage in Newcastle for some time; Miss Libbie Blondell, an American comedienne possessed of a fine soprano voice, gives a singing novelty which creates a good impression; graceful as well as clever acrobats are the Trapnell Family; and a popular comedian and mimic is Mr. Edwin Barwick; while the Musical Jees, in their speciality The Scarecrows gain hearty applause. Boy Glenn, raconteur; Ryder Slone, in song scena; Olive Tree; and Frobel and Ruge also ably assist in good all-round entertainment.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Mr. Dan Crawley proves a very popular turn this week, his songs being given in a style that he can claim as quite his own; Miss Florence Fenwicke, a member of a Newcastle family, presents a pleasing novelty in the form of an electrical scena, and, possessed of a very fine voice, she makes good use of it in the rendering of the "Holy City"; good instrumental music is provided by the El Tampico Trio, Mexican troubadours; while there is an abundance of fun during the occupation of the stage by Wyndham and Waters, in the sketch The Professor and His Pupil. Hope and Wayho, in a scene from one of Dickens's novels; Miss Lucy Coventry, comedienne and dancer; Roze and Calvert, a comedy couple; Miss May Fallowfield; and Andrews and Thompson, in a humorous act, are also good turns.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company is presenting The Love that Women Desire. Miss Lalla Stanhope gives a natural study of the heroine; as Madge Abingdon, Miss Gladys Murray is passionate; and the Pattie Swift of Miss Emmie Litchfield is characterised by vivacity and sweetness; whilst Miss N. Griffiths makes an admirable Indian maiden. Mr. H. B. Wilson as Philip Carnaby acts with vigour characteristic of a yeoman; Mr. J. O. Stewart does well as the scheming Squire Abingdon; and Mr. Alfred Brandon as Richard Abingdon is eminently successful; whilst Mr. Graham Winsford does splendidly in the part of Frank Hardy. The comedy element loses nothing in the hands of Messrs. J. Hignett and J. W. Wilkinson as Dennis O'Rourke and P.C. Sowerberry respectively.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Major Gallagher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Page. — Mr. Hymack, described as the chameleon comedian, quickly gets on good terms with the house; a pretty Japanese musical comedy is presented by Marie Santoi and her party of Japs, entitled A Japanese Tea Garden; the Brothers Dean are a couple of good dancers; and Ted E. Fox, a quaint comedian, secured a well-earned encore. The Sisters Morgan sing duets, and dance nicely; Cissie Courlette is a good mimetic vocalist; and in a musical sketch, The Night Before the Concert, the Strads discourse sweet music on the violin, 'cello, and piano; whilst Collins and Rice are a smart pair of comedy artists. The Bioscope completes the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—Mr. Swinerd's company, in Dare-Devil Dorothy, under the direction of Mr. J. W. Cordiner, is here. Miss Dorothy Desmond plays and sings well as Dorothy; and Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith is as vivacious as ever, and introduces fresh specialities; whilst the clever dancing of Miss Mabel Blake and Miss Lillie Blake commands applause. Mr. W. Ashley plays and sings well as Capt. George Fielding; and Mr. H. C. Ward ably repeats his powerful presentation of Capt. Edward Dudley. Mr. Bert Edwards cleverly presents the part of Silas Crump.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—The New York Comedy Four are justly termed "humorously harmonious," and are a big success; the Six Lancashire Lasses, clog-dancers and vocalists, give a skilful display; Les Rubens delight with a musical sketch; the Prince Milner Trio give a display of equilibrism; the Gilberts are clever young performers on the wire; Kit Keen, coloured comedian, amuses with his smart comic patter; Harry Luck is a very good eccentric comedian; and C. Vincent completes the programme with some amusing pictures.

NORTH SHIELDS. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Variety again forms the attraction here this week, the programme being headed by Herr Addison's troupe of fox terriers, who perform some clever feats; Mr. W. T. Burgess and company present the sketch, Found Faithful, which is received with much favour; Messrs. Norman and Britton, comedy acrobatic hand-balancers, are loudly applauded; the Sisters Dawn, vocalists and speciality dancers, have made a hit; the Alvenos, gymnasts, go well; and Mr. George Battle, actor-vocalist; Miss Warren, clog dancer; Gillan and his Street Arabs; and Mr. J. C. Hoffman, comedian, all meet with favour.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Mr. Ben Harris and his Nippers are again here, meeting with their usual success; the Three Zedicas, in their Risley and juggling act, are cordially greeted; the Brothers Hannaway, comedians and dancers, are accorded a hearty reception; the Two Kays, in their vocal scena, are much appreciated; and Miss Gracie Bard, comedienne, Mr. Harry Hayton, eccentric comedian, and the Bio-Photoscope all contribute successfully.

NORTHWICH. — PIERROT PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Glanmore Jones; Manager, Mr. Lindon Wyatt. — The Pierrots have re-opened for the season. Mr. Glanmore Jones, who was hitherto the manager, being now the sole proprietor. The artists engaged for this week are Miss Ellaline Florence; Miss Flo Blanchard; Mr. Fred Temple, tenor; Mr. Newton Ide, the eminent bass; Mr. Lindon Wyatt, society entertainer; Mr. Charles Howarth, comedian; Mr. Barry Gilmore, eccentric comedian and dancer; and the ever-popular Mr. Glanmore Jones.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. F. Morgan.—Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company is delighting audiences here this week with a capital répertoire. On Monday night Macbeth was admirably rendered. Mr. Henry Herbert, who took the title-rôle, was excellent in every degree; Mr. Gerald Ames was equally successful as King Duncan; Mr. E. Spencer Geach did well as Macduff, and Mr. Reginald Owen deserves praise as Malcolm; Miss Dorothy Green was exceedingly good as Lady Macbeth, and the other parts were ably filled. On Tuesday the company was equally good in Much Ado About Nothing. On Wednesday Henry V. was given, and The Merchant of Venice, The Rivals, As You Like It, and Hamlet were also billed.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—Popular Peggy Pride heads the bill, and charms the audience with her four latest successes; the Wakeman Quartette, with Miss Nancy Bruce as the soloist, is a delightful turn; Park's Eton Boys, seven in number, meet with a good reception; Julian Mack, comedian, creates much amusement; Harry Taft's whistling is much appreciated; the Ellimans are very entertaining; Stelling introduces his dog Krowaski, which gives evidence of admirable training; Fioretti and Elly are clever spade jumpers, whilst the Hippo. bioscope exhibits interesting pictures.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Christian is presented by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company. Miss Grace Chalmers as Glory Quayle is distinctly successful; Mr. E. Howard Templeton displays great adaptability as John Storm, and acts the dramatic episodes with artistic repression; Mr. Edwin Ling imports the necessary religious feeling into his representation of Father Lamplugh; and the rôle of Archdeacon Wealthy loses none of its unctuousness in the hands of Mr. Charles E. Dering; Lord Robert Ure is skilfully personified by Mr. Frederick Scarth; and the parts of Drake, "Faro," and Lorimer are capably handled by Messrs. Frank Beresford, Bert Conway, and Fern Pounds. Miss Molly Hayden is capital as Mrs. Callander; and Miss Vashti Wellborne does well as Polly Love, being admirably supported by Mr. Wilfred Noy as Brother Paul. Mr. Charles Hill is good as Parson Quayle; and the music hall artists are portrayed in a dashing manner by Misses May Dudley, Violet White, and Nelly Hastings. The play is staged and mounted excellently.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—The Still Alarm, with its exciting incidents and fine scenic arrangements, is attracting large houses this week. Mr. Matthew Glenville gives a vigorous portrayal of the hero, Jack Manley; Mr. George Arthur earns the execrations of the "gods" by his energetic impersonation of the rascally John Bird; Mr. Fred Osmond submits a good character-sketch of the drink-sodden Doc Wilber; and Mr. Tom Beasley acts amusingly as Willie Manley; Mr. Lewis Gordon makes a satisfactory Franklyn Fordham, and Mr. J. Sutton Pateman adds a touch of comedy as Joe Jones. The impersonation of Elinor Fordham by Miss Maude Warburton is full of sweetness and grace; and Miss Mabel Verity appears to advantage as the motherly Mrs. Manley. Miss Gertie Reid offers a good rendering of the music hall artist, Carrie Wilber, and the minor parts are all well filled. In the fire-station scene the Lyric quartette of glee singers vocalise with good effect.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—The Three Golden Graces give an admirable idea of bronze statues, their posing being very clever; Madge Grey makes a delightful raconteuse, and her dialect song is an exceedingly smart item; audiences never seem to tire of the comical boxing of the Brothers Horne, the laughter being loud and continuous throughout the turn; hearty applause is accorded Roma and Romani, who submit a dexterous performance on a number of musical instruments; Madeleine Du Val and Charles Macquire awake enthusiasm by their vocal episode; Allis and Cassati brighten the stage by singing, dancing, and comedy; and the imitative powers of Geo. Newburn are effectively and smartly displayed; Herbert Rule, comedian; May Evans, comedienne; Lady Fauntleroy, and the American Bioscope add their share to the general enjoyment.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. Jabez White, Light-weight Champion of England, and a good variety company occupy the boards here. Included on the programme are Miss Kitty Erl, soprano vocalist, who wins applause; Le Warren is a good singing ventriloquist; Mlle. Dora is a clever musician; the Two Eltons give some clever horizontal bar performances; the Danas are entertaining comedians; Miss Daisy Dashwood is a good comedienne; Fred Lyndo is a capable comedian and dancer; and some interesting films are shown on the Bioscope.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Mr. Chas. Macdona presented on Monday for the first time in Oldham the new comedy, Mr. Popple of Ippleton. Mr. Arthur Longley appears in the name-part, and he plays it in a capital manner; as La Bolero, Miss Millie Hylton received several recalls for her excellent singing; Miss Nellie Hodson is very good as Louise; and Miss Cora Lingard is a dainty Violet Blinton; Miss Alice Rene and Miss Stella St. Audrie do good work as Mrs. Doring and Mrs. Hennay; Mr. Robert Corray as Norman Popple plays smartly; and Messrs. Sydney Courtney and James Stevenson as George Hennay and Henry Doring are amusing. Mr. Willie Kottaun is a capital Messenger Boy, Mr. Tom May as Platt is also good. The comedy is well dressed and staged.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company occupies the boards here this week with Her Nameless Child. Mr. J. W. Evelyn as Anthony Ford acts in a highly finished manner; and Mr. Herbert Evelyn as Arthur is also very successful; the villainous Lord Henry Woodville is well played by Mr. Ellerslie Pyne, and Mongrole is excellently portrayed by Mr. Fred Griffiths. Miss Pattie Hastings receives much sympathy in the part of Phyllis Ford, and Miss Grace Jones is capital as the scheming Lady Sybil; Miss Beatrice Dover is good as Sarah; and Miss Florence Hall as Bessie Brooks is responsible for some excellent comedy, as is also Mr. Fred Danvers as Tom Rivers.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Belle Davis and her Pick Chicks score with their clever singing and dancing; Flockton Foster and Arnold Richardson in Ferdie's Ma-in-Law cause roars of laughter; Foreman and Fannan, the millionaires, are capital fun-providers; Kitty Traney has some clever dogs and a well-trained pony; the Gasch Sisters are marvellous acrobats; Wee Jessie is a clever song and dance artist; and Miss Fatmah Diard sings in a capital manner; Bert Harrow is a funny comedian, and the Royal Dottoscope concludes with an amusing picture.

HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Lloyd's Gondolier Glee Singers, including Miss Helen Bourne (lady tenor), are excellent vocalists; De Vere and Kenwick, comedy duo, cause hearty laughter with their burlesque pictures; Agnes and Arthur Lynch do well with their illustrated picture songs; Smiler Lee, talking comedian, tells funny stories with good results; Carl Rosine, magician, performs clever illusions; Joe Humphreys, vocal comedian, sings some good songs; and Robb Gilmore, comedian, is very good. The Dottoscope is showing some interesting pictures.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—Mr. Lewis Waller's company in Robin Hood is the attraction this week. Mr. Robert Minster scores a big success in the title-rôle; his bright, natural acting just suiting the romantic character; Richard and Prince John find capable exponents in Messrs. E. C. Vaughan and B. Clarke; Mr. H. Elliott Ball is well suited as the rough wooer, De Longespee; Messrs. A. Willerby, Val Glynn, and C. B. Winston are all good as Fitz-Alwynne, Le Botelier, and the Abbot of Mervaulx; Mr. H. Wakefield as De Tracey and Mr. L. Rea as John Little are both excellent; Mr. L. Tessier is a gallant Will Scarlet; and Mr. Augustus Wheatman brims over with humour in the delightful character of the merry Friar Tuck. Miss Mabel Younge is a stately and natural Queen; Miss D. Moore-Lane is a piquant and charming Adela; Miss Lilian Lait a delightful Alison Much; while Miss Marie Polini has won all hearts here with her charming presence and delightful acting as Lady Marion.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, Miss Winifred Stuart and Mr. C. Watson Mill; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. Ian Maclaren's Shakespearean company is occupying these boards this week, the répertoire comprising Hamlet, The Merchant of Venice, Othello, Twelfth Night, As You Like It, and David Garrick. In Hamlet, Mr. Ian Maclaren was accorded a fine reception for his masterly and finished performance in the title-rôle; as Laertes Mr. Frank Royde wins favour; and Mr. Arthur Fayne is admirable as Polonius, his acting being very natural. Mr. George Westland does good service as Claudius, Mr. J. V. Bryant as Horatio and Mr. Hustin Meharry as Marcellus are both good; Mr. F. Stafford Dawson is an undoubted success as the Ghost; while Mr. George Powell makes the utmost possible of the Gravedigger. All the minor parts are well filled. Miss Katherine Harrington's Ophelia is a very clever performance; Miss Gertrude Littlewood is effective as the Player Queen; Miss Edith Coleman makes a charming and, at the same time, a stately Gertrude. There were vociferous calls for Mr. Ian Maclaren at the close of the performance.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Miss Lydia Donovan's company, in Her One Great Sin, is here this week. Mr. C. Quinton Fulford submits a capital impersonation of Arnold Thornhill; as Rueben Warhurst Mr. G. Edward Hall plays with marked effect; Mr. Fred Hodson is mirth-provoking in the rôle of Jerry Jumble; Dan Hundle is amusingly depicted by Mr. Charles E. Lambert; as Jack Hundle Mr. J. Croudace makes a decided impression; Mr. J. Nella is a satisfactory and intelligent Mr. Benton; and clever are the assumptions of Ben Barkley by Mr. M. Sterling, Robert Brown by Mr. S. A. Russell, and P.C. Jackson by Mr. C. Dale. Miss Lydia Donovan as Grace Warhurst acts with histrionic ability and naturalness; Miss Louie Walton plays Bet Hundle with great success; Nancy Wimpenny, as portrayed by Miss Nellie Lambert, is very funny; and as Charlie and Gracie, Miss Phyllis Damian and Miss Maudie Lambert (child actresses) are to be highly praised.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Douglas F. Bostock.—The King's College Boys submit a refined and entertaining number here this week; Henry Coutts, a clever protean actor, impersonates no fewer than eight characters in his sketch Outflanked, in which he is assisted by Miss Dot Kemp, Mr. W. R. Grey, and Mr. Lee; J. A. Cassells, Scotch comedian, is excruciatingly funny; the Burnells cause no end of merriment with On the Links; the Westwoods prove themselves skilful trick and comedy cyclists; Maude Vera, descriptive vocalist and coon artist, has a fine reception; the Lannons elicit admiration in their comedy act, The Policeman and the Maid; Harrigan and Holt, original patter comedians, are warmly applauded; and the Hippodrome Bioscope concludes an interesting programme.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Charles Majilton, with his company of eccentric comedians, is engaged for the week, and is giving two performances nightly of The Trippers. The piece teems with fun, and from the rise of the curtain to its fall causes continuous mirth.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—This week David Copperfield, David Garrick, and The Coping Stone are being played by a capable company. On Monday David Copperfield was presented. As Dan'l Peggotty, Mr. Charles Cartwright scored brilliantly, the rough generosity and poignant grief of the old "sea porkipine" being rapturously applauded; Mr. Lionel Belmore carefully depicted the strong character of Ham; Mr. Gerald Lawrence was the recipient of high encomiums for his representation of James Steerforth, the vices of this wayward character being admirably portrayed without ostentation; Mr. Charles Collette caused the house to resound with laughter at his bombastic flights of oratory as the talkative Micawber; Mr. A. B. Tapping furnished a splendid study of the mealy-mouthed Uriah Heep; and Mr. Stanley Harrison was a generous, whole-hearted David Copperfield. Amongst the ladies, principal interest naturally centres round Little Em'ly, a part sympathetically and touchingly played by Miss Lorna Lawrence; Miss Clarissa Selwynne has a somewhat distasteful part as Rosa Dartle, but she does full justice to it; Miss Helen Vicary relieves many situations by her perky humour as Betsy Trotwood; and Miss Gordon Walker is graceful and reserved as Agnes Wickfield. On Tuesday David Garrick was produced, and premier honours were shared by Mr. Gerald Lawrence in the title-rôle, and Miss Fay Davis, who gave a magnificent performance as Ada Ingot. Later in the week, The Coping Stone, from the pen of Mr. Gerald Lawrence, was performed.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—The Palace management have put together a very good bill, the chief attraction being Fred Ginnett's Boy Army; Pat Rafferty proves himself a warm favourite with the strong Naval contingent who patronise the Palace; Dandy George puts a couple of well-trained dogs through some clever and graceful manœuvres; Stelling and Revell are an amusing pair of comedy bar performers; and Madge Allan is a graceful vocalist and dancer. Vernon's pictures show some interesting scenes; and Poole and Poole and Hans and Lux also contribute to the programme.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company is here in Driven from Home. Montanini scores as Geoffrey Waring; Mr. Howard Tracey capably portrays George Clissold; Mr. George Lawrence acts well as Peter Pettipher; Miss Rose Ralph displays marked ability as Laura Raybrook; Jane is splendidly impersonated by Miss Muriel Alleyn; Mrs. McCarthy is well sustained by Miss Amy Williams; and Mr. Percy Dawsone could not be improved upon as Willie.

PORTSMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—The Carl Rosa Opera Company opened here on Monday with Il Trovatore. Mr. Julius Walther gave an exceptionally fine portrayal of Manrico; Mr. Dillon Shallard's Count di Luna was a great vocal success; Miss Elizabeth Burgess as Leonora sang with her accustomed sweetness and power; Azucena was magnificently played by Miss Doris Woodall, her vocalisation being brilliant; Mr. Frederick Clendon was an admirable Ferrando; and Miss Lilla De Berra was capable as Inez. The opera was under the able conductorship of Mr. Eugene Goossens.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company, with Hearts Adrift, is here. Captain Teddy is admirably sustained by Mr. Henry Bedford; Mr. Fred Terriss gives a capital interpretation of Edmund Gerue; Mr. Cecil Klein plays with distinction as Robert Darney; Mr. Brian Daly is excellent as Simeon Green; Pidgeon is ably embodied by Mr. S. Tavershan; Little Tim is satisfactorily played by Miss Irene Rose; Miss Nellie Clyde depicts Rosie with graceful piquancy; Energy Mugs is played by Miss Beatrix A. Bell with amusing dash; and Julia Lane, Peggy McGuire, and Mother Huggolow are successfuly portrayed by Misses Gertrude Harrison, Kitty Kirwan, and Marion Walker.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Mr. and Mr. E. H. Lucas in their scenes from Dickens, give a highly meritorious and artistic performance here; Bert Coote's Kiddies are pleasing and popular; Will Rain and company are most entertaining and amusing in the sketch, Hotel Comfort; the Oonda Brothers, with a clever triple bar act, score well; the Sisters Caselli are a smart pair of vocalists and specialty dancers; Terry and Bentley, refined comedy artists, are appreciated; Herbert Clifton, vocal mimic, is an artist of undoubted ability; Ernie Myers is an amusing patter comedian; Lily Lonsdale is a very good soprano vocalist; and Payne's Bioscope, with capital new pictures, make up a good all-round entertainment.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late Mr. W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt. — Mr. Brandon Thomas's company is here with Charley's Aunt. Colonel Chesney has an excellent representative in Mr. Sidney Compton; and Mr. Walter Beaumont successfully impersonates Stephen Spettigue. In the title-rôle, Mr. Spencer Trevor gives an exceptionally clever and amusing performance; his confederates in duplicity, Jack Chesney and Charles Wykeham, are very humorously portrayed by Mr. Hastings Lynn and Mr. Richard B. Mason. Mr. M. A. Wetherell is exceedingly droll as Brassett; Miss Lena MacNaughton well sustains the part of Donna Lucio; Miss Ruth Nightingale makes a charming Ela; and Miss Bertha Northam and Miss Ida Vynall are pleasing exponents of Kitty Verdun and Amy Spettigue. A one-act play, The Lancashire Sailor, precedes the comedy.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—Crowded houses this week give Miss Harriet Vernon a hearty reception, and her songs are greatly enjoyed; Miss Marie Blythe gains rounds of applause; the Szarvasi-Ferecnz troupe give a smart acrobatic display, including some Hungarian dancing; Cleland, the earthquake juggler, causes roars of laughter; Mr. Leslie Race's vocal contributions are well received; Miss Emma Don and her black and white comedy team entertain with musical mirth; Kendrick and Laura, as duettists; Mr. J. H. Dundas, the actor-vocalist; a dramatic episode, entitled A Modern Shylock, presented by Miss Alvina Mining, assisted by Mr. Dan Mining, and the pictures complete an attractive programme.

RAMSGATE. — AMPHITHEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Bowman.—Messrs. S. Egerton Burnett and Harry Tindell have provided an attractive entertainment here during the past week. Twice nightly they have presented their animatograph entertainment, which comprises a fine selection of animated pictures that please audiences immensely. During the show clever variety turns are introduced by Miss Lilian and Clown Auguste (gymnasts and contortionists), Savaro (mimic), and Miss Katie Kyrle (contralto).

RAWTENSTALL. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—Mr. Will Hebden's company includes several turns, amongst whom are Stanley Howard, descriptive vocalist; the Morellis (Sid and Minnie), with a funny musical comedy act, How Dare You; Miss Jessie Thorne, versatile comedian; Halsey and Bowers, cross-talk comedians. A laughable sketch entitled Johnny Kelly's Night Out, in which Miss Lilly Vane, Mr. G. Clifton, and Mr. Will Hebden show to advantage, was also good; whilst a bright musical comedy, Teddy Smiles, brought the performance to an end.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode.—Mr. George Dance's variety season.—This week's attractions include Joe Reichen's clever troupe of performing dogs; Frank Darwin, the popular actor-vocalist; George C. Doughty and company, in the smart comedy scene, Captain Cupid; the Glenroy Troupe of International dancers; Gertrude Bradshaw, soprano vocalist; Bert Woodward, trick cyclist; Charles Baldwin's company of comedians and pantomimists, in the absurdity, Bank Clerks; and Vernon's Bioscope. A special flying matinée was given on Wednesday, when Harry Lauder was the star attraction.

REDDITCH.—PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. W. Treadgold.—Miss Maggie Merton's company gave two performances here on the 26th and 27th ult. of Home Sweet Home.

WOOD'S CONCERT AND PICTURE COMPANY opened for six nights on Monday last, and have met with a big success.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—The Unseen Power, by Harry Starr, occupies the boards here this week. The author undertakes the principal character, Fred Granville, with his usual power; Mr. Wm. Miller acts with success the part of Harold Granville; Mr. Edwin Firth as Antonio Romano is all that could be desired; and Mr. Fred W. Graham creates roars of laughter by his portrayal of Horatio Cracklesby. Miss Dolly Starr impersonates Chris Granville with marked ability; and Miss Lizzie Jacobs is seen and heard to advantage as Jennie Shrubb.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham-Power.—Mr. Reginald Dance and company are appearing in Raffles. Mr. Reginald Dance from the commencement gives striking proof of his capabilities as the "Amateur Cracksman." Mr. Edward Irwin finds ample scope to display a vigorous impersonation of Mr. Curtis Bedford; and Mr. Brisco Owen gives a delightful and creditable portrayal of Harry Manders, while Mr. C. Rivers Bertram ably takes the part of Crawshay. Messrs. Stanley Lathbury and Edward Coutts are worthy exponents of Lord Amersteth and Lord Crowley respectively; Miss Mildred Orme is well suited as Lady Melrose; the rôle of Gwendoline Conran is entrusted to Miss Katie Yates, who gives evident satisfaction with naturalness and marked ability; Mrs. Vidal is fortunate in having such an able exponent as Miss May Brooke, who works in fascinating style that is much admired.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—A first-class entertainment is given nightly this week; Mme. Natalia arouses immense enthusiasm by her clever renderings of good classical songs, and is equally delightful with her pianoforte solos; the Misses Loeta Dewhurst and Ida F. Price also sing in fascinating style that gains much favour, and whose selections are rendered with both force and skill; Mr. W. Hockley contributes well-selected songs in very creditable fashion; Mr. Lawrence Turney imparts real good merriment in his quaint way of entertaining; while Mr. L. Sears also appears popular with his répertoire of songs. Mention should be made of the concluding item for the excellent and pleasing manner in which the company render the "Death of Cock Robin."

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, the Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's excellent company has met with a cordial reception from large audiences with Peter's Mother. Miss Ruth Mackay speedily wins the favour of the audience by her powerful portrayal of the rôle of Lady Mary Crewys, which she depicts in a clever and effective manner; Peter Crewys is capitally impersonated by Mr. Percy Hutchison; Mr. Charles Harley is an admirable representative of Sir Timothy Crewys, Bart.; Mr. Stanley Pringle shows a thorough grasp of the part of John Crewys, and is eminently successful; Mr. Townend characteristically impersonates Dr. Blundell; Mr. F. G. Thurstans represents Canon Birch very efficiently; Miss Mary Griffiths, Miss Florence Harwood as Lady Belstone, and Miss G. Crewys respectively acquitted themselves creditably; Miss Violet Ley plays particularly well as Mrs. Hewell; Miss Hilda Horriss lends ample assistance in the character of her daughter Sarah; and Mr. Mitchell and Mr. T. Salver do well in their respective parts of Butler and Footman. As a curtain-raiser a one-act play, entitled Her Dearest Friend, is presented.

ALBERT HALL, WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—The principal items during the current week are supplied by Charles Mildare, assisted by Miss Edna Werner, in A Day in Birdland; Peter Bermingham, the popular Scottish comedian; and the Celtics, in their diverting musical comedy. The programme also includes Minnie D'Aubyn, burlesque actress and vocalist; Ford and Hanson, in their musical novelty; Newco and Sullo, comedians and grotesque dancers; Leotard Brothers, comical clowns, hat balancers, and throwers; Bugler Carr, instrumentalist; and the Bioscope, with the latest films.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—The Coal King is presented by Messrs. G. M. Polini and L. Maitland's company. The part of the hero is well performed by Mr. Lauderdale Maitland, and Miss Gertrude Valentine as Grace Shirley exhibits marked ability. The villainous Walter Hartford is capitally sustained by Mr. Escott Robson, and Mr. Charles Whitlock as Sir Reginald Hartford scores heavily. Excellent humour is introduced by Mr. Alfred Ferris as Jim Williams, and Miss Enid Ross as Araminta. Mr. Frank Dalton works hard as Dick Shirley, and the Mrs. Baker and the Mad Ann of Miss E. North and Miss Sinna St. Clair are both creditable performances.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Tom Costello presents his latest success, "The Suffragettes," and his characteristic masterpiece, "The old clown," to an appreciative audience; Charles Norton, a mimic of pronounced ability, also has a good reception; Gladys Mavius scores heavily in a song-scena, "Rosie is Waiting," assisted by Dot; Lily Langtry is a vivacious comedienne; good songs are rendered by Hilda Playfair, and other attractive items are J. Alexander and company, in a sketch; Queenie May, juvenile artist; Fred Fane, vocal comedian; and the Bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. K. Hall and Joseph Sweeney; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—A musical military sketch, The Little Colonel, is being presented by Ernest Montefiore and company; Harry Levaine is a quaint comedian; a clever juggling turn is contributed by the Henres. The programme includes Lyons Trio, pantomimists and dancers; Bliss and Bliss, comedians; Charles Ashdowne, eccentric comedian; Gertrella, vocalist and gymnast; Phil and Nettie Peters, entertainers; Ada Twibell, comedienne; Mark Leslie, billed as the dusky prince; and the Palace Bioscope.

SWANSEA.—GRAND.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Brooks and Woodbridge; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks.—The boards here are occupied by an excellent company. Mlle. Lumiere, the human butterfly, introduces a number of beautiful serpentine dances; Vulcaris is an accomplished pianist and banjo player; Clack and Clack combine clever barrel jumping with excellent comedy; the Ashburns baffle the "house" with their cabinet trick; Seves, a fifteen-year-old young lady, gives an excellent demonstration of second sight; Gladys Wells is a comedienne of merit; Hoozee as a ventriloquist is hard to beat; Kingsley, handbell ringer; Les Henris, gymnasts; Harry Keeble, character comedian; and Minni Carlo, serio, are also in the bill, which has as an attraction a sketch by E. Oswald Brooks, entitled The Simple (?) Life.

THE EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. Mitchell; Assistant-Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe.—Paul Cinquevalli has lost nothing of his skill since his last visit here, his turn being as effective as ever; Lottie Lennox has good songs, which she gives in excellent style; Syd May, "the imitator without imitation," is received as heartily as ever; Mr. Carter Livesey and Miss Lilian Rosebery, in The Would-be Actors, are one of the features of the programme; a pleasing turn is contributed by Ruth Lytton; A. W. Scott's coon songs are much enjoyed; and Elsie Clare, soprano vocalist, sings well. Some interesting pictures on the Bioscope are shown.

THE STAR. — Manager, Mr. William Coutts.—A Broken Heart is being presented here by Mr. Harry Foxwell's company. Mr. Henry Woolston gives a manly delineation of the Village Blacksmith; Mrs. Harry Foxwell as Mary Barnard is equally successful; the Stephen Rayton of Mr. W. H. Earlesmere is good; Mr. Will Lindsay does full justice to the part of Tony Tibbetts; and Mr. Geo. Addison is effective as Skrimp. Miss Julia Calcraft as Mrs. Bernard and Miss Beatrice Hart as Grace Fanshawe are also successful.

TAMWORTH.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Manager, Mr. F. Hughes.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company appeared here on Saturday night to a good house in The Christian. Mr. Jack Fortescue was a manly Father Storm, torn by conflicting emotions; Miss Laura Walker was a decided success as Glory Quayle, and won golden opinions; Mr. Harry Colbeck was excellent as Father Lamplugh, and Mr. Phipps Stanley was commendable as the Archdeacon; Mr. P. Gedge Twyman gave a good account of himself as Lord Robert Ure, an unthankful part; Miss C. Stephens gave a capital personation of Mrs. Callander, the strong-minded woman. Other characters deserving of mention were those of Parson Quayle (Mr. Percy Johnson), Horatio Drake (Mr. Ernest Stidwell), the "Faro" King (Mr. Anthony Rawles), Polly Love (Miss Edith M. Savery), and Aggie Jones (Miss Aggie Royal).

TON-Y-PANDY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth.—Mr. J. H. Tomkinson's Royal Gipsy Girls' Choir is here, and has attracted large houses. The singing is well up to the standard, and in the second half of the programme a good variety show is put on.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Will. Stone; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar Harper.—The Bioscope pictures here still draw good business. Of the variety turns, Edgar Harper, baritone vocalist; and Morimura, juggler and illusionist, are the pick.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS. — OPERA HOUSE. — Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Business-Manager, Mr. L. J. Gunnell.—This week Mr. Carey's touring company is appearing here in the successful musical comedy The Pick of the Bunch, and Friday was fixed for a complimentary benefit night for Mr. Carey, with the result that the popular lessee was assured of a bumper house. The piece goes with a swing, and Mr. Carey resumed the leading rôle and had quite an ovation. Miss M. Sadie's exuberant humour kept the house thoroughly amused in the title-rôle; Miss Madge Christopher and Miss Eva Ellis charmingly sustained the love interest, and the latter lady proved herself an accomplished danseuse. Miss Nellie James as the Dutch maid gave a quaint and humorous impersonation; Mr. Buckstone Clair as the susceptible Colonel, Mr. Harold Wantage as Dick Seymour all contributed materially to the success of the evening; while the Hydro Girls in song and dance, with Miss Madge Lacey as première danseuse, were cordially received. A word of congratulation is certainly due to the musical director, Mr. Harry Bolton, and it may be added that some distinguished residents, including Mr. Hedges, M.P., Lord Colchester, Lady Lawrence, and Lady Miller, gave their patronage for the benefit.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Sherwood and Co.—Mr. C. St. John Denton's company is here this week in the pretty musical play, Kitty Grey. Miss Hilda Guiver is the Kitty, and her charming manner and vocal ability make her a great favourite; Miss Zena Denton is pleasing as Sadie de Poulston; Mr. Leslie Harris is excellent as Lord Plantagenet, and keeps the house in continuous merriment; Miss Nellie Cozens is distinctly good as Mrs. Bright, and Miss Noira Moira is dainty and smart as Lady Binfield; Mr. Robert Whyte, jun., makes an admirable King of Illyra; and Mr. Percy Yorke Hatton acts and sings in grand style as Sir John Binfield.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—The bill here this week is headed by Mendel, the blind pianist. Also here are the Brothers O'Gorman, comedians and dancers; Madge Temple, musical comedy artist; Sisters Trentanovi, who give a clever performance in their gymnastic transformation act; Katie Butler, character comedienne; Farley, Rennie, and Farley, in their speciality act, Fun at a Railway Station, are attractive; and George Brooks, the nautical sailor. The pictures are very attractive.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD. — General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.— Mr. Edward McLean's company is presenting The Hero of the Flag here this week. Paul Mansfield is in the capable hands of Mr. Ernest Wingfield; Mr. Edward McLean makes a capital Jack Lawrence; Miss Gladys Vernon as Mabel Forrester plays very well; Mr. Johnny McElroy as Johnny Truckle creates great laughter, as also does Miss Amy Randolph, in the part of Jenny Stubbs.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES. —Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—Minnie Cunningham tops the bill here this week, and the charming comedienne has captured all hearts with her dainty songs; Harry Rogerson, the tired comedian, is a typical droll, and his sketch is highly appreciated; Miles Platting is a capital mimic; and Young Vardon is a smart ventriloquist. The Greys are delightful duettists; and Flo Wood is a dashing comedienne. George Collins is a quaint comedian; and Farrell and Miller rare knockabouts. The pictures depicting the Grand National of 1907 are good.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Mr. Chas. H. Lester and company opened here on Monday night with The Bank of England. Mr. Lester gives an interesting and clever impersonation of Sherlock Holmes; Mr. G. Clifton Boyne is well suited to the rôle of Stephen Hartley; and Mr. H. J. Firman is well placed as Sir Sidney Barraclough; Mr. F. C. Berridge does well in the part of the Hon. Bertie Burlington; Mr. Harry T. Wood is effective as Eric Dane; Mr. Edmond O'Grady makes a capital Gordon Isaacs; and Mr. W. R. Stanley as Tommy Sprouts and Miss Annie Thomas as Lucy Lockett are very entertaining; Miss Marjorie Davenport makes a sympathetic Margaret Dane; and a smarter exponent of the American widow than Miss Lallah Davis it would be difficult to find; Miss Dorothy Riddell is all that could be desired in the character of Sylvia Barraclough. On Wednesday and Friday East Lynne and The Sorrows of Satan were presented respectively by the same company.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Lewis Gilbert. —The society entertainers, Mountford and Walsh, appear here this week, and are well received; Mr. T. W. Romer, in his vocal scena, is a success, and a clever turn is submitted by Miss Bessie Travers, who shows great ability with her talking figures; the Harvey Boys cause great merriment and receive encores; Nanno, Leo, and Kinko create roars of laughter with their funny antics; Miss Edie Gray and Boys render some smart songs in a very pleasing manner; Bromley and Fontein present a novel turn; Happy Tom Parker pleases the house immensely by his comic songs and manner; and a fine film of the Grand National is shown by the Hippodrome lantern.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather. —Florodora, played by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company, is here again. Mr. Alf. E. Passmore makes a good deal of fun out of the part of Tweedlepunch; Cyrus W. Gilfain has a capable portrayal at the hands of Mr. Stanley White; Frank Abercoed and Capt. Arthur Donegal are ably represented by Mr. H. V. Cropton and Mr. Harry Perry; Miss Daisy Lake is a refined and pleasing Dolores, and she sings with engaging sweetness; Miss Lily Gullich is a petite and winning Angela Gilfain; and a well-studied piece of acting is given by Miss Kate Leicester as Lady Holyrood.

PALACE. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The Four Herberts, in their acrobatic act, as The Jolly Californian Farmers and Maid, provide a turn which gains for them a perfect tumult of applause; those popular favourites, Ormonde Penstone and his Chinatown belle, Tsaou-ago, are also on a return visit, and are receiving a flattering welcome. A conspicuous hit is made by the Three Sisters Sprightly; the harmonised songs by the Sisters Joughmans are delightfully rendered; Jack Lane, the Yorkshire rustic, spins some capital jokes, and excels at the piano; Edna Latonne sings very prettily some songs with choruses, which catch on at once. Dave Laird, comedian, and some excellent films are also included in the attractions.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. Edmund Tearle, supported by Miss Kate Clinton and a powerful company, opened here on Monday with Jeanie Deans, which proved a strong attraction. The week's programme include Othello, It's Never Too Late To Mend, and The Octoroon.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. C. Raws. The bill here this week includes the Lauriers, speciality artists; the Leonards, in pictorial songs; Flemine, a clever acrobat with one leg; the Two Volbecques, smart comedy duettists; Mlle. Fontain's Mannikins; Leon Ardo, conjuror; the Mohamed Ben Mohamed troupe of Souasa Arabs; and the Vicoscope is quite up to date.

WIGAN. — ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—Hardie and Von Leer's company in the ever-popular play, Two Little Vagabonds, pay a welcome return visit. The "vagabonds" are impersonated by Miss Edie Martin and Miss Josie Bertram. The former as Dick is a brave and vivacious urchin, and Miss Bertram as Wally plays the part of the sickly and dying lad with much pathos. Miss Grace Heywood as Marion Thornton, Miss Rosslyn Vayne as Barbara, and Miss Evelyn Shaw as Biddy impersonate the respective characters realistically; George Thornton is ably represented by Mr. Arthur E. Melborne; and Bill Mullins, the "Gaffer" (Mr. Lionel Ellis), is capitally supported by Dido Bunce (Mr. Frank Gordon) and the Cough Drop (Mr. Dick Winslow).

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Holden's Mannikins, Mozzetto (juggler), and Galetti's highly-trained monkeys give excellent performances. Good vocal selections are given by Bean (the basso) and Master Raley (boy singer); whilst Vandinoff is described as the world's fastest painter. Fine comedy turns are provided by Mignonette-Kokin, Will Van Allen, Tom Moore, Ike Scott and son, and Minnie Fenton.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival. —J. W. Turner's opera company is appearing here in a round of operas. On Monday night Il Trovatore was produced, the principal characters being in the hands of Mr. F. Clarke, Mr. F. J. Hargrave, Miss Kitty Brownless, Miss Christine Gomez, Miss Jessie Dennis, Mr. G. Ridding, and Mr. P. Newton, all of whom did full justice to their respective parts. They were assisted by an excellent chorus. The following were also included in the programme:—The Bohemian Girl, Faust, Lily of Killarney, Nigel, The Daughter of the Regiment, and Maritana.

THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company are producing For Her Sake at this house. Mr. Herbert Ford and Miss Mabel Mannering are allotted the chief parts, and sustain them admirably. They are ably assisted by Mr. Arthur Elwyn, Mr. Robert Faulkner, Miss Nellie Lauraine, Mr. Fred Hilliard, Mr. Fred Beck, Mr. Harry Benson, and Miss Ella Dixon.

EMPIRE PALACE.—This week's bill is headed by D'Arc's Marionettes, who give an excellent show; and Harry Champion's efforts as a comedian are greatly appreciated. Other items in the programme are Oakdene, ventriloquist; Les Vocos, operatic vocalists; Johnson and Bert, in amusing comedy act, A Queer Customer; the Three Rubies; Syd Brandon; Fred Collins; and Will Lytton.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—Mr. Wm. Maclaren, Miss Lily C. Bandman, and their company are this week presenting Claudian. Mr. Maclaren is a dignified and convincing Claudian; Miss Bandman plays the part of Almida with singular charm and grace; Edessa, in the hands of Miss Maud Garth, is a most interesting character study; Mr. F. Owen Chambers realises the villainies of Thariogalus; and Mr. Douglas Earle is well suited as Agazil. As the Holy Clement Mr. Ulick Burke is powerfully dramatic; and the Serena of Miss Rosa Webster is very natural and entertaining. Mr. Edward Crogan (Theorus), Mr. A. Nuttall (Demos), and Mr. Weston Hubbard (Alcares) are able members of the company; Miss Amy Hardcastle is responsible for a delightful dance; and Miss Violet Barclay sings the Harvest Song admirably.

WORKINGTON.—QUEEN'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—On Monday night Mr. Godfrey Tearle's clever company presented A Soldier of Fortune to a large and appreciative audience. In consequence of Mr. Tearle's accident the part of Rupert Clive was taken by Mr. B. Holloway, who infused into it good colouring and intelligent acting; Mr. Alfred Gray was excellent as Sir Stephen; as Dr. Thorn Mr. Lowe was satisfactory; Mr. C. Este was effective as Phineas; whilst a fund of humour was apparent in the portrayal of Jerry by Mr. E. T. Sayer; Miss Barnett played the heroine with fervour and grace, and was well supported.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Miss Augusta Tullock and company were here the first three nights of the week presenting The End Crowns All. Mr. Roy Milton is excellently placed as Prince Borinsky; Mr. Max Coutts gives a fine character study as Lord Arthur Lyndhurst; Mr. Edward Vivian is very good as Clifford Barrington; Mr. Arthur Plummer puts in capital work as Ivan Spava; Mr. Wm. De Lacy typically acts the part of the Rev. Samsone Gone; Mr. George Byrne possesses a good voice, and uses it to effect as John Jabbs; Amber Wyville sings well, and is a favourite as Lola Ivanwith; Miss Augusta Tullock is the life and soul of the play, sustaining the part of Vera Roamine with ease and grace.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington. — Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's East Lynne company is here. Miss Julie Kennard has proved an exceptionally clever Isabel; Mr. Alfred Beaumont was forcible and natural as Carlyle; and Mr. Frederick Harker cleverly brought out the villainies of Levison; a clever character-sketch of Justice Hare was given by Mr. C. C. Grattan; and a highly diverting Bullock was seen in Mr. Alfred Tate.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooks.—Sam Elton is a most lively comedian, and during the present week large crowds have given him a hearty welcome; Gladys Huxley is a sweet singer, with a voice much above the average; Cruikshank has been well received, both in story and song; Drum and Major introduce funny business; and the boxing of the Brothers Curran smacks of novelty; the Satelos for their age are remarkable; the Sisters Cora and Ellis and Watts do well; and the Living Art Bronzes of Mme. Irma Clasens are artistic and absolutely free from suggestiveness.

WHEN YOU ARE PACKING

Put out all the things that are soiled — your private apparel, costumes, coats, blouses, furs, or feathers, your wardrobe effects which now look so shabby where once they stood the footlights so well. Send them to be cleaned by the Dartry Process—it's the effective, the quickest, and the economical system. SHAKESPEARE ANNIVERSARY.

The Shakespeare Festival performances were continued at the Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon, on Friday last week, when Mr. Benson's company gave a capital representation of The Country Girl. Mrs. Benson as Peggy Thrift simulated the rustic simplicity and gaucherie of the Country Girl for the most part admirably. Miss Helen Haye as Alithea played throughout in the most convincing manner, and conveyed most artistically the feelings of the noble-minded woman who, purely from considerations of honour, is willing to tie herself to a witless fool. Mr. Murray Carrington's Harcourt was a creditable piece of work; and Mr. H. O. Nicholson suggested capitally the would-be wit of the period. Mr. Edward A. Warburton also gave a strong study of the grumpy, jealous curmudgeon Moody; and Mr. George Buchanan bore himself with every credit in the not over-exacting part of Melville; while Miss Cissie Sumarez was sprightly as Lucy.

Saturday afternoon saw Mr. Benson's production of Henry V., the theatre being packed in all parts. Mr. Benson was particularly happy in the rôle of the soldier king, and he moved the audience to unwonted fervour by his spirited playing on this occasion. Mrs. Benson was almost equally successful as the coquettish Katherine, and excellent support was rendered by the other members of the company, Miss Elinor Dickens meeting with an especially cordial welcome.

In the evening Twelfth Night was performed, Mr. Benson enacting the rôle of the self-centred Malvolio, a characterisation which gained him universal congratulation. The Viola of Mrs. Benson furnished a fund of amusement, and the portrayal was marked by the skill which we expect from her. There was a delightful Olivia in Miss Helen Haye; while Miss Leah Hammam was pleasing as Maria. Mr. Nicholson proved highly entertaining as the feather-brained fool, Sir Andrew Aguecheek; and Mr. Weir gave a capital representation of the drunken Sir Toby Belch.

Shakespeare Sunday was fittingly celebrated. For the week-end there was a large influx of visitors from all over the country, and the procession to Trinity Church was much larger than usual. The Mayor of Stratford was accompanied by the Marquis of Hertford (High Steward of the borough), Captain Kincaid Smith, M.P., the members of the Corporation, the borough and county magistrates, the members of the Shakespeare Club, and other societies. The annual Shakespeare sermon was preached by the Bishop of Derry, who remarked that that week they were celebrating the extraordinary man who probably saw deeper into the secrets of good and evil, and their working in the human heart, than the eyes of any other mortal ever penetrated. Homer had his gods and warriors, and with them all the range of Nature, wine-coloured rivers and stars like the watch-fires of an army; Dante had heaven and hell, spiritual tragedies, the mystic rose of Paradise; Milton had the sublime, and now and then the beautiful; but the magic touch of Shakespeare had the whole keyboard of human nature from end to end, and struck every note of music. At the close of the service the Mayor and his escort returned in procession to the Town Hall, where "The Immortal Memory" was toasted in silence. A special service of praise was held in the church in the afternoon, when there was again a crowded congregation. The music was under the direction of Mr. Ivor Atkins, organist of Worcester Cathedral. Miss Marie Brema sang selections from Elijah and two songs by Bach and Dvorak. Other vocal items were contributed by Mr. Clive Carey, and Herr Lehmann played two violoncello solos.

On Monday two performances of The Merchant of Venice were given, this time the honours falling thick upon Mr. Arthur Bourchier, who made his Shylock a malignant, merciless usurer, whose intense hatred of Christians in general, and of Antony in particular, is his most prominent characteristic. Mr. Bourchier conveyed the impression compellingly, and his performance from beginning to end was marked by a dramatic force and vigour which won the most enthusiastic admiration. Miss Violet Vanbrugh's Portia was a figure of infinite charm—a witty, tender, queenly woman, who moved through the scenes with a delicate grace which won the hearts of all. Mr. Cyril Keightley made a manly Bassanio; the character of Antonio was invested with becoming dignity by Mr. Arthur Whitby; Mr. Acton Bond made a blithely irresponsible figure of Gratiano; and Miss Pamela Gaythorne invested Nerissa with fitting sprightliness and coquetry. Mr. G. R. Weir rollicked in the part of Launcelot Gobbo, and the remaining characters were capably filled. Mr. Bourchier had brought down with him some of the scenery used in the Garrick production, and the whole performance was of the most enjoyable description.

On Tuesday the programme consisted of Othello, with Mr. Lewis Waller as the Moor. Mr. Waller's conception of Othello was one that met with popular favour. Othello is naturally a robust character, and in that respect it was well suited to such an actor as Mr. Waller, whose artistic self-restraint prevented him from over-acting the part. Mr. Lyall Swete's presentment of Iago was all that could be desired. Miss Wynne Matthison's Emilia was a remarkably capable piece of acting. Her simulated passion with her husband and the Moor for treachery, and the blunder to which it leads, had in it the right grip. As Desdemona Miss Evelyn Millard played with a realism that was almost painful in its intensity, but her interpretation otherwise afforded no room for unfavourable criticism. Cassio was most carefully played by Mr. Owen Roughwood, who at no time thrust himself out of the picture, despite sundry obvious temptations afforded by the rôle. The same may be said of Mr. A. E. George's Roderigo. Mr. E. A. Warburton had only limited opportunity for the use of his talents as Brabantio, but these he utilised fully; and Mr. H. O. Nicholson, in the small part of the Duke, was entirely satisfactory.

On Thursday evening the great event of the Festival, the Elizabethan costume ball, was held in the Town Hall, the Mayor of Stratford (Councillor Priest) and Mr. John Palmer being the masters of the ceremonies. There were about 250 beautifully-dressed dancers, most of them representing Shakespearean characters, and who come from all parts of England and Ireland. Dancing took place in the large upper room of the Town Hall. The decorations, in pale green and white, formed a soft foil to the brilliant play of costume colour, and an especially effective feature was the graceful old pavane danced by the parties of Mrs. F. R. Benson, Miss Hodgson, and Miss Allward. Amongst the principal parties were thirty-five members of the Benson company, and house parties arranged by the Mayor (Councillor Priest) and Mrs. Priest, Miss Marie Corelli, the Rev. F. H. and the Honourable Mrs. Hodgson, Mrs. Charles E. Flower, and Captain Milward. Amongst the dancers were Mme. Marie Brema, Miss Tita Brand, Lady K. Drummond, the Rev. and Mrs. Cornwall Robertson, Major and Mrs. Capel Cure, Viscount Lifford, Major-General Thomson, Messrs. Acton Bond and R. E. Morrison. At ten o'clock there was a brilliant scene, when the dancers marched past Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and Miss Marie Brema, who were the judges of the costumes. The ladies' prize was awarded to the Hon. Mrs. Hodgson, as Lady Totnes, and the gentlemen's prize went to Mr. S. K. Thorpe, of Nuneaton, as Henry VIII.

Mr. Tree brought his Shakespeare celebration at His Majesty's to a close on Saturday. In the afternoon Twelfth Night was presented, with Mr. Tree as Malvolio. This is a part which gives Mr. Tree a splendid opportunity of exhibiting that mastery of detail which he absolutely revels in. In fact, it may be said that were not these very minute details carefully emphasised, the part of the self-important, opiniated major-domo would lose a great deal of its mirth-provoking qualities.

In the evening The Merry Wives of Windsor formed the attraction, and it seemed to be a strong one, for the house was crowded with an audience which waxed enthusiastic as the evening advanced. We have before referred to the boisterous exuberance which Mr. Tree imparts to the character of the jolly old knight. After each act the principals were called before the curtain, and after the forest scene, Mr. Tree, in response to repeated and enthusiastic demands, made a brief speech. He had, he said, reached the happy ending of ten years' management of His Majesty's Theatre, preceded by ten at the Comedy and the Haymarket. His aim during that long term had been to make his theatre a repertory one, and he thought he might claim to have succeeded, at least, if the splendid success of the last week were to be taken as an indication. As regards the future, he proposed to give a few performances of Julius Cæsar and Hamlet, and The Red Lamp, and The Van Dyck would be included in the following (this) week's programme. In conclusion, Mr. Tree said that he proposed to revive that wonderfully successful comedy, A Woman of No Importance. He trusted that this would meet with acceptance from the public, an announcement which was greeted by loud cheers.

MRS. RICHARD EDGAR.

Most British-born folk go to our colonies for the purpose of starting a career and making a fortune. Mrs. Richard Edgar, who has been an actress for over thirty years, is leaving these shores to end her days in one of our over-seas possessions. On Friday last she sailed for British Columbia, where, among relatives and friends, she will spend her—let us hope, long and happy—retirement from active work.

Although Mrs. Edgar graduated in the old stock school, she is not one of those who have an unbounded belief in the utility of the stock company as a means of bringing an actor's work to a state of perfection. "It was not possible for us in the old days, when we played as many as thirteen different parts in a week, to give a perfect performance," says Mrs. Edgar. "I often wonder now," she adds, "what some of those performances must have been like. On the other hand, whatever talent and initiative we had were undoubtedly developed by this system. We were given our parts, and it was left entirely to us to delineate the characters as we thought best. How different is everything nowadays, when an actor is allowed six weeks in which to study his part, and, in addition, all that time has the guidance of the author and stage-manager! Personally, I heartily approve of the long rehearsals, because, after so many weeks' preparation, one feels at ease on the first night."

Mrs. Edgar ridicules the prevalent idea that the actors and actresses in a new production are in a state of nervous tension on the opening night. "They are certainly anxious," she says, "as to the success of the whole production, but it would be absurd to suggest that anyone who has had ample opportunities for learning a few lines off by heart would be in a state of perturbation as to his or her individual work. At least, I am speaking from my own personal experience, and I believe it is the experience of other members of the profession."

Our interviewee is able to burst another bubble which the present generation so often and so boastfully drag before people's eyes. She points out that playgoers of thirty years ago got far better value—at any rate from the point of view of quantity, if not exactly of quality—for their money than they or their descendants get now. For instance, Mrs. Edgar recalls playing in The Colleen Bawn and The Octoroon, and singing between these pieces, all in one night, at the old Theatre Royal, Oxford. The price of admission to the gallery in those days was sixpence, and at nine o'clock half price was allowed. This meant that one could be entertained for five and a half hours on end, and witness two plays and what was really a short music-hall entertainment, for the humble "tanner," while for the still more modest threepenny bit the more or less ardent but poor student of the drama could enjoy the production of a four-act play of a first-class order and be enchanted by some delightful vocalism given by a charming comedienne. How does this compare with our variety entertainments, even on the two-houses-a-night system?

Mrs. Edgar commenced her theatrical career, under the name of Miss Jenny Taylor, at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, and afterwards went with the late Mr. Clifford Cooper to Oxford for his stock seasons, playing all the principal comedy parts, as well as "principal boys" in pantomimes and burlesques. After that she appeared at Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Greenock, also in "stock," and subsequently joined Miss Marriott's company to play Madge Wildfire in Jeanie Deans through the provinces. Mrs. Edgar's next engagement was with her husband's own company in Our Boys, in which she enacted the rôle of Belinda. Then she was engaged by the Court Theatre management to play Mrs. John Wood's parts in such plays as The Magistrate, Schoolmistress, and Dandy Dick. These plays were later toured by Mr. Edgar with considerable success, his talented wife taking her former parts. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar also took Aunt Jack on the road with equal good fortune, and it is of interest to state that Mrs. Edgar is the only actress who has portrayed that important character in the provinces, and she played it for seven years. She was next engaged by Sir Augustus Harris for the rôle of the Duchess in The Derby Winner, her association with which piece lasted for three years. This was followed by her appearance in one of the principal female rôles in Mr. Ralph Lumley's play In the Soup, produced at the Strand Theatre, and her active theatrical career concluded with an autumn engagement at Drury Lane two years ago in The Best of Friends.

Played on Clifton Downs on Saturday, April 20, and resulted in a victory for the latter team by 78 runs against 32. P. Reardon and J. Leonard played well for the Music Halls and Theatricals.

MATINEE AT THE PLAYHOUSE.

A noble cause was well served at the Playhouse on Tuesday, when the first of three matinées on behalf of St. Vincent's Homes, Harrow-road, for which funds are urgently needed, was given. The institution provides a home for destitute children, and no youthful applicant for relief that cannot be otherwise provided for is ever refused. It is satisfactory to record, therefore, that, despite the inclemency of the weather, Mr. Cyril Maude's handsome theatre was well filled by an audience which included many distinguished persons. The programme for Tuesday afternoon embraced three novelties, the most pretentious of which was a play in two scenes, by the Countess of Cromartie, entitled

"THE FINDING OF THE SWORD."

Osra Innis .....MR. MATHESON LANG
Lord Colmore .....MR. PLOWDEN
Professor Kéravel .....CAPTAIN BLUNT
James Barrington .....MR. MOORE BRABAZON
Muriel .....MISS EDYTH OLIVE

The results of The Finding of the Sword are a little obscure, but with regard to its startling effect there can be no doubt. The play treats in striking fashion of the theme of reincarnation, and opens at the present period in an old cairn or tomb, into which come Lord Colmore and his friend, with spade and pick, bent upon antiquarian discovery. His lordship's hobby is distasteful to his daughter Muriel, who has an indefinable reverence for the days of old. The excavations result in the discovery of a sword which had belonged to an ancient Milesian King. The weapon exercises a peculiar fascination over Muriel, who presently has a vision of the owner rising in an ominous way from the ground, the apparition causing her to faint. A young man bearing a close resemblance to the vision is introduced in the second scene, which is laid in an old baronial hall. The youth, whose name is Osra Innis, is dressed in ancient Irish kilts, and when he catches sight of the sword he offers, but in vain, to purchase it at any price. By some occult influence Osra compels Muriel to perform a dance in which the sword figures. When midnight comes Osra reappears, attired in a manner which leaves no room for doubt that he is the vision of the cairn. He recalls a scene long ages ago, when he was a monarch and rode out to his last fight, when, too, Muriel had been a dancing girl, and had won his love, but had refused to follow him to the grave. He loads her with scorn, but she implores him to take her with him, and, after some resistance, he consents, a fearful din is heard, darkness sets in, and when light is restored the warrior has disappeared and Muriel is lying dead. That the dramatic effect of the play was preserved was owing principally to Mr. Matheson Lang, who made a kingly Osra, appearing to particular advantage in his passionate reproaches addressed to Muriel. That character was made weirdly impressive by Miss Edyth Olive, who acted with powerful intensity. She looked supremely fascinating in an emerald robe with a violet sash, in which she performed the quaint dance, the air of which, it was stated, was taken from a manuscript found in an old cairn. A Breton professor of antiquarian lore was naturally acted by Captain Blunt; and Mr. Moore Brabazon supplied some little comedy relief as a typical young man of to-day. The audience were very enthusiastic in applause, and at the end, in answer to many calls, the Countess Cromartie appeared and bowed her acknowledgments.

The afternoon was begun by a new one-act play, by Mr. E. Francis (Mrs. F. Blundell), entitled

"TOM'S SECOND MISSUS."

Thomas Alty .....MR. ARTHUR WHITBY
Betty Alty .....MISS SCHLETTER
Margaret Heptonstall .....MISS LILIAN HOLE

Homely pathos and many quaint touches are contained in the little piece, which is written in Lancashire dialect. Thomas Alty and his wife have lived long years together in mutual affection, but the time comes when Betty's health gives way, and she makes the extraordinary suggestion that he shall look out for another "missus" to "do" for him, and herself chooses a widow named Margaret Heptonstall. The experiment does not promise success. The new arrival is inquisitive and interfering, finds fault with her predecessor's housekeeping, criticises her sewing, and makes free with every article of furniture; but when she insists on sitting in the old lady's chair Tom can stand it no longer, and he bundles the widow out of the door, he and his "old woman" determining to go on a little longer alone. Professional assistance was also forthcoming in this instance, Mr. Arthur Whitby doing excellent work as the old labourer, causing laughter and tears by turns. Miss Schletter gave a remarkably good representation of senility as the old woman, and evoked a hearty round of applause for her efforts; and Miss Lilian Hole was amusingly realistic as the aggressive Margaret.

Another novelty was forthcoming at the end of the programme is an eighteenth-century play, in two scenes, by Agnes and Egerton Castle, entitled

"GREY DOMINO."

Lord Mandeville .....MR. HAROLD WHITAKER
Beau Stafford .....MR. DOUGLAS IMBERT
Hon. Dennis O'Hara .....MR. MOORE BRABAZON
The Prince .....MR. PLOWDEN
Sir Jasper Standish ..MR. A. RUTHVEN STUART
Pompey .....MASTER HILL TREVOR
Sambo .....MASTER VLASTO
Kitty Bellairs .....MISS AGNES BLUNDELL
Lydia .....MISS EGERTON CASTLE
Lady Standish .....MISS SUZANNE DE BALAN
Lady Flora Dare-Stamer .....MISS VAN CUTSEM
Rachel Peace .....MISS ELINOR SWEETMAN

"Sweet Kitty Bellairs," of old renown, is the heroine of the comedietta, but appears in rather an unfavourable light. She has determined, by hook or by crook, to secure the hand of Lord Mandeville, and offers him wealth, beauty, and wit. The nobleman's love, however, is given to Rachel Peace, the actress, but the pair have had a lovers' quarrel, and relations are strained. Rachel goes uninvited to a masked ball in order to meet Mandeville, and has succeeded in effecting a reconciliation, when Kitty, wishing to expose the actress, prevails upon the master of ceremonies to order all masks to be removed. Rachel at length complies, and is insulted by the lady of the house, but Royalty is present, and the Prince interposes in favour of the actress, and leads her himself in to supper. A minuet, which forms a leading episode of the piece was very gracefully performed. Miss Agnes Blundell was a fascinating study in pink as Kitty Bellairs; and Miss Egerton Castle acted vivaciously as her maid. Mr. Douglas Imbert, who appeared by permission of Mr. Arthur Bourchier, gave character to Beau Stafford, who acts as M.C.; Mr. Harold Whitaker was a dignified and well-spoken Lord Mandeville; and Miss Elinor Sweetman succeeded in winning sympathy for the actress. The costumes were of a most elaborate kind, and a picturesque touch was given by the appearance of two little black pages. Infinite pains were taken in the mounting of all three plays, which were repeated on Thursday and Friday afternoons.

THIS week Miss Bonwin Carlton's company is appearing at the King's Theatre, Sutton-in-Ashfield, in The Plucky Nipper. Miss Bonwin Carlton, in the title-rôle, works hard, and achieves success; in the character of Richard Vanbrugh Mr. William Heilbronn proves himself capable; and the Tommy Atkins of Mr. Edward Surrey is a fine piece of character acting.

DRESSES AT THE PLAY.

A lavish display of feminine costumes is made in Clancarty, which has been so happily revived at the Lyric. Miss Millard looks her loveliest all through the play. The scarlet riding-habit in which she makes her entry in the first act supplies a vivid contrast to the exquisite blue and white striped silk of Act II., looped up over a petticoat of blue, all embroidered in gold and hung with gold fringe. One could not desire to see a prettier picture than she and Miss Adrienne Augarde make when they stand together, the latter saucy and bewitching in a pink and white striped silk gown, looped up over a lace petticoat, and trimmed with many bunchy bows. In Act III. Miss Millard wears a tunic and super-tunic, both of a lovely reseda green chiffon velour, which suits her colouring admirably; while Lady Betty's (Miss Augarde) blue dress and dainty lace cap are both delightful. In Act IV. the heroine is seen in two very different garbs, first in a very spick-and-span washerwoman's attire, and afterwards in a robe of white and gold brocade, jewelled down the front.

Picturesqueness is a feature of the delightful dresses at the Apollo. In the first act Sophia is presented by Miss Ruth Vincent in a costume of palest pink broché crêpe, a large pink rose being tucked into her white fichu, and a shepherdess hat tied up with pink ribbons resting on the full-frilled cap that encircles her face. Her maid, Honour, played so delightfully by Miss Carrie Moore, wears in this act a dainty muslin apron, fichu, and cap. In Act II. Sophia looks fair and dainty in her riding-suit of French grey cloth, the coat open over a waistcoat of silver-embroidered white satin, a long cloak, bordered with white fur, falling back over her shoulders and the neatest of grey felt hats resting on her lace under-cap. The maid makes a winsome picture in her Dolly Varden hat of yellow bound with black, her shot silk dress turned back from a stiff petticoat of fawn, and a cape of mauve cloth round her shoulders. The villainess of the play looks her part admirably, though gowned quietly enough in pale blue cloth, a three-cornered hat of black with blue plume giving the necessary aggressive note.

Act III. opens upon a scene absolutely reminiscent of Watteau—Ranelagh Gardens illuminated for a fête, and gay with the presence of a crowd of fair women and men in brave attire, their exquisite coats, with the curious fan-like pleats either side the back, harmonising admirably with the hooped brocade and satin petticoats of the women. In this scene Sophia is attired in simple white satin, open in front just to show a green petticoat, with a row of silver bows and tassels down the centre, her hair concealed beneath a fitting cap. She makes a striking contrast to her wicked cousin, Lady Belliston, whose green brocade and gold gauze drapery are magnificent.

There are four effective changes of costume in the four acts of Brewster's Millions, produced at the Hicks Theatre on Wednesday. Miss Mollie Lowell makes her first entrance in a beautiful evening dress of silver tissue, very finely embroidered in gold, with tiny puff sleeves, hiding its shimmer at the end of the scene under a long apple-green cloak. Miss Beatrice Agnew appears, as becomes her part, in a girlish white frock adorned with little wreaths of pale pink rosebuds, her blond-lace cloak being lined with pink. Miss Hazel Thompson's gown is of soft blue chiffon, the dainty berthe embroidered in blue and mauve flowers, with touch of silver, and a silver fringe forming the sleeves. Miss Evelyn D'Alroy wears pale pink silk net, with gold spots, trimmed with silver and various shades of the same colour, fading from blush rose to white. Miss Kitty Melrose, as the actress, looks handsome in mauve satin with large sprays of silver roses, and an écru lace cloak lined with mauve gauze.

The second act taking place in an office, Miss Lowell wears a walking-dress of tussore silk of the new tabac shade, with braidings of the same colour and pipings of leaf-green silk, her hat being a Parisian model with long brown plumes shaded to green. Miss Agnew's second little frock is a simple grey cloth, with a Dutch lace yoke, and summery hat. Miss Thompson wears a fine maise-coloured cloth, with bands of sable on the kimona sleeves, the scheme of colour being perfected by a brown feather boa and a burnt straw hat with big black plumes and bunches of ripe corn. Miss D'Alroy also wears a cloth costume of Rose du Barri, a black boa, and black chip hat, with Rose du Barri plumes.

On board Brewster's yacht—in the third act—all the ladies appear in the very latest and smartest yachting costumes, and at the end of the play Miss Lowell wears a charming voile dress, egg-shell tint, embroidered with pale pink roses to match the magnificent bouquet she carries. Miss Agnew's pink ninon is plainly tucked round the skirt, with a folded silk belt, and her little brown tulle hat is adorned with a single rose. Miss D'Alroy's white foulard has a small black spot, pipings of black velvet, and a pretty lawn vest; and Miss Melrose reappears in Wedgwood-blue cloth, the collar and revers relieved with striped black and white silk, the finishing touch being a Wedgwood-blue hat, trimmed with blue wings flecked with brown, and draped with a floating chiffon veil. All the costumes and hats at the Hicks Theatre are by Mme. Pauline Herbert, of Orchard-street.

"AFTER SEVEN YEARS."

Dramatic Sketch, by Marie Muggeridge, produced for the first time at the Theatre Royal, Belfast, on Friday, April 26.

Mr. Gracefield .....MR. J. WOOD-INGRAM
Will Somers .....MR. J. EDGAR STEVENSON
Mrs. Brooks .....MISS ESTELLE DESPA
Nellie Brooks .....MISS MARIE MUGGERIDGE

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This little piece will form a most acceptable curtain-raiser. The plot is ingenious, and Miss Muggeridge, who is a member of All-of-a-Sudden Peggy, is to be congratulated on the success of her efforts. Some seven years before the opening a young lady, named Nellie Brooks, giving promise of rare vocal ability, has been sent abroad through the kindness of Mr. Gracefield to be educated. When the scene opens Mrs. Brooks and Will Somers—a carpenter—are anxiously awaiting the arrival of Miss Brooks, who is singing in the neighbourhood. Will is anxious that his former sweetheart should settle down and become his wife, but Mr. Gracefield points out to Miss Brooks the disadvantages of marrying beneath her, and at the same time he presents a big American contract for the famous singer's acceptance. The offer is declined, as Nellie believes herself morally bound to marry Will. Mr. Gracefield pleads with Mrs. Brooks to induce her daughter to avoid blighting her brilliant prospects, and this she does by informing Nellie that while she was abroad Will Somers had bestowed his affections on another. This news is of great relief to Miss Brooks, who had evidently feared that Will had intended exacting his promise. The piece ends with the grief of Will Somers and Mrs. Brooks, the latter declaring she "had to do it," implying, it is supposed, that the fabrication of which she had been guilty was absolutely necessary. The authoress appeared to the greatest advantage as Nellie Brooks, speaking her lines with the utmost effect; Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson was a manly Will Somers, and a more faithful portrait of the rising young carpenter could not be desired; Miss Estelle Despa acted cleverly as Mrs. Brooks, although her voice seemed somewhat youthful; and Mr. J. W. Wood-Ingram appeared with success as Mr. Gracefield, the philanthropist friend of Miss Brooks.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

PARIS, THURSDAY, May 4.—We have had no premières at our regular theatres this week, and our little "à côté" playhouses took advantage of this to launch their novelties. Novelties is perhaps a misnomer, inasmuch as the organisers of these shows have unearthed some dust-covered plays, and polished them up a bit to suit the taste of the day. This was especially the case with Le Hasard du Coin du feu, by Crébillon fils. Who remembers Crébillon fils? Yet, he, too, had his hour of fame. He was born in 1707, and wrote naughty little plays almost to his death, which took place exactly ninety years later. The work was produced under the auspices of the Escholiers, a dramatic society of some standing, but it fell somewhat flat. Fortunately, the organisers had secured the services of Mlle. Marie Leconte, the charming actress of the Comédie-Française, admirable in the chief rôle, who imparted life to the otherwise dull production.

THE second piece was Le Jouet, a three-act comedy, by M. J. J. Frappa and Mme. R. Maquet, a story with a moral. Maurice de Villiers, a young man of good family but bad principles, has a mistress, Cathérine Brémont. He cannot marry her, because his family would disown him; and, as he is anxious to see her settled in life, he induces her to become the wife of Bressanes, a good-hearted man, who loves the girl and is likely to make her happy. The truth is that Maurice hopes that Cathérine once married will continue to be his mistress. But the ugly scheme fails. When Cathérine returns from her honeymoon trip Maurice attempts to take her in his arms, but she wisely thinks that it is now her husband's place to defend her, and, throwing herself in his arms, she tells him everything, and—is forgiven.

THE Théâtre des Capucines has also changed its programme. But, of the three new pieces produced, only Son Petit Frère, by M. André Barde and M. Charles Cuvellier, deserves mention. These gentlemen, too, have dived into the past for their plot, for the little plot they serve us up dates from the year 150 B.C. Things were pretty well the same then as they are to-day. Laïs is a hetaira, alias a cocotte, and her lover has deserted her. Poor little Laïs is in a terrible plight, and her friends think that if Agathos, the wealthy Athenian, were to take an interest in her she could deem herself lucky. Agathos is as guileless as he is rich, and we were quite prepared to see him fall an easy prey to the girl's charms. But that gentleman possesses a quality which renders things rather difficult. He is virtuous, and has a rooted objection to cocottes. Laïs's friends, therefore, hit upon a stratagem. Agathos's father was not a saint, like his son, and his love intrigues in the good city of Athens were a public scandal. Agathos is informed that Laïs is his sister, a bastard child of the old man, and he at once resolves to make reparation for his father's misdeeds. He makes Laïs presents, he calls himself her "little brother," and when he has grown desperately fond of her the truth is revealed to him. From that moment Agathos continues to be rich and stupid, but he ceases to be virtuous. Curiously enough, the principal rôles in the piece were played by two ex-music hall stars: Mlle. Marguerite Deval and M. Polin. The former is a bright and delightful diseuse, and as to Polin, English visitors to Paris will remember him as the man who always impersonated French soldiers.

"LE P'TIT MITRON" has had only one week's run at the Ambigu. It will now be replaced by Les Deux Orphelines, which will prove more to the taste of the frequenters of that house. Mme. Tessandier, the great actress, will impersonate the rôle created by Mme. Marie Laurent, and the old melodrama may have a long run.

SINCE yesterday, M. Eugène Héros has been manager and lessee of the Palais-Royal. That gentleman's name is most appropriate, for, as I have had occasion to remark several times, it wants a hero to take over the ill-starred Palais-Royal. Yet M. Héros may succeed where so many others have failed.

THAT charming actress, Mme. Le Bargy, has of late played a prominent figure in our law courts. This week we had the pleasure of seeing her defend an action to recover £980 for a motor-car supplied to her. For reasons that did not transpire, the fair defendant had refused to pay, whereupon the plaintiff obtained judgment against her, and attached the lady's salary at the Renaissance, where she is appearing in Le Voleur, at a salary of £12 per evening. Mme. Le Bargy made an application that her creditor should only have a right to one-fifth of her money; but as it was proved that she had sufficient means to live comfortably without that one-fifth, the application was refused.

THE Variétés will inaugurate next season with La Revanche et la Belle, a play by M. Louis Artus. We will see an American trying to get the better of a Frenchwoman, and worsted in the encounter. Mlle. Yvette Guilbert will impersonate the principal character.

M. ALVAREZ, the popular singer, has undergone a rather serious operation. He is, however, progressing favourably, and will be able soon to resume his duties at the Opera.

MUSICAL Paris is in a state of excitement about the coming production of Salomé at the Châtelet. Dr. Loewenfeld, from the Royal Theatre in Stuttgart, is superintending the rehearsals, and the orchestra is led by M. Gabriel Pierné.

"LES FRESNAY" is the title of a new comedy by M. Vandérem, to be brought out at the Comédie-Française in the course of next season. M. de Féraudy has charge of the rehearsals, and the cast will be an exceptionally strong one. We are also promised a revival of Monsieur Alphonse.

THE Hackney Furnishing Company, which for upwards of thirty years have helped to beautify the homes of the East, has extended its operations to the West, having opened mammoth new premises at 93, 95, 97, and 99, Oxford-street. At both their establishments the firm now undertake furnishing for everyone. This is a bold saying, but the Hackney Furnishing Co., of which Mr. A. M. Stewart is the founder and managing-director, the originators of the system of deferred payments, are equal to it. At Hackney, their original home, they have over 6½ acres of showroom area, being one of the largest furnishing stores in the Metropolis, and their new premises have been described as "the prettiest shops in London." In these two establishments can be seen furniture fit to grace the most elegant mansion, and also furniture fit to withstand the hard and constant wear of the artisan's home. It can be obtained either for cash or upon the Hackney Furnishing Co.'s improved "Model" system. The terms of payment are most advantageous. Twenty pounds' worth of goods can be obtained on payments of eleven shillings per month, fifty pounds' worth for twenty-eight shillings per month, one hundred pounds' worth for forty-five shillings per month, and so on in proportion. A free fire insurance policy is issued with all purchases; whilst, by a system of life insurance, if the purchaser dies before completing the instalments, the goods become the property of the widow or next-of-kin without further payment. If a cash transaction is preferred, the purchaser enjoys a cash discount of 10 per cent. One of the latest enterprises of this gigantic firm is house reclaiming. An old, dilapidated house can be handed over to the care of Mr. Stewart, and he will rebuild it, fit up electric light, and furnish it artistically. It would be practically impossible to name anything pertaining to he furnishing or decoration of a home which the firm do not stock, as a perusal of their illustrated catalogue, which they will send post free on application at either branch, will amply prove.

ACTORS' UNION.

LONDON.

Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., presided at Tuesday's meeting of the Actors' Union, held at 3, Bedford-street, W.C., and among others present were

The CHAIRMAN, in opening the proceedings, said it was decided to register the Actors' Union as a trades union. At a previous meeting there had been a discussion as to how they should register. They found that under the Companies Act it would cost over £20. A trades union registration would only cost them a guinea, and as at the same time it would give them many benefits from association with other unions, it was thought that the best thing would be to register in that way. A lot of people had mistaken notions on the subject of trades unionism. Some of them talked about art in the theatrical profession, but they must remember that art was of no use unless there was money at the end of the week. Then there was a good deal of misapprehension on the subject of the fixed minimum wage. In most trades unions there was a minimum rate of payment, but that did not prevent a highly skilled workman from getting more than that minimum. It would not be the means of lowering the wages of actors, but would preclude anyone entering the profession under a certain salary. It had been decided at last Sunday's meeting that the sketch manager should be eligible for election to the Union. If an actor had got a sketch in which he himself played a part, he was not to be treated as a manager; but if he was running more than one sketch and was drawing money and paying people to act in it, then he was to be treated as a manager, and was not eligible for election in any way. As to the question of ladies on the committee, he wished to say that there was no animus against them in the vote that was found to be opposed to their admission to seats on the committee, but it had been decided that there should be a sub-committee of ladies, to deal with matters in the treatment of which they were specially qualified. Any recommendations by such sub-committee would have the best attention of the general committee. Later on he (the chairman) would propose that they get out their own form of agreement, which should include payment for rehearsals, minimum wage, &c. They might also run their own paper, on the same lines as The Performer; but, of course, all these things could not be done unless they had the unqualified support of every member of the Union. There was to be a monster meeting at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, on Friday, and it was hoped that as a result of that meeting there would be a considerable accession to their ranks.

Mr. ROBSON PAIGE, referring to what took place at Sunday's meeting, said he was fighting the battle of their chief, Mr. Cecil Raleigh. If they insisted on interfering with the actors who took part in sketches in the Music Halls, Mr. Raleigh would drop out, and that, he thought would be a calamity. While the actor was engaged on the Music Hall stage the Union would not be able to help him, but this would not prevent him joining the Union, and when acting in licensed theatres, he would have every protection from the Union.

Mr. OSWALD MARSHALL thought that it was very childish of a man to drop them merely because they disagreed on one point. The idea they wished to put forward to the meeting was that any actor, having the qualification of an actor, who had played in a licensed theatre for a certain period, was eligible for election to the Union, and if he wanted to take a sketch to a music hall, he was still eligible.

A member of the audience pointed out that an actor might be playing in the music halls for a week or two, and it would be a pity if he were to be debarred from taking part in the Union because of that.

Mr. PAIGE expressed the opinion that if an actor went on the music hall stage for a week or so he did so at his own risk. Sketch artists should look to the V.A.F.

A gentleman in the room pointed out that a solicitor was a solicitor whether he practised in the County Court or the Police Court.

Mr. PAIGE retorted that neither Mr. Stoll nor the music hall manager would recognise the Actors' Union.

Mr. MARSHALL remarked that he thought they were a little too precipitate in settling the point on Sunday. It was quite possible that Mr. Stoll would not recognise the Union, but those who ran sketches, like Mr. Preston and Mr. Karno, must do so. He thought that the members of the Union should have an opportunity of meeting Mr. Raleigh, talking over the matter with him, and then voting on it.

The CHAIRMAN stated that they had passed a certain rule at Sunday's meeting, and they should not go back upon it.

Eventually the discussion was closured on a proposition to proceed with the next business.

Miss GLADYS FFOLLIOTT gave it as her view that ladies should not be allowed on the committee, because they frequently permitted their judgment to be warped by sentiment where the hard reasoning of a man was required.

Mr. PAIGE announced that snowball cards were being sent round to members and others with the object of securing new members.

MANCHESTER.

At a meeting of the Actors' Union held at the Salisbury Hotel, Manchester, on Tuesday, it was suggested that, if possible, the meetings at Manchester should be held later in the week, as very often there were calls for rehearsals on Tuesday, and also it hardly gave sufficient time for members to beat up recruits.

It was also suggested that circulars should be sent to all companies touring the provinces canvassing for members, as many companies were debarred from attending the meetings through never being near any of the centres where meetings were held.

It was suggested that if possible no Actors' Union meeting should be held on licensed premises, as many persons who were teetotalers objected to attend the meetings at hotels, &c.; but it was pointed out that the Union could not afford to engage halls for their meetings until the membership was considerably stronger.

Five promised to join as soon as possible, and two gave their names as wishing to join next week.

GLASGOW.

On Friday, April 26, on the stage of the Metropole Theatre, Glasgow, by courtesy of Mr. Arthur Jefferson and Mr. A. Campbell-Kelly, the third meeting in Glasgow in support of the Actors' Union was held. The attendance included, Mr. John Clyde, Mr. Frank Lyndon, Miss Florence Creagh, Mr. Frederick Loyd, Mr. John Cullen, Mr. J. R. Tyrell, Mr. Geo. Porteous, Miss Phyllis Elton, Miss Jennie Risley, Mr. Dare Austin, Mr. Thomas Barry, Mr. David Phillips, Mr. Robert Harris, and Mr. Clavering Craig.

Mr. FREDERICK LOYD, who took the chair, at the proposal of Mr. Clyde, seconded by Mr. Cullen, mentioned that the Union was very young at present. It had been likened to a toddling child, but he was delighted to inform them that this toddling child had, during the last two weeks, made, so to speak, giant strides, especially in Glasgow. At the first meeting forty-eight actors and actresses, out of an attendance of fifty-three, had given in their names for membership, and at the second meeting they had secured over twenty names. He hoped to be equally successful that day. After paying a tribute to the work of the Provisional Committee in London, Mr. Loyd went on to say the Union had been formed to improve in every way the position of the actor. Not in any aggressive spirit towards the touring manager, but to work with him, to assist him to secure better actors, and thus enable him to obtain more advantageous terms.

He then drew their attention to the death levy, which could not fail to abolish the regrettable charitable appeals they were unfortunately only too used to, and stated this alone was sufficient reason for every actor and actress to join the Union at once. In conclusion, Mr. Loyd read the nominations for committee, urging all present who had not already done so, to become Unionists without delay, in order that they might receive their books of membership, and be entitled to vote at the forthcoming election.

The clauses were then considered seriatim, the first three being passed without any comment.

Rule 6 was also the subject of much discussion. Mr. CLAVERING CRAIG thought it was somewhat harsh. Mr. LYNDON opined that an actor employed also as acting-manager had as much right to full membership as anyone else, provided he was an actor first, that was if he were not a manager playing merely a small part.

Mr. CLYDE: I think one who combines the offices of business-manager and actor will rather sympathise with the actors.

The other rules were then agreed to. Regarding the last, "Members shall be known by numbers," Mr. CULLEN remarked that some of them would take exception to number thirteen." (Laughter.)

THE CHAIRMAN: "I can guarantee none of you present to-day will be known by that number. It has long been passed." (More laughter.)

The meeting then discussed the objects of the Unicn.

THE CHAIRMAN suggested that the amount of the minimum salary be postponed for the time being. Agreed to.

Regarding object two, Mr. CLAVERING CRAIG stated in his opinion the £2 minimum would be the only way to get rid of unpaid or premium-paying amateurs.

After some discussion as to whether amateurs should be allowed to appear in small parts of a few lines, the CHAIRMAN suggested a greater evil was the manager who put beginners into leading parts.

Mr. CRAIG: "Pity, 'tis, 'tis true. There are too many of the kind."

The meeting formally assented to object two.

The CHAIRMAN read correspondence from Mr Robson Paige, in the course of which he said the days of pictorial printing drawing the public were gone, and it would be better to lessen the printers' bills and put the money gained on the salaries of the actors.

Mr. CRAIG asked whether anything had been said in opposition to the two houses a night system.

The CHAIRMAN replied that, so far as he knew, the Union had not yet dealt with the matter. Let them all join the Union, and thus enable it to become powerful enough to deal with all such grievances.

Votes of thanks having been passed to Mr. Frederick Loyd, Mr. John Clyde, Mr. Arthur Jefferson, and Mr. Campbell-Kelly, the meeting concluded. Eight new signatures for membership were obtained.

NEWCASTLE.

There was a small, but enthusiastic, meeting of artists at the Percy Arms, Newcastle, on the 26th ult. Miss Marie Clavering was in the chair. The following ladies and gentlemen attended. Mr. Wilson Summers, Mr. Hugh Brady, Miss Stanley Burt, Miss Kate Lever, Mr. Arthur Trail, Mr. Tyrone Power, Mr. Pascoe Bioletti, Mr. Arthur Selwyn, Miss Pamela Hodson, Mr. Dan Ryan, Mr. Edward Le Roy, Mr. Chas. E. Lambert, Miss Louie Walton, Mr. William Macready, Mr. Chas. A. Leicester, Mr. J. Telly Dillsen, Mr. Hamilton Deane, Mr. C. Sterling, Mr. C. Grant, Mr. Claud Morton, Mrs. Kate Fitzgerald, Miss Marie Clavering, Miss Florrie Groves, Mr. Campbell Goldsmith, Mr. Bruce Clapham, Mr. Douglas Tremayne, Mr. Green Taylor, Mr. William H. Kitley. The members of Mr. H. B. Irving's company, playing at the Theatre Royal were unable to attend, owing to rehearsals, and through Miss Dorothy Baird's indisposition.

Miss CLAVERING in opening said they were gathered together to discuss the necessity of the organisation of actors. A feeling of unrest was felt in the profession. For years they had been suffering keenly, and could get no redress. She instanced the case of the swindling manager, the insanitary state of dressing rooms, and the premium-paying amateur, who deprived them of the reward of their experience. They hoped now to remedy these abuses, and raise the status of the profession.

Mr. PASCOE BIOLETTI wanted to know whether this was an A.A. meeting, an A.U., or an independent revolutionist meeting.

Mr. J. TELLY DILLSEN explained that it was held under no special banner—although they might have their leanings—they were there to discuss from any point the general question of organisation.

Mr. HAMILTON DEANE thought the people in the profession did not realise the meaning of the word cohesion and the value of concerted action. There was too much "sitting on the fence," waiting to see which way the cat jumped. Somebody must start and risk failure. We should not be so very particular about detail at first, but get to work and establish a strong Union.

Mr. J. TELLY DILLSEN then read his exhaustive paper. Reviewing briefly the history of the efforts at organisation to the present day, he contended that while fully in sympathy with the principles of the A.A., he considered that it had not done its work well, and by its constitution seemed never likely to do so, despite the worthy efforts of the reform party. Unionism, no doubt, seemed an objectionable thing to apply to art, minimum wage an inartistic, awkward, militant term to use, but the manager had brought his best top price which he will give, so the artist was compelled to bring into line his best bottom price which he would take.

We wanted this Union to stop the profession from slipping further into the mud, to squeeze out the bogus manager, with his wonderful I.O.U.'s, to encourage true art and the true artist, to teach, to demonstrate if necessary, to the manager that it was far cheaper to give a good price for good work, to provide for time of sickness and old age; but, more than anything else, to close the wide-open door through which rushed a constant stream of beginners. It would be better for the beginner, for it would save him from some painful surprises.

Referring to the overcrowding, he continued, the premium-paying beginner was not so devoid of principle when he reasoned that as he could not give full value, as he spoilt, in part, the picture, he forfeited his money. It was a fair agreement; but he paid his money to the wrong person. It was not the manager, but the artist he should pay, for whom his presence in an overcrowded profession made living harder. A healthy rivalry was good, a fair fight was invigorating, but here the combatants were hopelessly out of proportion; and on the field of Art it had become a fight not for Art, but for money, and the weapons not brain and soul, but the poison of under-selling. In many parts it had resolved itself into a feverish, disordered struggle for bread, and the time had come when we were forced to say, "Stop! The thing has gone too far. If we fight at all we will fight fair!"

They were there in the Union to help others, and to help themselves. They invite others to join them. They would not get something for nothing. It would cost them 6d. a week, but it would buy them not only a big sixpennyworth, but the best sixpennyworth that they as dramatic or musical artists could buy. "Join the Union, and they would get their pound of flesh," he said, "but did fraternity and brotherhood count for nothing?" On that ground alone he urged them to join the union and lift an honourable profession to the position it deserved.

Mr. CAMPBELL GOLDSMID spoke enthusiastically about the Union. Referring in particular to the minimum wage question, he said, a £2 minimum would result in bettering the quality of the companies touring, and so make it better for everyone concerned. But they could not hope to enforce this rule till they were some thousands strong.

Mr. WILLIAM MACREADY said he was glad to see the Union being formed, and noticed there were good men on the council whose sympathies were solid for the actor; one in particular, who was soaked and saturated with enthusiasm for the Union—he referred to Mr. Hamilton Deane.

Mr. GREEN TAYLOR echoed all that had been said in favour of the Union, and, as there had been a sort of Zancig performance—as Mr. Deane had said all he had thought of saying—he would save them a repetition.

Mr. CHAS. A. LEICESTER, in advocating the Union, said one of the most useful things it could accomplish would be to kill the bogus management. He contended that a management could be legally proceeded against that entered on a new business contract—in having his fares advanced—whilst insolvent.

Mr. TELLY DILLSEN read a letter from Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn, who appealled for unity for the betterment of the actor, and, while wishing the A.U. every success, advised it to come inside the A.A., and to reform that; not to erect a tent in the wilderness. It had a house already built, and to join it would be the shortest way to bring about the reforms they were advocating. Mr. Dillsen said he was very glad they had received that letter, and heard the kind wishes, but thought that Mr. Llewellyn was inconsistent. His tone was that reform was needed, yet he derided their efforts at it. One could not bend cast iron, 'twas better to throw it into the mould again.

Mr. CHARLES GRANT was glad to see the Union in existence. It was such that he had in his mind when he helped to found the N.O.C. Although that had not been a success, he thought this was going to be a boon to the actor. He would gladly become a member.

Miss CLAVERING then took a vote on the question, "Do we want this Union or not?" The result was everyone voted in the affirmative with one single exception.

Mr. DILLSEN then moved that a vote of thanks should be given to the Provisional Committee in London, who had worked so hard and loyally for them. They had to rouse the apathy of members of the profession, which was really worse than honest opposition. The proposition was carried unanimously.

Mr. HAMILTON DEANE moved a vote of thanks to Miss Clavering for her duties in the chair. Mr. PASCOE BIOLETTI seconded.

Fifteen members signed applications for membership.

HUDDERSFIELD.

At the Victoria Inn, Huddersfield, on Tuesday, a meeting in favour of the A.U. was held by the members of The Royal Divorce company, Mr. Graham Wood (Chairman), Mr. William Hudson, and Mr. A. Grenville being present, with others.

Questions having been put as to whether subscriptions from incoming members would be demanded, dating from the date of origin or formation of the Actors' Union, Mr. HUDSON suggested that this would prove a drawback to the enlistment of new members.

Miss RICHMOND, speaking on behalf of herself and other members of the Actors' Association, said they were waiting for the Reform Party to take action.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION REFORM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—The Association are taking a poll on the various points which have been raised of late, and I should be very much obliged if you would allow me to impress on every member of the Association the enormous importance of voting on the present occasion. Proxy papers are sent out by the Council, and there is no excuse for anyone neglecting his duty.—Yours faithfully, MANAGERS AND THE A.A.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—One of the first principles of progress in human affairs is the elimination of fear. It is probable that a not unreasonable fear of imperilled alimentation, and the quicksands of unemployment, may keep back a good many actors from voting that managers in future have no part, lot, or share, no voice, vote, or say, in the affairs of the Actors' Association.

Those who (as I do) look upon managers as the friends of actors are yet inclined to distrust their friends! They nervously imagine that, smarting under some hypothetical insult, these same friends will turn into avowed enemies on and after May 6 or May 27. I do not believe that any manager would be so mean and base as to visit upon a man in his capacity of artist deprivation for what he may have done in his capacity as a member of the Actors' Association.

In the opinion of many it is now essential that the little house in King-street, Covent Garden, should be set in order once and for all. The time has come to put away all fear, to steel one's heart against any sentiment in business, and to bravely stand up for a policy of avowed reform.

The managers, in my short experience of the stage, have exhibited such consistent good faith towards their artists that I cannot personally see any reason to doubt but that they will accept the change, if it is arrived at, with equanimity. It is of paramount importance to the actor's self-respect that he should have a society in his own interest, a parliament for his own politics, on the basis of his own requirements, and without benefit of those Olympians whose ways are not his ways, nor their needs the same as his. If any man is afraid, let him vote in the dark, by proxy.—Yours faithfully, CECIL BROOKING,

10, King-street, W.C.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, April 29,
"SHERLOCK HOLMES."

This thrilling drama maintains a strong hold on the playgoing public, as was evidenced by the large audience attracted to the Stratford Borough Theatre on Monday night and the cordial reception which the piece obtained. Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart submits a convincing and most interesting portraiture of Sherlock Holmes, every deed and utterance of the great unraveller of crime being followed with the closest attention. Mr. James Skea cleverly realises the part of the arch-criminal, Professor Moriarty, and Mr. Allan Jeoyes smartly impersonates Dr. Watson. John Forman has a sound exponent in Mr. Fred Bell, and Sir Edward Leighton and Count von Stahlburg are appropriately played by Mr. Henry Littlejohn and Mr. Frank H. Moar respectively. Mr. Henry Hare skilfully delineates James Larrabee; Mr. Edward Mervyn does well as Sydney Prince; while Mr. Wilson Roberts as Jim Cragin, Mr. Gordon K. Bull as Thomas O'Leary, and Mr. Harold Broughton as McTague all play with ability. Miss Gladys Harvey is a sympathetic and charming Alice Faulkner, and Miss Georgina Winter plays powerfully as Madge Larrabee. Miss Rosalie Notrelle portrays Therese very acceptably; Mrs. Smeedley and Mrs. Faulkner are commendably played by Miss Grace Howard and Miss Dot Selby; and Master Leslie Hall is an alert and intelligent Billy.

ACTORS' CHURCH UNION.

The Lord Bishop of Birmingham addressed a congregation, composed largely of actors and actresses, at St. Paul's, Knightsbridge, on Sunday afternoon, the special service being held under the auspices of the Actors' Church Union.

His lordship, who took as his text the 11th and following verses of the 20th chapter of the Revelations of St. John, said: No one could have more slender qualifications for speaking to the Actors' Church Union than I, in the sense that I have the least opportunity of ministering to the ends which that Union seeks to serve. But I resolved to accept the invitation sent to me to come for two reasons, partly because I can bear witness to the service which the Union does, and partly because I believe in its principles. I can bear witness to what the Union has done two or three times within the last few months. Members of travelling companies who were appearing at the theatres in Birmingham have been brought up to me for confirmation, and I have ascertained the real service which the Union does under circumstances where obviously there is the greatest need of its ministrations. We have good reason to be proud of the parochial system in the Church of England, which covers the whole country with a network of parishes. But if the Church does its work thoroughly it must bear in mind other classes which are totally non-parochial. Amongst such classes are the members of these travelling companies who serve in our theatres. If the Church is to do its work effectively it must have its hand both on the moving and stationary population. There is, then, this obvious place for a Union such as yours. Consequently, I desire to come because I approve of its principles. I am well aware that the Church has in the past, and at very frequent epochs, looked askance at the actor's profession. I cannot help, in this matter, contrasting the attitude of the Church towards the dramatic profession with the attitude of the Church towards the Army. Obviously, there is a duty on the part of a nation of organised self-defence, and therefore the institution of the Army and the office of the soldier are at the bottom legitimate; but since the time that Christianity got command of society, since the break-up of the Roman Empire, how much of military ardour could be excused, how much of it has been due to motives distinctly and professedly non-Christian—the lust of glory, the passion of revenge, the instinct of domination—the strong over the weak? And yet the Church has been in constant alliance with the Army at its worst times as well as at its best. I ask, "Is there any reason in the world why exactly that same charity should not have been exhibited by the Church towards another great profession which holds a great place in the imagination of men?" For at the bottom I am persuaded that it is quite impossible for anyone who really knows the meaning of the religion of the Incarnation—for anyone who really believes that the glory and the honour of a nation can be brought within the light of the Holy City at the last—it is impossible for anyone who believes that to attempt to oust from the City of God the dramatic faculty. How immense a place in what is greatest in human genius is occupied by dramatic composition! How large a part of what has been most appealing and most human in talent and faculty has gone in dramatic representation; or, to put the same thing in other words, how deep in human nature, and that over the widest area, are the love and the instinct of dramatic representation. It is impossible for anyone who believes that all that is human is at the last to be brought into the City of God to seek to oust the dramatic faculty. There is, also, surely the greatest reason why the Church should show the most generous charity towards those whose lives are so very often uncomfortable, hard, isolated; who need the charity of religion in the sense that they need that large love which we show to all persons who minister to human convenience under circumstances which must put the greatest strain on nerve and patience and endurance. I daresay you will say that there is not in our time the least necessity for saying all this. There was a time when Puritanism was dominant. Now we are living under a reaction from Puritanism. We look back upon the Puritan, surrounded by his comforts and seated in his rented pew, saying he thanked God that he was not as these actors. There has been a reaction, and I suppose that the tendency of our time is sometimes such that we are disposed to wonder whether there is not a Pharisaism of the publican who thanks God that he is not as that Puritan. It is impossible to be surrounded by the tendencies of modern literature without perceiving that there is a very widespread inclination on the part of all classes to claim that human life should be accepted just as it is assumed to be—the creation of God, and on the way, somehow or other, to His Kingdom. There is a tendency to allow people of all classes to patronise the religion of God by a kind of superficial recognition without any real intention of submitting themselves to the reality and profundity of its claim. It is worth while examining this tendency. Religion is so real a power in human life. In fact, human life would sink to a lower level unless religion were constantly in evidence. We are all priests and people. Religion is a gracious master, but a bad servant. It is impartial. Our Lord, because He loves every one of the children of men, will never be hard on us, or impatient with us, not though we fall ten thousand times, so long as we will go on trying. We are all subject to the same penetrating claim. Priests and actors are playing their part in mutual succour, and should keep one another constantly in mind of the largeness and dignity of our nature, and the depth and thoroughness and largeness of Divine grace.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, April 29, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Charles H. Longden and Eric Hudson, entitled

"MAN'S ENEMY."

The West Londoners have had a rare treat this week, by reason of the visit of Power and Kirby's well-balanced company to Marylebone, Mr. Bailey's commodious theatre being comfortably patronised. Mr. Norman A. Overton gives a forcible and convincing rendering of Harry Stanton, and in his set-to in the third act with Tom Drake the enthusiasm of the house is well-nigh raised to boiling pitch, so vividly is the death struggle put before them. Mr. John Power deserves every possible credit for his meritorious portrayal of the aforesaid Tom Drake; Mr. William Jeans is satisfactory as General Sir Arthur Stanton; Mr. L. Fred Lenaur proffers a capital character-study of Adolphe D'Embonpoint; whilst Mr. Fred Owen's representation of Ikey Barnett was a clever piece of work, being not in the least exaggerated, as is so often the case with many stage Jew efforts. Miss May Grayce made many friends with her easy and natural portrayal of Grace Leslie; Miss Clara Reid was bright and amusing as the vivacious Polly Harris; and that experienced and accomplished actress, Miss Constance Medwyn, won plenty of sympathy and applause for her well-sustained rendering of the unfortunate Sarah Drake. The play was well mounted and staged, the all-round excellence of the company being undeniable.

"SAPPHO AND PHAON," a tragedy in three acts, by Percy Mackaye, and The Enchanted Rose, a one-act play by E. Harcourt Williams (founded on a story by Hans Andersen), were produced for copyright purposes at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on Tuesday, April 30.

"OTELLO" AT HOLLOWAY.

On Friday, April 26, for the first time in London, the English version of Verdi's Opera, in Four Acts (libretto adapted from Shakespeare by Arrigo Boito), produced at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, by the Carl Rosa Opera Company.

Othello	MR. JULIUS WALTHER
Iago	MR. CHARLES VICTOR
Cassio	MR. CHARLES LE SUEUR
Roderigo	MR. ARTHUR HYDE
Lodovico	MR. JOHN EBBELER
Montano	MR. FREDERICK CLENDON
A Herald	MR. ALEC RICHARD
Emilia	MME. MARIE ALEXANDER
Desdemona	MISS GRACE NICOLL

The enterprise of the Carl Rosa Company has not scored so great a triumph of late years as that won by their artistic production at the Marlborough Theatre, on the 26th ult., of an English version of Verdi's Otello, the last opera from his pen, which was originally produced in February, 1887, at La Scala, Milan. An audience that filled every part of the house with opera-lovers gave the work a reception that did credit to their musical instincts, and no company of lyric artists could have wished for a more intelligent auditory or greater enthusiasm. Mr. Eugene Goossens, who conducted, had evidently taken no ordinary pains with his orchestra, largely augmented for the occasion, and Mr. Charles Victor, who pioneered the stage-direction, also shared in the success. The reception of Otello was all the more gratifying because in his musical treatment of Shakespeare's great tragedy the composer departed from his earlier manner, and there are evidences throughout that he closely studied the principles of art developed by Wagner. He sought in his score to work out the characters of the chief personages, and if we have not a wealth of "detached" melody such as may be found in Trovatore, La Traviata, or Rigoletto, there are numerous passages of great power and beauty. One can, however, understand the disappointment of his admirers on the first production of the opera, when they discovered the new work to be so different from the old. But he had thrown off the shibboleth of the ancient Italian lyrical methods, and his glorious gift of melody had found new avenues of expression. In the libretto he was well served by the poet Arrigo Boito, the composer of Mefistofele, who had already adapted Hamlet for his friend Faccio—the conductor, by the way, of Otello when it was first presented in London at the Lyceum on July 5, 1889.

The opera opens on the shores of Cyprus—the librettist having regarded the first act of the tragedy as unsuitable for operatic treatment. The storm and stress of the career of Othello are indicated by the opening bars, and the curtain rises after a short descriptive passage. The peasantry and soldiery on shore are celebrating the return of the Moor after his naval victory over the Turks. Soon, however, we get to the pith and marrow of the plot. Iago, the Moor's ancient, sings a quaint song, which is echoed by Cassio, who, tempted to drink by his pretended friend's devilish devices, becomes intoxicated and quarrelsome, and here occurs the conflict which is interrupted by Othello. Gradually the turbulent scene calms down, and then come the exquisite love passages between the Moor and Desdemona—the duet, which is known in Italian as "Gia nella notte densa" realising charmingly the intensity of the husband's devotion, and his happiness in once more returning safely to her arms. This duet peacefully closes the first act.

The soliloquy for Iago in the second is one of the most striking to be found in the whole range of opera, and in the same act is to be discovered a beautiful passage in which the Cypriotes bring offerings of flowers to Desdemona, and a delightful chorus is accompanied partly by gigeliras, the ancient form of mandolin. But the fiendish work of Iago is proceeding, and the powerful and dramatic duet in which Othello's jealousy is awakened by him is worked up in a very skilful manner. There is also a striking quartet, in which Iago, by threatening Emilia, obtains the custody of the handkerchief which proves such a fatal possession. In this scene also occurs a fine martial melody, the subject of which is Othello's farewell. Sticklers for the dignity of the Moor's character may very properly object to him playing the eavesdropper, as he does in the next act, when he hides behind the columns of the great hall of his castle so that he may be confirmed in his jealousy—a course of action never intended by Shakespeare. The last act is sublime in its sorrow, and the composer has added a touching beauty to the remorselessness of the tragedy and a deeply pathetic note to the despair and anguish of Desdemona by his setting of the "Willow Song" and the "Ave Maria." Nothing in the whole domain of music could be more beautiful than either. The opera finishes with Othello taking tender leave of his dead wife to the strains of the love duet which closed Act I.

Mr. Julius Walther sang with considerable suavity and sweetness in the beautiful love duet in the first act, and there was no lack of intensity and passion in the scenes wherein Othello's jealousy is aroused and fanned by the Machiavellian plottings of his "ancient." The fire and energy of his acting of the more energetic phases of the character also highly pleased the audience. Miss Grace Nicoll, by her grace, dignity, and the beauty of her voice, stimulated sympathy and interest in Desdemona, the most distressful of all Shakespeare's heroines. Her rendering of the "Willow Song" was for her a triumph, and her picture of the unjustly accused wife's anguish in the last act must have touched all hearts. Mr. Charles Victor must be complimented on his Iago. The diabolical subtlety of the "ancient" was expressed with no little histrionic skill, and his singing of the extraordinary "Credo" aroused considerable enthusiasm. Cassio was played with sufficient force by Mr. Charles Le Sueur; Mr. Arthur Hyde did effective service as Roderigo; and Mr. John Ebbeler's fine voice enabled him to do justice to the part of Lodovico. Mme. Marie Alexander's Emilia showed genuine power; and Montano was adequately rendered by Mr. Frederick Clendon. The artists were overwhelmed with applause at the end of each act; and Mr. Eugene Goossens, the conductor, rightly shared with the principals the honours of a most interesting production.

"THE LADY OF HAIGH; OR, A WIFE'S PENANCE," a romantic historical drama in four acts, was produced, for copyright purposes, at the Royal Court Theatre, Wigan, on Wednesday, May 1.

AN invaluable little handbook, appropriately entitled "Baby's Welfare," has been issued by Allen and Hanbury's, Ltd. It contains comprehensive instructions with regard to the treatment of children of tender age, and shows how the most delicate infant may be made robust by the exercise of care in combination with the famous milk foods manufactured by the firm. A table giving the quantities of food necessary for young babies and the times it should be administered is likely to prove of excellent service to the young mother, who will also reap advantage by the perusal of the general instructions so lucidly given. The booklet is free on application to Messrs. Allen and Hanbury, Lombard-street.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, April 29,
the Chinese Comic Opera, entitled
"SEE-SEE."

Mr. Mulholland's patrons have this week been made happy by the distinctly meritorious comic opera, See-See, rendered so capitally by Mr. Geo. Edwardes's company. A more dainty See-See than Miss Lily Elsie cannot well be imagined. She soon ingratiated herself into the favour of the audience by very pleasing singing and acting, and her popularity was quickly assured. Mr. W. H. Rawlins as the retired merchant Cheoo was most humorous and entertaining; as Yen, Mr. Leonard Mackay scored highly, his acting and singing being worthy of all praise; Mr. E. Freshwater made an amusing Hoang-Wang; in Hang-Kee, Mr. Frank Danby obtained a real opportunity for a display of his versatility, and he succeeded admirably, and, whether singing or acting, he was invariably successful, and well earned the applause bestowed upon him. That graceful and sweet-voiced actress Miss Amy Augarde charmed everyone with her clever impersonation of Mai-Yai; and as So-Hie, the boy attendant, Miss Sinden danced and acted delightfully. A graceful and pretty Lee was Miss Alice Hatton; and Miss Mabel Russell was a merry and vivacious Humming Bird. Poo-See, Mais-Yao, and Shoo-Shoo, the wives of Cheoo, were spiritedly played by Miss Sybil Grey, Miss Octavia Barry, and Miss Lilian Hewitson. Miss Adeline Lester played refreshingly as Mrs. Hoang-Wang. The chorus was a live one, and bore evidence of skilful training. The scenery and dresses made a most picturesque combination, and the orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. Arthur Spittle, performed the music with excellent effect.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, April 29,
"THE WORST WOMAN IN LONDON."

On Saturday last the Carl Rosa Opera Company finished up their marvellously successful week's engagement here with the popular opera, Il Trovatore. For hours before the opening of the doors crowds had been waiting patiently for admittance, and long before the performance commenced the house was filled to its utmost capacity; as a matter of fact, hundreds were reluctantly turned away. The ever-popular opera is by no means new to the patrons of the Marlborough; on the contrary, it may be reckoned amongst the old favourites, which are always safe to draw appreciative audiences. Its mounting and stage-management, as with all this company's repertory, was characterised by thoroughness and vigour—one may say they are all splendidly staged and mounted, and the costumes artistically handsome. The efforts of the whole company, principals, and chorus alike, have been greatly appreciated throughout the week, and the Marlborough orchestra, considerably augmented, have done yeoman service. This week the management have provided their patrons with Mr. Walter Melville's Worst Woman in London. The piece is exceedingly well played, has been cordially received and immensely enjoyed, and the company have had the satisfaction of playing to excellent houses. The staging, mounting, and stage-management are all that could be desired, the sets being, in several cases, very effectively placed. The Frances Vere (the Worst Woman in London) of Miss Olga André—her original character—is a telling, vigorous portraiture of a most unprincipled adventuress, and deserves praise for the force which is always thrown into it. Mr. George Gaisford is seen to advantage in the part of Jack Felton, his elocution being an especial feature of his performance. Another praiseworthy contribution is the Philip Armstrong of Mr. Leonard Booker; and Mr. F. Vernon Travers acquits himself very creditably as James Milford. Mr. Paul Barry-Lewers gives a telling exposition of the cool, calculating villain, Vincent Lyle; and Mr. Cass as Fred Thornborough is perfectly suited to the part. Mr. Willie Garvey's efforts to amuse as Bob Goldfinch are highly appreciated, and he displays some true humour in the part; and Miss Polly Marsh is also particularly funny as Matilda Parker. These two artists work well together. Miss Elizabeth Watkins displays ability as Ruth Milford, playing in a most graceful manner the part of the heroine; and the remainder of the long cast is in excellent hands.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, April 29, for the first time in London, the Farcical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Herbert Swears, entitled
"A TIGHT CORNER."

Jack Hyacinth ..... Mr. Kendal
Samson Quayle ..... Mr. Ernest Hendrie
Barrington Skews ..... Mr. Metcalfe Wood
Bangham ..... Mr. F. Charles Pool
Postern ..... Mr. Arrowsmith
Mrs. Pertwee ..... Miss Dora Fellowes
Clara ..... Miss Lohr
Mrs. Hyacinth ..... Mrs. Kendal

A Tight Corner was produced a year ago, all but a week or two, at the Theatre Royal, Portsmouth, with the same cast, except that Miss Dora Fellowes now plays the part of Mrs. Pertwee, originally sustained by Miss Jessie Moore. As the comedy has had a favourable reception at the hands of many provincial audiences since its production, it is but following the usual course to include the novelty in their répertoire now that Mr. and Mrs. Kendal are again in London. It is not a piece that seriously taxes the artistic resources of either of these accomplished and experienced performers; but as a light, easily-digested dramatic dish serves its purpose well enough in a short London season marked by frequent changes of programme.

When a well-preserved, middle-aged married lady passes a good deal of the spare time which hangs rather heavily on her hands in the company of members of the opposite sex who are a good deal younger than herself, scandal-loving friends and neighbours are apt to whisper unpleasant things. This is what happens in the case of Mrs. Hyacinth, the wife of a stockbroker, an easy, happy-going individual, without a serious care in the world. But a mild kind of Iago appears in the person of Samson Quayle, a prim solicitor of the old school, who talks to Jack Hyacinth about his wife's reprehensible encouragement of the attentions of young men. His plan for the effectual cure of this sort of thing he communicates to his friend, whom he advises to write an effusive letter to a Mrs. Pertwee, who occupies a flat in the same building, and has already shown a decided partiality for Jack. The letter is accordingly written, and, as intended by the two conspirators, is duly discovered by Mrs. Hyacinth, who, finding it unfastened, reads it. But the missive does not disturb her serenity in the least, for she has unlimited confidence in her husband, and, shrewdly suspecting the little plot, fastens up the letter and sends it to her supposed rival. The results are extremely unpleasant for Mr. Hyacinth, as Mrs. Pertwee, in an interview with him, plainly indicates the warmth of her feelings towards him. Jack indeed finds himself in "a tight corner" through taking the advice of his old friend, and he is compelled to explain that the letter was a mistake. The lady thereupon faints, but is restored by Quayle, who returns at this crisis. As Mrs. Hyacinth is just then heard approaching, Mrs. Pertwee, unwilling to face her, conceals herself in an old oak chest, which is presently to be sent to the auctioneer's for sale. However, Mrs. Hyacinth quickly discovers what has happened, and the removal of the chest by workmen brings the second act to a merry conclusion. Before the end comes there is more trouble for Jack and his friend the lawyer, and Mrs. Pertwee has also a bad time of it. In fact, Mrs. Hyacinth scores all along the line, and eventually sends the meddlesome Quayle and Mrs. Pertwee about their business.

Mrs. Kendal played the part of the stockbroker's wife with unflagging vivacity and spirit, displaying once again those fine qualities which gained for her years ago a foremost place amongst the English actresses of the day. She seemed to revel in the humour of the situations, and her success in the part was beyond question. Mr. Kendal, as Jack Hyacinth, depicted the genial qualities of the worthy, unromantic stockbroker in an easy, natural manner that greatly delighted the audience, his anger with Quayle and his trying interview with the amorous Mrs. Pertwee being specially conducive to hearty merriment. Mrs. Ernest Hendrie deserves warm praise for his clever study of the character of Samson Quayle; Mr. Metcalfe Wood did extremely well as Mrs. Hyacinth's admirer, Barrington Skews; and commendable work was also done by Mr. F. Charles Pool as Bangham and Mr. Arrowsmith as Postern. Miss Dora Fellowes was a capital Mrs. Pertwee; and Miss Marie Lohr did good service at the maid Clara.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, April 29,
the Extravaganza, entitled
"THE NEW ALADDIN."

On Monday evening Mr. George Edwardes's Gaiety company opened their first visit with The New Aladdin at this theatre, and this bright and entertaining concoction proved a veritable feast of fun, and kept the audience thoroughly amused. The company includes many old friends who have appeared here before in other productions, and there was a very hearty welcome awaiting them. Miss Ida Rene, who comes for the first time, soon made herself a big favourite by her dainty playing of the Princess, and she captivated all with her songs, especially one of her own anent "Marriage—and After," which she gave with great point and archness. Lally was capitally played by Miss Cressie Leonard, who made quite a smart young man, and she played very energetically throughout, and was especially successful with that very pretty song "Night time at the Zoo," concluding with a really neat dance. Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., filled the rôle of the Genie of the Lamp in a capital manner; his energy is really marvellous, and though his "Simple Life" song went strong, it was quite eclipsed by his rendering of "Waltz me round again, Willie," which fairly brought down the house. In speaking of the latter song, mention should be made of the lady who aids Mr. Leslie in his almost bewildering but very clever dance which follows it. That always diverting comedian Mr. George Gregory finds in Tippin a character which suits his methods admirably, and he is vastly amusing. Whether he is singing a Scotch song or a coster ditty, he is always mirth-provoking, and scores a big success. As the Scotch lassie, Jennie, Miss Mary Fraser was excellent, and greatly added to the enjoyment of the piece. Mr. William Spray found ample scope for his talents as the Cadi; while Mr. Frank Hector ably impersonated Ebenezer. The character of the Lost Constable was cleverly depicted by Mr. Harry Taylor, whose serious look and dry manner exactly fit the part. Mr. Ernest Mahar appeared as General Ratz, and sang delightfully. Miss Irene Verona played the Spirit of the Ring with rare humour, lending great aid in the lighter scenes; Miss Jessie Lonnen was captivating as the Charm of Paris; and Miss Nellie Lonnen made a pretty Laolah. Miss Edith Denton contributed a clever solo dance in the second act, which is much applauded. There are a host of pretty girls in the chorus, who all do splendid work and take the choruses along with a great swing; while the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Ernest Vousden, acquit themselves admirably. Mr. Trueman Towers is responsible for the excellent stage-management of the play, which is gorgeously mounted, and there are pretty dresses in profusion. Mr. Herbert Cathcart is the general-manager of the company.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, April 29, the Opera by Gounod entitled "FAUST."

Mr. Cecil Paget has given the Peckham public a rare musical treat this week by engaging the famous Moody-Manners Opera Company in a répertoire of well-known operas. On Monday last an admirable interpretation of Faust was given by the company, and the production was received with the utmost enthusiasm by a house packed from floor to ceiling. Mr. Charles Manners scored a notable success by his well-known impersonation of Mephistopheles, singing magnificently, and acting with grim realism varied occasionally by flashes of humour. Mme. De Vere Sapio was loudly applauded for her excellent singing and acting as the hapless Margherita; Miss Mildred Bryan gave her musical numbers admirably as Siebel; and Mr. Lewys James rendered his rôle of Valentine in forcible style, his singing being much appreciated; Miss Baker submitted a performance replete with humour as the amorous Martha; and Mr. Anderson as Wagner ably completed the cast. The chorus gave unqualified satisfaction, and the orchestra was under the bâton of Signor Romualdo Sapio. The scenery is very pretty, especially the set representing Margherita's garden. During the week Tannhäuser, Carmen, The Bohemian Girl, The Merry Wives of Windsor, and Lohengrin have been represented. Mr. T. C. Fairbairn is the stage manager, and Mr. J. McCabe the general manager for the company.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, April 29, the Comedy, entitled
"THE SUPERIOR MISS PELLENDER."

An encouraging start was made at the Brixton Theatre on Monday by Mr. Wm. Fraser-Brunner's company in the clever comedy by Sidney Bowkett named above. The piece formed the opening attraction of Mr. Cyril Maude's season at the Waldorf in the January of last year, and supplied the popular comedian with a part after his own heart. Partly sentimental, greatly comic, and wholly interesting, the piece is one that makes a strong appeal to popular audiences, and that at the Brixton Theatre—now going well under the management of Mr. R. W. Allum—received the piece with a relish that gave abundant promise for the future. The title-rôle is played by Miss Queenie Fraser-Brunner, who enters thoroughly into its requirements, the stony glare, the supercilious sneer, and the adamant firmness being effectively assumed. The young actress contrives to preserve a stately and even fascinating appearance in some becoming gowns, and the distinctness of her delivery is not the least praiseworthy feature of a very creditable achievement. Mr. Wm. Fraser-Brunner has no insignificant task in following Mr. Maude in the rôle of Tister, but he manages to catch a good deal of the charm that invariably surrounds Mr. Maude's acting, and wins for the good-hearted country gentleman the entire sympathy of the house. The frequent attacks of nervousness with which he is overcome are represented with realistic effect, and have very laughable results. A wealth of tenderness is imported by Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh into her rendering of Mrs. Pellender. She plays the young mother of a grown-up family with grace, refinement, and well-varied expression, and gives a performance that closely approaches perfection. Mr. Ellis D. Carlyle takes a broad view of his responsibilities as the boy Noel. As a representative of the schoolboy filled with animal spirits and bursting for a lark Mr. Carlyle's embodiment would be hard to beat. A well-studied characterisation of the peevish Edith was given by Miss Marie Ault, who put on a scowl that did not come off till the end. She drew a realistic picture of the obstinate girl, and made a minor part conspicuous by skilled acting and clever facial play. The short but excellent cast is completed by Miss May Staples, who made a bright and captivating child as Nancy, Noel's vivacious companion. Miss Staples also appeared in the rôle of authoress, her name being associated in that capacity with a new comedietta, in one act, entitled

"VIOLETS."

John Farrell ..... Mr. Will H. Gainsford
George Bruce ..... Mr. Gerald James
Jimmy ..... Mr. Ellis D. Carlyle
Meg ..... Miss May Staples

The distinction attained by the "curtain-raiser" was not great. As played on Monday it seemed to be the first chapter of a novelette to be "continued in our next," and of dramatic action it possesses little. There is a young actor named Bruce who has fallen ill in a remote country village, and is nursed back to health at a farmhouse. Meg, the farmer's granddaughter, has fallen in love with the actor, and fixes a bunch of violets in his buttonhole just before she goes off to mend his top coat ready for his journey in quest of an engagement. The farmer, who has been a witness of what looks very like a love scene, warns Bruce not to rob him of his grandchild, for whom he has a husband in view in the person of the village organist, and is relieved to learn that Bruce has a sweetheart in town to whom he is engaged. Meg returns with a letter she has found in the coat by which it appears that Bruce's father, who had disinherited his son through going on the stage, has now restored his fortune. The actor rushes off to see about his inheritance, and Meg learns from her grandfather that he is not going to return. The young son of the organist sympathises with the girl, and directs attention to the violets which Bruce had apparently thrown away, and the curtain descends upon Meg in tears. The chances of the little piece were hampered by the authoress herself, who was frequently indistinct as Meg, but otherwise played naturally and effectively. A painstaking impersonation of the actor was given by Mr. Gerald James, who delivered his lines well. Mr. Will H. Gainsford made a typical country farmer; and a few moments of comedy were supplied by Mr. Ellis D. Carlyle as the lad Jimmy.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, April 29, the Play, entitled
"JIM, THE PENMAN."

Messrs. Leonard Pagden and G. M. Copping's company is this week achieving a well-deserved success with this popular play, which is remarkable for its telling situations and effective curtains. One cannot withhold sympathy from James Ralston, as played by Mr. Leonard Pagden, in spite of his forgeries and villainies. Mr. Pagden's acting rises to a very high level in the last act during the scene with his injured wife, a part intelligently played by Miss Alice Farleigh. The American detective, Captain Redwood, was a finished study in the experienced hands of Mr. E. A. Douglas; and the other American, Louis Percival, was ably embodied by Mr. Will Lockhart, who took care to do no more than suggest the Transatlantic accent in this serious and interesting character. Mr. Orlando Barnett made Baron Hartfeld an impressive villain, his make-up and manner being most effective; Lady Dunscombe was a typical feather-brained society leader as acted by Miss Rosalind Ross; and Mr. Arthur Vezin as the young Peer, Lord Drelincourt, was easy and natural. His fiancée, Agnes, Ralston's daughter, found a charming exponent in Miss Muriel Pope. Mr. Cecil Yapp gave a clever character-sketch of a fussy Parliamentarian, Mr. Netterby, M.P.; and as Dr. Prettywise, Mr. Gerald Lenton carefully represented the family doctor, whose diagnosis of James Ralston's weakness foreshadows the tragic end of the play. The company is adequate throughout, the small part of a manservant, played by Mr. Thomas Dixon being equally commendable. The several scenes of the play gave occasion for the display of some especially handsome and tasteful costumes by the ladies, and at the end of the third act the curtain had to be raised three times in response to the prolonged applause.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, April 29, the Comedy,
"OUR BOYS."

The reproduction of the famous comedy of Our Boys was hailed with delight by the theatre-going population of South London. The actual play was preceded by a curtain-raiser, entitled A Happy Pair, which comprised the two characters of Mr. and Mrs. Honeyton, played with considerable skill and gusto by Mr. James Geldred and Miss L. Kingston. It is descriptive of an estrangement which arose between this young couple owing to an excess of affection on one side, which, in consequence, was wholly unreciprocated upon the other, but which terminated in the reunion of the pair. The three scenes in which the plot of Our Boys is laid make very realistic sets. Of the characters composing this brilliant company, Mr. Rusell Rosse, in the part of Sir Geoffrey Champneys, made a typical English gentleman of the old school. He appeals more especially to the audience in the third and last act, when he relaxes somewhat from his former rigidity and displays his more humane and less exalted sentiments. Talbert Champneys, his son and heir, was admirably represented by Mr. George Mudie, jun., who again was seen at his best in the last act, when misfortune and poverty have brought out the manly traits in his nature. Mr. Norman Clark as Perkin Middlewick was a lifelike impersonation of a successful retired tradesman. His son, Charles Middlewick, as rendered by Mr. James Geldred, is a distinct type of a well-educated young English touring enthusiast. In the first act especially the contrast between this man's observant discrimination and intellectual eloquence and Talbert's foppish empty-headedness is very striking, and calculated to enlist the sympathies of the audience in favour of Middlewick. The part of Kempster, Sir Geoffrey's servant, was entrusted to Mr. W. E. Dixon, who displayed his usual skill and aptitude; Miss E. Nolan O'Connor as Violet Melrose, the heiress, evidenced all the bearing of a high-bred lady, coupled with an occasional pleasing dash of sentiment; Miss L. Kingston gave a graceful delineation of Mary Melrose, Violet's poor cousin, whose naïvete and winning manner won the hearts of her entire audience; Miss Rachel de Travis lent a truly sympathetic touch to the character of Miss Clarissa Champneys, Sir Geoffrey's sister; and Miss Ethel Hesketh as the incorrigible Belinda kept the entire audience suffused with merriment.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, April 29,
The Comedy, entitled
"HIS HOUSE IN ORDER."

The visit this week of Mr. George Alexander's company in A. W. Pinero's admirable comedy, His House in Order, which achieved such a great success at the St. James's Theatre, is welcome. The bare statement of the fact that the play was rehearsed under the direction of Mr. Geo. Alexander and that the company carried all scenery, furniture and accessories was in itself an incentive to suburban playgoers, and therefore it was not surprising to find a large audience assembled at the opening performance on Monday evening. That their expectations were fully realised was evident by the enthusiasm which prevailed throughout and by the applause accorded the principals at the close of the play, the interpretation of which was in every respect excellent. A leading feature of the performance was the presentation by Miss Auriol Lee of the sorely-tried Nina. With a thorough grasp of her character, Miss Lee, by her excellent acting, held the attention of the audience throughout, and scored a great success. Mr. Frank Fenton as Hilary Jesson acted with a true understanding of the rôle, the characteristics of which he displayed with telling effect. Mr. Cyril Harcourt was seen to advantage as Filmer Jesson, and gave a smart and concise rendering of the part. The pompous and narrow-minded Sir Daniel Ridgeley was cleverly depicted by Mr. George Fitzgerald, who was responsible for much quiet humour; Mr. George Silver as the intolerable and priggish Pryce Ridgeley gave an excellent presentation of the rôle; and Mr. Lloyd Lowndes as Major Maurewarde and Mr. A. E. Benedict as Dr. Dilnott were excellent. Mr. Cyril Cattley as Forshaw, a reporter, and Mr. Reginald Besant as the secretary Harding also rendered good support. Mrs. Kemmis never wavered in her dignified serenity and composure as Lady Ridgeley, and proved an admirable exponent of the part; and Miss Audrey Campbell as Geraldine Ridgeley acted with zest and intelligence. Miss Lillie Kehr created an excellent impression by her impersonation of Mlle. Thomé, a French governess; and Miss Moyna Hill is to be congratulated upon a really clever representation of the young boy, Derek Jesson. Mr. A. P. Horne is general-manager, Mr. Charles Grattan business-manager, and Mr. Cyril Cattley stage-manager for Mr. George Alexander.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, April 29, the Drama, entitled,
"THE JEWISH ZAZA."

A crowded house at the Pavilion on Monday witnessed the performance of Zolotarevsky's drama, The Jewish Zaza, by the Yiddish Operatic and Dramatic Company. The piece, which was excellently played and well staged, bears no relation to the play similar in name already so well known, but is a simple story dealing entirely with domestic sentiment and honour, while the exciting finale is unexpected, and rouses almost breathless interest. The Jewish Zaza was remarkable for some exceedingly powerful acting, particularly that of Mme. Natansohn, who in the title-rôle scored a great success, holding her audience spellbound by the intensity she displayed in the somewhat lengthy third act. Mr. Charles Natansohn's fine, resonant voice was heard to advantage in his declamatory scenes, and his portrayal of Sascha was almost perfect; Mme. Bloom rendered good service as Hitte, and praise must be accorded to Mme. Goldstein for her reading of Zipe. Kube was in the capable hands of Mr. Joseph Fineberg, who made the most of his opportunities; and Mr. N. Hamburger is entertaining as Schmulke; while an artistic impersonation of Samuel Herschman is given by Mr. Isaacowitch. Mr. Fischman did his best as the bibulous Aunt Zelde; and Miss Lubritski was competent as Manele; Mme. Josephson showed dramatic possibilities as Sorah; and Sone and the Doctor were in the hands of Mme. Weinberg and Mr. Levene. During the week Journalists and Actors, Love Victorious, The Wise Man, Jews in Morocco, and Hyman in America have been performed.

PRINCE'S, POPLAR.

On Monday, April 29, the Play, entitled
"THE WORLD'S DESIRE."

Mr. and Mrs. William Giffard's company are this week presenting The World's Desire, by Barry Williams, and the piece is played exceedingly well, to the satisfaction of large audiences. The drama is a favourable specimen of its class, and its success is mainly due to the brisk succession of striking situations, rather than to any great originality of treatment. Mrs. William Giffard ably sustains the onerous part of Dora Mutley, her powerful acting, particularly in the scene where she recognises her child, gaining loud and prolonged applause. As Helen Berkshaw, Miss Ella Seton, although suffering from a cold, is thoroughly pleasing throughout; Miss Alberte's rendition of the little street arab known as Ragged Jack is worthy of much commendation; and Miss Helen G. Edwins does ample justice to the character of Justerina Hook; Mr. William Giffard, as the twin brothers Selkirk, puts in some good work, his breezy personation of Robert in the first act being most acceptable, while the part of Henry is invested with admirably-sustained intensity, gaining thereby the well-deserved plaudits of the house; Mr. Henry Danson enacts the execrable Hon. Ellis Fridley in a deliberate and incisive manner, being ably supported by Mr. Harry Belford, whose portrayal of the whisky-drinking solicitor, Nathaniel Mutley, is praiseworthy. Prominence is given to Godstone Clair by the firm and natural exposition of Mr. Herbert Regers; and Mr. Harry Townley extracts all the fun possible from the rôle of Washington Dobbs. Competent assistance is given by Mr. Paul Gault as James, Mr. John Owen as Inspector Haslum, Mr. Pitt Hitham as Saunders, Mr. Alfred Annand as Sergeant Greet, and Mr. Harold Dentley as Constable Scott. No expense has been spared in the mounting, which was first-rate.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, April 29, the Play, entitled
"EAST LYNNE."

East Lynne, the play founded on the world-famous novel of the same name by Mrs. Henry Wood, is the attraction here this week. Miss Louisa Peach, so long a favourite actress at the neighbouring Britannia Theatre, appears in the rôle of Lady Isabel, a representation to which she imparts the necessary element of pathos, especially so when she is appearing as the self-styled Mme. Vine. Mr. Ernest E. Norris succeeds in making the character of Archibald Carlyle quite interesting. Mr. Edwin Bennett's Francis Levison is an admirable and impressive embodiment; and Mr. Thomas Snow as Lord Mount Severn gives a very good idea of the aristocrat. Mr. Lloyd Townrow as Justice Hare supplies another capital character-study; and Richard Hare is ably portrayed by Mr. James Storey. Lawyer Dill is well played by Mr. C. Archer Brown, who gives a touch of welcome drollery to the character. Miss Beatrice Storey is Barbara Hare, Miss Alice Jordan is an acceptable Cornelia Carlyle; Miss Dorothy Mackenzie makes a sprightly Joyce; Miss Olive King appears as Wilson; Miss Elsie Green represents Little Willie; and the cast also includes Mr. Harold Scott, who makes a smart detective.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, April 29, the Drama, entitled
"TOMMY ATKINS."

Tommy Atkins, a piece of considerable interest, has been attracting large audiences to the Standard this week, and much pleasure has been afforded to those present by the highly commendable performance provided. Full of exciting situations, comic incidents, and pathetic passages, the play is produced on a scale of great completeness. Every minor detail has been well attended to, and the acting leaves nothing to be desired. The true military spirit is conspicuous throughout the performance, the mounting is admirable, and the dresses and uniforms are fully in keeping with the nature of the piece. Mr. Albert Ward plays with power and very apparent ability as Harold Wilson. His efforts in declamatory elocution are of a high order, and his acting all through well deserves the appreciation shown him. Miss Wilton Reed successfully impersonates Stephen Raymond; and Mr. Harry White does all that is possible as Ebenezer Skindle. The rôle of Captain Richard Maitland finds a most desirable interpreter in Mr. Frank Adair; he plays with ease and skill, and is withal powerful and impressive. Mr. Paige Laurence enacts the part of Captain Bob Sparrow with care, and proves of decided value. Mr. Keino Johnson must be complimented on his excellent performance as Colour-Sergt. Paddy Molloy; and every praise is due to Mr. Fred Morgan for his natural and very attractive embodiment of Private Mason. Mr. Sydney Ternshaw is all that could be desired as Colonel Hardwick; and the part of Sir Simon Redgrave receives suitable handling at the hands of Mr. Paul Peters. The same may be said of the rôle of Private Harris as pictured by Mr. Harry Bristowe. Little Miss Florrie Green displays ability as Jack, a drummer boy; and Miss J. Edwards ably performs her duties as the choir boy, Thomas Trotman. Miss Helen Parton carefully depicts Rose Selwyn; whilst Miss Marjorie Murray performs with distinction as Elsie. The Martha of Miss Daisy Marshall is good; and Miss Florence Dalton supplies a capable delineation as Margaret Maitland. Miss Agnes Paulton gives great satisfaction as Kate Perkins; and praise is due to Miss Theresa Osborne for her life-like and decidedly effective portrayal of Ruth Raymond.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, April 29, the Drama, entitled,
"THE SOLDIER'S WEDDING."

Islington this week has its first opportunity of witnessing Mr. Walter Melville's latest production, and excellent business has been the result. Mr. Wingold Lawrence as Jack Brown submits a manly and pleasing performance, and makes himself very popular; Mr. Beresford Whitcomb as Colonel Graham presents a capital study of great value to the production; Mr. Raymond Wood as Courtenay is excellent; Mr. A. Gambier Melford as Spratt supplies some acceptable humorous relief, and finds a valuable ally in Miss Ellie Carlisle. Little Albert as Teddy Munro proves precocious, and is altogether to be commended for his smartness; Mr. D. J. Hennessy as Marks gives a neat little character-sketch; and from Mr. Fred Yarnold comes an effective study of the old farmer. Miss Marie Macaulay in the heavy rôle is distinctly good, and makes much of her opportunities; Miss Maggie Burton as Mrs. Hatherton is to be commended; Miss Georgie de Lara gives a very clever portrayal of Peggy Munro, acting with power; and Miss Jessie Winter as Nancy Lee is very pleasant and natural. A special word of praise should be extended to Mr. Frederick Biron for a strong and convincing performance of David Munro. The remaining parts in a long cast are all adequately dealt with. The incidental music by Mr. E. Reeves is of service to the production, and the dressing and mounting, as usual, leave nothing to be desired, the last scene of the first act being remarkably well done.

LYRIC OPERA HOUSE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, April 29, the Drama,
"THE CONVICT."

Miss Winifred Maude's company is here this week with the above drama, and it is proving a good attraction at the Lyric, where the audience seem to be particularly fond of dramas introducing prison life. Miss Winifred Maude herself enacts the rôle of Nellie Seaforth, the sweetheart of the hero, George Britton, and the object of the unwelcomed attentions of Captain Hurley. Miss Maude plays her part well and with excellent restraint, making Nellie a most attractive character. George Britton is made a manly hero by Mr. William Maxwell, and Mr. W. Bradford is a powerful Captain Hurley. Mr. Victor Du Cane doubles the characters of Sergeant Holmes and Alphonse Godin, a French convict, investing both parts with a fund of quiet humour. Mr. Norton Shields as Mike Larne, an Irish convict, causes more fun. Mr. Leonard S. Harrison is good as Mr. Britton, the bank manager. Miss Marion Holly in a masculine part, Harry Seaforth, does well; and Miss Ethel Tinsley makes the most of the part of Miriam Goldberg. Miss Jenny Hackett is a lively Jenny Wright, and sings in capital style "The Zuyder Zee." The play is well staged, and especially effective are the Haunted Churchyard and the Harbour scenes. Mr. Victor du Cane directs proceedings on behalf of Miss Maude.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, April 29, the Play, in Four Acts, by Seymour Hicks and Cecil Raleigh, entitled "SPORTING LIFE."

Melodrama continues its career at the Fulham, but this week there has been a stronger piece. The play is full of "sporting life," both on its light and dark sides, and a good company play it for all it is worth. The part of Lord Woodstock demands an actor of considerable versatility, and such a one is found in Mr. Henry Doughty, who shines both in high society and in the ring with the gloves. His was a good representation of a high-minded gentleman, with a fine sense of honour. An equally genuine performance is that of Mr. H. C. Cooper as Andread, the moneylender—also a sportsman with a sense of honour. Mr. Cooper did well with this attractive rôle, playing with strength and excellent restraint. Philip Cavanagh was played with quiet force by Mr. Edwin Fergusson; and Mr. H. H. Barrington showed power and tenderness as Miles Kavanagh. Mr. H. J. Barrett contributes an excellent study of the peppery old General Molyneaux; and Mr. Bert Morley was very amusing as Sergeant Doney. Mr. Edward Chester also, as Joe Lee, had good chances to show dramatic skill, and used them well; Mr. Raymond Dudley must be commended for his finished study of the scheming financier, De Carteret (he was an admirable villain of the quiet and effective sort), and Mr. Frank Woodville's representation of the bookmaker, Cleary, is a telling study in character. Miss Ida Phillips acted with charm and sympathy in the part of Norah Kavanagh; and Miss Nellie Lucas acquitted herself well in the very trying part of Kitty Kavanagh—a part so trying to actress and audience that a good deal of it might be omitted with advantage to all concerned. As Olive de Carteret, Miss Hilda Beverley scores a success with a brilliant representation of the type of woman that brings men to ruin. With so long a cast it is impossible to particularise further, but all played up well. The scenery is unusually elaborate and varied, but is very well done, and "shifted" with commendable celerity.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, April 29, was presented the Musical Play, in Two Acts, by A. M. Thompson and Robert Courtneidge, entitled
"THE DAIRYMAIDS."

Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company are appearing here this week in the charming musical play, entitled The Dairymaids, which enjoyed so successful a run at the Apollo Theatre. The cast is an exceptionally good one, and the play goes merrily from start to finish. Miss Edith Blanche is a delightful Lady Brudenell, and her nephews, Sam Brudenell and Lieutenant Brudenell, R.N., are capitally acted by Mr. E. Statham Staples and Mr. George Desmond. Captain Fred Leverton is well represented by Mr. Alec Fraser, whose rendering of the part is very popular. Mr. Forbes Dawson is excellent as Dr. O'Byrne; Mr. Harry Dent is a very amusing Joe Mivens; Mr. Harry Cottell is good as Tim Capus, as is Mr. Fred Foster as Todgers, and Mr. Rupert Mar an earnest Lieutenant Bereton. Miss Violet Lloyd is a delightful Peggy, and her rendering of "The Sandow Girl" and "Do you remember?" is very pleasing. Miss Rhoda Gordon is a pretty Winifred, and sings tastefully "A little boy of to-day." Miss Beryl Vaudrey is an attractive Helene; Miss Madge Avery presents an excellent portrait of the austere Governess, Miss Penelope Pychase. The numerous dairymaids, schoolgirls, &c., have very charming representatives in Mesdames Cissie Sephton, Maisie Clark, May Casson, Katie Bartlett, Kathleen Sinico, D. West-Collins, Jeannie Laminiere, Muriel Gordon, Gay Silvani, and Rose Campbell. The scenery and dresses are new and attractive, the chorus well trained, and the orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. Albert Bartlett. Mr. John Tully is the experienced and courteous manager of the company.

One of the most interesting of the many presentations made to Miss Edna May on the occasion of her retirement from the stage on Saturday last was a handsome solid silver manicure set, suitably engraved, subscribed for by the boys of Stedman's Choir who have been appearing with her throughout the run of Nelly Neil.

"LADY TATTERS."

A Romantic Light Opera, in Three Acts, written by Herbert Leonard, Lyrics by Roland Carse, and Music by Walter Slaughter, produced at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Wednesday, May 1.

King Charles II.....MR. SIDNEY BROUGH.
Lord Rochester.....MR. HERBERT SPARLING.
Earl Ludlow.....MR. OSCAR ADYE.
Captain Walter Sommerville....MR. IVOR FOSTER.
Sergeant Tom Gurney.....MR. JOHNNY DANVERS.
Matthew Scraby .....MR. POWIS PINDER.
Landlord Simon.....MR. ALGERNON NEWARK.
Seth Lewys.....MR. WALTER PASSMORE.
Dick Harrold.....MR. COURTICE POUNDS.
Poll Merrie.....MISS MARIE GEORGE.
Isabel Scraby.....MISS LOUIE POUNDS.
Tatters .....MISS CLAUDIA LASELL.

The Shaftesbury Theatre—too long untenanted—opened its doors to a brilliant throng on May-Day, when was produced for the first time on any stage the light romantic opera Lady Tatters, written by Mr. Herbert Leonard—a practised craftsman in melodrama—the music being by Mr. Walter Slaughter, the composer of the scores of Marjorie, Alice in Wonderland, Dandy Dan, Gentleman Joe, The French Maid, and others too numerous to mention. The action is placed in the Restoration period—1660-62—when our bright little island became "Merrie England" once more, and the sour-visaged Puritan no longer banned the amusements of the people. Mr. Leonard chooses his chief characters from among the show-folk—the booth actors of the period—rogues and vagabonds without purse or scrip; and we are plunged into the regions of romance when we learn that Tatters, the leading lady of the troupe, bears a marvellous resemblance to the dead daughter of a proscribed regicide—Earl Ludlow. For purposes of his own, the Earl bribes her father, Seth Lewys, the jester of the little company, to allow Tatters to change her identity and become Lady Betty Ludlow, of Gilchrist Hall. The bargain being concluded, the nobleman has to make a rapid flight—disguised in the comedian's cloak—in order to escape arrest, and when the officers of the King are about to take prisoner the supposed Lady Betty, her innocence is declared by Captain Walter Sommerville, who had been a favoured suitor for her hand in the days when she was a strolling player.

By the appearance of Lady Betty, as chatelaine of Gilchrist Hall, in the next act, the outlawed Earl gains control of his estates. Tatters, in borrowed plumes, welcomes her old companions of the booth, and also, without knowing it, the Merrie Monarch himself, who is in search of a mysterious talisman which belongs to him. Charles the Second comes with my lord of Rochester in disguise, and both sustain their historic reputations as gallants. Lady Betty, as we may now call her, makes preparations for her wedding, and is dressed in bridal veil, but the bridegroom, Captain Walter Sommerville, on his arrival, seeing her seated on her father's knee, casts her off. She then confesses that she has been masquerading, and that she is only Tatters, the "lowly player maid." The King immediately exclaims: "As Lady Ludlow's title thou dost disown, Henceforth as Lady Tatters shalt thy name be known."

In the third act the gallant captain is arrested for treason, but is allowed to escape. Tatters secures the favour of the King by returning the talisman, and the way is finally cleared for the happiness of the lovers, the curtain falling to the strains of a spirited chorus "Long Life Unto His Majesty."

The opera is at present too long, and a rigorous compression of the first and second acts would concentrate the dramatic interest. The music is exceedingly bright and captivating, and engaging melody and richly embroidered orchestration mark the progress of the work from the rise to the fall of the curtain. The cast includes such eminent Savoyards as Mr. Walter Passmore, Mr. Courtice Pounds, and Miss Louie Pounds. Mr. Passmore has a rich fund of humour at his command, and plays Seth Lewys, the barnstormer tragedian, with true Hogarthian quaintness. He made the hit of the opera on Wednesday evening with his number "The Fiddler and His Dog," in which he accompanied himself on an ancient spinet. In this number, which has a jodelling refrain, the writer of the lyrics, Mr. Roland Carse, puns in rhyme, following at a respectful distance the poets Hood—Tom and Basil. Miss Marie George is the vivacious delineator of Poll Merrie, the serving wench of Yet Red Lyon, and scores not only in the duet with Mr. Walter Passmore, "The Folly of Flirtation," in the second act, but in a special number, "Charity," in which her dancing is delightful to watch. Miss Louie Pounds, as Isabel Scraby, is a pretty advocate of the sway of cavalier, and sings "A lady of fashion" with her accustomed charm. She finds an excellent foil in Mr. Powis Pinder, who makes an unmistakable hit as the Puritan steward, Matthew Scraby, and to him chiefly may be attributed the success of the duet "Puritan and Cavalier," one of the best numbers in the opera. Mr. Ivor Foster's fine voice and artistic method serve him well in the stirring song, "Boot, Saddle, to Horse, and to Duty," and again in "Captive Am I," and he makes an interesting figure of the hero, Captain Walter Sommerville. Mr. Courtice Pounds is not too well provided with opportunities for singing, but his sweet and well cultured voice is heard to advantage in "Would'st Thou Recall the Past?" and "Never Laugh at Love." Mr. Sidney Brough plays with gaiety and distinction as the Merry Monarch; Mr. Herbert Sparling is a gallant Rochester; and Sergeant Tom Gurney, a surly Cavalier, who eschews love in his devotion to duty, is admirably portrayed by Mr. Johnny Danvers. Mr. Oscar Adye, as the Earl of Ludlow, is well placed. Miss Claudia Lasell distinguishes herself by her gaiety and grace as the heroine, Tatters, and her opening number "O'er the Country Side We Wander" was encored on the night of the production. The dresses, designed and supervised by Comelli, and executed by B. J. Simmons and Co. and Alias, are beautiful in the extreme. The dances have been cleverly arranged by Espinosa, and the scenery by Bruce Smith, Harry Potts, and W. Raphael, is extremely pretty. The composer conducted the opening performance, which was received throughout with a great show of enthusiasm. There should be much popularity in store for Lady Tatters.

A CONVALESCENT HOME.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Having spent a month at the Charing Cross Convalescent Home, after a severe illness, I can strongly recommend the place to any actor or actress who happens to be run down from overwork or other causes. The home was built for Charing Cross Hospital at the expense of Mr. J. Passmore Edwards, and is situated at Limpsfield (near Oxted), and stands in its own grounds, 532ft. above the level of the sea.

To those whose means will allow it, there are six private rooms, the charge of which is two to two and a half guineas a week; but to those who are not so fortunate there are men's and women's wards of about eighty beds, the price being only 12s. 6d. a week. The meals are excellent, consisting of breakfast (meat), dinner, tea, and supper. The surrounding country is beautiful, and four counties (Surrey, Sussex, Kent, and Hampshire) can be seen from the home.

Dr. Black, M.D. (of Charing Cross Hospital and Clarges-street), the president of the home, and his wife take a great interest in the place, and continually visit it. The matron (Miss Leese), who does all that is possible for the comfort and welfare of the patients, I feel certain would be pleased to answer all inquiries.—Yours faithfully,

A RETIRED NAVAL OFFICER.

NEW PLAYS AT HASTINGS.

Two new plays were produced at the Public Hall, Hastings, on Wednesday, April 24. The most important was a farcical play, in three acts, adapted for the English stage by Emily Fräderdorff, entitled

"GOOD OLD GADESBY."

Colonel Grantham.....MR. A. J. FRADERSDORFF
Captain Fred Grantham .....MR. J. OLDFIELD
Sir William Mowbray .....MR. R. COLLIS
Percy Rothwell .... } MR. A. E. FRADERSDORFF
Cabman ..... }
Morton .....MR. F. OOSTERVEEN
Mrs. Grantham .....MISS G. HART
Lillian .....MISS E. MACNAB
Mrs. Pearson .....MISS G. ELWES
1st Officer .....MR. DRAWBRIDGE
2nd Officer .....MR. OOSTERVEEN
Gadesby .....MR. W. B. GARRETT

The scene is the garden room of Col. Grantham's house. The Colonel himself is absent arranging a marriage between his daughter Lillian and Sir William Mowbray, the son of an old friend, now deceased. Capt. Fred. Grantham, stationed at Colchester, has assaulted his Major in an after-dinner quarrel, and has been summoned to attend before his general, but fails to do so. He hits upon the device of impersonating his uncle, Col. Grantham, whom he closely resembles, and arrives at the garden room attended by Gadesby, his soldier servant. Fred secretly loves his cousin Lillian, and learns from his sister (Mrs. Pearson, a widow) of the approaching marriage. He at once avows his love for his cousin, and Gadesby suggests a plan of action: has master shall continue to act the part of his uncle, and announce to his aunt in his assumed rôle that the marriage between Lillian and Sir William is impracticable. A letter is to arrive from Fred declaring his love for his cousin. After giving his consent to the union, he can disappear on a supposed Government mission, and then, reappearing in his proper personality, the couple can become publicly affianced before the real Sir William's return. Mrs. Pearson agrees to assist, and the ruse succeeds with Mrs. Grantham. At this juncture the Colonel, accompanied by Sir William, returns, and he and his household are very soon at cross-purposes. In the second act Lillian speaks to Sir William of her approaching marriage, believing him to be merely a friend of her father's, and he learns it is to her cousin Fred she refers. Sir William gives Fred the assurance of his assistance in winning Lillian if he assists him in return in gaining the affection of Mrs. Pearson, of whom he has become enamoured. Gadesby mistakes the real Colonel for his master, and thus reveals to the Colonel the cause of the inexplicable sarcasm of Mrs. Grantham and the topsy-turvy condition of affairs generally. In the third act, Gadesby communicates with the police, who telegraph to Colchester. Two officers appear and arrest the Colonel, and the party depart for Colchester. Gadesby accounts to Mrs. Grantham for the Colonel's absence by telling her he has departed for St. Petersburg on a mission. Fred gains his aunt's consent to his marriage with Lillian; the Colonel again returns, he having been seen at the station by a friend of Captain Grantham, Percy Rothwell, who had informed the officers that the charge against the Captain had been withdrawn by the Major. Eventually peace is restored by Sir William being accepted by Mrs. Pearson, and the Colonel's acquiescence in Fred and Lillian's engagement. He is about to thrash Gadesby to appease his wrath when he hears Gadesby's wife outside calling her husband, and tells him to go to her for the punishment his prevarications deserve. There are many amusing situations in the course of the play, and its successful production by amateurs is very creditable to all concerned.

The other production was a dramatic episode in one act, by Mr. W. G. Burnett-Garrett, entitled

"POOR PUNCHINELLO."

Punchinello.....MR. W. G. BURNETT-GARRETT
Tonio .....MR. R. COLLIS
Netta .....MRS. R. COLLIS

The scene is a garret, and sounds of music are heard through an open window, a rural fête being in progress close at hand. Punchinello, an elderly man, is a clever modeller of figures; his hunchback has obtained him the nickname he is known by. His wife, Netta, is young and giddy, and repines that their poverty keeps her from attending the fête. To gratify her Punchinello leaves off working at a masterpiece of sculpture by which he hopes to win fame and fortune, and goes out to raise money that she may attend the fête. Then enters Tonio, their mutual friend; he is well-to-do, and has secretly wooed the young wife. He now urges her to elope with him. She consents, and leaves her husband a letter of farewell. Punchinello returns with money, gladly anticipating the pleasure of his wife, reads the letter, and in a fit of ungovernable rage, curses his false friend, and, seizing the work which has occupied him for years, dashes it to fragments upon the floor.

The seductive Tonio was capitally embodied by Mr. Collis; the frivolous and pleasure-seeking Netta had a charming and convincing exponent in Mrs. Collis; the author himself played Punichinello with much fidelity to detail and strong dramatic feeling.

Four performances were given, the proceeds being for the benefit of the local hospital. An efficient orchestra was arranged and conducted by Mr. Charles Fawcett, sub-conductor of the Hastings Pier.

"THE SIMPLE (?) LIFE."

A Play, in One Act, by E. Oswald Brooks and R. C. Jenkins, produced, for the First Time, at the Grand Theatre, Swansea, on Monday, April 29.

Lord Rawlinson .....MR. HARRY BARTLETT
Hon. Fitzherbert de Beauchamp .....MR. HARRY KENNY
The Earl of Gower .....MR. HAL BENTLEY
Bettis .....MR. D. W. COX
Marquis of Halesworth .....MR. R. C. JENKINS
Lady Violet Chippendale ..MISS WINNIE SMITH
Hon. Gladys Warrener.....MISS ETHEL WILSON

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This short play was produced on Monday evening last with great success. The curtain rises to the accompaniment of stentorian snores from within the tent of a riverside encampment. The Hon. Fitzherbert de Beauchamp crawls out sleepily and informs his friends that it is 10.30, and his father and Lady Violet Chippendale are expected at 11. A quarrel ensues as to who is to cook the breakfast that morning, and Beauchamp goes fishing to avoid the task. The Marquis appears with the two ladies, and surveys the scene with scorn and disgust. Beauchamp causes great merriment in his frantic efforts to hook his fish. The whole party eventually decide to leave for home and "the complex life" except Rawlinson, who has been very busy preparing the breakfast, and just as all the others are leaving for the Marquis' steam launch he calls them back with the exclamation: "Breakfast is served." The curtain descends, and on again being raised discloses the whole party discussing a rough-and-ready meal. Interest is also centred in some pretty love passages between the ladies and Gower and Beauchamp. At the production the piece was received with loud applause, although it naturally suffered a little owing to it being a "first night." Mr. Kenny as Beauchamp was intensely funny; Messrs. Bartlett, Bentley, and Jenkins quite kept up the spirit of the piece; and Mr. Cox as Bettis caused yells of laughter with his lugubrious and plaintive "Take me back to London Town." The ladies, who had little to say, said that little well, and looked charming in their picturesque dresses.

DEATH OF MR. E. EDMONDS.

Mr. E. Edmonds, the well-known stage-manager, passed away peacefully at eleven o'clock on Sunday night, after a long and painful illness. Mr. Edmonds was born in 1837. He was apprenticed to Messrs. Samuel Brothers, engineers, but joined Mr. Morris Abrahams at the East London Theatre as a member of his stock company in 1856. After the usual vicissitudes of an actor's life he was engaged by Charles Calvert as stage-manager during the memorable Shakespearean revivals at the Prince's, Manchester. He then went into management for himself, becoming lessee of the Queen's Theatre, Manchester. Subsequently he joined Mrs. John Wood at the St. James's Theatre, London, following with a tour with John Coleman's Henry V. company. Then he returned to Manchester to join Captain Alfred Thompson. Mr. Edmonds remained there many years, producing fifteen pantomimes, which are still remembered by Manchester men as the finest of their time.

Mr. Edmonds opened the St. James's Theatre, Manchester, as manager, but gave up that position to become Miss Mary Anderson's stage-manager at the Lyceum Theatre. Latterly he produced successful pantomimes at Birmingham, Glasgow, and Edinburgh, the Grand Theatre, Islington, and four Christmas annuals for Mr. Chute at Bristol. His last associations with Manchester were his appearance in Robert Courtneidge's revival of As You Like It at the Prince's and as producer of Henry VIII. and Dante for Richard Flanagan.

Mr. Edmonds has been ailing for some time; it was during the time he was playing Calaban with his son's Woman and Wine company that a serious breakdown occurred. He was removed to St. Peter's Hospital, where he underwent an operation. It was discovered that cancer was the trouble, and his case hopeless. He was removed to a private nursing home on Clapham Common, where he laid for six weeks waiting the end, which he knew was near, and sent many loving messages to the dear friends he had known in the profession in which he had served so long and faithfully.

MARTIN HARVEY ON ACTING.

Some reflections upon the art of acting were made by Mr. Martin Harvey at the Masonic Hall, Birmingham, on Wednesday afternoon, before a crowded audience, in aid of the organ fund of the Presbyterian Church of England, Chantry-road, Moseley. The Lord Mayor of Birmingham, introducing Mr. Harvey, paraphrased Shakespeare's conception of life as a stage, and told how each one of us had his own part to play, the way it was played depending upon the individual. We were to do our best before the audience, because when the curtain fell and we returned to the green room reflections and regrets were too late.

Mr. HARVEY reminded his audience of the saying that in proportion as a man understood his art he ceased to talk about it. Either, therefore, he knew very little about it, or they would spend a dull hour if he knew much about it and was silent, which, as Euclid would say, is absurd. Mr. Harvey ridiculed the popular idea that frequent repetition of a part rendered its expression mechanical and flat. An interpretation did not become mature until it had been repeated many times. It had its birth, its adolescence, its maturity, and in obedience to the law of nature, alas, its decay. A great deal of the success of an actor depended upon the quality of the audience and the degree of sensibility or sympathy possessed by them. An audience generally got the acting it deserved. It was only when an actor and his audience were fused together that the spontaneous flashes of sensibility, the importance of which Talma emphasised, were emitted. An audience must be willing and prepared to be impressed, to give as well as to receive. Also they should not let their intelligence be obfuscated by the process of digesting a heavy dinner.

No matter how deeply moved an actor might be in a certain part and at a particular moment, his sub-consciousness, or his intelligence—call it what they would—was trebly alert, and the oneness of soul which he desired with an audience was one of the most precious consolations in his work. An actor could express nothing but himself, and personal experience was, perhaps, the greatest teacher of all. The heights of tragedy could never be scaled save by those who broke from the placid comfort of a middle course; never by those who walked the comfortable, well-fed paths. Acting, after all, was only the understanding of humanity, but to say that the actor simply interpreted the ideas of others, as a critic recently put it, was the stupidest of views to take.

Mr. Harvey's lecture was highly appreciated, and he was accorded a hearty vote of thanks.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, the Comedy, entitled

"SOWING THE WIND."

Mr. Peter Davey, the enterprising manager of the Royal County, produced this charming comedy on Monday evening under the happiest auspices. The play was staged with more than usual effectiveness in the matter of scenery and costumes, and the whole production was a distinct artistic success. Chief honours were carried off by Miss Ella Daincourt as Rosamond, by Miss Irma Foldi as Maud Fretwell, by Mr. George Mudie as Mr. Brabazon, and by Mr. Lytton Grey as Sir Richard Cursitor, all of whom gave a fine impersonation of the part allotted to them. Excellent assistance was also rendered by Miss Sheila Leigh as the Hon. Mrs. Fretwell, by Mr. Frank Harding as Lord Petworth, by Mr. Franklin Graham as Neil Annesley, and by Mr. George Mallett as Mr. Watkin. The comedy was received by an appreciative audience with open arms.

MR. GRANVILLE BARKER ON REFORM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I beg to forward you a letter which I have sent to a friend, who has written objecting to my policy:—

(COPY.)

"MY DEAR F——, Thank you for your letter. That upon the electing of the twelve of us who have been called the Reform Party you should have rejoined the Association is a great encouragement; a few more such reaccessions we should count as a most satisfactory reform.

"But now you believe that the success of our policy involving any member engaged in management in loss of the privileges of membership will deal the Association a fatal blow. What is the real difference between us, the difference in principle which cannot be compromised? We think the Association should be what its name purports it to be, an Association of Actors. You think that somehow or other it should represent and govern the whole profession of the theatre. I thought that, too, three or four years ago, and went so far as to say so, demanding, among other things, regulation of the entrance to our profession and of its conditions of employment. I was told that the Association already had such matters in hand, and very justly I was invited to come and help. That was three years ago. Since then I have been busy about other things, but I return to be triumphantly confronted with the partial negotiation of a scheme for payment of rehearsals. Have you seen that scheme? If anything were needed to convince me of the Association's impotence in all vital matters, that would do it.

"I see, of course, now that I demanded impossibilities, and that you are demanding impossibilities. The only means by which the Association could become a governing body would be by the acquisition of a Charter, and, moreover, of a Charter which conferred strict disciplinary powers. Do you see a British Government giving to any body of actors and theatre managers such a Charter? Not in the next fifty years. But the problems remain, these and others, more urgent for solution than ever. How is the Association to grapple with them?

"Let us remember that, without the unattainable Charter, strictly speaking we are not a 'Profession.' Individually we may be artists; collectively, economically, we are a trade. This, though a technical, is a very important distinction, and cannot be too clearly insisted upon. For how are well-organised trades regulated? By committees formed from the representative bodies of employers and employed.

"In most trades the line between employer and employed is easy enough to draw. In our calling the situation is complicated by the existence of the actor-manager. His inclusion in the Association has been from the first an anomaly. Is he qualified as a manager; then why are other managers excluded? (There is now, of course, a logical though little favoured proposal to include them). Then he qualifies as an actor, as an artist? Now, once for all, is the Association's duty towards the artistic or the economic side of our calling? There can be but one answer. What can the Association, any association for that matter, have to do with artistry? And economically, that is financially, are an actor-manager's interests those of an actor or manager? No answer is needed. For twenty-one hours out of the twenty-four he is a manager and nothing but a manager.

"Let a third thing be quite clear. An association composed of conflicting interests is a body foredoomed to impotence and mischief. There must be suspicion on one side, resentment on the other, and constant secession. Suspicion may be unfounded and secession uncalled for, but associations are composed of human beings, not of archangels. Look at our own body. In any quarrel between actor and manager is not the bias avowedly in favour of the actor, though as members both have equal claims on our consideration? It says a great deal either for the chivalry or carelessness of managers towards the Association that they have not all resigned long ago. So much for the mischief. For the impotence, what proof is needed? How many schemes have been strangled, delayed, neglected, because of confliction of interests, for mortal fear of giving offence? I say again, for it is the most important thing I have to say, that the Actors' Association, composed as it is now, is doomed to deal with nothing more vital than the cleanliness of the dressing-rooms at the Theatre Royal, Blanktown.

"So the Association has now to make its choice. One course entices it to be a governing body without the power to govern, and a representative body, representing nothing but divided interests. On the other hand we see—the Actors' Union.

"Here, I think, is the determining factor in our decision. If the Union had done nothing else, it forces us to make up our minds without more delay. The work that we ought to have done from the first it has now undertaken to do. The work we have done it will leave us to continue, though whether it will leave us any income to continue it with is another matter. Quite clearly the Association and the Union cannot long continue to exist profitably side by side. Up to now we have officially behaved towards their members with that perfect dignity which is the refuge of the nonplussed. Their behaviour towards the Association has been—well, by this time probably no one is more anxious to forget those few enthusiastic indiscretions than the utterers of them. Personally, I have said and done everything I could to heal such breach as exists between us, and I hold most strongly that the policy of the Association at this juncture is to reform and modify its constitution that the Executive of the Union may have no excuse for not bringing over their members to us in a body. We have much to offer them, but let us own gracefully that they have much to offer us. Separation may bring disaster to both.

"I have left to the last two arguments against 'depriving' the managers which seem to find some favour. I am told that in their absence from the counsels of the Association fewer disputes will find their way to arbitration and more to the law courts. It would be quite easy to prove the opposite, but it is shorter to remark that a manager's possession of common sense does not depend on membership of any Association. I am also told that after all the financial help given by managers to the Association this treatment of them will appear ungrateful; sometimes that it will be so, usually only that it will appear ungrateful. No one regrets more than I that charitable help was ever begged, no matter from whom. Each member of the Association should only think of that as a personal affront offered him by those who were responsible for the appeal. No one is more anxious than I to make it impossible for such a thing ever to occur again. But I do not find it difficult to believe that the men who were generous with their money then will be no less generous now, if they are convinced it is for the Association's good, when what is asked of them is a little self-effacement. I do find it impossible to believe that they would ever taunt the Association by a reference to their gifts freely given. Has anyone seriously suggested such a thing?

"These are the arguments of a convert, and I hope that therefore they may effect your conversion. I once looked to the Association to be what the Medical Council is to Medicine and the Law Society to Law. I perceive that is impossible. I now look to it to become the economic conscience of the actor's calling. To that end I welcome my own exclusion. Speaking, if I may, for the first time as a manager, I assure you that I would far rather bargain for the services of an actor within the strictest limits than an Association might impose than I would, as now, argue my way through the possible petty frictions of each individual agreement.

"Well, Monday must decide.—Very sincerely yours,

"H. GRANVILLE BARKER.

"Court Theatre, April 29."

A. A. SOCIAL.

The "monied amateur" was the subject of some very scathing comments at the social gathering of the Actors' Association on Friday afternoon last week, when, under the chairmanship of Mr. Fred Morland, a discussion on "The Elimination of the Amateur" took place.

The Chairman stated that this subject had aroused intense feeling in the profession, and was naturally one in which actors and actresses took a keen interest. The name "amateur" did not in the theatrical sense, necessarily mean a beginner, either with or without means, the general acceptance of the term being applied to those who did not receive a fair rate of payment for their labours. It was their desire and their duty as actors to eliminate such persons from the ranks of the profession.

Mr. Francis Chamier remarked that there could be no possible objection to people learning acting so long as they started at the beginning. What they did object to was the engaging of amateurs for leading parts at such sma'l salaries that experienced actors could not accept them.

Mr. Robert Castleton suggested that the Actors' Association should evolve a charter by which managers should be compelled to limit the number of amateurs they engaged. To his way of thinking the amateur problem was a far more serious one in the West End of London than it was in the provinces.

Miss Gladys Ffolliott delivered a long speech, which fairly bristled with caustic epigrams, and had any poor wretch of a monied amateur been present he would surely have hidden his head for very shame. Thus, "the monied amateur is like the horse-radish. Once planted in the garden, it sprouts out until one day you find it under the dining-room window, then at the end wall, then in the centre bed, and so on." Again, "the monied amateur is like the rabbit in Australia. He is taken by the manager to enable the latter, with small finances, to take out a play and bolster up the number of his cast by amateurs going for no salary or who have paid premiums, so spoiling the business for other companies who may be paying proper and adequate salaries. The amateurs come, like the rabbits in Australia, and ruin everything." Proceeding, Miss Ffolliott said that everyone had a right to enter the theatrical profession, whether he had money or not; but it should be made compulsory on those who had money to deal fairly. The monied amateur should not be permitted to under-price the beginner, and the members of a company should refuse to act with such a person. Some people might say, "Suppose a manager has not enough money to pay the whole cast, and that by engaging a few paying amateurs he is enabled to give others work, should he be prevented from engaging those amateurs?" But the answer to that was that only a man who had the means to meet all reasonable expenses, entailed by the payment of fair and equitable salaries should be allowed to go on tour. Then, as to the Actors' Association. That body had admitted, simply for the subscription, people who, though they had entered the profession ten years or two years ago, had had practically no experience. It was like the case of a child who at ten years of age went on the stage as a turnip and at seventy said he had had sixty years' experience. The Association had ignored its chances. It was like the remittance man in the colonies, who went out with everything in his favour, but missed his chances and collapsed entirely through his own fault, and saw others succeed where he failed. The Actors' Union had now stepped into the breach, and new members were joining every day. The Union would ensure good behaviour both on the part of managers and actors.

Mr. William Devereux expressed the opinion that fully one-half of the profession were not getting more than £2 a week, if they could only be persuaded to admit it. On that hypothesis, therefore, there was no necessity for the establishment of a minimum salary of £2.

Mr. Cecil Raleigh made a stirring appeal to the meeting to take immediate action to protect themselves against the blacklegs in the profession.

"PRISCILLA AND THE PRESIDENT."

A Farcical Romance, in Three Acts, by Charles Heslop, produced, for the first time on any stage, at the Royal Opera House, Wakefield, on Wednesday, April 24.

William Bassendyne .....MR. ARTHUR HARE
General Laranagas .....MR. DEAN WILLIAMS
Captain O'Hara .....MR. SAM ROBERTS
Mr. Crayford .....MR. CHARLES LOCKE
Loftus .....MR. ERNEST TREVOR
Duchess of Knightsbridge..MISS HETTA BARTLETT
Lady Mary Mildrith .....MISS LILLIAN TWEED
Annabel Crayford .....MISS VIOLET SIMMONS
Priscilla .....MISS MARY DEVERELL

The plot of this new farcical romance presents a good many complications, which, however, are cleverly contrived. In the penniless William Bassendyne, secretary to the Grand Slam Ladies' Club, General Laranagas discovers the lost son of the late President of Mauritania, in Central America, and carries him off to perform duties of State at so many thousand pesetas per annum. But Bassendyne's valet, Loftus, happens to be the arch-conspirator in a plot to set a Queen over the Mauritanians, and he arranges for the capture of a missing Princess, who chances to be Priscilla, the only girl William loves out of the many who try to win him. The plotters, however, secure the Duchess of Knightsbridge by mistake, and she is found crowned Queen on Bassendyne's arrival, in the second act. A series of revolutions follow, and when Priscilla and the other ladies turn up in search of him, the President has been incarcerated in prison. The arch-conspirator, to smooth over matters, contrives a blindfold marriage between the real Queen Priscilla and Bassendyne, whereupon the fair sex take flight back to England, while the President, imagining he has married the Duchess, remains to amass a fortune before presenting himself at the Duchess's country house, in the third act, and finding a solution to all his difficulties.

Mr. Arthur Hare as William Bassendyne played throughout with a force and dramatic power which stamped him as an artist of exceptional merit. Mr. Ernest Trevor as Loftus gave an able rendering of the character. Mr. Dean Williams made the most of the part of General Laranagas, the head of the Revolutionary Army in Mauritania; and Mr. Charles Locke played in bright style as Mr. Crayford. Mr. Sam Roberts did good work as Captain O'Hara. The part of Priscilla was prettily acted by Miss Mary Deverell; Miss Hetta Bartlett submitted a clever impersonation as the Duchess of Knightsbridge; and Miss Violet Simmons and Miss Lillian Tweed, as Annabel Crayford and Lady Mary Meldrith (the married daughters of the Duchess), were good in their respective rôles.

A CHAMPIONSHIP Toy Dog Show will be held at the Crystal Palace on Tuesday and Wednesday. There are 249 classes in all, and in addition to money prizes over 400 specials, including cups, bowls, plate, &c., are to be given.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE raised the enthusiasm of his audience on Saturday to a boiling-point by the announcement that the last day of his Shakespeare Festival coincided with the tenth anniversary of his management of His Majesty's. During that time, he said, he had produced some thirty-two plays, and although he might regret the production of some of them from a financial point of view, he was ashamed of none. In the success he had experienced in his theatre without State aid—and he was glad to say he had not yet fallen upon the rates—he had more than realised some of his dearest ambitions.

MR. TREE'S managerial career has actually extended to twenty years. He first started for a brief season at the Comedy Theatre, and in 1887 went to the Haymarket Theatre. From thence he crossed the road to the magnificent Temple of Thespis to which playgoers so consistently flock. Mr. Tree is now busily engaged with rehearsals of Oscar Wilde's comedy, A Woman of No Importance, which is to be seen at His Majesty's in about three weeks' time. Miss Ellis Jeffreys is coming from America to sustain a prominent part in the revival.

MISS ELLEN TERRY'S countless admirers will be delighted to hear that recently she has completed her autobiography. The task of recording, as she says, "an eventful life, packed full of incident," was begun last year, as a fitting commemoration of her stage jubilee. The reminiscences are to be given through the medium of M.A.P. under the title, "The Story of My Life," and the first instalment will be published on June 6. Miss Terry confesses that at first the difficulties of her undertaking appalled her, having, in her fifty years of stage life, accumulated enough material for fifty books. Her recollections go back to dim days passed in a Glasgow attic in the time before she had seen a theatre.

MR. T. P. O'CONNOR, who opened the Tribune Photographic Exhibition in the Rendezvous, Bouverie-street, on Wednesday, remarked in the course of his speech that it was almost as painful to a public man to see a photograph of himself in a newspaper as it was to hear his voice in a phonograph. No man, however great, however powerful his imagination, however strong his inspiration, could get the materials for human life out of his own brain or experience. He must keep in touch with other men and keep his ears wide open. Let them not either despise the talk of the markets. Socrates, after all, only went about in the market-place of Athens, and yet those exchange of talk had become the dialogues of Plato, one of literature's most immortal productions, just as the talk of the Roman mob, reproduced by the imagination of our great genius, had become the Coriolanus of Shakespeare.

MR. E. S. WILLARD has accepted Sir Squire Bancroft's invitation to be one of the judges to award the Bancroft Gold Medal at the performance given by the students of the Academy of Dramatic Art, at the St. James's Theatre, on Monday next. During the last week of Mr. Willard's American tour he was presented with a three-handled silver loving-cup by the members of his company. The cup, which stands 10½in. high and weighs 49oz., was specially designed, and bears the engraved signatures of all the members of Mr. Willard's company, from the leading lady to the assistant property-man.

THERE are exceptionally few pictures of theatrical interest on the walls of the Royal Academy this year. The most important is an oil painting by Mr. Oswald Birley of Miss Irene Vanbrugh (Mrs. Dion Boucicault). It is full length, and represents the popular actress in a graceful and characteristic position. She is seated, leaning against a big cushion the colour of old gold, with one hand lightly resting on her side and the other arm stretched along the back of the lounge, a small red-covered book having apparently just slipped from her fingers. Her evening dress is a peculiar shade of blue, drawn together at the corsage with a purple chou, the same colour being seen in the narrow sash, and a long scarf of spotted net is falling round her shoulders. A portrait of Mrs. Brown Potter, by Mr. William B. E. Ranken, is among the "skied." It possesses a somewhat wild and windy effect, with its vivid-coloured hair, the black plumes of an enormous hat, and sable muff. Miss Una L. Taylor exhibits a tiny statuette of Mlle. Adeline Genée, in ballet dress; Mr. Kaye Bruce has a little bronze statuette of Mr. Granville Barker, very happily posed; and a capital chalk drawing of Mrs. George Alexander, the work of Mr. Charles E. Ritchie, will be found in the black-and-white room.

"ECONOMICS FOR ACTORS" is the subject of a lecture to be delivered by Mr. Bernard Shaw at the next social of the Actors' Association on Friday next at 4.30. Mr. Cecil Raleigh will take the chair.

MISS EDNA MAY bade farewell to the stage on Saturday amid an enthusiastic display of goodwill. The Aldwych Theatre was crowded in every available space, and Miss May was greeted with loud and prolonged cheers, the song "Follow on," which the popular actress had introduced into Nelly Neil, being redemanded again and again. At the end of the performance the audience joined those on the stage in the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," and in answer to the demands for a speech Miss May stepped forward bearing a beautiful bouquet, one of many showered upon her.

EVIDENTLY deeply affected, Miss May said: "I thank you so much for your kindness this evening, which has made my task in saying good-bye all the harder. But I am very happy that I am not leaving England, and, although I am taking my farewell of you, I am glad that I am going to remain amongst you, and I hope to come to the theatre and see you all. My life during the last nine years has been very, very happy owing to the kindness I have met with at the hands of all, and I only hope the next nine years will be as happy. I thank you all very heartily once again. Good-night!" A pleasing little ceremony brought the eventful evening to a conclusion, Mr. Joseph Coyne presenting Miss May with a silver rose bowl as a gift from the stage staff, and with a silver loving-cup from the company which came specially from America to support her in Nelly Neil.

THE annual meeting of the Rehearsal Club will be held at the St. James's Theatre (by kind permission of Mr. George Alexander) on Tuesday afternoon, at three o'clock, when H.R.H. the Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein has graciously consented to be present. The chair will be taken by Mr. Edward Terry, and the meeting will be addressed by Mr. Allan Aynesworth, the Rev. Canon Holmes, Mr. Frederick Kerr, Mr. James Welch, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Alexandra Carlisle, Miss Gertrude Kingston, and Miss Eva Moore. Tickets of admission may be obtained (on application by letter only) of the Honorary Treasurer, Mrs. Mayne, 101, Queen's-gate, S.W.

ANOTHER donation has been made by the executors of the late Mr. J. L. Toole from the residue left at their discretion for charitable institutions. The latest establishment to benefit from the late comedian's munificence is the Maternity Charity and District Nurses' Home, Plaistow, E., to which the sum of £135 has been allotted.

IN the House of Commons on Thursday Mr. Kennedy asked the Secretary for Foreign Affairs whether the views of the Japanese were consulted in withdrawing the licence for The Mikado, on whose advice did the Lord Chamberlain act, and would he state what were the considerations which prompted the action in this matter; whether the responsibility for the decision rested solely with the Lord Chamberlain; and would he generally reconsider the whole question as affecting the case of this play with a view to withdrawing the prohibition and limiting, by legislation or otherwise, the power of the Lord Chamberlain.

SIR E. GREY replied:—"The Lord Chamberlain acted on his own responsibility. With regard to the last part of the question, if my view had been asked for, it would have been entirely in accord with the action which the Lord Chamberlain has taken for reasons which are obvious in this matter. I should not be prepared to reconsider the question, even if it were in my province to do so." Mr. Kennedy further inquired who was responsible in the House for the action of the Lord Chamberlain, but Sir E. Grey asked for notice of the question.

LEADERS of the profession are agreed that the extinction of The Mikado would be a national loss. Sir Charles Wyndham declares the prohibition is "beyond my humble intelligence." Mr. Beerbohm Tree thinks it is Gilbertian, to say the least of it, to disallow The Mikado and allow La Milo. Mr. Cyril Maude cannot help thinking a mistake has been made somewhere, because, surely the Japanese are the most sensible nation in the world. Mr. Arthur Bourchier considers that permanent withdrawal would most certainly be a national loss. Mr. George Grossmith, sen., writes: "Will a faithful English public tolerate it? I think not. Cave canem." Mr. Fred Terry is of opinion that the withdrawal of the opera will mean a great loss to the lyric stage, and a pleasure denied to young and old alike.

DESPITE the Lord Chamberlain's prohibition, the opera was given on Thursday at the Lyceum Theatre, Sheffield, by Mrs. D'Oyly Carte's company, before a crowded and enthusiastic audience. Some doubt existed up to the last as to whether the opera would be produced, but the management of the theatre received no notification whatever from the Lord Chamberlain's office that the licence had been suspended, and consequently decided to proceed with the performance. The work was also given at the Norwood Public Hall by amateurs on Wednesday; but an intended representation at Cripplegate was stopped, and a charity performance announced for next week by the Middlesbrough Operatic Society has also come under the ban.

THE will of Mr. James Davis, LL.B., better known as "Owen Hall," author of Florodora, The Geisha, The Girl from Kay's, A Gaiety Girl and The Greek Slave, has been proved. Mr. Davis left an estate valued at £200 gross, with net personalty nil.

A COMIC football match was played at Burnden Park, Bolton, on the 24th ult., between Fred Karno's comedians and Messrs. Baines and Hales' Pet of the Embassy Co., who were last week appearing at the Grand and Theatre Royal respectively. Keen interest was evinced in the match in Bolton and district. Miss Ethel Dunford, the "Pet," kicked off, and Fred Kitchen for Karno's Comedians and Witty Wattie Walton for the Pet of the Embassy Co. were prominent in keeping the fun going fast and furious. As an exposition of the art of football the game was evidently something new to the habitués of this famous ground, and the referee also learnt much during the afternoon of the weird and wonderful possibilities of "footer" as played by members of the profession. The amount taken at the gate and collected on the ground by ladies of the two companies was over £15, which, together with the result of tickets sold beforehand, will make a very satisfactory sum to be handed over to local charities.

THE Lyceum Theatre, which has been launched on the flowing tide of prosperity through the medium of good and wholesome melodrama, is to follow out the traditions of houses devoted to such work, and have a pantomime at Christmas, when a finely-mounted production may be anticipated. Mr. Charles Penrose, who is making such a pronounced success on the halls as a silly, overgrown boy, has been engaged by Mr. Carpenter for a principal comedy part in the forthcoming annual.

THE best interests of theatrical art are manifestly being served by the Academy of Dramatic Art, at the entrance examination of which on Tuesday nearly 50 per cent. of a large number of candidates were rejected on the ground of not possessing sufficient qualification for being advised to adopt the stage as a profession. This means that the Examining Board, which consisted of Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. John Hare, Mr Cyril Maude, and Mr. Pinero, refused a year's tuition fees of no less a sum than £500.

MR. ARTHUR COLLINS has concluded arrangements for a short summer season at Drury Lane Theatre, commencing in the week before Whitsuntide. The attraction will be the strong romantic Indian drama, The Last of His Race, by Donald Maclaren, which has already had an enormous success in America. Several important engagements are pending with well-known artists, and the cast, when completed, will be one well worthy of a Drury Lane production. The drama, the peculiarity of which is that all the characters are Redskins, but are played by whites, was introduced to this country at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, on April 8.

MISS LILY BRAYTON was present at the annual meeting of the Edinburgh Needle and Thimble Guild, held in the Oak Hall on the 25th ult., and conferred badges on the two members who had been most successful in their efforts for the good of the guild. In the course of her remarks Miss Brayton said that no profession had a greater number of blanks than the theatrical profession, and a noble work was being done by those who were aiding by practical help their poorer sisters. Lady Dunedin proposed a vote of thanks to Miss Brayton, and the meeting, over which Miss S. Mair, a great-grand-niece of Sarah Siddons, presided, passed it enthusiastically.

MR. FRED W. PERMAIN, having produced for Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler's Comedy Company in South Africa The Walls of Jericho, Beauty and the Barge, Mr. Hopkinson, His House in Order, and many other London successes, is returning to England by the s.s. Norman, which is timed to arrive to-day. By the same steamer come Mr. Wilfred E. Payne, Mr. Herbert Greville, Mr. Talbot Homewood, Mr. Rule Pyott, Mis Marie Housley, Miss Violet Greville, and Miss Florence Le Clercq.

MR. W. PAYNE SEDDON celebrated, on the 24th ult., his third year as owner of the Derry Opera House. Every available seat was booked long before the date, and a record audience gathered to witness Charley's Aunt, which was in the programme. Mr. Seddon, who had an enthusiastic reception, in the course of a speech, alluded to his work of providing healthy amusement as "a mission," and in thanking the public for their increasing support referred to his share of the undertaking as not only a means of earning his own living, but as an important duty in that state of life to which it had pleased God to call him.

MR. EDWARD COMPTON sent a characteristically witty letter of apology for his absence from the opening ceremony of the May fête at the Leeds Town Hall on Wednesday, at which the Lord Mayor (Mr. Joseph Hepworth) officiated. Mr. Compton acknowledged a kind of "Nelson" sense of "duty." "The play I am detained here rehearsing," wrote the popular actor, is "Delicate Ground, which I have had great pleasure in especially reviving for your fête, and I am feeling with Nelson that I must do my duty by it and your public. Please accept my daughter, Miss Mackenzie, in my stead. She is, as Touchstone feelingly remarks, 'a poor thing, but mine own,' and she thinks, I believe, that she looks very nice in her new tailor-made gown! Your opening ceremony being graced by so distinguished a soldier as Sir H. Leslie Rundle cannot be but distinctly military; but we poor players will, at four o'clock, endeavour to be equally effective in the Civil Court, and if your patrons will only muster there in overwhelming numbers we will show them that we, too, can 'stand the fire' of their 'volleys' of applause, and though mere 'civilians' will yet 'face the music' and show them that 'Peace' (or rather our two pieces) have 'their victories as well as war.'"

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS and Miss Ellaline Terriss will follow up their present tour of The Beauty of Bath with a month of flying matinées. The repertory will consist of the triple bill, You and I, Scrooge, and Papa's Wife, and, with the exception of three days each at Oxford and Harrogate the company will play a fresh town every day.

THE real lions with which Mr. Distin Maddick hoped to embellish his production of The Judgment of Pharaoh at the Scala Theatre are to be denied to the public. The kingly animals had already been obtained and put into training; but the Lord Chamberlain has stated definitely that it would be impossible to grant permission for wild animals to appear on the stage.

MISS FANNY COLEMAN'S farewell matinée is to take place, by kind permission of Mr. George Alexander, at the St. James's Theatre on Thursday, the 30th inst. Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw has undertaken the arrangements of the programme, which will be a most attractive one, and include Mr. John Hare in A Quiet Rubber.

MR. DOUGLAS GORDON will conclude, on May 21, a fourteen months' engagement in South Africa with Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler's Comedy Company, in which he has been playing leading parts, including that of Hilary Jesson in His House in Order. Mr. Gordon is taking a holiday trip back, returning by the East Coast route, visiting Cairo, Alexandria, Rome, Venice, Lucerne, &c., and expects to arrive in England about July 17.

THE Muncaster Theatre, Bootle, will be run on the two-houses-per-night system during the month of July. Mr. Fred Willmot is to be the director of amusements.

AT Hastings Police-court, on Monday, Miss Florence Glossop Harris was the prosecutor in a case in which Emily Rogers, of Marina-street, St. Leonards, was charged with stealing jewels valued at £100. In January, when performing at St. Leonards, Miss Harris stayed at the prisoner's house, and later on missed several valuable articles. In March the prisoner sold a gold brooch belonging to Miss Harris for £10, and ultimately this led to her arrest. The accused, who expressed her sorrow, was committed for trial, and on Tuesday was sentenced to three months' imprisonment in the second division.

MR. J. H. SAVILE, of the Paisley Theatre, has instituted popular prices at his house for the spring and summer season, during which smoking is permitted in all parts of the theatre. The results of the innovation have been up to the present most gratifying.

THE O.P. Club closed its season on Sunday with a lecture by Mr. Alfred F. Robbins on "The Value of Ballet in Dramatic Art." The address was illustrated by Mlle. Genée, who, without the aid of scenery or music, executed a ballet interlude, originally shown by Mr. Vincent Crummles in Dickens's "Nicholas Nickleby," entitled "The Indian Savage and the Maiden." Mlle. Genée took the part played in the original by the "Infant Phenomenon," and Miss D. Craske that of Mr. Folair, and the two ladies gave an artistic performance of the little episode, which was followed by some further examples of the art of terpsichore by Mlle. Genée. Messrs. Cecil Raleigh, Cyril Maude, Fred Wright, E. F. Spence, J. B. Mulholland, and Sidney Dark contributed to the discussion which followed.

MR. STUART ALEXANDER, who was engaged as principal tenor for the revival of Savoy opera, but was obliged to relinquish his parts at the beginning owing to a slight stroke of paralysis, has now, we are glad to state, quite recovered after an illness of thirteen weeks. Mr. Alexander is at present singing with Mr. Albert Chevalier's company, and hopes to be back in a West End production in the autumn.

MR. LEONARD WILLIAMS has been specially engaged for his original part of Royal Keene in The World's Great Snare.

IN a contemporary it was stated last week that "Friends of Mr. John Nolan will learn with regret that he has been ordered into the London Hospital." As several people have been under the impression that this must be Mr. John Nolan, the eldest of theatrical agents, and father of Mr. Philip Nolan, the latter gentleman wishes to point out that his respected father, who attains his seventy-seventh birthday this week, is at home well and hearty.

MR. HARRY YOUNG, the courteous and respected manager of the Muncaster Theatre, Bootle, on Tuesday won the first prize—a gold watch—in a billiard handicap, which took place in connection with the Muncaster Theatre and hotel. Mr. Young was heartily congratulated on his success.

MME. JANE HADING and Mrs. Patrick Campbell will both appear next week with their respective companies at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, now so ably managed by Messrs. Murray King and Clark that packed houses are the rule. The following week Mr. Walter Passmore will produce a new piece, with Miss Agnes Fraser and Mr. M. R. Morand in the principal parts. The music for this is composed by Miss Marjorie Slaughter, who will herself conduct on the opening night.

MR. HERBERT BOYLE, we regret to learn, has been seriously ill for some months, and is now an inmate of the Grand National Hospital for Consumption, at Ventnor, Isle of Wight (Block 7).

MR. ACTON BOND has had a busy time during the Shakespeare Memorial Festival. In addition to playing Gratiano in The Merchant of Venice with Mr. Arthur Bourchier at Stratford-on-Avon, he has been engaged with work in connection with three branches of the British Empire Shakespeare Society. At Stratford-on-Avon he directed a reading of As You Like It, at Leamington supervised the first full meeting of the members in that centre, and at Worcester produced A Winter's Tale with new scenery and a double cast for six evening performances and two matinées. All those taking part in the latter were members of the Society, including Mr. and Mrs. Carlton, and the houses were so good as to have resulted in a record week.

MR. ERNEST CARPENTER, of the Lyceum, has signed with Mr. Luscombe Searelle to produce his musical and poetical drama, Mizpah, in September next. The play, under Mr. Charles Frohman's management, in America achieved a phenomenal success. The play is taken from the Book of Esther, and has been licensed by the Lord Chamberlain. It is said to be the first play licensed which has been taken direct from the Book of Books.

THE usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday last, when there were present:—Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (in the chair), Mr. Henry W. Mote (solicitor), Misses Kate Bishop, Fanny Brough, Clare Greet, Georgina Hamilton, and Kate Phillips, and Messrs. J. Cooke Beresford, Cecil Brooking, C. F. Collings, Burton Cooke, C. Hayden Coffin, H. Athol Forde, Frederick Morland, Kenyon Musgrave, Frederick Volpe, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members, and also that they had commenced proceedings to enforce the payment of a member's claim for arrears of salary, &c.

A LETTER addressed to "The Reform Party" was opened at the request of some of the members of the Council by the chairman, and being, in his opinion, and in the opinion of the hon. solicitors, of such a nature as not to be worthy of consideration, and being also written by an anonymous writer, it was agreed that the letter should be destroyed, and the chairman carried out the wishes of the Council by putting it in the fire. A case of alleged insanitation at a provincial theatre was under consideration, and further particulars of the original complaint having been supplied by the complainer, the whole matter was placed in the hands of the hon. medical officer of health to the A.A., with a request that he would give the subject his attention.

THE report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was given, and a further rule for the governance of committees, prepared by them, was approved and adopted by the Council. The Commissioners' Committee's report did not come before the Council, owing to the fact that there was no quorum upon the last Monday of the month, at the time when their meeting should have been held. Miss Kate Turner was nominated for election, and seven former members were reinstated. The suggestion-book was considered, and an entry made.

MR. CHARLES FROHMAN has selected a powerful cast for A Royal Family, with which the Duke of York's reopens this evening. Mr. C. M. Lowne will be the King of Arcacia, Mr. Henry Ainley the Crown Prince, Miss Alexandra Carlisle Princess Angela, and the other members of the company will consist of Messrs. Philip Desborough, Herbert Bunston, Herbert Ross, Lyall Swete, B. Forsyth, Drelincourt Odlum, Alexander Cassy, H. G. Bentley, Charles Wellesley, G. Courtney, Sidney Hamilton, Master Andrews, and Misses Nella Powys, Dolores Drummond, and L. Bilbrooke.

ANOTHER American success is to be found next week at the neighbouring theatre, in Strongheart, which is to be introduced to an English audience at the Aldwych on Wednesday. The play, which has for years met with continuous prosperity in America, deals with the distinctions of race between the North American Indian and the Whites, and possesses besides an interesting love story, which should prove engrossing apart from the problem which is propounded. Mr. Robert Edeson, the original Strongheart, appears in the rôle with which his name has long been associated, and Mr. Edmund Breese and Mr. Richard Bennett, who appeared here in The Lion and the Mouse, will also be in the cast.

AT the Royalty Theatre, Llanelly, on Whit-Monday, Mr. H. F. Maltby will produce a new drama, in four acts and eleven scenes, entitled A Miser's Legacy, written by himself. The principal parts will be played by Mr. Wyn Weaver, Mr. Stuart Willson, Miss Mara Maltby, Miss Grace Richardson, and the author.

MR. ARCHIE SELWYN has been re-engaged by M. Auguste Van Biene to stage-manage The Broken Melody during a short suburban tour, starting May 13. With this engagement Mr. Selwyn will enter upon his fifth consecutive year of tour with the piece, and he has also been retained for the autumn.

MISS GERTRUDE LE SAGE, who is playing in South Africa under the management of Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler, has received two offers by the latest mail, but has been re-engaged by Messrs. Wheeler. Miss Le Sage, whose last appearances previous to her departure for the Cape were in What the Butler Saw, at Wyndham's and the Savoy, has been absent upwards of a year. She is happily in the best of health, and is enthusiastic about the courteous management, the lovely climate, and the success which has attended her work.

MISS LALLIE FORSYTH has been engaged by Mr. W. Alexander Dallas for lead in The World's Great Snare, which opens at Blackburn on Whit Monday.—Miss Dutchie Forsyth is playing the part of Tinavina, and is also understudy for that of Europina, in Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, which has entered upon a successful career at Terry's.

MR. E. H. SOTHERN and Miss Julia Marlowe, whose season at the Waldorf has excited such marked interest, will give one of their most remarkable productions on Monday in the play When Knighthood was in Flower, founded by Mr. Paul Kester, author of Sweet Nell of Old Drury, on Mr. Charles Major's novel bearing the same title. Fame has attended the piece in America, where its run extended to over 500 performances. The period is 1513-1514, and the story deals with the loves of Mary Tudor and of Charles Brandon, a young English nobleman, impersonated respectively by the two accomplished principals of the company.

MISS TITA BRAND has been engaged by Mr. Benson to play Hero in Much Ado on Monday, at Stratford-on-Avon, when Miss Wynne Matthison appears as Beatrice and H. Ainley as Benedick. Miss Brand is also playing Mrs. Page in The Merry Wives on the last night of the Festival.

MR. G. H. SNAZELLE, the distinguished Professor of Elocution at the Guildhall School of Music, is a decidedly welcome addition to the many attractions at the Crystal Palace, where he now gives performances every evening at six o'clock in the Concert Room. Mr. Snazelle calls his entertainment A London Club Night, a monologue of music, song, story, and travel, and he is ably assisted by Miss Blanche St. Clair, a clever pianist. Mr. Snazelle has been three times round the world, and has obtained some remarkable views and incidents relating to our colonies which he proposes to present to the Palace audiences next week.

AS the present season of the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic company is terminating at the end of May, the management of the Pavilion Theatre, in order to show the appreciation of the particular and valuable services rendered by the courteous and urbane Yiddish manager, Mr. J. W. Rosenthal, have decided to accord him a well-deserved benefit on Tuesday, May 14, when the whole of the company, including Mr. Sigmund Feinman and Mr. Charles Natansohn, have promised to appear.

MR. ALBERT CHEVALIER, who is winning flattering eulogies on his tour with a triple bill consisting of Atonement, The Dream of His Life, and Pantaloon, has received a gratifying appreciation of his work in a letter which has been addressed to his manager, Mr. Charles Ingle, by Mr. Percy Percival, manager for Messrs. E. H. Bull and Milton Bode's Grand Theatre, Wolverhampton. Mr. Percival writes: "Dear Mr. Ingle,—Permit me to congratulate you, as manager, on the all-round excellence of Mr. Chevalier's triple bill. To praise Mr. Chevalier's performance of the different characters is like an attempt to paint the lily, but his genius and versatility have never been more strikingly exemplified than in this programme. A remarkable fact is the splendid company that Mr. Chevalier has engaged to support him; each part is played for all it is worth. I wish you the great success your programme so richly deserved."

"HER MARRIAGE VOW," which Messrs. Garside and Knowles tour this coming autumn, and for which they hold some important contracts, is a striking emotional drama with a unique railway sensation. An extensive plant of printing has been acquired, and the entire production will be carried. A strong cast, including some well-known artists, is being engaged.

MR. W. HENRY HARGREAVES has been engaged by Mr. J. A. Thomson for lead in his stock season at Paignton.

MISS GRACE MURIELLE, who was enthusiastically received at Bradford and Liverpool recently in The Great Awakening, has met with a temporary check in her work in the form of a sharp attack of influenza and loss of voice. Her indisposition may possibly be attributed to the fact that she rushed straight away on receipt of a wire notifying Miss Hildyard's indisposition, arriving at Liverpool only just in time to go on, without rest or rehearsal, and continuing the whole of the week following in the very exacting rôle of Lola. Miss Murielle endows the part with a personality of her own, a certain seductive charm that contrasts well with the fire and passion of her more dramatic moments. Miss Murielle, who received six offers for Whitsuntide, will not now book that week.

MR. HOWARD TEMPLETON has been specially engaged by Mr. Wentworth Croke, to play John Storm in The Christian, and opened with considerable success last Monday at the Opera House, Leicester.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE, Barrow-in-Furness, will close after this week for entire rebuilding. During their year and a half of management the enterprising lessees, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge, have achieved really remarkable results, and the success which they have met with has continued right up to the last. For the penultimate week they were fortunate in securing Mr. George Alexander's company in His House in Order, which packed the theatre nightly; while Mr. Albert Chevalier is this, the closing week, being received with the utmost enthusiasm. The new theatre will open Aug. 5 with a play now running in London.

THE elegant opera house in Kidderminster of which Mr. James P. Moore is part proprietor and manager has enjoyed a very prosperous season, which terminates at the end of Whit-week. The theatre will then be entirely redecorated, re-opening on August Bank Holiday with Home, Sweet Home.

THE Mayor of Oxford and the Pageant Committee gave a most successful Press luncheon at the Town Hall on Thursday, when some sixty members of the Press from London and the provinces attended. Speeches were delivered by the Mayor and by Mr. Beerbohm Tree, who, in proposing "Success to the Oxford pageant," said it was an inspiring thought to him as an actor that the University should so identify itself with the drama by taking part in this pageant, and concluding his speech with the remark that the radiant figure of Charity walked in the wake of the pageant.

MR. CHARLES SANTLEY had a large and distinguished audience, which included the Princess of Wales, at his jubilee concert at the Albert Hall on Wednesday. The programme was one worthy of the occasion, and included all the available "stars" of the musical world. Mesdames Albani, Suzanne Adams, Clara Butt, and Ada Crossley; Messrs. John Coates, Ben Davies, Edouard de Reszke, and Kennerley Rumford provided vocal solos; Miss Fanny Davies, Herr Fritz Kreisler, and Mr. W. H. Squire played instrumental pieces; and the London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Landon Ronald, also performed. The famous baritone himself sang "O, ruddier than the cherry," "Bid me to love," and "Simon the Cellarer," with all his well-known inimitable art.

THE Earl of Kilmorey, the chairman of the Executive Committee, who said that Mr. Santley had been known throughout his career as a man sans peur et sans reproche, announced that the subscriptions to the testimonial fund and the receipts from the concert would total £2000, but the fund would remain open until June 1 for any further contributions. He also handed Mr. Santley an album containing the portraits of the singers and the organising committee. Mr. Santley thanked all those present for the great honour they had conferred upon him, and spoke in feeling terms of a letter he had received from the Archbishop of Westminster, in which the Pope had sent his Apostolic blessing and best wishes for a successful concert. Mr. Santley added that he was not in any sense taking a farewell, but hoped, with God's blessing, to be able to sing to the public whenever they desired him, and for as long as his voice remained.

A CONCESSION has been made at the New Grand Theatre, Southampton, by virtue of which smoking will, after Monday next, be allowed in the upper portions of the house (dress circle, amphitheatre, and gallery), but not on the ground floor—stalls and pit. The use of the fragrant weed, moreover, is not permitted at matinées.

IN the Court of Bankruptcy, on the 26th ult., meetings of creditors and shareholders were held under the winding-up order made against the Winter German Opera, Ltd. The accounts showed unsecured liabilities £7264, and assets estimated at £966. The deficiency as regards contributories was returned at £13,498. The company was formed in July, 1906, for the purpose of producing German opera at the Covent Garden Theatre, primarily in the months of January and February, 1907. The nominal capital was £10,000, of which £7200 was allotted and paid up in cash. Mr. Ernest Van Dyck was engaged as manager of the company, and he appeared as principal tenor in certain of the performances. The venture was not a financial success, and came to an end on Feb. 16. The proofs of debt included claims by relatives of members of the company who perished in the steamship Berlin disaster. The liquidation was left in the hands of the Official Receiver.

MR. BERT COOTE'S Fatal Wedding company had a narrow escape of losing all their scenery on Sunday last on their journey to Lancaster. Just as the train was nearing Crewe Mr. Arthur Law Raynor, his manager, discovered that a spark from the engine had sent fire to the scenery, which was promptly put out by the aid of the officials, but not before some of the cloths had been destroyed.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Religion and the Drama.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER has written to the Daily Mail as follows:—"When so much that is written against the stage is ventilated in the columns of many newspapers, it is good to find someone holding a brief on the other side, and willing and brave enough to write as 'Inventus' has done in the current issue of the Christian Commonwealth, on the present condition of the drama and on the character of the plays presented of late in some of the London theatres. I enclose you extracts from the article, to learn from your readers that these sentiments are shared (as I believe they are) by a large proportion of the public.—GEORGE ALEXANDER."

ONE of the quotations is as follows:—

"The attitude of modern religious people to the theatre is strangely inconsistent. As an institution, the theatre is never in religious circles officially—and rarely openly—recognised or commended, and by the religious Press it is, as a rule, either denounced or ignored. Yet a large proportion of ministers of the Gospel, editors of religious newspapers, and ordinary church members attend the theatre frequently or occasionally. Is it not rather unfair of so-called religious people to enjoy the delights of theatre-going without frankly admitting their indebtedness to the dramatic profession?

"Miyo Sama."

APROPOS of a statement made by Mr. Arthur Diosy, who claims to have suggested to Mr. Richard Temple the air that used to accompany the Mikado's entrance in the celebrated opera, Mr. W. S. Gilbert writes to the Morning Leader:—"Mr. Diosy may have suggested the air to Mr. Temple for anything I know to the contrary; but, as a matter of fact, the words and music were suggested to Sir Arthur Sullivan and myself by the gentleman who was then Mr. Bertram Mitford, and who is now Lord Redesdale. Mr. Mitford, whose knowledge of Japan was 'extensive and peculiar,' very kindly offered to assist us in the production, and it was at one of the rehearsals at which he was present that I, personally, asked him if he could suggest an effective Japanese air with native words that would suit the Mikado's entrance. He at once suggested 'Miyo Sama,' and Sir Arthur Sullivan, who jumped at the idea, took down the notes as Mr. Mitford hummed them, and I took down the words from his dictation. Lord Redesdale will, no doubt, recollect the circumstance."

Acting and Audiences.

AUDIENCES generally get the acting they deserve, said Mr. Martin Harvey in his lecture on the Art of Acting at Birmingham last Wednesday. Perfect representations were only possible when the actor and his audience were so fused with sympathy that he could convey his flashes of sensibility. Therefore, the audience should be prepared to be impressed, to give as well as receive, and should not allow its intelligence to be obfuscated by the process of digesting a too heavy dinner. The actor could express nothing but himself in his characters, and, ceasing to do that, his acting became the unmeaning mouthing of certain words which carried no conviction.

Othello's "Language."

AT the performance of Othello given by Mr. Lewis Waller at the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon, on Tuesday, two interested members of the audience, says the Daily Mail, were Mme. de Navarro (Miss Mary Anderson), who as everyone knows is a Roman Catholic, and her son. The boy is ten years old, and a great friend of Mr. Waller's. There are words and passages in Othello which even when spoken by his friend, were not, Mme. de Navarro thought, "quite the thing" for a boy, and so whenever such passages occurred she tried to distract the little fellow's attention. At ten years of age, however, a boy's notice is not easily diverted from something that interests him; and that was the case at the performance of Othello, for at last, when the boy did catch hold of something very "emphatic," he turned his head and said, "Mother! . . . I think Mr. Waller will have to go to confession very soon."

A Mixed-up Marriage.

"A MARRIAGE OF REASON," a comedy in four acts, by J. Hartley Manners, which was recently produced at Wallack's Theatre, New York, and withdrawn after a fortnight's run, has an odd story. Mr. Kyrle Bellew enacted the part of Lord Delcombe, who has been married and divorced, and, being in an impecunious condition, is seeking another wife with a fortune. He meets Rita Forrest, a Chicago heiress, and proposes to her at Goodwood. Rita declares that if a certain horse wins she will trade her millions for a title. The horse comes in with a length to spare, and the couple shake hands on "a marriage of reason." Little Tony, Lord Delcombe's son by his first wife, is thrown from his pony, and badly hurt, and Rita sends for his mother. The third act finds the first and second Lady Delcombe not only under the same roof, but on intimate terms with each other. Finally, Lord Delcombe and his wife discover that they are in love with each other, and Tony having recovered, it is disclosed that the first Lady Delcombe has taken a second husband and will now return to him. If the treatment and construction resembled the story, the brevity of the run is easily accounted for.

Yes or No?

MR. ROBERT EDESON, the American actor, who is to play Strongheart in the play of that name at the Aldwych Theatre, on Wednesday, says it is a drama of human interest out of which arises the problem, "Should the Indian marry the white girl?" Mr. Edeson has played the part nearly a thousand times, and, familiar with the circumstances as he is, cannot, he tells the Daily Express, satisfy himself whether the Indian would be right in marrying the girl of his heart. "The emotions are so conflicting," he says. "Sometimes on the stage I think he has every right to do so; a little later in the piece the objections appear so obvious that it seems it would be better to abandon his love and go back alone to his tribe, who are awaiting their chief. London audiences will have an opportunity of seeing it both ways—three nights 'Yes,' and three nights 'No'—in some week to be fixed later."

MR. WILLIE CLARKSON writes:—"The discussion in the Press of the lions at the Scala Theatre has just reminded me of a little experience I had at the opening of the last circus at the Theatre Royal, Covent Garden. The lion they had was quite a young one, and his mane had not commenced to grow. As the posters represented him with a huge mane, the management hardly knew what to do, and the idea came to them at last to have a false mane made. One evening, a few days prior to the performance, I was sent for, and Mr. Philadelphia took me to the cage where the lion was. He unbarred the door and went in to take the measurements; but he was only able to speak German, and I not being very conversant with the language, there was some difficulty in getting the right ones. He then opened the door and beckoned for me to come in and take the measurements myself, but, naturally, I objected to this. After all the mane was made and fixed on the elastic so as to go over the animal's head. The lion seemed quite pleased with it, and wore it all through the season." It was unfortunate that, unlike Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, the lion could not give Mr. Clarkson a "testimonial."

"MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH."

A Comedy, in Three Acts, adapted by Anne Crawford Flexner, from the book of the same name by Alice Hegan Rice, played for the first time in England, at Terry's Theatre, on Saturday, April 27.

Mrs. Wiggs	MRS. MADGE CARR COOK
Lovey Mary	MISS BESSIE BARRISCALE
Miss Hazy	MISS LOUISE CLOSSER
Miss Lucy	MISS FLORENCE BUSBY
Mrs. Eichorn	MISS GRACE GRISWOLD

Eddie	MASTER CHARLES BARRISCALE

It is astounding how far a little "study from life" goes even with audiences who have never seen the particular phase of existence that is represented. There is an instinct which tells us when the art we are inspecting is "observed," not invented. Very few of those present at Terry's Theatre on Saturday evening could have sworn to the truth of the picture in Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch; but all felt that Mrs. Wiggs must have existed in the flesh. There was no resisting her; she simply triumphed all along the lines of laughing faces. An old song used to tell us of one Rosalie, who was the light of a certain "prairie" home." Mrs. Wiggs in the good angel of a little ramshackle colony alongside of a railroad track in Kentucky. In the old times, "Kentuck" was chiefly famous for its horses and its hunters. The horses still wax strong on the "blue grass," but the farmer has taken the place of the emigrant with his long rifle. On the "cabbage patch" are located a Miss Hazy, a descendant of Mrs. Gummidge in "David Copperfield," and Mr. Stubbins, an old soldier. Mrs. Wiggs has been matchmaker to this curious pair, and the wedding is to be in her cottage. We see her making all the necessary preparations—calming her troublesome children, and supplying Mr. Stubbins with a pair of her late husband's pants, and Miss Hazy with a wedding-veil made of a pair of window-curtains. Mrs. Wiggs is a grass-widow. Wiggs has run away from his wife with a circus-rider, by whom he has had a child. "Lovey Mary," a winning young woman with chestnut hair, arrives at the cottage. She has run away from an orphanage with a baby boy named Tommy, to save him from being taken away by a stranger who has come to claim him; and Billy Wiggs has invited the fugitives to shelter with his mother. Wiggs, who is the father of the child, comes in search of it; but is put off, and persuaded to go away by Mary, the first act ending with a screamingly funny wedding scene and a dance.

In the second act, the Hazy-Stubbins marriage is such an utter failure owing to Miss Hazy's absolute ignorance of her domestic duties that Stubbins takes to drink in despair; and Mrs. Wiggs determines to "lose" him. He is placed, while in a drunken sleep, in a freight waggon bound for some distant town, provisions being laid by his side to sustain him when he recovers consciousness. Mrs. Stubbins poses as a widow until she hears that Stubbins, as a wounded soldier, has come into a belated pension. He returns somewhat depressed by his experiences, but decides to continue to live with Mrs. Stubbins, the housekeeping difficulty being solved by his expressed intention of hiring a cook. A more pathetic note is struck by the arrival of Wiggs with the Deputy-Sheriff to arrest Mary on a charge of kidnapping. He is unaware that it is his wife's house that he is coming to. In the end, all is explained and forgiven. Mrs. Wiggs has not a word of reproach for the man who has treated her so badly. She says "Come right in."

This sketch only gives a faint idea of the quaint comicality of this delightful piece. Mrs. Madge Carr Cook's Mrs. Wiggs is one of those complete and finished character-studies which carry the absolute conviction that they are drawn from life; the multitude of little touches that go to make them up are too odd and original to be invented. It is true that a great deal of the part is business. But it is all significant business; business which illustrates and develops the "root-idea" of the creation. The great merit of Mrs. Cook's performance is unconsciousness. She has got under the skin of the personage; and, while she is on the stage, Mrs. Wiggs is actually before us. Mrs. Cook's facial play, which is eloquent, natural, and spontaneous, is another striking feature of her embodiment. Mrs. Wiggs is a middle-aged woman with the remains of youthful attractiveness; grey hair, in which an ordinary comb is sometimes allowed to linger, and which is occasionaly embellished with the added attraction of a most undeceitful "front." The latter Mrs. Wiggs is always losing, it being discovered, on a "great occasion," in the horse's manger. It is difficult by description to do justice to Mrs. Wiggs; she is the result of a combination of details which it would be tedious and ineffectual to enumerate. As a whole she is irresistible. The extraordinary stature of Miss Grace Griswold, the representative of Mrs. Eichorn, savours of caricature; but the "gimlet" gaze, the relentless rigidity, and the spiteful sourness are as characteristic of the over-worked American woman of a certain class as are the extraordinary adornments in which Mrs. Eichorn indulges; and Miss Griswold may be credited with a quite intelligent and clever performance. Miss Louise Closser's Miss Hazy is unique. The "floppy," anæmic female is another familiar feature of the struggle for life in the States, and Miss Closser does full justice to the eccentric oddity of the rôle. Miss Bessie Barriscale looks very pretty as Lovey Mary, and acts with much feeling and at times with real earnestness; Miss Florence Busby is attractive in appearance and bright and pleasant in style as Miss Lucy; and Miss Bertha Livingston represents a corpulent, irascible, Americo-German woman with much comic unction. The three children are intelligently embodied by Misses Loretta Healey, Edith Story, and Pearl Egan. Mr. Frederick Burton contributes a carefully-studied and drily humorous rendering of the part of Mr. Stubbins, the dull deliberation and stolid conceit of the man being admirably hit off. Mr. Forrest Robinson handles the serio-comic character of Mr. Wiggs with great tact and discretion; and Mr. Frank Conor is manly and easy as Mr. Bob, Mr. Thomas Kelly and Mr. Gus Wilkes being excellent as the two lads, Billy Wiggs and Chris Hazy. Mr. Richard Allen contributes a neat bit of acting as H. Hunkerdunkus Jones; and Mr. George Parker is satisfactory as the Deputy Sheriff, Mr. Robert Downey doing well as Deacon Bagby. The piece, produced by Mr. Hugh Ford for Mr. Gaston Mayer, under whose management is the "season," goes with great smartness and smoothness. The interior of a down-South "shanty," which is the scene for the first act, is very realistic, and every detail of the production is carefully and cleverly attended to.

MARRIAGE OF MISS EDWARDES.

That considerable public interest was evinced in the wedding on Monday of Mr. George Edwardes's eldest daughter, Miss Dorothy Edwardes, to Mr. Cuthbert Arthur Sherbrooke, was fully evidenced by the crowd that assembled outside the church at least a couple of hours before the ceremony took place. The bridegroom is the third son of the Rev. Neville Sherbrooke, of Clifton, Bristol, and of the late Lady Lilias Sherbrooke, daughter of the first Earl Cairns, at one time Lord Chancellor.

St. James's Church, Spanish-place, where the marriage was solemnised, presented an exceedingly pretty spectacle, the elaborate floral decorations harmonising with the large and fashionably-dressed congregation. The sides of the sanctuary were embanked with masses of Annunciation lilies, white hydrangeas, spirea, marguerites, and foliage, towering above which were tall palms, while the aisle was over-arched with palms. The Rev. Canon Gildea, D.D., rector of St. James's, officiated, and in a very beautiful address exhorted the bridegroom to "love and cherish her as the very core of your heart, as the very apple of your eye." The Rev. Father O'Shaughnessy assisted, and Professor Douce presided at the organ. During the interval of waiting Handel's "Largo" and Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" were played, the "Cornelius March" being performed as the bridal couple entered the church, the special music from Lohengrin during the formalities in the vestry, while the strains of Tannhäuser filled the church at the conclusion of the ceremony.

The bride, who was conducted to the altar by her uncle, Major J. E. Edwardes, wore a long trained Romney gown of soft white satin, draped with old Brussels lace, which was included among other handsome presents from her mother. Her bouquet consisted of white roses and white heather, and she wore a beautiful pearl and opal necklace, the gift of the bridegroom. Her two sisters, Miss Nancie and Miss Norah Edwardes, accompanied her as bridesmaids, wearing white satin striped Chambéry gauze gowns with Romney blue sashes and broad Tuscan straw hats tied under the chin with pale blue ribbons. Their bouquets were of pink roses, and they wore enamel pendants with their initial "N" in diamonds, the present of the bridegroom. Captain Hugh Sherbrooke, R.H.A., attended his brother as groomsman. Mrs. George Edwardes, who was escorted by Mr. Sass, wore a charming gown of Wedgwood blue silk voile, the skirt plain and the bodice fihished with purely white net and lace embroidery on the voile and little silk tassels. She wore a black hat trimmed with a bird's head and long black and white tail feathers. There were many well-known people in the church. Miss Mary Moore was seen wearing a gown of very soft clinging material in a rich shade of carnation-pink, the bodice finished with lace. Over it was a long loose souple black cloth coat faced with pink and white embroidery. A black chip hat was worn, trimmed with black tulle and ostrich feathers and with silver galon. With Mr. and Mrs. George Grossmith, jun., was Miss Gertie Millar (Mrs. Lionel Monckton), who wore a dress of aluminium grey soft silk, the skirt falling in long pleats from the waist and the bodice finished with lace and embroidery. Her grey hat was trimmed with a fantasy of feathers shaded from grey to dark blue. Mr. and Mrs. Cosmo Gordon-Lennox (Miss Marie Tempest) were also present, the latter wearing a dress of grey-blue soft silk bordered round the hem with a narrow band of fur; a long loose three-quarter length black cloak was worn, and a smart black velvet toque trimmed with ostrich feathers, a sable wrap was carried. Others present were Lord and Lady Herbert Scott, relatives of the bridegroom, and Miss Jessie Bond.

Mrs. George Edwardes held a largely-attended reception at Claridge's after the ceremony, and here the many beautiful wedding presents were displayed. Among those in attendance were Major Edwardes, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Maude, Mr. Robert Emmett, Miss Isabel Jay, Miss Evie Green, Mr. W. Maude, Mr. Luther Mundy, Mr. and Mrs. Sass, Mr. Percy Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. William Boosey, Mr. Paul Rubens, Major and Mrs. Franklyn, Mr. and Mrs. Francklin, and Miss Carr Shaw. Later on the happy couple left for Devonshire, where the honeymoon is being spent.

Among the wedding presents were the following:—From Mr. George Edwardes, entire furniture for flat in satinwood and old oak; from Mrs. George Edwardes, lace and a set of sables, and to the bridegroom a gold cigarette case; from the Rev. Nevile and Mrs. Sherbrooke, a cheque; the Earl and Countess Cairns, a cheque; Mr. Alfred de Rothschild, diamond brooch; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Stuart, dessert knives and forks; Major J. E. Edwardes, cheque; the Dowager-Countess Cairns, cheque; Miss Braddon, pearl brooch; Mr. W. B. Maxwell, gold bracelet set with various stones; Sir Forrest and Lady Fulton, Japanese ivory statuette; Viscountess Sherbrooke, cheque; Lieutenant and Mrs. Sherbrooke, cheque; Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, silver framed mirror; Lady Meux, silver bowl and silver dish; Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, silver candlesticks; the Dowager Lady Sempill, cheque; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Wingfield, silver mustard-pot; Miss Evie Greene, cheese and butter tray; Lord and Lady Herbert Scott, oval mirror; Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Monckton, silver egg-cups and spoons; Mr. and Mrs. George Grossmith, jun., silver salver; Sir John Runtz, silver tea service; Mr. Paul Rubens, porcelain lamp; Mr. Percy Anderson, Boule clock; Lady White, lustrine jug; Mr. Alfred Cellier, silver crumb scoop; Mr. and Mrs. Penn Sherbrooke, cheque and photograph frame; Sir Charles and Lady Wyndham, silver muffineers and mustard-pot; the Rev. Edward and Lady Kathleen Eliot, cheque; General Sir George and Lady French, gold bangle; Sir Alfred and Lady Newton, silver bowl; and Mr. and Mrs. P. Edwardes, silver centrepiece and salver.

CHARLES WYNDHAM AND THE COLONIALS.

One of the pleasantest of all the entertainments offered to the Colonial Premiers in London was the supper given to them by Sir Charles and Lady Wyndham, at the Hyde Park Hotel, last week. It was only natural, considering the high position held by actors in Great Britain and her Colonies, that one of the hospitalities given to the representatives of the latter should be a banquet at which they might meet some of the most gifted of our theatrical artists; and it is safe to say that, amongst all the fêtes which the Premiers have attended in the course of their visit, none will be remembered by them more agreeably than the Charles Wyndham supper on the 25th ult. Sir Charles held, of course the seat of honour, with Lady Laurier upon his right hand; and amongst those present were Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mrs. Tree and Miss Viola Tree, Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. John Hare, Mr. George Edwardes, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Maude, Mr. Lewis Waller, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Miss Marie Tempest, Miss Marion Terry, Miss Edna May, Mr. Lawrence Irving, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier, Miss Mary Moore, Miss Evelyn Millard, Mr. Herbert Waring, Mr. Granville Barker, Mr. George Grossmith, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Esmond, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Terry, Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. Gilbert Farquhar, Mr. Henry Kemble, Miss Constance Collier, Miss Granville, Mr. H. H. Davies, Miss Nina Boucicault, Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Coffin, Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Webster, Miss Marie Illington, Mr. R. Harding Davis, Mr. Comyns Carr, Mr. Howard Wyndham, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Brown, Mr. Eille Norwood, Mr. Norman Forbes, and Mr. Sam Sothern.

Sir CHARLES WYNDHAM, in proposing the health of the Premiers, said: I am sure that you will be relieved when I tell you that, notwithstanding the subject of this toast, I do not intend to indulge in politics myself to-night. We actors are so given to expressing the thoughts of others that we rarely care in public to express our own. But for me I feel it is doubly necessary that I should be careful, lest the idea might come to me of following the admirable example of my friend George Alexander and standing for the London County Council; and finding then that some ill-considered words of mine were being used against me. I have, therefore, to be very cautious. I have to imitate, in fact, the caution of those inhabitants of the Scotch village of whom some of you may have heard, who, when on an autumn Sunday they heard their clergyman prophesy the speedy end of the world, promptly countermanded their order for a winter stock of coals—not because, under those possible circumstances, they begrudged the unnecessary expense for the coals, but because, in their caution, they did feel that if the world should come to an end with the winter stock of coals on hand the coals might be used against them. I, therefore, will content myself to-night with greetings, and I greet, first, the Prime Minister of our youngest colony, General Botha—who is prevented from being here to-night by the simple limitations of physical endurance. But he has most graciously sent two charming representatives in the persons of his daughter and his sister, and to them I tender the greetings for all three. Next, I greet you, Premiers of the older colonies. The great French actor Talma used to boast that at a certain period of his life he had played before a pit full of Kings; but what is that compared to the great historical drama now enacted on a stage which is world-wide, and by a company which has been gathered from three corners of the globe—a drama full of meaning, stirring in its situations, and far-reaching in its appeals to the heart of man? It was a very beautiful custom of the old Greeks, when they set out to found a colony, to take with them some of the living fire from the altars of the mother city, and with that fire to kindle the altars of their new homes beyond the seas. Years ago Englishmen left the English shores, taking with them the sacred fire of our national spirit, and we know well that when they return to their distant homes they will return not only to altars, but to hearts blazing brightly with the fire they took from England. I raise my glass, gentlemen of my profession, and when I do I ask you to drink upstanding to the health and prosperity of the Premiers of our self-governing colonies, their Ministers and their families, whose presence here to-night is our honour, and whose company is to us a delight.

Sir WILFRID LAURIER, in responding, referred to Sir Charles Wyndham's remarks about Mr. George Alexander. He (the speaker) did not know whether Sir Charles might not improve upon Mr. George Alexander's departure and go upon the wider stage of the House of Commons. The supper would be one of the very pleasantest recollections of a very pleasant sojourn.

Sir JOSEPH WARD, the Prime Minister of New Zealand, said Sir Charles Wyndham was known throughout New Zealand as one who had been a great ornament to an honoured profession, and he sincerely hoped that Sir Charles would accept an invitation to come to New Zealand, when he would receive a right royal welcome.

Mr. COMYNS CARR, in proposing the health of Sir Charles and Lady Wyndham, said Sir Charles was one of the greatest representatives of our stage in England. Acting was the great art which held the separate nationalities which had sprung from Britain together.

Sir CHARLES WYNDHAM briefly and pertinently replied, thanking Mr. Carr for his kind references to Lady Wyndham and himself.

DALLIMORE'S BAND, "the old British Guards," will start the summer season in the Royal parks on Sunday Afternoon, at three o'clock, and will play twice every week-day and each Sunday afternoon throughout the season.

It is difficult to find any fresh idea for a farcical or semi-farcical comedy, and we must welcome with cordiality the appearance of a new motive in Brewster's Millions, which Messrs. Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley have dramatised from the story by Mr. George Barr McCutcheon. It is necessary, for the full enjoyment of the fun of the piece that its foundation shall be firmly laid, and this was duly done at the Hicks on Wednesday, not only in the preparatory scenes, but by a neat little printed "note," which was distributed amongst the audience. Montgomery Brewster, one of a club of impecunious young men who call themselves the "Little Brothers of the Rich," suddenly inherits a fortune of half a million. When he returns home to enjoy it he is visited by a solicitor, who announces to him that a much larger inheritance—one of two millions—is his, on "conditions." By the will of a deceased uncle, he can only come into this second property if he manages to expend legacy No. 1 in the course of a year. Easy enough, one would say; but there are restrictions. Brewster is forbidden indiscriminate gambling, and must confine himself to ordinary extravagance; and he is, besides, prohibited from disclosing to anyone the conditions of the will. At first he is inclined to rest content with the "bird in hand," and not to run any risks; but he finally decides to "go for" the larger sum. And then the fun begins. His friends, who are not, of course, let into the secret, are horrified by what seems to them his insane folly. He takes an office, and puts them all into lucrative positions of trust. He has already arranged to finance a young chorus lady, who believes that she is destined to become a prima donna, and to find the capital for her appearance in the provinces in an opera written by one of his "pals." He puts twenty thousand into a bank kept by a certain Colonel Drew, which he is delighted to hear is "shaky." The proprietor of the bank declares, with tears in his eyes, that the sum will be his salvation. For a moment, Brewster is tempted to withhold the assistance; but his better nature triumphs, and he hands Drew the notes. The absolute bewilderment of the friends throughout is screamingly comical. They, of course, cannot understand Brewster's delight at his losses and his chagrin at the gains, which Fortune, out of pure "cussedness," showers upon him. He invests heavily in timber with a falling market, which, to his disgust, immediately rises. He backs a rank outsider for a race, and it comes in the winner, and so on. At the background of the farcical business runs the love-interest between the hero and a charming young girl, called Peggy Gray, to whom, of course, he cannot explain the reason of his extraordinary conduct, and who, very naturally, becomes jealous of his apparent infatuation for the female vocalist. But time is getting on; and still the bulk of the fortune has to be expended. Brewster charters the most expensive steam yacht that is to be had, and takes his friends on a tour round the world. While they are in southern latitudes he arranges with the Mayor of a coast town to pay the expenses of the festival of a certain Saint, which will be tremendous. But this brings matters to a climax. The crew of the yacht, who have been grumbling at being too luxuriously fed, rise in mutiny, and order the captain to return to England. Then a storm comes on, the vessel is in distress, and the captain is only prevented from running up a signal to that effect by the thought that assistance will mean salvage to the tune of £40,000. Brewster sees his chance. He rushes to the signal halliards, and runs up the flag. The £40,000 is lost; the first fortune is gone; and he is able to return and offer himself "utterly penniless," as a fit inheritor of fortune No. 2. An unwelcome loan from a friend of £10,000 threatens to spoil all; but Brewster gets rid of it by paying it to the executor of the will as his fee.

It was a happy thought to engage Mr. Gerald Du Maurier for the part of Montgomery Brewster. His style, quiet but full of authority and self-possession, gave reality and conviction to the extravagant incidents of the play; and, throughout, he acted with an amount of earnestness and sharpness that were very valuable in this respect. His quick and subtle facial play, his alert and decided method, and the admirable flexibility of his resources, combined to make his Montgomery Brewster altogether prominent and effective. Mr. Du Maurier was seen to excellent advantage, too, in the little love scenes, which he treated with pleasant lightness and tenderness. Without being obtrusively active, he never let the fun flag for a moment, and was always refined, well bred, and natural. Miss Beatrice Agnew played Margaret Gray very prettily, and endowed the character with delightful simplicity and sound commonsense; and Mr. J. L. Mackay introduced a really strong and deep bit of acting as the well-meaning embezzler, Charlie Harrison, his performance in the second act being commendably firm and sincere. Mr. Clarence Blakiston, too, was earnest and emphatic as the anxious and embarrassed Colonel Drew; and Mr. Arthur B. Murray contributed an unimpeachable performance as Rawles, Mr. George Bellamy's character-acting as Monsieur Bargie being neat and finished. Mr. Webb Darleigh did good work as Captain Perry; Mr. George Spelvin was satisfactory as Swearengen Jones; and Mr. Edward Sass was entirely efficient as Mr. Grant. The "Little Brothers of the Rich" were carefully and creditably represented by Messrs. Louis Goodrich, F. Percival Stevens, George Lestocq, Courtenay Foote, Vernon Davidson, and Arthur Minton; and though it is impossible to particularise certain of their efforts, it may be said that they were uniformly sound and successful. Miss Evelyn d'Alroy contributed a clever sketch of a modern masculine young woman, who believes in platonic love until convinced of her error by a male "friend"; Miss Hazel Thompson was very praiseworthy as Barbara Drew; Miss Kitty Melrose was a pleasing and attractive Trixie Clayton; and Miss Jane May was brightly humorous as a typewriter. Roars of laughter were created by Brewster's Millions, and the success of the piece was undeniably well deserved.

COURT THEATRE.

On Monday, April 29,
Revival of the Comedy, in Four Acts, by St. John Hankin, entitled
"THE RETURN OF THE PRODIGAL."

Samuel Jackson ..... Mr. Eric Lewis
Mrs. Jackson ..... Miss Florence Haydon
Henry Jackson ..... Mr. Dennis Eadie
Eustace Jackson ..... Mr. A. E. Matthews
Violet Jackson ..... Miss Amy Lamborn
Sir John Faringford ..... Mr. Cecil Rose
Lady Faringford ..... Miss Fortescue
Stella Faringford ..... Miss Dorothy Minto
Doctor Glaisher ..... Mr. James Hearn
Rev. Cyril Pratt ..... Mr. Norman Page
Mrs. Pratt ..... Miss Mary Barton
Baines ..... Mr. Edmund Gwenn

Mr. St. John Hankin was admitted into the slowly increasing cohort of "Court" playwrights on the strength of his unconventional treatment of the characters and conversations of very ordinary people in The Return of the Prodigal, which strongly recommended itself to the younger quidnuncs among the critics on its original production at the Sloane-square Theatre on Sept. 26, 1905, and the revival of the comedy on Monday at the same house was followed with much laughter by a very large audience. There is not much story to tell, but the difficulties encountered by an ambitious father of the haute bourgeoisie in his dealings with a ne'er-do-well are treated with a freshness that appeals to the most hardened playgoer in quite irresistible fashion. The author skilfully avoids striking a false note, and he puts a humour into every-day life that shows keen powers of observation, which are always guided, but never overpowered, by the instinct of the theatre. The powerful original cast has not been altered in any essential particular for the present revival, which has the immense advantage, in the first place, of the help of Mr. A. E. Matthews as the prodigal and of Mr. Dennis Eadie as the elder brother. Eustace is a most interesting bounder, and his ingenious arguments in favour of a policy of drift are listened to with unfeigned amusement as advanced by Mr. Matthews, who is the very personification of coolness and nonchalance. Mr. Dennis Eadie realises to a nicety the fussy activity and priggishness of Henry Jackson, whose thesis of worldly prosperity is listened to by pretty Miss Dorothy Minto, who plays pleasantly enough as Stella Farringford. Mr. Eric Lewis takes the part of Samuel Jackson (originally presented by Mr. Jack Barnes), and plays with perfect finish and a sure touch. Miss Florence Haydon's picture of the fond, silly mother, Mrs. Jackson, is a "slice from life," so true is it in every phase. The scheming, ambitious Lady Faringford is acted by Miss Fortescue with the necessary acerbity and hauteur. The baronet's wife is perhaps the most conventional character in the comedy, but she has some daring things to say, especially when she talks of the fecundity of the poor, who have an irritating habit of adding to the population and the burden of the rates at the same time. Mr. James Hearn furnishes an excellent sketch of the country practitioner, Dr. Glaisher; Mr. Edmund Gwenn is discretion itself as the butler; and Mr. Norman Page and Miss Mary Barton as the clerical couple bring into agreeable prominence small parts, the cast being completed by Mr. Cecil Rose and Miss Amy Lamborn, the lady being responsible for a finished interpretation of Violet Jackson.

MR. ARTHUR VERNE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—May I encroach upon your kindness and space to present to your readers and friends the sad case of Mr. Arthur Verne, comedian? Mr. Verne joined my Dare-Devil Dorothy company in December, 1902, as principal comedian, and played the part till March, 1906, when, through weakness in the legs, he was compelled to relinquish his engagement. He was under medical treatment at his home till May, when he went into hospital as an in-patient till July. He was discharged, and rejoined the company, Aug. 13; but in September, four weeks after, at Manchester, was suddenly stricken with paralysis in the right side, leaving him entirely helpless, and, of course, had to resign his part again. Since then, to the present time, he has been totally incapacitated, and although a very prudent and well-living man, his savings are quite exhausted.

Mr. Verne's previous engagements were:—Four years with The Prodigal Parson; he also toured with The Days of Cromwell, Our Irish Visitors, &c.; pantomimes at Standard Theatre, London; Princess's, Glasgow (two seasons); Theatre Royal, Manchester; Grand Theatre, Cardiff; Theatre Royal, Plymouth, &c.

I should like to say that during the long period Verne was under my management I always found him sober, industrious, and a splendid comedian and dancer, and always willing to help brother artists in distress.

I feel sure there are many old friends who would be glad to help poor Verne now he is unable to help himself.

Subscriptions will be gratefully received and acknowledged by Henry Swinerd, Royal Artillery Theatre, Woolwich; or by J. W. Cordiner, Dare-Devil Dorothy Company, en route.—Yours truly,

HENRY SWINERD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Many old frineds of Arthur Verne will be sorry to learn the sad news, and I am certain that a good fellow like Arthur will not be forgotten now he is entirely helpless. He was always one of the first to help anyone in distress. I have collected the following from the members of Messrs. Power and Kirby's Man's Enemy company, and am forwarding the same to Mr. Cordiner at Northampton:—John Power, 5s.; Hartwell J. Kirby, 5s.; Clara Reid, 5s.; Martin Comstock, 5s.; George Biddall, 5s.; Constance Medwyn, 2s. 6d.; May Grayce, 2s. 6d.; Fred Owen, 2s. 6d.; Charles B. Johnson, 2s. 6d.; Norman A. Overton, 2s. 6d.; T. Arthur Ellis, 2s. 6d.; L. Fred Tenaur, 2s. 6d.; Mrs. Goddard, 2s.; Evelyn Geldard, 2s.; Frank Hedley, 2s.; Arthur Hill, 1s.; Jack Johnson, 1s.—Total, £2 10s. 6d.—Yours faithfully,

MARTIN COMSTOCK,

Theatre Royal, Cardiff, May 1, 1907.

Paris Profits.

The figures of the gross receipts taken at the principal Paris theatres during the year 1906 have just been published, showing the startling total of £1,728,320, an increase of £40,000 against the preceding year, the highest figure ever reached except in 1900 (the exhibition year), when the receipts swelled to £2,316,000. Since 1850, when the takings amounted to about £320,000, the figures show every year a steady increase. The worst time for Theatres was, of course, 1871, the year of the Franco-German war, whilst Paris was besieged. The Germans were bombarding the city, yet something like £200,000 was taken at the doors.

We shall be obliged if our readers will send us any amusing anecdotes they may hear, or accounts of any quaint incidents they may witness while acting or rehearsing.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, April 29, for the First Time in the London district, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Charles Freeman, entitled
"A WHITE DEMON."

Dr. Richard Leyton ..... Mr. Charles Freeman
Robert Elliott ..... Mr. Charles Lodge-Percy
Coney Brown ..... Mr. G. K. Ashley
Professor Simpson ..... Mr. W. E. Griffiths
Jeremiah Twinkle ..... Mr. Frank Coston
Frank Wilson ..... Mr. Will McNallie
P.C. Bobbin ..... Mr. A. Wilkinson
Hallad ..... Mr. Jack Railton
Dick ..... Miss Florrie Driver
Mary de Bean ..... Miss Lilly Walker
Lucy Elliott ..... Miss Henrietta Schrier
May Elliott ..... Miss Florence Tench

The revival of A White Demon—written and produced in the provinces some ten years ago—at the Stratford Theatre Royal this week is very opportune, inasmuch as public attention has lately been riveted on a notorious murder case in America, and the plot of A White Demon has many points in common. This is evident when we make the acquaintance of May Elliott, happily living with a devoted husband, who, when told that Dr. Richard Leyton is coming to stay with them, recoils with affright at the prospect. For Dr. Leyton, a morphia maniac of the worst type, but, withal, a man of culture and ability, had irreparably wronged the girl in her younger days as a hospital nurse, and a black and banished past appears to be opening up again for her. There is mutual recognition when the two meet, and Leyton threatens to expose May unless she will consent to renew their former intercourse. Terrified, she consents; but better counsels prevail, and she determines to write to the villain that she will make a clean breast of the past to her husband, defying Leyton to do his worst. Whilst writing Robert Elliott appears, and inquires whom the letter is to; but May, instead of then and there explaining everything, entreats her husband to trust her and not to read the note. He, however, does, and puts the worst construction upon it. Thrusting his wife from him, he passionately exclaims, "Begone to your paramour!" Elliott has extracted the name of May's betrayer, and vows vengeance. His opportunity occurs when he meets Dr. Leyton at the lodgings which a kind-hearted friend, in Lucy Elliott, has taken for homeless May. Leyton had followed her to pursue his unwelcome attentions, and her husband, repentant of his hasty words, meets her persecutor man to man. A well-administered horse-whipping falls to Leyton's lot; but the miscreant is not done with, for, while Elliott has left the room, he injects morphia into the half-fainting May, which sends the girl into a death-like trance, and on the return of the husband he is accused by Leyton of murdering his wife. How May is taken to the hospital, where a wonderful cure is effected by the aid of electricity, how she is once more at the mercy of Leyton, and finally rescued at the point of death from a huge diabolical cutting contrivance, and Leyton's death from burning, provide some very thrilling moments, and it is a matter for general satisfaction when, ere the curtain falls, husband and wife are again united.

The representation of the piece by Mr. Charles Freeman's company is most satisfactory. Mr. Freeman essays the part of Dr. Richard Leyton with every success. He acts throughout with admirable restraint, and with an ease and fluency which makes the character particularly obnoxious to the more susceptible of the audience. Miss Florence Tench's prepossessing appearance and genial manner make her a very popular heroine as May Elliott, and her acting is always sympathetic and charming. Mr. Charles Lodge-Percy plays in manly and buoyant style as Robert Elliott, and speaks his lines convincingly. Mr. G. K. Ashley submits a sound performance as Coney Brown; and Mr. W. E. Griffiths makes the most of the part of Professor Simpson. Mr. Will McNallie smartly enacts the detective, Frank Wilson; and Mr. A. Wilkinson is well placed as P.C. Bobbin. Miss Henrietta Schrier does exceedingly well as Lucy Elliott; and Miss Florrie Driver's acting has the true ring of pathos in the death-scene of the newspaper-boy, Dick. Comic relief is provided by the exuberances of Jeremiah Twinkle in the safe hands of Mr. Frank Coston, who works unflaggingly and is always successful in his efforts to amuse. He is ably assisted in the fun-making by Miss Lilly Walker, a very bright and vivacious Mary de Bean.

FREEMASONS AT PLAY.

The closing session of the Genesius Club of Masonic Instruction on Sunday last was celebrated by a dinner at the Hotel Cecil, Strand, the chair being occupied by Mr. James W. Mathews, preceptor of the club. The guests of the evening were Dr. Achard and Mr. J. Percy Fitzgerald, preceptor and secretary respectively of the Logic Club, with which the Genesius harmoniously works. After the toasts of the King and the Duke of Connaught, the M.W. Grand Master, the toast of "The Club" was proposed by Mr. J. Percy Fitzgerald, and replied to at some length by the chairman in the absence on business on the Continent of Mr. W. H. Marler, the secretary. He gave some very entertaining statistics with regard to its growth, and also dwelt upon the fact that when the club was founded by Mr. Harry Nichols, W. Lestocq, Sam Johnson, H. Reynolds, and F. H. Macklin, they met in a very small room in Bedford Park, and the first two members to join were Mr. Danby and himself. The increase of members had been large, and they now numbered nearly ninety. They had to remove twice, as they outgrew the accommodation at their disposal.

It fell to the lot of Mr. Danby to propose the toast of "The Visitors," which he did in that humorous manner for which he is celebrated.

Dr. Achard replied, and stated how much pleasure it gave him, as the principal of the Logic Club, to be present. He alluded to the interchanging of courtesies that took place during the session between the two clubs, and said he felt sure that it was a source of gratification to their members.

Mr. W. S. Lyon proposed the health of the chairman, and alluded to his (the chairman's) many well-known virtues, which he practised not only in Masonic circles, but with all with whom he came in contact. He referred the company to the columns of The Era from January of one year to January of the next, and stated that if they searched the fifty-two numbers they would find references to many a good deed recorded in them.

Mr. Mathews responded, and took the opportunity of thanking the officers.

The assistant-secretary of the club expressed his regret that a business appointment had prevented their worthy and popular secretary, who had never missed a meeting, being present that evening.

A delightful musical programme, under the direction of Mr. Tom Clair, assisted by Miss Annie Bartele, who received quite an ovation, was contributed to by Mr. Charles Capper, Mr. Charles Pond, and Mr. Walter Churcher.

We understand that to-morrow the Genesius Club pay a return visit to the Logic Club, and thus end their Masonic work until the last Sunday in September next, when they will again meet at Wycombe Hall, Hammersmith, as usual.
